HOSPITAL SHIP BRITANNIC SUNK

HOSPITAL SHIP BRITANNIC TORPEDOED IN AEGEAN SEA

The Survivors Number 1106 of Whom 28 Are Injured---Fifty Lives Lost When Liner Went Down.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

ATHENS, Nov. 22. — The White Star Line steamship Britannic, serving as a hospital ship for wounded soldiers of the Entente Allies, has been torpedoed and sunk, according to an official announcement here today.

LONDON, Nov. 22. — The British hospital ship Britannic has been sunk with the loss of about fifty lives, says a British official announcement today.

The Britannic was sunk by a mine or a torpedo yesterday morning in the Aegean Sea, according to the official statement. There were 1,106 survivors, of whom about 28 were injured.

This ship is presumably the big White Star liner which was taken over as a hospital ship last December when just completed.

DOCTORS AT HIS BEDSIDE WHEN EMPEROR FELL DEAD

Unable to Sleep on Account of Pain and He Pointed to His Throat as End Came---Public Kept in the Dark.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, November 22.—An Exchange Telegraph despatch says the Austrian emperor's death has caused much emotion in Vienna, where the public was not aware of the serious nature of his illness. He was feverish yesterday and unable to eat his evening meal. He retired at 7 o'clock, but was unable to sleep, complaining of pains in the throat. A few minutes after 9, while the doctors were at his bedside, he pointed to his throat and a moment afterwards was dead.

The first intimation received at London that Emperor Francis Joseph's health was again the subject of solicitation was contained in a despatch dated Nov. 12 emanating from Vienna News Agency, which reported that the emperor had been suffering for some days from a slight catarrhal affection. Subsequent reports from various sources, more or less conflicting, represented that his condition was becoming worse, but none of them indicated that his illness threatened to reach a critical state, and from Vienna came assurances that he was still able to give audiences to one or more ministers daily.

What gave some credence to the suspicion that his condition was much graver than the official bulletins indicated was the report which still lacks official confirmation that it had been decided to associate the heir to the throne, Archduke Charles Francis, in the government of the country, and that he was to assume the position on Dec. 2 on the 68th anniversary of the emperor's ascension to the throne.

So far as is known here Archduke Charles is still at the front in command of the army.

Archduke Charles Francis, grandnephew of Emperor Francis Joseph, became heir to the throne of Austria-Hungary by the assassination of Archduke Francis Ferdinand, prior to the outbreak of the war. He has been in command of the Austrian armies on various front during the past two years.

Archduke Charles Francis was born on Aug. 17, 1887. His wife was Princess Zita of the Bourbon house of Parma. His father was the Archduke Otto, who was the younger brother of Francis Ferdinand.

Joe Dominick, an Austrian, was sent down at Winnipeg for two lears for desertion from the 222nd Battalion. When enlisting he swore he was a Russian.

$500 from DeLaval Staff and Employes

The Canadian Red Cross benefited to the extent of $500 by a contribution for the staff and employees of the De Laval Cream Separator and Dairy Supply Co.

Messrs. Pennefather and Vanston, who visited the plant, were very kindly received by Superintendent Breyfogle and staff. When the object of the visit was explained the passing around of the cards was undertaken by Mr. Campazzie and after the count was made the amount subscribed was found to be 80cts. short of the $500 mark. Needless to say, the deficit was made up instantly.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

LONDON, Nov. 22.— Sir Hiram Maxim, inventor of the machine gun, is critically ill.

BACK FROM THE TRAINING CAMP OF 93rd. BATT.

PTE. A. ANDRUS REGRETS DOCTORS CANNOT MAKE HIM TEN YEARS YOUNGER.

Pte. Anson Audrus of Apsley who enlisted with the 93rd Batt. but was turned down by the medical board in England for being over the age limit, was in the city today. He came over on the Olympic and arrived at his home on Nov. 13, going by way of Coe Hill. Two other members of the 93rd came across with him—Ptes Trickey and Borland. He expects that Ptes. Alex. Ward and Harrison Bronson will soon be back as they were also found to be over age. Pte. Andrus was township clerk and Justice of the Peace for Chandos for many years and looks hale and hearty. His only regret is that the doctors cannot devise some way of taking ten years off his age so that he could get to France. He says that when he left England the last detachment of the 93rd had been equipped and were waiting orders to go to the trenches. The members of the 93rd band who were physically fit were drilling and the others doing fatigue duty.

Pte. Andrus is quite willing to render any assistance to the recruiting officers as he cannot do any work on his farm till next year.

CLERGY WILL ASK NO NEW CONCESSIONS

Archdeaconry of Peterboro Decide to Make No Request for Further Legislation With Regard to Religious Instruction in Schools.

The clergymen in the archdeaconry of Peterborough will not ask the Provincial Legislature for any new enactments with regard to the religious teachings in the public schools, but will endeavor to avail themselves of the privileges which they now enjoy by the grace of the Government. This decision, embodied in a resolution by Rev. W. H. White of Ashburnham, seconded by Rev. F. J. Sawers, of Cobourg, formerly of St. Luke's, was unanimously decided upon at the session of the Archdeaconry this morning. The result of the new efforts will be reported at the next meeting.

Mr. Sawers read an excellent and informative paper on the subject, "Can Our Clergy Do Anything With Regard to Our Public Schools?" He started out by calling attention to the regulations which already exist with regard to religious instruction in the schools. Every clergyman is an official school visitor in the eye of the law. He has the right to visit any public school, to attend any school exercises, and at the time of any visit to examine the progress of the pupils, and the state or management of the schools, and to give such advice to the teachers and pupils and any others present as he may deem expedient.

A clergyman of any denomination shall have the right to give religious instruction to the pupils of his own faith in each school house at least once a week after the hour of closing the school in the afternoon.

A clergyman selected by the clergymen of any number of denominations shall also have the right to give religious instruction to the pupils belonging to such denominations.

"The Golden Rule" book, prescribed for supplemental reading, shall be used in every public school as the basis for a systematic course in morals, in accordance with the regulations contained in the Ontario Teachers' Manual.

What Has Been Done.

In the counties of Northumberland and Durham there are 204 schools, and of these only nine have been visited by a clergyman in the past year. In Peterborough county five of the 93 schools listened to religious instruction from a pastor of any denomination. Mr. Sawers argued that the clergymen were not availing themselves of the opportunities which they possess.

The opening and closing of the schools with repeating the Lord's Prayer and the reading of Scripture in the morning is authorised by the regulations. Selected passages of Scripture may be read daily, the Ten Commandments may be repeated once a week, and passages of Scripture, selected by the principal, may be committed to memory if the School Board so direct. In only a small percentage of the schools are these rites observed.

What Ought Clergy to Do?

Mr. Sawers suggested that the clergy visit the schools more regularly under the authority which they now possess and that they try to prevail upon the Government to amend the school law so as to have religious instruction given either by the teachers or to have the time assigned for religious instruction by the clergy during part of the session, say at 3:30 p.m., because of the difficulty met with in getting children to remain after the regular closing hour.

Mr. Sawers concluded with a strong plea for teaching personal purity to the young, a work that properly belongs to the parents, but which is too often neglected by them and devolves upon the clergy.

Wants Official Recognition.

PTE. JARVIS WAS TWICE BURIED BY FOE SHELLS

MAY ACCOUNT FOR HIS BEING LISTED AS WOUNDED.

Pte. Wm Thomas Jarvis, who yesterday was reported wounded on October 10-11, has written several letters since then to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Jarvis, 253 Bethune street. In one letter written since October 10th he mentioned having been buried by the explosion of a shell, but was not injured. He was buried a second time from the same cause, and again escaped unscathed, but these experiences may have been responsible for his being listed as wounded. The parents are anxiously waiting for a letter from him. His brother, Roland, is with a battery at Toronto. Mrs. Jarvis' anxiety has been increased by the absence of a letter from a brother who is serving on a British submarine. He took part in the memorable battle off the Falkland Islands.

First Meeting Under New Campaign Is Success.

Lakefield citizens attended in good numbers the recruiting meeting held in the Town Hall there last night in the interests of the 247th Battalion. The village has been to the fore in the enlistments to previous battalions that have gone overseas and it was no surprise to the Speakers' Patriotic League to see so many in attendance.

County Magistrate Langley occupied the chair and very cleverly referred to the object of the meeting, not forgetting to pay tribute to the men of Lakefield who are now at the front.

Lieut.-Col. Ackerman was warmly received when he was introduced by the chairman. He appreciated what Lakefield has accomplished in the past and asked for all the help that they could give in making up the 247th.

Addresses were given by Messrs. D. O'Connell, Joseph Wearing, Capt. O'Flynn, Capt. Belton and Rev. A. W. MacKenzie, principal of the Grove Preparatory School, which has the proud distinction of being represented in the war by 100 graduates who are doing duty for their King and country.

During the evening Miss Georgina Cuffe of Peterborough entertained with patriotic songs, her sister, Miss E. Cuffe, being accompanist.

The meeting closed with the singing of the National Anthem.

O. A. LANGLEY, P.M.
Chairman of the Recruiting meeting held at Lakefield last night.

Co. Quarter-Master-Sergt. R. Matchett is expected to reach Peterborough some time this week, he having returned from England.

Pte. A. Althouse, who went to England with the 93rd Batt. and was later discharged, has reached Quebec with a number of Canadians. Pte. Althouse enlisted from Havelock.

Lieut. McKinnon of the District Paymaster's office, Kingston, is at the armories. A muster parade of the 247th was held this afternoon.

The Austro-German invasion of Roumania is proceeding unchecked. Entrance of German troops into the Roumanian city of Craiova, the capture of which by invading Teutonic forces was announced last evening, is officially reported today.

The capture by Germans of a height near Paralova in the Macedonian front, ten miles northeast of Monastir, is announced officially.

PETERBOROUGH, WEDNESDAY, NOV. 22, 1916

THE EXAMINER'S NICKEL-PLATED ARGUMENT.

THE EXAMINER may not mean to be frank, but it is certainly naive when, in speaking of the nickel question, it says that it would like to believe certain things, but it can't. There are none so deaf as those who will not hear, none so blind as those who withhold their eyes, none so obtuse as those who steel their senses against reason. With our contemporary, belief is largely a matter of convenience.

Let Premier Borden or one of his Ministers make a public statement with regard to the nickel question, and The Examiner is skeptical. Let Hartley Dewart,—a man new in public life, holding a seat in the Legislature by the courtesy of the rabble vote in Southwest Toronto, elected on an issue so at variance with the platform of the party to which he is supposed to belong that the press of his stripe refused to support him, a creature and pet of the worst element in politics, deal with the nickel question from a different angle, and our contemporary eagerly gulps down his every statement without a grimace. The dose prepared by Mr. Dewart may be nauseous to the human senses, but the process of deglutition does not cost The Examiner a single spasm What we ought to believe is an entirely different matter from what we find it expedient to admit as the truth.

Mr. Dewart, the new scandalmonger for the Opposition, at least for that portion of the party that recognizes him as a member, says that Canadian nickel is going to Germany, that the Premier of Ontario, one of his Ministers, and a Minister in the Dominion Cabinet, are parties to this nefarious traffic solely for the money there is in it, and he virtuously calls upon the people to drive the trio out of public life. He finds a willing disciple in our neighbor, even though the latter will not heed the words of men whose reputation for veracity has so far never been questioned by those who know them.

Mr. Dewart's case in a nutshell is that the International Nickel Company has a firm of agents in London to whom they ship Canadian nickel after it is refined. He believes that these agents are pro-German and that they re-ship the product to the Teutons.

Hon. Mr. Kemp, of the Dominion Cabinet, who knows more about this matter than any of his colleagues, has issued a statement, with official sanction, explaining that the London firm is under espionage of the British authorities, whose duty it is to see that they are not trafficking with the enemy. That is a matter over which Canada has no control. The duty and responsibility of the Canadian Government ceases when they see to it that the International Nickel Company live up to their agreement and send no nickel to Germany, an agreement which has been approved by the Imperial authorities.

Canadian wheat is sent in bond to the United States, there ground, and the flour is shipped to England as a Canadian product. If any of the flour is sent to Germany, the British authorities alone are responsible. The same principle applies in the case of nickel.

What the Liberal press in this country in effect insist upon is that Canada should constitute itself guardian of the British Government to save them from the consequences of their own inefficiency. They took this stand in the matter of selling munitions to England, and are insisting upon the same course with regard to nickel.

When The Examiner prepares another dish of thin political pap for its readers it finds the material for its brew in the recruiting situation. Last night it said editorially:

> It is time the Government should take some direct part in the work, but there seems to be a lack of enthusiasm, a lack of a guiding hand, a lack of authoritative impulse and encouragement. If the results of recruiting were as badly organized and as destitute of leadership, as far as government action is concerned, in recruiting, the Canadian soldiers, splendid as they are individually, would be an incoherent mob.

It would be interesting to hear The Examiner's opinion as to what constitutes the taking of a hand, what is meant by enthusiasm, a guiding spirit and the rest of it. Will it not admit that the work of recruiting has been systematized? Is the division of the country into districts, the appointment of officers in each of these sections, not suggestive of organization Do Lieut.-Col. Ackerman, Major Campbell and a dozen other officers lack enthusiasm? And behind them all is the strength and authority of the Government. Was Gen. Sir Sam Hughes a sluggard in the matter of raising recruits, the Minister of Militia whom The Examiner and its yelping contemporaries helped to hound out of his position Does the appointment of a National Service Commission mean anything to our blinded neighbor? Can even our contemporary suppress a blush of shame when it recalls that its own idolised leader has refused to co-operate with that Commission in the work of raising recruits, but, like an over-indulged child, is sulking under the bed while others carry the burden and bear the heat of the fray?

Has the Examiner the moral courage to openly advocate compulsion until from its leader there comes some sig[illegible]

ADMITS OF NO ARGUMENT.

A PETERBOROUGH business man was in Ottawa, and finding himself with a few hours at his disposal before train time, he decided to call upon a cabinet minister with whom he was on terms of intimacy.

"What are your views as to the future of prohibition?" asked the Peterborough man, who at home is reckoned among the staunchest supporters of temperance.

"That question," replied the minister, "involves a matter which admits of no argument."

"If, then," pursued the other, "prohibition ever becomes an issue between the two political parties, what side is the Government likely to take?"

"Naturally the side that admits of no argument," was the answer.

The Peterborough man did not deem it necessary to pursue the conversation further. He had gained the information which he sought, and returned home satisfied. He is, however, not one of those who would join any organization in an attempt to dragoon Parliament into resorting to unconstitutional measures to accomplish any desired object.

ARE WE SLOWLY STARVING?

IF ANYONE interests himself in the subject of human happiness, let him cast his eye over a crowd of people dining in one of our best restaurants or hotels, and he will be struck by the air of ineffable sadness which pervades the scene. Gloom is fixed upon the countenance of every banqueter, there is no social intercourse, and none of that merriment which is recommended as the best possible aid to digestion. Why is this thus?

The superficial thinker and observer may jump at the conclusion that the high prices that now prevail are responsible for the depression, that the man at table is chilled into taciturnity by the thought of the size of the check which the waiter will soon place face down beside his plate. One faddist—let him be so designated for lack of a better term—declares that cold storage alone must be saddled with the blame. Nearly everything now served in hotels and restaurants has come through the arctic process, and everything like vitality has been destroyed. The food is insipid and lacking the proper "punch," fails to revive, much less excite, the spirits of those who partake.

The people of Canada, this genius concludes, are slowly starving themselves into the grave, and the result is a less virile generation than that which existed in the good old days when all edibles came direct to the consumer from the producer without passing through a process which he likens to that practised by the modern embalmer.

A THEORY AND A CONDITION.

ONCE THERE WAS A COUNTY in which one of the townships was overrun by cattle thieves and other desperadoes. The authorities held that in a democracy anything like compulsion was not to be thought of. Harsh measures such as making arrests and dragging people to jail were voted as relics of barbarism. The voluntary system was relied upon, and the people were appealed to to come forward and either confess their sins and accept punishment or clear themselves of all suspicion.

This altruistic plan proved a dismal failure. None responded to the call except those who had nothing to fear. The real offenders pursued their lawless career undismayed, and at the least suspicion of danger scurried to cover.

After a while compulsion was resorted to. County constables were turned loose, the jails were filled and law and order established in the township.

Years later, when war broke out, profiting nothing by the experience of the past, the authorities once more pinned their faith to the voluntary system. Some least able to make the sacrifice, answered the call, but many of the most eligible kept hemselves in the background.

Then came conscription, and the ranks were filled. Experience is all right as a teacher, provided its lessons are read aright.

WHAT WAS THE MOTIVE?

ROSALIND, Countess of Carlisle, one of the most active temperance workers in England, kept the key turned on the wine cellar in her country home for thirty years. The place was stocked with an almost priceless collection of beverages, mellowed by age and wrapped about with theircobwebs of antiquity.

Then the Countess decided to sacrifice this portion of her possessions in the interest of the cause she has long cherished. Accordingly, 1,500 bottles of wine were poured as a libation to temperance into the earth.

Then arose among a certain class a storm of indignation at what they were pleased to regard as wanton waste. They took the ground that the wine should have been sent to the military hospitals for the benefit of convalescent soldiers.

It is uncharitable to question the motives of our neighbors, to suspect an ulterior purpose in anything they may elect to do or advocate. Yet in this connection it is impossible to suppress the memory of that incident so long ago when the unfaithful disciple grumbled at what he called the waste of precious ointment with which his Master was anointed. "Could not this have been sold and the money given to the poor?" he asked.

Judas Iscariot was not solicitous for the poor except insofar as he regarded himself as a member of that fraternity. His real object was to get his own grasping hands upon the price.

TO BE KIND TO HIS CAR IS WHOLE DUTY OF THE AUTOMOBILE FAN

(Walt Mason.)

Before becoming an auto fan I was a horse fan. For twenty-five years I always had a good horse and sometimes several.

When you buy a horse you don't get a book of instructions with him or a diagram showing all his parts. You may examine the exterior of the animal, but his works are a sealed book to you. You take it for granted that he has the customary organs and that they are in the proper positions and doing business at the old stand.

I owned so many horses and had such uniformly good luck with them that I acquired some local reputation as a horsemen, and friends who contemplated buying roadsters often asked my advice. But if anybody had asked me whether a horse's liver is in front of or behind his wishbone I couldn't have told. I never bothered about my horse's insides. So long as he delivered the goods I didn't care whether he was hollow or packed with organs.

I didn't try to take him apart and fuss with the mechanism; I summoned a veterinary surgeon and told that learned scientist to do his worst. I noticed that people who doctored their own horses usually had to bury them. And, as I have said, I always had excellent luck with horses.

When I bought a motor car, the dealer, a conscientious man, insisted upon explaining all the various parts and their functions. I begged him not to waste his time and my time. I didn't want to know anything about the various parts.

"Just show me how to put on a tire if I bust one," I said, "and where to pour in the gasoline, and that's all I want to know. I don't want to be able to distinguish the carburetor from the differential. If anything goes wrong with my car, I am not going to feed it condition powders. I am going to summon a competent mechanic, and let him break his heart over it."

There was a book of instructions with the car, and the dealer begged me to read it; but I haven't done so. Why should a man read a book of instructions, full of tiresome diagrams and long lists of "don'ts," when he can get a god fiction magazine for ten cents?

I run my car everywhere, over all kinds of roads, and never lift the hood to see the wheels go round. The dealer told me it has six cylinders, and, as he has the reputation of being an honest man—I assume the blamed thing has six cylinders, but I don't know or care. And I never have any trouble when I am driving. When I take a long trip I hire an expert chauffeur, and as soon as he is at the helm the trouble begins. We have punctures and blowouts and all the misadventures and misdemeanors you can think of, but nothing ever happens when I am driving.

I have the good luck I had with horses. The women in my neighborhood say they like to ride with me because they never have to get out and help lift the car out of a creek or assist in pushing it up a long, dreary hill.

Most of my neighbors have cars, and they all have trouble. They read the book of instructions carefully and they are always trying to familiarize themselves with the working parts of their cars, and grief is their portion. One of my neighbors bought a car when I did and he is always tinkering around it with a wrench or pair of pliers and he gets himself covered with grease and perspiration and his car is always out of order. He spends most of his pocket money hiring other people to haul him home.

The machinery of an automobile is complicated and delicate, and the man who isn't a real mechanic should let it alone. Few men attempt to fix their own watches, and the average citizen will balk at trying to repair a typewriter or washing machine. Yet the majority of car owners are always tinkering with their motors, and the more they tinker the less happiness they have.

When I drove horses I discovered that if they were abused or overworked they soon played out and had to be disposed of at a rummage sale. A good horse will last twenty-five years if judiciously used, but if it is slammed around as though horses grew on trees he is ready for the scrap heap in a little while.

A lot of things I learned while driving horses prove useful to me now that I drive a car. Without knowing anything about the mechanism of an engine, I realize that straining it won't do it any good. So I never sit around the corner drug store of an evening telling of the abnormal hills I have climbed "on high," and I regard with pity and sorrow the numerous people who tell such stories. Whenever I come to a long, steep hill or a piece of bad ground, I always switch into second speed, and the car goes along without sweating a hair, and you don't hear the engine grunting like a hired man lifting a log.

If you hear a man bragging that he trotted his horses uphill at full speed you assume at once that he needs a keeper, and it is just as foolish to overwork an engine.

The car that has a bonehead driver shows the results in a little while. It looks disreputable and it makes more noise than a minstrel show. But the car that has a common sense driver looks and performs as good as new when it has chewed up thousands of miles of the public highway.

ROYALTY SMILED ON NUPTIALS

The meeting and marriage of Sir Douglas and Lady Haig was one of those real life romances which seldom happen outside story books.

Eleven years ago—in the summer of 1905—a charming girl with deep, soft blue eyes, an abundance of golden brown hair, and of slight, graceful figure, was acting as maid-of-honor to Queen Alexandra.

During the summer one of the then most promising officers in the British Army came to Windsor Castle for the Ascot week at King Edward's special command. This was Major General Douglas Haig—he had not been knighted then—Inspector-General of Cavalry in India.

The soldier and the maid-of-honor whose name was the Honorable Dorothy Vivian, met, and somewhere in the background was Master Cupid, smiling, and with one of his arrows ready. His aim was true; in four days the soldier and the maid-of-honor were engaged; in a little over a month they were married. No wonder they call the soldier "lucky" Haig in the army!

Queen Alexandra took the greatest interest in the match, and, according to the custom when a serving maid-of-honor marries, gave the bride a cheque for a thousand pounds as one of her presents.

The wedding was of an unprecedented nature. It took place in the private chapel of Buckingham Palace, and constitutes the first marriage there between people not of Royal blood. Furthermore, the King and Queen gave the wedding breakfast.

Laidy Haig has many gifts and graces. She is bright and amusing, she sings well ,and she speaks several languages with ease and fluency.

She was third daughter of Lord Vivian, and has one little daughter of her own.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

Beware of a people whose politeness is excessive.

The average woman is vain enough to believe that she isn't.

Multiplying her words seldom adds to a woman's popularity.

When a girl tries to dodge a kiss she manages to do it in a way that enables her to catch it right where she wants it.

Men who speak before they think have occasion to make many apologies.

How many times have you won out when invited to play in another man's game?

No man has a right to expect his wife to be a good cook unless he is that kind of a provider.

ELECTRIC RAZORS

Have you got an electric razor yet? One was invented some little while ago which should prove a boon to all shavers.

This new razor can be worked from any lamp socket, just in the same way that an electric light is attached, by means of a plug and a length of wire.

The action of the razor is something after the style of the grass mower, that is to say, there are several blades which revolve and so shave you. It is not necessary to lather your face before using this razor; merely wetting the skin is sufficient, and since the bleeds need not be so sharp as ordinary razor blades (owing to the force behind them), the skin is not left so raw,

Wit and Wisdom

"It ought to. It's the good that die will live?"

"Do you think this poem of mine young."

Brooks: Why aren't you wearing your patent leathers?

Franklin: The patent expired.

"Clothes dont make the man," quoted a sage.

"They made me!" said a retired tailor.

"Where should I be if it wasn't for suits?" chimed in a young lawyer.

Judge: The prisoner claims that he tooted his horn before he ran over you.

Complainant (much damaged): Maybe he did, your honor; but what good is that when a car is travelling faster than sound?

Rrom the bedroom of the twin boys came the mingled sounds of loud weeping and hearty laughter, so father went up to investigate.

"What's the matter up here?" he inquired.

The joyous twin indicated his weeping brother. "Nothing," he chuckled, "only nurse has given Alexander two baths and hasn't given me one."

"Listen to this, Maria," said Mr. Stubbs, as he unfolded his scientific paper. "This article states that in some of the old Roman prisons that have been unearthed they found the petrified remains of the prisoners."

"Gracious, John!" exclaimed Mrs. Stubbs, with a smile, "them's what they call hardened criminals, I expect."

THE PHARISEE.

"O! but the sermon was splendid this mornin'"
Said Nora O'Hare,
"But there's some in the parish that must have had warnin'
An' worshipped elsewhere;
But wherever they were, if their ears wasn't burnin'
Troth, then, it is quare!"

" 'There are women,' sez he, 'an' they're here in this parish,
An' plentiful, too,
Wid their noses so high an' their manner so airish,
But virtues so few
'Tis a wonder they can't see how much they resemble
The proud Pharisee,
We would think they'd look into their own souls an' tremble
Such sinners to be.
Not at all! They believe themselves better than others,
An' give themselves airs
Till the pride of them strangles all virtues, and smothers
The good o' their prayers.

"That's the way he wint at them, an' faith, it was splendid—
But wasted, I fear,
Wid the most o' the women fos whom 'twas intended
Not there for to hear.
An' thinnks I to meself, walkin' home what a pity
That Mary Ann Hayes

SIR CHARLES DAVIDSON REPORT READY SHORTLY 6,000 PAGES OF EVIDENCE

OTTAWA, Nov. 21.—"Very soon," Sir Charles Davidson replied when asked how long it would be before the Davidson Commission's report on alleged irregularities in war contracts was made public. The commission spent months going from city to city throughout Canada taking evidence.

Sir Charles hinted it might not be much more than three weeks before the report, which has been long awaited by the Canadian public, would be issued.

Sir Charles said he has examined almost a thousand witnesses and taken 6,000 pages of evidence. The reason the report has been delayed is because of a recent illness of Sir Charles.

NEW BRIDGE AT EELS' CREEK

GENERAL APPEARANCE OF THE LOCALITY IMPROVED.

(Special Correspondence.)

APSLEY, Nov. 22.—A few people have been enjoying their first sleigh ride during the past week.

Rev. Wm. Peer of Norwood, a former Presbyterian minister of this place, spent a few days here and in Clydesdale renewing acquaintances recently.

The hunting season expirde on Wednesday of last week and all hunters this fall seem to have been lucky in securing their number of deer.

Mr and Mrs. Jack Mann and daughter Ruth, also Mr. F. Mann, all of Toronto, have been spending the past couple of weeks among relatives here.

A number from here attended the sale of farm stock and implements belonging to Mr. W. Scott of Clydesdale last Saturday.

The new bridge over Eel's Creek, about a mile from the village, has been completed and has greatly improved the appearance of the road, as well as being a service to traffic.

Lieut. Annie McFadden of Chatham, N.B., spent a few days at her home in Burleigh last week.

Pulpit and Press

We may be quite sure that the Scottish minister did not mean what he said when he announced from the pulpit: "During the week I shall visit all the members of the congregation at the north end of the town, embracing all the servant girls." Nor did the editor who gave these directions for sweeping a room to an inquiring reader: "Cover the furniture with dust sheets, scatter damp tea leaves over the carpet, then carefully sweep the room into a dust pan and throw it out of the window."

BATTLE BECAME CHASE

HOW THE BRITISH GUARDS MADE IMMORTAL CHARGE.

"It was worth living, even if I am killed to-morrow, just to have seen such men charge," said one commanding officer whose speech to his men after the Guards had been into action will be remembered, almost syllable by syllable, by all who heard it.

Nor in war at any time is any scene more moving than when, the battle over, a regiment lines up under some shelter in the misty dawn to take toll of the missing, writes W. Beach Thomas, who is with the British armies in the field. "However gaily men fight, at that moment they love not war. And the Guards fought the gayest fight of which I ever heard news or any troubadour dreamed; and fought it against bitter odds.

"For the first time in history three battalions of the Coldstream Guards went over in line. They were swept and raked by rifle and machine-gun fire from many directions, and all the while the shells fell right and left.

For 200 yards the blast in their front and flank was enough to have stopped a locomotive. It did not stop the men. In the midst of this blast suddenly they came upon a trench from which ranks of enemy rose. The sight was all they needed to add the last touch to their fighting spirit.

The enemy fired rifles and threw bombs. The Guards used only the bayonet. Each man, they said got his man.

The enemy fought now in the open as well as below ground, and the sight of these new regiments, body to body, hand to hand, stabbing, hitting, even wrestling, so stirred the Irishmen coming up in support that they rushed forward at the double to take their part.

The enemy had fought well. He thought he could stop the Guards: but the bayonet was irresistible, and of a sudden the desperation of the struggle broke.

"We flushed 'em and they rose like a covey of partridges." The battle became a chase. The prisoners who surrendered were just given leave to hurry back without escort to our lines, and took the permission at the gallop.

All this while, whether advancing or stopping in shell holes or trenches, officers greeted one another as if they were meeting in Piccadilly, with familiar greetings and Christian names and the common chaff of the regiments.

Some golden moments were vouchsafed in this immortal charge, which carried the Guards over a mile and more of shell-raked and bullet-raked desert.

Some figures emerge from the ruck of battle in almost ghostly silence. An officer who felt then and afterwards that he had never lived so splendid, so exhilarating a day in his life—such men do really exist—took no cover, but went exultingly forward to any nucleus of resistance he could discover. He killed man after man, some with the pistol, some with a stick.

One of his men, as great an athlete if less endowed with Valkyrie spirit, rushed a machine-gun post, shot two of the men, bayoneted a third, and "caught the fourth a clip with my fist."

Some rival of another company then claimed the captive machine gun; but the Irishman settled the dispute by taking the weighty thing under his arm and carrying it back deliberately across the open.

Cushions in the Churches.

"There are few greater obstacles in the way of the National Church in this land than the becushioned seats in our churches," says the Bishop of Birmingham, Eng., in a letter on the abolition of pew rents. "The Church," he adds, "can never be the Church of the nation while a considerable portion of the lay people will only pay for the services of the clergy in return for special seats."

HER FALL SUIT.

Longer Coats and Longer Skirts Are a New Mark.

This youthful suit is put up in plum gaberdine, a skirt cut walking length and a long coat on which seams are accentuated with stitching. Hand embroidery adds much to the hip pockets, while squirrel collar and cuffs give a smart finish.

WELL PLEASED.

THE JUVENILE MODE.

What Children Will Wear All This Autumn.

Clothes for children ape those of their elders very closely this season. Especially is this so in materials. Wool velour for coats, with plenty of fur trimming; velvet and satin for frocks, are the rule rather than the exception. Dark colors lead, navy blue, dark brown and hunter's green being favored. Trimmings of Roman stripes, bright plaids and checks or plain silks, as red, empire green, Hague blue and gold, are used to liven up the somberness of the darker materials.

Gaberdines, serges, broadcloths, plain and novelty taffetas and velvets are employed for afternoon frocks. Fur, braid and ruchings trim these.

Party frocks of chiffon, net, crepe de chine or pastel colored taffeta reach the acme of youthful daintiness.

Ripple effects are noticeable in coats. Cape, sailor, military and draped collars are largely used. More than often they are entirely of fur. Belts and sashes are featured to a great degree.

Little girls will wear small, snug fitting toques of fur over their curls this winter. Handmade trimmings, such as velvet fruit and flowers, trim the poke bonnet of silk or velvet.

Cutlets in Mint Aspic.

Lamb cutlets in mint aspic make a novel dish. Either braise or roast the best end of a neck of lamb, and when cold trim into daintily shaped cutlets, not too thick. Have ready a pint of stiff aspic jelly, flavored, a little sugar and some French vinegar, besides the ordinary flavoring, and when it is strained, but still liquid, mix into it four tablespoonfuls of finely chopped mint. Pour a thin layer of this jelly, not more than the tenth of an inch deep, into a flat, shallow tin, and when it is thoroughly set place the cutlets thereon and pour more of the liquid mint jelly on them, so as to just cover them. When it is set and stiff pass a sharp knife around the edge of each cutlet so as to cut it out from the surrounding jelly.

Pass a cloth wrung out in warm water lightly under the bottom of the tin and the cutlets will be easily detached, each neatly masked with jelly on both sides. Dish them in a wreath of peas and mayonnaise.

Let There Be No Lack of Sleep.

Lack of sleep ages a woman possibly more than anything else. Most women who are inclined to be nervous require from eight to nine hours. Six and seven hours of rest suffice for others. The hours before midnight contain the magic wherein beauty is dispensed freely. One hour before 12 will do more good than two afterward. Sleep without pillows if possible or a very small one of couch size. The feet should be higher than the head. This makes the flow of blood over the heart even. Sleep on your right side, with the limbs outstretched and the arms down at the side rather than over the head, which, 'tis said, encourages bad dreams.

Potatoes au Gratin.

Cut cold boiled potatoes in slices. Place in a buttered baking dish and cover with a white sauce made from one and one-quarter cupfuls of milk, two tablespoonfuls flour and two tablespoonfuls of butter. Mix equal parts of grated cheese and fine breadcrumbs and sprinkle over the top. Bake in a moderate oven fifteen minutes or until brown.

WOMAN AVOIDS OPERATION

Medicine Which Made Surgeon's Work Unnecessary.

Astoria, N. Y.—"For two years I was feeling ill and took all kinds of tonics. I was getting worse every day. I had chills, my head would ache, I was always tired. I could not walk straight because of the pain in my back and I had pains in my stomach. I went to a doctor and he said I must go under an operation, but I did not go. I read in the paper about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and told my husband about it. I said 'I know nothing will help me but I will try this.' I found myself improving from the very first bottle, and in two weeks time I was able to sit down and eat a hearty breakfast with my husband, which I had not done for two years. I am now in the best of health and did not have the operation."—Mrs. JOHN A. KOENIG, 502 Flushing Avenue, Astoria, N. Y.

Every one dreads the surgeon's knife and the operating table. Sometimes nothing else will do; but many times doctors say they are necessary when they are not. Letter after letter comes to the Pinkham Laboratory, telling how operations were advised and were not performed; or, if performed, did no good, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was used and good health followed.

If you want advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential), Lynn, Mass.

NOVA SCOTIA PROSPERS

MORE ATTENTION IS BEING PAID TO "PASSED-BY" PROVINCE.

The industrial possibilities, as well as the tourist attractions, of Nova Scotia have received considerable attention in recent years, or since the tide of immigration toward western Canada set in. Some very informing and entertaining books have appeared dealing with Nova Scotian possibilities. Visitors to whom the Nova Scotian landscape has been a revelation, and the Nova Scotian highway a disappointment, have contributed their share to the general discussion. All appear to be in agreement on one principal point, namely, that the Nova Scotians do not realize what they have to offer the rest of the world, or, if they do, are short of understanding as to how to offer it. One very clever book with a London imprint points out that Nova Scotia is a "passed by" province, which is literally true. It has been "passed by" for years. The immigrant looking for a home, or the capitalist looking for investment, on arriving at Halifax has usually boarded a train for Quebec or Ontario or Manitoba or Saskatchewan or Alberta or British Columbia, without taking the time or making the effort to look about him in one of the garden spots of the world, Nova Scotia.

It is pleasant to read that "development of the province of Nova Scotia, agriculturally, industrially, socially, and as a stock-raising country is an aim of Canadian government officials." It surely should be, and promise of a successful outcome of the movement is made brighter than it would otherwise be by the plan to have the development schemes carried on in co-operation with the provincial authorities. The general manager of the province's excellent railway system simply reiterates what has often been put down in writing when he says that the resources of Nova Scotia have hardly been touched. He would be within conservative bounds were he to say that the resources of the peninsula have never been fully understood, abroad or at home.

Everything claimed for the beauty, climate, fertility, and opportunities for industry offered by Nova Scotia to the desirable immigrant will be admitted off-hand by those who have seen the country. The one thing needful is that these advantages shall be advertised, and the one effectual method of advertising them is through the medium of cheap transportation, good roads, and plenty of well conducted, not fashionable, hotels.

Farm Sanitation.

It would be difficult, writes a community builder, to make every farmer or father believe that lack of sanitary equipment for his household, and neglect of his barnyard caused sickness and deaths in his family. It may be impossible to convince him that the death of his wife at an early age was a result of too much pumping, churning and washing by hand; but they are really so closely related as cause and effect that one might almost declare that only the wilfully blind will or can fail to see their relation.

For Motor Touring

Considerable hard work can be avoided on the road if the tire rims are treated occasionally with a little shellac and graphite. Aluminum paint is also good to prevent the head of the tire from rusting in the rim. It is a difficult matter to remove the casing from a rim when it has become rusted.

Scientists in both France and Germany are seriously trying to ascertain if there is any value in the divining rod for locating underground water and metals.

But the ignorance of a lawyer isn't bliss for his client.

TWO BRAVE CHILDREN

BOY AND GIRL HAD TERRIBLE EXPERIENCE WITH A COUGAR.

The remarkable exploit of an 11-year-old girl and an eight-year-old boy in fighting off a full-grown cougar at Cowichan, B.C., and their wonderful gallantry in each protecting the other when the cougar seemed to have one or the other at its mercy, has given rise to a movement on Vancouver Island for recognition from some national society that honors valor and self-sacrifice. The provincial game warden received a copy of the girl's own story.

The story of the girl, Doreen Ashburn, follows:

"At about 1.30 p.m. I left our house to go down to a pasture to catch our saddle pony. Anthony Farrer, aged eight, accompanied me. When about half a mile from the house we saw a large panther crouching on the path about 20 feet distant; we both turned to run, but the panther sprang on me, and I fell face downward. The animal remained on my back and began purring. I called to Anthony to run home and save himself, but he called to me to lie perfectly quiet, that he had a plan.

"He then jumped from a small tree directly on the panther, knocking it off my back, and I got up. The panther turned and struck Anthony with its paw in the face, tearing his nose and cheek. Anthony fell to the ground and the panther jumped on his back and scratched his back with its claws and tore the back of his scalp with its teeth. Anthony called to me to run, but I did not. I then attacked the panther with the bridle, and beat it, and got my right arm into its mouth. I scratched its right eye with my finger nails, and it bit me through the right arm above the elbow and scratched my hands and body and tore my clothes.

"I succeeded in driving it off the boy and it stood up on its hind quarters and fought me, but finally turned and slunk under a log. Anthony was covered with blood and badly hurt, and I assisted him to run home."

The document is accompanied by a statement from Charles March, who shot the cougar, and Dr. Stokes, who attended the children.

The cougar measured seven feet from nose to tip of tail and weighed 75 pounds.

MAN WHO WOULDN'T DOWN.

Dismissed for Intemperance, He Enlisted and Regained Commission

An official despatch from Canadian Headquarters contains the following:

The whole Canadian army has learned with sympathy and delight of the reinstatement of Lieut. O. B. Jones to his commissioned rank. Deprived by court-martial of his commission because of an act of intemperance while on duty, Lieut. Jones immediately enlisted as a private in a well-known Montreal battalion. He showed not only strict devotion to duty, but conspicuous gallantry upon several occasions. He became a corporal, then won his sergeant's stripes. He was awarded a D.C.M. for his reckless courage and again a bar for his medal.

On September 15 he was in the thick of the fighting. It was said of him that he was perpetually out killing Germans. His conduct was such as to recommend him for further reward. Later he was so severely wounded that it is improbable he will be again able to serve his country as a soldier, but he is now reinstated as an officer, and he has won back his honor.

Wonders of Science.

A camera man, working for the educational department of a film company, met an old farmer coming out of a house in one of the middle states and explained his presence on the place thus:

"I have just been taking some moving pictures of life on your farm."

"Did you catch any of my laborers in motion?" asked the old man curiously.

"Sure I did."

The farmer shook his head reflectively and then said:

"Science is a wonderful thing."

A Youthful Soil Tiller.

Equipped with shovel and pail, this little farmer is about to start in farming. It does not matter that this is the season when crops are gathered, not sowed; he is determined to plant. Last spring he either forgot about gardening, or else he was enjoying himself in some other way more to his liking. Anyhow, he is at it, and a very fine looking young farmer he is.

MR. GORDON THROWS HAT IN MUNICIPAL RING

Will be Candidate for Re-Election to School Board---Aldermanic Timber Under Review in the West Ward.

City Solicitor Gordon is not dismayed by any opposition that may be placed in his pathway. Obstacles thrown in his way have no terror for him. He now proposes to take another fall out of fate, to brave the stings and arrows of his opponents and like Ajax, defying the lightning, make one more appeal for the support of the electors. In a word, he proposes to again be a candidate for re-election to the school board and a characteristic whirlwind campaign is in prospect. It is given out that there will be at least four active workers at every polling booth in the city, boosting the cause of the man who reckons himself big enough to fill two public offices with room to spare.

The Pot Begins to Boil

The political pot is beginning to simmer, although there may be little disturbance yet noticeable on the surface. The electors in the west ward are at last waking up to the fact that they will be called upon in a few weeks to select a representative. There is a vacancy to be filled in that section of the city and there is plenty of desirable material from which to make a choice. Figurately speaking, the woods are full of men of the proper calibre for aldermen, men who have shown the requisite business ability in the management of their own private affairs, and others who have been tried out as public servants and found by no means lacking. To the latter class belongs Mr. G. Walter Green, who resigned as alderman a year ago to run for Mayor and who failed by reason of a play of circumstances— and other combinations — against him. If Mr. Green says the word he will be nominated, satisfied to make the fight on his record.

The Sensitive Opposition

A man's political affiliation should not militate against him nor yet, generally speaking, be urged in his favor in a municipal campaign. The day when partisanship figured in a civic election has gone out with other forms of bigotry and barbarism. But even in this enlightened age it is almost impossible to make a reference to a Liberal without irritating the tempers of some member of that party. The members of the Opposition appear to be unduly sensitive. Probably a long series of defeats have brought about this condition. A short time ago The Review alluded to the unterrified as the enemy, whereupon the Ottawa Free Press, it of the delicate cuticle gravely declared that any man who would apply such a term to the Opposition was not superior to the heinous offence of accepting compensation for his services. Mr. Mc Naughton, of Toronto, in jocose vein in an address in Toronto, declared that many Liberals were loyal and immediately members of the party rose up in all parts of the country and belligerently demanded if anything personal was intended. The St. Thomas Times ventured the pleasantry that a certain man was right even if he was a Liberal, which remark caused the Simcoe Reformer and other journals to throw a fit.

. . . Aldermanic Material Galore . . .

Let it be admitted, then, that a man can be a faithful and efficient public servant regardless of his attitude on the nickel question and other subjects that are causing a section of the press so much uneasiness these days. There are other good Liberals in the eye of the electorate of the West Ward. H. J. McCannon, the well-known real estate dealer, is one man whom the West Warders would like to see a member of the Board of Aldermen and there will be a big push to place him there if he will only consent to accept a nomination.

And there are others. If W. C. Ackerman, Edgar Worth, Walter Stocker or Andrew Brown would place themselves in the hands of their friends they would be slated forthwith for municipal honors. Other prominent residents of the ward have already declined for business reasons; others because they prefer the role of critic-in-ordinary of the men who are elected.

The system of municipal government may have a defect or two, but good men can improve any system. Even the Calebites in the West Ward will not find it necessary to equip themselves with artificial lights in order to locate a candidate who would measure up to their highest ideals.

WYATT BOYS IN GOOD HEALTH AFTER TWO YRS.

AMONG FEW SURVIVORS OF THE ORIGINAL 14TH BATTALION.

Pte. Gordon Wyatt, who, with his brother Howard enlisted in the 14th Battalion of Montreal and went overseas with the first contingent, writes to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jos. L. Wyatt, 490 Driscoll Terrace, that he is in good health and is feeling fine. The Wyatt boys are two of the few survivors of the original 14th battalion, and they have been almost constantly at the front since leaving England. Pte. Wyatt writes:

Oct. 29, 1916.

Dear Mother and Father: Just a few lines to let you know Howard and I are still fine and in good health. Howard is in the battalion and in the company again but Howard Curtis has been killed at the Somme. I saw his grave just behind the firing line. "Red" Wade, from Peterborough, is a pioneer sergeant of the 2nd Battalion and he buried Howard. I guess you have heard of many soldiers who have been killed or wounded. I saw Fred Primeau out here and he looks well. He has not such a dangerous job as the infantrymen. Well, we are still having some great experiences and pulling through. The Germans are being beat on our front every day. I expect to get a pass to England soon. Will write again soon.

Gordon.

MUCH INTEREST IN "Y" CONTEST

MOTHERS BEHIND MOVEMENT TO ADD MEMBERS.

The membership contest is the one subject of conversation around the Y.M.C.A. this week. Much interest is being shown on the part of the public in general regarding the outcome of this effort. The older teams are determined to show the young fellows how the job should be done and will do their best to win the pennant and group picture.

The mothers and wives of the canvassers are standing back of the workers serving excellent suppers, the next to be served being on Thursday evening at 6.30 o'clock. At this supper conference the team organization will be tightened up somewhat and lists of names will be distributed.

Every worker is classed as an "unknown" until he brings in his first member then he is classed as a "producer"; when he has brought in five members he ranks as a "pacemaker"; ten members classes him as a "booster." Lists of the team men and the results of their efforts may be found posted at the Y.M.C.A. building. The correspondence room has been fitted up as a workers' office and all information regarding members or prospects may be found there.

The captains will round up every one of their workers for supper on Thursday evening and check up results with them.

AUTO STOPPED WHEN FAR FROM HOME; OCCUPANTS WALKED.

He prefers steam to gas.

Two young men who claim Lindsay as their headquarters and are well known locally got in serious trouble the other evening by being over-confident.

According to information that was brought here by motor despatch, the two fellows borrowed a self-starting motor car and took two lady friends for a trip through the country. The man at the helm knows more about super-heated Moguls than he does about self-starting motor cars, and the auto stalled on him near Hopkin's Pit. Every idea that could come into his fertile brain was tried, but the engine refused to work and the party by use of hand power got the car off the road and started on a hike to Lindsay. They were overtaken by the friendly autoist to whom their troubles were explained. A chauffeur sent out later brought the cantankerous car into Lindsay in very few minutes.

The steam expert will take his friends for trips on the G.T.R. rather than by motor in future.

MAKE REPAIRS TO POWER PLANT

LIGHT WILL SHORTLY BE TURNED ON AT NORWOOD.

(Special to The Review.)

NORWOOD, Nov. 22.—The hunting season has come and gone and the hunters have returned from the chase, each having his own story to tell about how the deer was shot or how he was shot at and missed or how he was only seen and admired as he went bounding away to the tune of the baying hounds and vanished behind the tall timbers or disappeared around a towering rock, or plunged into the cooling awters of the lake and emerged on the farther side too far away to have a shot at him before he vanished within the sheltering shades of the friendly forest. there to rest in peace until driven out again by his untiring foes.

Four hunting parties were organized and went to the hunt from Norwood and vicinity. Among those who went from Norwood were Rev. A. M. Irwin and Messrs. Stanley Headren, A. B. Greenbanks, H. Keefer, Mark Him. F. J. Pearse. J. G. Keefer, R. N. Kirk, Nelson Wellman, Ollie Edwards, Alex. Kempt, besides many from the adjoining country. We have not yet heard of any of the parties securing their full allowance of the coveted game. However, most of the parties did very well. In all about a dozen deer were brought to Norwood. We have heard of one party not far from here which only got one deer.

The funeral of the late Mrs. John Fry of Peterborough was held in Norwood on Monday upon the arrival of the noon train. Before her marriage Mrs. Fry's home was in Norwood; her maiden name being Miss Mina Wood.

Mr. H. Fife is engaged on the carpenter work in connection with the rebuilding of the destroyed portion of the Norwood electric power plant, and will have it ready in a very few days for the installation of the new machinery. Mr. Harrison hopes to be able to supply the much-missed and needed light within another week. The only possible delay will be the large leather belts which are used to run the heavy machinery. They are on order but on account of the scarcity of leather it may be a few days before they arrive. However. Mr. Harrison is doing his best to have everything put in shape for supplying the current as soon as possible.

CALEBITES OPPOSED TO WARD SYSTEM IN CITIES

F. E. Kerr. B.A. Reads Admirable Paper at Meeting Last Night---Ex-Ald. Green Takes Part in Discussion.

The Calebites of St. Andrew's Church held their regular semi-monthly meeting last night, with the president, Rev. T. H. Mitchell, in the chair, and spent a profitable evening in discussing various forms of municipal government, a subject of special interest just now in view of the approaching election. Mr. F. E. Kerr, B.A., read an admirable paper on Commission Government, and upon the various suggestions made the discussion was based.

Mr. Kerr gave a concise history of the new method of governing cities from the time of its inception when Galveston was devastated by a flood in 1900 and it was found necessary to call out the militia to guard the ruins and afterward to select a committee of citizens to readjust the affairs of the city.

Out of that plan was involved the system of civic government now in use in Des Moines, Iowa, the details of which Mr. Kerr fully explained. The device seems lacking in no single particular and if commission government really works out in practice as it appeared on Mr. Kerr's paper, then Des Moines is a veritable earthly paradise and the inhabitants have nothing more to hope for.

Our Own City Government

Mr. Kerr brought his remarks down to home affairs when he dealt with the defects of our own system of city government and suggested the application of at least some of the features of the plan which have proved so successful in the Iowa city. He believes that the ward system is defective because it tends to the selection of mediocre men who can get themselves elected in a ward whereas they would fail to win out if they were compelled to appeal to the entire electorate. It tends to develop the political trickster, breeds a spirit of local selfishness and makes men narrow in the public interest.

Board of Control similar to those in Toronto. Hamilton and London were also suggested as possible remedies for present defects. The electors were asked as to the standards which they insisted upon in their civic representatives and whether in casting their ballots for aldermen they consider the manners, the morals or the business ability of the candidates.

An Ex-Alderman Speaks

Ex-Ald. G. Walter Green defended the Ontario system of municipal management, although he believes that better men and better results could be secured by electing the aldermen at large instead of by wards. Commission form of government. he contends, is, after all, only slightly different from that in use in this city, where there is an expert in charge of every department. The whole question resolves itself into the desirability of reducing the number of elected representatives and Mr. Green maintains that there are not too meny aldermen under the present system for a city the size of Peterborough.

Mr. Ernest F. Reid read a racy and interesting paper on Current Events, dealing with every topic of interest now before the people, from the recent increase in the price of milk to the Presidential election.

The men of St. Paul's church, it was announced, will form a branch of the Calebites. The one at St. Andrew's will place a team in the Church Bowling League of the Y. M. C. A.

At the next meeting of the society the subject for discussion will be Police Work in the Cities, and Chief Thompson will be asked to give an address dealing with his professional duties. A special musical program, including selections from Harry Lauder's list of songs, will be provided.

British Plantation Rubber Is Saving Canada Millions

Low Prices of Rubbers and Overshoes Due to Britain's Control of Situation

Here in Canada many of us have fallen into the truly Anglo-Saxon habit of considering the "Mother of Parliaments" slow and a bit behind the times. The present price of rubber, when its cause is revealed, affords one of the many proofs that such an opinion is away off the mark.

Thanks to great rubber plantations established, in the face of criticism and ridicule, many years before in her tropical Dominions, Great Britain at the outbreak of the war held a firm and tightening grip on the world's supply of raw rubber—a grip reinforced by her dominating navy. From 60% in 1914, the production of these plantations has grown this year to 75% of the whole world's output, leaving only about half the requirements of the United States alone to come from all other sources.

The result has been that the needs of the Allies, enormous though they are, have been plentifully supplied, while Germany has been reduced to registered mails and the "Deutschland" in desperate attempts to mitigate her rubber famine. Neutrals have been allowed all the rubber they want, at prices actually lower than before the war, so long as they prevent any of it from reaching the enemy, while Canada and other parts of the Empire have an abundant supply at equally favorable Government-regulated prices.

In this foresight and generosity of the British Government lies the reason why rubber alone, of all the great staples, has not gone up in price—why rubbers and overshoes, in spite of increased cost of fabric, chemicals and labor, are as inexpensive as ever, while shoes are costing several dollars a pair more. Wearing rubbers or overshoes through this winter to protect these expensive shoes is more than practical thrift—it is grateful patriotism, for in thus saving leather we make it easier for the Government to secure the absolutely necessary supplies of this alarmingly scarce material for our soldiers.

Both Thrift and Patriotism Point to Rubbers!

A HANDSOME PAIR.

Lady Pole Carew Most Distinguished-Looking Woman in England.

That the distinction of being society's most beautiful woman belongs to Lady Pole Carew, whose husband has retired from politics, is the opinion of many people in England. Furthermore, General Sir Reginald Pole Carew has been declared the handsomest man in the British army. And "Polly Carew," as he is often referred to, is as popular as he is handsome, while he has a splendid record for service behind him.

He is one of Robert's men, accompanying "Bobs" on his march to Kandahar. In the Boer War Sir Reginald earned distinction.

He is rather fond, by the way, of telling the following story illustrating the energy of the British soldier. A German attache in the South Africa war was amazed at the spectacle of the British soldiers, after a fight, staggering into camp, but rushing instantly after a football which was thrown on the veldt. Said the attache to Sir Reginald:

"Well, you are the most extraordinary people in the whole civilized world. I have been with your men all day. I know what they have done. I know they have had scarcely anything to eat or drink, and I know of no other troops in the world that would not have been lying down asleep."

Lady Pole Carew is the eldest daughter of the famous yachtsman and sportsman, the Marquis of Ormonde, and shares her father's love and enthusiasm for the sea. She is also a great lover of foreign travel, and some time ago made a tour of the world. It is fifteen years ago since she married Sir Reginald. Caring little for society life, she divides her time between Antony House, her Cornish home, the gardens of which she has made famous, and her beautiful estate in Tipperary.

Mother Goose Pantomime.

"Mother Goose" rimes written line by line on separate slips of paper may be shuffled and handed to players, instructions being given that those receiving the same poem lines shall find each other and stay together. After all the groups have been formed each group can dramatize the little jingle they have been given and let the others guess it. Care should be taken to select rimes that will lend themselves easily to dramatization.

To Be Called "Excellency."

Official announcement is made that Canada's new Governor-General, the Duke of Devonshire, will be referred to as "His Excellency," and not "His Grace." But reason of being a Duke he is entitled, in a personal way, to the latter address.

Honor Jutland Heroes

Many stories of inspiring courage, wonderful coolness, and unfailing resource are related by Sir John Jellicoe and his commanders in despatches recommending officers and men participating in the Jutland naval battle for promotion and honors. The following are examples:

A petty officer whose leg was shot away insisted on remaining at his post, and tried to get his gun into action again.

A chaplain, aged fifty-six, although himself severely burned, carried wounded men from the battery deck to the distributing station.

One surgeon amputated a limb single-handed in the dark; another, severely wounded, had to be compulsorily placed on the sick list; another worked on a deck flooded with a foot of water; another worked for forty hours without rest.

Several officers and men performed gallant deeds in scalding steam and suffocating fumes. One officer remained at work until swelling from burns closed his eyes and his hands were useless.

A stoker rendered valuable service by closing valves in a compartment in which there was five feet of water.

Warding Off Trouble.

He had reformed and was full of zeal in the cause of temperance. He was holding a lecture in a workmen's hall and, fearing that the audience might interrupt, he had hired a former prize fighter to preserve order. In [illegible] the orator contrasted home life with drunkenness.

"What is it we want when we return home after a hard day's work? What do we want to ease our burden, to gladden our hearts, to bring the smile of happiness to our faces and joyous songs to our lips?"

He paused for effect, and in the silence could be heard the voice of the keeper of the peace:

"Mind, the first bloke that says 'beer,' out he goes with a bang."—Country Gentleman.

BAN JOHNSON FAVORS THIRD MAJOR LEAGUE

Americans' President Thinks it Would Boost Game.

CHICAGO, Nov. 22.—That a third major league venture, launched by prominent men of four circuits, might become a reality soon became evident with the return of President Ban Johnston from his tour of the west in company with President Comiskey of the White Sox.

"I will not oppose a third major league," said President Johnson. "In fact I rather favor the idea."

This from the man who only recently was singled out as the most formidable foe of the Federal league is cause for astonishment in baseball circles.

"The Federal league never had a right to exist," said President Johnson, "because it was formed more by trying to legislate a major league into existence than by a demand for the public for such a circuit."

Cities in Proposed Circuit

Some of the cities proposed for the new circuit are not so large in population as Minneapolis and the cities at the mouth of the Kaw, but they are known as good baseball centres. It is planned to place Baltimore, Buffalo, Newark and Toronto, eastern population centres, in the new circuit. Toledo, Indianapolis, Milwaukee and Louisville will constitute the western quartette in the new big league, according to present plans.

The plan is to remove the draft from these cities comprising the new major orbit. This would be tantamount to raising the clubs to major league rating.

"Would the new league be given representation in the world's series?" was asked of President Johnson.

"That I am unable to answer just now," replied the American League head. "That would have to be worked out later. The game has not prospered in some of these cities, and by raising the clubs in rating the game would receive a big boost."

Queried as to whether Washington would be dropped from the American League and Baltimore substituted, President Johnson replied:

"Washington will remain in the American league, as will other cities of the circuit. The report given wide circulation to the effect that the national capital team would be dropped is all bunk."

Would Allay Threatened Suits

Several backers of the disbanded Federal league have threatened suit against organized baseball. About $500,000 was promised by the major leagues as a part of the peace offering. This money has not been paid. Then there is the $900,000 suit of the Baltimore Feds, which looms menacingly in the background. The formation of the proposed third league would annihilate these menaces to the peace and slumber of major league magnates.

If the draft rule were removed for this new league and clubs of the circuit were able to secure players waived on by the present majors the new organization would have the standing of a major orbit and probably would enter the world's series.

Church Bowling League at Y.M.C.A.

A second meeting of the Church Bowling League was held at the Y. M. C. A. Monday evening and was most encouraging. Two churches have asked for nights for a schedule to be played off among their own S.S. classes and an A. and B. section will likely be organized, with two teams from each of six churches to play off a double inter-church schedule.

There will be another meeting of the league on Thursday evening at 8 o'clock.

Dogs Destroy a Church.

Of all the things that can befall a church, nothing could be much stranger than the destruction of a little house of worship north of Hudson Bay. The Eskimos had built a church with whales' ribs for rafters and covered it with walrus hide. The little church held eighty persons; but in the time that elapsed between two services the building was set upon by a pack of famished dogs and demolished in a few hours.

The lot of an Eskimo dog is a hard one. In the first place, he has to earn his living by drawing sledges. In the next place, food is so scarce that a dog is usually hungry, often hungry enough to eat his harness, or, indeed, any bits of skin and leather he can find. To prevent this the men rub the leather cords with tar. But in order to live at all an Eskimo dog has to fight his way, says the Philadelphia North American. Whenever there is a pack of dogs together they fight. The weak are driven away and killed. The strongest and fiercest one, who can thrash any or all of the others, is known as the king dog. He has the best place to lie, and his choice of the food. A single growl from him is like a growl from an emperor whom all are ready to obey.

T.A.S. ATHLETIC CLUB FOR YOUNG MEN IS FORMED

Five Teams Ready to Join Basketball League --Officers Elected.

A T. A. S. athletic club was organised last night at an enthusiastic meeting of young men in the T.A.S. rooms. Ways and means of promoting the club and encouraging the young men to take an active part in its activities were discussed and the meeting seemed optimistic that a large membership would be secured for the club.

Basketball will be taken up and already five teams have signified their intention of forming a league. The large gymnasium will be further improved and will be made as attractive as possible.

The officers of the club are: President, Rev. C. J. Phelan; secretary, John McCarney; treasurer, John Primeau, Jun., manager, Wm. McArthur; committee, Wm. McArthur; J. McCarney; David A'Hern; Wm. Murray; Wm. Pendrible; Jack Crough.

AMENDMENTS TO ABOLISH BODY CHECKING IN O.H.A.; SIX-MAN TEAM SUGGESTED

TORONTO, Nov. 22. — With the object of ascertaining the views of all clubs and hockeyists on the subject, the O. H. A. sub-committee through its chairman, Mr. J. Ross Robertson, has introduced an amendment to be considered at the annual convention to abolish body-checking of any kind on the ice in O.H.A. games. This is the most radical change in the playing rules suggested in some years.

Mr. Robertson also has amendments which provide for the playing of six-man hockey on all rinks under the minimum size of 160 feet by 60 feet, of enlarging the offside off a goalkeeper from 10 to 20 feet, and to make the home club solely responsible for the notification of the association regarding referees.

Mr. Sandy Lockington, of Port Hope, has made the following suggestion as an amendment to the residence rule:

"Where a player has been a bona fide resident of a city, town or village during the term specified by the residence rule, and has taken out a playing certificate with a team of that city, town or village, and during the playing season (through unforeseen circumstances) he is obliged to change his place of abode, the player shall remain in good standing with the O.H.A. and the club with which he holds the certificate, and be allowed to continue and finish the season with the said club."

CLERGYMAN WINS A V.C.

The first Saskatoon man to win the Victoria Cross is the Rev. Francis George Frost, a student of Emmanuel Anglican College. The news reached his friends recently in a letter from a colleague who was with him in the trenches. "He leaped over the parapet and ran out under heavy fire to bring in a wounded comrade," is the simple story of the heroic action for which the greatest military prize was awarded.

The local Victoria Cross hero was a resident of Saskatoon for five years prior to enlistment during which he studied at the theological college. His action is rendered the more notable when it is stated that he did not display any outstanding traits either in scholarship or athletics which would have led his colleagues to suspect that he had buried deep within him the latent qualities of abnormal courage and great heroism. He was, however, conspicuous for impulsiveness and good nature to a high degree.

Born at Leytonstone, Essex, England, Frost entered Emmanuel College in September, 1909, and was awarded his college testamur in 1913. The same year he was ordained to holy orders and at the time of enlistment was reading for Emmanuel College, B.A. He enlisted in October, 1914, with the 28th Battalion, and was attached to D. Company, and the college authorities immediately granted him his degree.

The news of Private Frost's brilliant exploit at the front was sent to the college authorities by Private H. A. Jack, a fellow student and comrade-in-arms.

This is not the first student of Emmanuel College to win distinction in the present war, the D.C.M. having recently been awarded another student, Sergt. Walter Burd. Practically 75 per cent. of students training at the college at the outbreak of the war have gone to the front. In addition to 27 students who went direct from college, 10 others who are closely connected with the college in various capacities are under arms, giving Emmanuel a representation of 37 men serving King and country.

Mr. McMaster's Views.

On the eve of the re-opening of the British Parliament, the Weekly Despatch put to several of the members the question: "What ought to be done this session?" Among the answers published is the excellent one given by Mr. Donald MacMaster, the Canadian K.C. who sits for the Chertsey Division of Surrey. It is as follows:

(1) Apply conscription to every part of the United Kingdom.

(2) Provide that our sailors, soldiers, and munition workers shall have the opportunity to vote at the next election.

(3) Provide that the disabled sailors and soldiers shall be shepherded, here and in our great Dominions, and given the opportunity to resume civil life within the Empire.

(4) Tell the Government that war is war—that the full power of our fleet must be asserted in stopping imports into Germany, directly or indirectly; that Roumania must be backed up, and that there must be no more nonsense with Greece.

The Natural Response.

Wrathful Recruit: "'Ere, wot did yer call me a thick-'eaded idiot in front o' the colonel for?"

believed that missionaries to other lands should be officially recognized by the Government and assured safety in the prosecution of their duties. He held that this official recognition should be extended to them in their ministration to the pupils in the public schools of the province. An attempt should be made to enlist the interest of all other denominations in the matter of religious instruction.

Archdeacon Warren stated that it would be useless to ask the Legislature for further concessions when it was evident that the clergy were not using those already granted. The adoption of Mr. White's resolution brought the discussion to a close, and the delegates adjourned for lunch.

It was stated that there is in Saskatchewan a law authorising religious instruction by clergymen at 3.30 p.m. in the public schools, but that even there advantage is not taken of the privilege.

The Peterborough Dairymen's Association annual meeting opened this afternoon at 2 o'clock in the City Council Chamber with a large attendance of those interested in the different dairy products. Mr. G. A. Gillespie, M.L.A., presided.

Mr. R. W. Ward, dairy instructor and sanitary inspector for Peterborough and Lindsay sections of the province, presented a comprehensive report.

New Regulations

Mr. L. A. Zufelt, superintendent of the Kingston Dairy School, gave a very excellent address dealing with the Dairy Standards Act, which goes into effect on March 1 next. He had always been opposed to the pooling of milk by the patrons of dairy and cheese factories. There was no encouragement to the farmer to go ahead and improve his herd. It used to be said that it took 10 pounds of milk to produce a pound of cheese.

He placed on view 4 different cheese made from 100 lbs. of milk and the result was as follows with the test as made.

Fat test 5.4	Cheese 13 1-8
Fat test 4.2	Cheese 11 1-2
Fat test 3.5	Cheese 9 3-8
Fat test 3.2	Cheese 8 3-4

Cheese had made as low as 8 lbs. per 100 lbs. of milk testing 3.2 and as high as 13 1-3 lbs. for milk testing 5.5.

It was pointed out that there was a difference of 55c in the value of the cheese made from 100 lbs. of milk testing 4.2 and the one testing 3.2, figuring cheese at 20c per lb. This showed the disadvantage the farmer who had the good cows was up against in the pooling system. The man who furnished 75 lbs. milk testing 4.2 was giving the same value as the man whose milk tested only 3.2.

In answer to a question it was stated that there was little difference in the fat test of the whey.

Re-elected

Mr. G. A. Gillespie, M.L.A., was re-elected director for this district without any opposition.

$40,000 PAID OUT TO THE RELATIVES OF THE FALLEN.

JEWEL IS PRESENTED.

The members of the Lansdowne Lodge of the Sons of England had the pleasure and privilege of a visit from their Worthy Supreme President, Bro. Proctor, at their meeting on Monday evening.

A large number of the members were present and listened to his excellent address and also enjoyed with him the social hour spent after the lodge was adjourned.

In the course of his address the Supreme President gave the latest figures showing that over 6,000 members of the Sons of England were at the front or preparing to go. Of that number 280 had paid the supreme sacrifice and several times that number had been wounded. The Supreme Lodge had paid out almost $40,000 to the relatives of the members who had fallen and he exhorted the members to stand loyally by the order in the days to come.

During the evening the Past President's Jewel was presented to Bro. A. Frick by the Worthy Supreme President.

After refreshments had been served the toast to the King was proposed by Bro. A. Frick and responded to in the customary manner by singing God Save the King. The toast to Our Guest was proposed by Bro. R. Waram and after Bro. Proctor had suitably replied a successful meeting was brought to a close with a reminder to the members that the next meeting, on Dec. 4, was the annual meeting, the night for the election of officers for the coming year.

PTE. LUMLEY WOUNDED IN THE INSTEP

PARENTS RECEIVE NEWS IN LETTER BEFORE GETTING OFFICIAL MESSAGE.

The official announcement that Pte. Arthur Lumley, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Lumley 270 Charlotte street, sustained a gunshot wound in the foot on October 29th, received this morning, was preceded by a letter from Pte. Lumley, who writes to his father and mother telling them how he was wounded. He says: "I am wounded and in the hospital. I was shot through the foot yesterday morning, having been in the trenches since last Thursday. It has been raining about every day lately, and it is very muddy in the trenches. Mine is a mighty sore wound as the bullet went through the instep and it will be quite a long time before I am able to be about again.

"News is rather scarce here, and it is pretty hard to write much of a letter. I think this is the only time in my life that I was homesick, but I guess I'll get over it. It must be due to my new berth in a hospital.

"I've got the end of the war marked down for Christmas, but I'm not sure that I am right. A lot of people think it will be over by then."

Pte. Lumley sends his love to all at home.

Pte. Lumley enlisted in the 91st Battalion at St. Thomas, where he was employed. After reaching England he was transferred to the 38th Battalion.

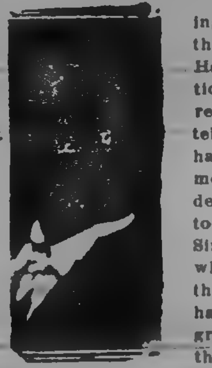
GREAT LOSS IN THE DEATH OF SIR JOHN BOYD

TRIBUTES PAID TO LATE CHANCELLOR BY MR. JUSTICE KELLY.

HIS WISH FULFILLED.



At the opening of the Court this afternoon, Hon. Mr. Justice Kelly referred to the sad telligence which had come since morning — the death at Toronto of Chancellor Sir John Boyd, who for more than 35 years had given such great service to the Province and the Bar. It was not necessary to say what the lawyers of the Province thought of the Chancellor. He had outlived several generations of the members of the Bar. He was noted for his splendid qualities and generosity; he was a judge of eminence and great learning as well as of the highest integrity. He had always stood for the highest and best traditions of the Bar and had done much to frame some of the most important laws of Ontario.

Justice Kelly referred to the expressed wish of the late Chancellor, which had been fulfilled, "that he be privileged to continue his work to the end." In this he was gratified, as up till Friday of last week Sir John was at his court in Toronto. Some years ago he had the privilege of retiring, but steadfastly took up his regular turn of duty on the bench. The Supreme Court, the Bar and the Province had sustained a very great loss in the death of Chancellor Sir John Boyd.

His Honor Judge Huycke had a seat on the bench during the remarks of the court. The members of the Bar present were Messrs. D. W. Dumble, E. A. Peck, G. W. Sherry, W. F. Nickle, K.C., J. M. Farrell, Kingston; J. A. McIntosh, Toronto; F. D. Kerr, J. V. McElderry, Joseph Wearing, G. N. Gordon, J. F. Strickland, B. D. Hall and J. E. L. Goodwill.

C.G.E. EMPLOYES WILL RECEIVE COMPENSATION

FOR LOSS EXPERIENCED BY REDUCTION IN WAGES AT OUTBREAK OF WAR.

TORONTO, Nov. 23.—The Canadian General Electric Co. has just arranged to compensate its employees for the loss they experienced when wages were reduced following the outbreak of the war—an action that is not unlike to influence many other concerns who were similarly forced to reduce wages. Mr. Frederic Nicholls, the president of the company, has written the following circular letter to the members of the staff of the Canadian General Electric Company, Limited:

"Immediately after the outbreak of war all branches of business suffered so materially that your executive were confornted with two alternatives, either to discharge a large proportion of the staff or to retain as many as possible in the employment of the company, the staff themselves co-operating by accepting a reduction of 20 per cent. on their salaries until such time as conditions improved.

"After the lapse of twelve months, conditions having slightly improved, 10 per cent. of the 20 per cent. reduced salaries was reinstated, and the remaining 10 per cent. four months later.

"Since that date the company has experienced the benefit of improved business, and with a view to recognizing the loyalty of the staff it has been decided to make up this loss to those still in the employ of the company by the payment of a bonus equal to the total amount deducted during the time the reduction was in force, and cheques therefor will be issued as promptly as possible.

"The sum involved is about one hundred and thirty thousand dollars ($130,000) and I am sure the staff will appreciate the action of the directors in adopting this policy."

R. G. JOHNSTON, Lt.,
Acting Adjt., 24th Bn.

Driver Harold J. Devey writes from somewhere in France under date of October 31st: "I received a letter from Mrs. Manson Comstock, stating that she was sending me a parcel of socks from the 57th Chapter, I. O. D. E., for distribution to the Peterborough boys around, and am expecting them any time now. That sure was bad news about Billy Morris. Art did not know about it when I saw him last, but they had some talk together about the end of August. I never dreamed he would be killed. By the way, I met Orm Cavanagh the other day. He is with the 16th C. F. A., and has had six months at the guns. He has been in hospital with a bad face from a shell burst, but he says he is a lot better than he was. Vic. Thorndyke yelled at me the other day from the back of a motor lorry. I've seen quite a bunch of the boys from home lately, Bill Hardill, O'Toole, Asa White from Lakefield. Was in one day to see Phil Patrick. That 'sterno' heater is just great, after a wet, cold spell. Toronto for Christmas, eh? Well, I'll be there for Christmas; but 1917, I guess. I'm not worrying much, believe me. It's only a matter of time now till I'm home again. Everything is going on fine around here. The sun is shining as it should do, today."

Mr. M. Breckenridge, of Westwood, was in the city today. He received a letter from his son, Bomb. R. C. Breckenridge, who was wounded in action some days ago. Both legs of the young soldier were broken by a shrapnel shell but while the injury is a very painful one, the medical staff anticipate no serious results.

Capt. G. G. Aitkins wrote across the top of the letter which was enclosed for the soldier's sister, "Your brother was wounded yesterday, which I sincerely regret. He always did his duty conscientiously."

ALD. McINTYRE AIMS AT HIGHER HONORS

Aspires to the Mayoralty or a Seat With the Mighty on Utilities Commission---Banks on His Record.

The municipal bee is buzzing for fair under the hat of Ald. McIntyre, chairman of the Board of Public Works. A taste of power and honor has whetted his appetite for more. The alderman has for the past year been at the head of a committee that is second in importance only to that of finance, but he looks even higher. His pronouncement has been made. The goal of his ambition is the mayoralty, and that failing, then a place on the Utilities Commission.

This alderman has certainly been a prominent figure in Council during the past twelve months. No man carried on his shoulders so much responsibility and no man ever bore honors with more dignity or aplomb. His colleagues left the heavy end of the work of the important committee to him; he was practically invested with all the authority of a Kaiser so far as the administration of the greatest spending department of them all was concerned and yet the alderman was not spoiled unless the development of his ambition to attain still greater heights and to take his seat with the mighty is so regarded.

Ald. McIntyre's services have from the beginning of the year been distinguished by a passion for economy, his great aim being to wind up the business of the year with a balance to the credit of his department.

If Ald. McIntyre decides to run for mayor or for Utilities Commissioner, or even consents to stand again for his old seat in Council, he may be depended upon to put up the fight of his career and to give those who have the temerity to enter the lists against him a run for the record.

There are plenty of men in the North Ward, jointly represented now by Aldermen McIntyre and Langford, who can get a nomination for a place among the civic elect if they only say the word. Robert Kidd, who tried conclusions, unsuccessfully it must be admitted, with Ald. Langford a year ago, is out of the city for the winter, and is not available. Others who are recognised as eligibles are Ed. Manning, ex-Ald. James G. Graham, Wesley Dodds, the C.P.R. agent, ex-Ald. W. J. Johnston, popularly known as "Hydro Bill," who has recovered his health, J. T. Braund and David Kerneghan. The two last mentioned are well-known grocers and the only handicap either would be under would be due to a delusion that prevails among a certain class in the community that grocers might do something to reduce the high cost of living if they would consent to loosen up, whereas the dealers are but fellow-sufferers with the consumers.

There is a feeling of unrest in the ward. Ald. Langford has purchased a farm on the outskirts of the city and rumor has it that he is about to forsake the ranks of the bachelors, retire to his new possession and there lead the life of a country gentleman, earning his daily bread by he perspiration which drops from the brow of his hired man.

CHARGE FARMER WITH TRESPASS

The Police Chief is taking up the cudgels in behalf of the standard hotel keepers who give stable and shed accommodation, and he has laid an information charging trespass against a farmer who left his horse on private property.

Since the hotelmen began charging for shed room the patronage has been very light, and they claim it is not fair to them when farmers and other persons coming to the city are permitted to leave their horses on private and government property.

SPOTTERS ARE AT WORK AMONG LOCAL GROCERS

Two Searching for Violation of the Law Regarding the Sale of Foodstuffs--Retailers Complain of Alleged Persecution.

Two spotters—they call themselves food inspectorse—are busy among the retail dealers in the city and the chances are that within the next few days a number of grocers will be haled before Magistrate Dumble on a charge of selling adulterated articles used in the people's daily diet. Every case so far passed upon has resulted in a conviction and a heavy fine for the defendant.

The dealers claim that this espionage is practically amounting to official persecution. They are unable to tell just where they are at. When they buy goods from a travelling man or direct from the wholesaler and ask for a certificate of analysis they are generally refused and have to assume responsibility for the purity of the stock which they handle. In some stores it is impossible now to procure any brand of maple syrup for the reason that the dealer is afraid to keep it in stock lest an inspector pay him an official visit and to the surprise of the grocer find something wrong.

In the last police court case the inspector stated that the dealers could protect themselves by getting guarantees as to the purity of goods purchased, but the grocers, as noted above, take exception to this statement.

When a manufacturer is fined for turning out impure goods the department sends out circulars to the retailers notifying them to this effect and warning them of the danger of handling the goods of such firms, but even this is not a sufficient safeguard, the grocers claim.

The war tax question is another matter which is puzzling the local dealers. They do not object to the expense so much as the risk they rue through not knowing just what articles they are required to stamp by the War Tax Act. They are liable at any time to transgress in this regard, innocently enough and the penalty in such cases made and provided is severe.

One grocer asked The Review today where he could obtain a list of articles that under the special Act must be stamped when sold. Anyone who writes to Hon. E. L. Patenaude, Minister of Inland Revenue, or to the Finance Minister at Ottawa, will receive the required information.

SOLDIERS AND THE POLL TAX.

WHATEVER SYMPATHY any alderman may have for the soldiers who have returned from the front, and this sympathy is not lacking, the cold fact remains that Council has no authority to remit the poll tax of $5, or any part of it, to the national defenders or to any other person or class in the community. The new law was not made by the City Council. The Act was prepared by the Legislature and simply given effect here as in other places. That some provision was not included making an exception in the case of soldiers is the misfortune of the latter and not the fault of the aldermen.

GOVERNMENT BY COMMISSION.

ONE OF THE MAIN contentions of the advocates of a commission form of government for Ontario cities is that under the present system it is next to impossible to secure good men. Will they pause in their theorizing long enough to get down to earth and explain to us how their plan, if given effect, is to help matters?

Take the members of the Peterborough City Council for example. No one is likely to go so far as to challenge their standing as respectable members of the community. Perhaps no alderman finds himself so rolling in wealth that a needle's eye looms up between him and his hope for the shadowy future, but money is not the great essential in any form of government. Apply the church test to them and our aldermen can pass muster. Every member of Council is a member of some religious body; all denominations in the city sending one or more representatives, St. Andrew's Church probably leading with a delegation of three.

The Calebites and other social reformers want men of affairs, of vast worldly possessions, captains of industry and others of high professional attainments in our City Council. The truth of the matter is that the eyes of these reformers have been dazzled into blindness by the glamour of riches. They are really falling down to worship the Golden Calf, a rite that wrought disaster years ago to the wandering children of Israel. A big bank balance does not necessarily fit a man for municipal service any more than does a long string of letters attached to the name of another by a university senate as a result of an actual examination test or as a mere academic honor.

Experience has proved that the men of big affairs, the captains and the kings of business, do not as a rule make the best aldermen, even if they can be induced to take civic office. Their minds run in other channels and they have not the time to devote to the duties of public office. It is among the middle classes that the best material is found. They may upon their first appearance in Council appear new to their surroundings, but they soon find their bearings and learn the ropes. The chances are that such men have made a study of municipal questions, and in this respect can draw circles all around the professional man or the citizen who has made his mark either as a manufacturer or a merchant.

Let the advocates of commission government go to the root of the question and they will find that their pet system differs little from the one to which they object. They would elect a few representatives and these would choose the heads of departments and be responsible for the different administrations. That is what is done today. Every department of the city government of Peterborough is fortunate in the possession of an expert at its head. These experts hold office at the pleasure of the aldermen. If there is mal-administration or inefficiency in any department, the city fathers are responsible and the head of the department can be reached through the city father who is rash enough to back him up.

Under no system of civic government ever dreamed of could Peterborough hope to secure a better man for city clerk, for example, than the present incumbent, who has the Municipal Act at the ends of his fingers. Let Peterborough elect to Council a banker, and a city treasurer will still be required; a school teacher, and the Board of Education will remain a necessity; a doctor, and a man must still be found for health officer; an engineer, and the present office will be filled as usual; a lawyer, and a city solicitor is still a necessity.

The advisability of cutting down the number of aldermen from ten to four or five and extending their terms of office to as many years, is still a moot question. The representation now is not excessive, when the size of the city is taken into consideration, and to extend the term would mean tying the hands of the electorate in the event of the public misfortune of an incompetent board. The principle of recall is dangerous to the extent that it interferes with anything like independence or initiative on the part of an elected civic servant who is always haunted by the fear that a small fraction of the public can make trouble for him merely by drawing up a petition which the thoughtless, the prejudiced and the misinformed can easily be persuaded to sign.

The referendum is really a part of our city government today. No council is likely to take drastic action or launch any work involving heavy expenditure without referring the question to the people. There is nothing like a plebiscite to fix the responsibility where it belongs and to head off tiresome debate in elected bodies, every member of which may sincerely believe that the view he takes on any important issue represents the real sentiments of the people.

SUNDAY NEWSPAPERS IN CANADA.

LET A MAN IN ONTARIO attempt to publish a Sunday newspaper, even at a loss, and for the sole purpose of allaying the anxiety of the public with regard to some incident in the war, and in less than twenty-four hours the chances are that he will find himself regarding the landscape through the grated window of a prison cell. For a long time, however, Sunday newspapers have been brought in from the United States, and generally read. Then the Lord's Day Alliance was aroused from its slumbers and put in motion the legal machinery to suppress the importation and sale of Sunday papers from the American side.

But the people of Windsor want the Detroit papers that they have read for years on the first day of the week. They have got together and drawn up resolutions calling upon the Lord's Day Alliance to relax the regulations and permit the Sunday papers to come in as of yore.

It will strike the most of thinking people as peculiar that the administration of the laws of Ontario, moral or otherwise, appear to have been relegated to a private organization. And is this organization to be asked, and will it consent, to compound a misdemeanor? If it has been all this time a sin to read a newspaper that carries a Sunday date line, it is as much a sin today as it ever was. If it is a violation of the sanctity of the Sabbath to issue a newspaper on Sunday, it is as much a violation of that same sanctity to offer it for sale, to purchase and to read it.

A more flagrant violation, perhaps. There is less Sunday labor involved in the actual work of printing a paper on the first day of the week than there is in getting it into the hands of those who want to read it. The paper is generally ready for distribution by 12 o'clock Saturday night, and those who had a part in getting it out will find nothing to prevent them from attending church the next day with the best of them. It is the reader of that paper who is likely to absent himself from public worship, and this, perhaps, constitutes the main objection entertained by the Lord's Day Alliance against the Sunday newspaper.

There is a danger that some of our legislative enactments will degenerate into so many jokes, whether their administration is left to the recognized officers of the state or is arrogated by a society of church members. Canadian people have been allowed to eat the forbidden fruit, provided the tree has been planted by someone else. They cannot, for example, buy liquor in Ontario, but let them once step across the provincial boundary line, and they can invest to the limit of their means.

A PICKWICKIAN POLICY.

A HANDPICKED BUNCH of Liberals, assembled at Ottawa for the purpose of placing a few planks in the weatherbeaten platform of the party, declared among other things for a pension scale which would recognize no difference between officers and men, but would pay the same to all, irrespective of rank. There are, of course, more privates than officers, and the Liberals, especially when in the frigid zone of opposition, always deem it the part of discretion to adopt the advice of the immortal Mr. Pickwick, who told his friends to shout with the larger crowd.

The first scale of pensions proposed by the Government was merely tentative, and was open to criticism. In the one finally agreed upon there is little to which any reasonable person can object. The aim of pensions is the same as that kept in view by the managers of the Patriotic Fund—to provide for the beneficiaries so as to maintain them as nearly as possible in the style to which they were formally accustomed. The disabled soldier who before the war was never able to earn more than $50 a month does not sacrifice as much as the man reduced to the same helpless condition whose average earnings were ten times as great as those of the other. Some consideration, too, is due officers who have spent time and money in fitting themselves for the profession of arms.

Canadian soldiers have no cause for complaint. Every consideration is shown them from the day they enlist. They are made the beneficiaries of various patriotic organizations and their dependents are cared for. Their pay is higher than that of any soldiers in the world, and the pension scale provided by the Government is the most generous ever granted by a civilised State.

If the carefully selected Liberals in conclave at Ottawa could succeed in stirring up dissension and discontent in the rank and file they would not, in their lust for political capital, pause to consider what effect the promulgation of their doctrine would have upon recruiting or the safety of the nation. "Party before Empire" appears more and more to be their cry.

An Unclean Thing.

(Montreal Mail.)

American newspapers of worth and influence are welcome in this country. The American representatives of sane journalism may count innumerable Canadian friends. But the Hearst press is morally as well as politically abominable, catering as it does to the lowest and most ignorant elements.

A CONTRADICTION IN TERMS

Sir Herbert Tree relates an amusing story about a boisterous voyage he once had to New York from England. He was lying in his cabin on board ship and the vessel was rolling terribly. Articles were flying about all over the place and suddenly Sir Herbert was knocked to the ground by a heavy weight and lay for some moments half stunned.

"On fully recovering my senses," he says, "I looked up to see what it was that had nearly killed me. It was a large contrivance marked in bold letters, 'Life-saving Apparatus.'"

Lord Charles Beresford's recent statement in the House of Commons that he believed we should win the war in the end in spite of everything naturally did much to dispel pessimism, even amongst the most gloomy-minded.

Like most sailors, Lord Charles is an inveterate smoker, a fact that was once responsible for a very amusing incident. Some time ago Lord Charles was a guest at Windsor Castle, and after being shown to his bedroom on the night of his arrival, he immediately lit a fine cigar. Presently the smell of the smoke reached the nostrils of a custodian, who was not far off, and he came to the door and told Lord Charles that he must not smoke in the bedroom.

The Admiral thereupon went into the corridor and continued smoking there, but the custodian again asked him to desist. Lord Charles did as he was bid, but marched out on to the balcony where, thinking that, as he was in the open air, no one could object, the cigar once more came into play. But the inexorable custodian followed at his heels and in deeply injured tones said: "Smoking is not permitted, sir, in any part of Windsor Castle."

As soon as he had gone, Lord Charles returned crestfallen to his bedroom, but suddenly a happy thought struck him. There was an open fireplace in the apartment, so, lying down on his back on the floor, he put his head under the chimney and finished his cigar in peace.

ACTIVITIES OF THE OFFICERS OF CANADIAN PATRIOTIC FUND

The work undertaken by the Canadian Patriotic Fund, with its many branches permeating every centre of population in Canada, while bearing immediate fruit, will only be fully realized long after this war has worn itself out. The duties and responsibilities of this great national organization multiply daily. Primarily having in mind the financial relief of soldiers' dependents, the scope of is work in many cities now embraces domestic science, including food values, dressmaking, millinery, house cleaning, the care of children, health talks, legal and medical aid, and insurance.

Probably the most farsighted conception of its duties was the creation by this organization of a plan of social and ward work, now successfully caried on by many branches. This work will have a vital bearing on Canada's future manhood and womanhood. In this connection war clubs have been brought into existence, where women can meet, under wholesome conditions, and while relieving their loneliness, are protected from temptation and evil association. Here they are encouraged to sew, and to turn their minds and hands to Red Cross efforts.

The effect of this work on future generations is appreciated by such minds as Baden-Powell's. As if having in view this feature of the Fund's efforts Baden-Powell recently gave to the press this significant interview:

"When do you think the war will end? This is a question that is frequently put to us these days. The answer is simple: The war will be decided in 1935. For this reason; the true victory will lie, not so much in the actual tactical gains on the battle field today as in the quality of the men who have to carry on the work of the country after the war. War kills off the best of a nation's manhood; therefore, extra care must be exercised to save every child—not for its own safe or for its parents' sake, but for the sake of the nation. It has got to be saved, and saved from infant mortality, then from ill-health, and finally from drifting into being waste human material. We have got to economize our human material. Each individual must be made (1) healthy and strong; (2) endowed with character, for becoming a valuable citizen for the State. Women and non-combatant men have here as big a national work open to them behind the scenes as the men who are playing their part so gallantly on the stage in Flanders and elsewhere."

COMRADES WITH MEN OF ENGLAND

Comrades with new oY sOinCmpanycetaoln

(From the Address of Sir Robert Borden at the Lawyers' Club Luncheon in New York City on November 18, 1916.)

"Henceforth no nation—and indeed no continent—can hope to play the role of hermit. The Australians at Gallipoli, and the Canadians at Ypres, were as truly fighting for their liberties—and in our belief for the liberties of the world—as if they had held the battle line within the territories of their respective Dominions.

"Many hundred thousand men will return after this war to their homes in the Overseas Dominions of the British Commonwealth. They will have thronged upon the stage of the World's theatre of action and taken a mighty part in settling the future destiny of civilization and humanity.

"Upon our Atlantic and Pacific shores, by our inland waterways, in the northern hinterlands of Ontario and Quebec, on our vast western plains and still further west within the shadow of majestic mountain ranges, these men will take up anew the task of developing and upbuilding our country.

"They will take up that work with a consciousness that Canada has played a worthy part in the fateful struggle which she entered at the call of duty and for the cause of freedom.

"Theirs' will be an imperishable recollection of comradeships with men of the King's Dominions; theirs' also a wider vision and deeper insight from service in a high cause. Hardly less profound will be the influence of the war upon all our people. They have learned that self-sacrifice in a just cause is at once a duty and a blessing and this lesson has both inspired and ennobled the men and women of Canada."

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

After getting an education it is up to a young man to do things with the knowledge he acquires.

Somehow a woman never seems to tire of her efforts to get an article worth all of a dime for 12 cents.

Our idea of a credulous man is one who actually believes that one woman can treat another with silent contempt.

There are more ways than one of looking for trouble. A Texas man advertised for his mother-in-law, who was missing.

With her first proposal, a girl is firmly convinced that she will need a blankbook in which to keep a record of her offers.

Team captains are urged to bring in the lists and without fail, Friday evening, the 24th.

Wit and Wisdom

With a wild sweep the wind tore round a corner and removed the hat from the head of a respectable and near-sighted citizen who chanced to be passing on George Street.

Peering wildly round, the man thought he saw his hat in a yard behind a high fence. Hastily climbing over, he started to chase it, but each time he thought he had caught it it got another move on. Then a woman's angry voice broke on his ears.

"What are you doing there?" she demanded shrilly.

He explained mildly that he was only trying to retrieve his hat, whereupon the woman said in wonder:

"Your hat? I don't know where it is, but that's our little black hen you're chasing!'

The sympathetic prison visitor went from cell to cell interviewing the inmates. To one penitent looking individual she put the usual question, "What brought you here?"

"Borowing money, lady," was the reply.

"But, good gracious!' she exclaimed; "the don't put people in prison for borrowing money."

"Not ordinarily," said the man; "but I had to knock a man down three or four times before he would lend it to me."

"Looky yur!" severely said the manager of the moving picture theatre, addressing a man who had come from the back townships, and hungered for amusement: "You've set plumb through four programmes already. Just when do you reckon you'll get enough?"

"Whenever what I'm expecting to happen comes off," was the cheery reply. "That there honest country husband has come within an ace of ketchin' the city dude trying to kiss his wife four times already, and that there fat feller is due any minute to break his fool back by falling out of that tree. And I figger that when them anecdotes occur they'll be plumb worth waiting for."

The great meeting for the ventilation of women's wrongs and the achieving of women's right was nearing its end. "Mrs. Chairman" had carried a vote of thanks to the principal speaker and was asking whether any of the audience desired to put questions.

"Any questions?" she cried. "Ask any questions you wish, those of you who desire enlightenment on any aspect whatever of the great woman problem."

For a moment there was silence. Then a stylishly dressed lady arose at the back of the hall.

"I should like to ask a question."

"Certainly! What is it?"

"I should like to know where you Mrs. Chairman, got that exquisite crepe de chine with which your dress is veiled."

ENNISMORE BRIEFS.

(Special Correspondence.)

ENNISMORE, Nov. 23. — Mr. Jos Perdue, one of our popular village blacksmiths, has sold his residence to Mr. C. O'Connor and has moved to Peterborough, leaving a good opening for some other man to take up the work. Mr. Jas. Mahoney, the other blacksmith, is unable to handle all the trade, and hopes that another man will take up the vacant shop in the near future.

Mr. P. G. Sullivan, who conducts one of the general stores at Ennismore, reports a large increase in business during the past year.

Mr. W. J. Scollard moved into his new residence last week. Two Peterborough architects have pronounced it one of the most complete farm homes they have visited. The work was well done, particularly the plastering, which was done by Mr. Irwin King.

Mr. James Guiry has rented his farm and is moving to Downeyville, where he intends taking over the business which Mr. Matthews carried on there for the past 25 years. We expect to see Mr. Guiry's sale bills one of these days.

Messrs. D. J. and John Scollard of Ennismore have charge of Mr. Wm. Young's hay press for this season. There are a number of jobs on hand now. Any one needing hay or straw pressed can communicate with them.

WHAT CORNELL WOMEN ARE DOING TO HELP FARMERS' WIVES

All Local Bureaus Are Used as Centers For Work and Social Fun—Matters of the Home and Child Welfare Are Discussed, Just As Are Farming Problems.

That politics affects the home has been proved once more. Cornell university has a home economics department. The Cornell reading course goes to women on the farms and brings them the latest information on the scientific running of the household. The fact that there are 45,000 women on the subscription list testifies to the usefulness of this department.

When the appropriation for public printing was reduced a suffragist explained quite clearly to the governor what it would mean to eliminate one of the very few bits of service which the state renders to its women, and the governor seems to have turned a willing ear.

MISS FLORA ROSE.

Miss Flora Rose and Miss Martha Van Rensselaer are co-heads of the home economics department. Beside sending out the reading course they have organized the women into clubs, which give the isolated farmers' wives a reason for coming together to discuss some problem in which they have a mutual interest and to have a social afternoon. Miss Van Rensselaer travels about among them and has made herself a vital link connecting the women with her department.

In co-operation with the churches, school, grange, clubs and farm bureau of a given neighborhood they hold household demonstration schools, give lessons in bed and bread making to children and regale all comers with great fun at a singing school and picnic.

Fun and singing are large factors in the schemes of the women heads of the Cornell course. In February of each year there is a homemaker's conference, and "that's the time," says Miss Van Rensselaer, "when we really get together and learn most. While husband is busy learning about the control of grasshoppers and poultry packing,' we women discuss the best methods of raising chickens, of reducing infant mortality, of buying and making clothes, of marketing, of staying well, of filling the home with music and happiness."

CAMP BEANS.

How to Serve Them So They Will Taste Ambrosial.

If ever you have dragged forth a big brown bean pot from a redhot hole in the side of a hill and removed the lid and got just one whiff of those baked beans the aroma will stick in your memory forever. While it is true that this demands a lot of work, it is worth while just for the pleasure of anticipation and then realization. Canned beans are always good, especially for an emergency dinner. You should always take some along; but for a little extra pleasure always bake beans in a hillside oven at least once on every camping trip.

Put the beans to soak in water over night. Dig a hole in the side of a hill about two and a half feet in diameter and three feet into the hill. Build a fire of hard wood at the edge of the hole and then constantly push back the live coals into the hole and add more wood, banking the outer edge with big round stones, which will retain the heat.

When the hole is well bedded with coals add a piece of pork and a pinch of mustard and salt to the beans in the pot and fill with warm water. Fasten the cover on with a bit of wire and set the bean pot in the hole on the coals. Push the other coals up around it and over it. Then cover the opening with boards. Let the bean pot remain there at least six hours, and your beans will be done.

Silver Cord Doily.

Silver cord, such as is used to tie packages, can be crocheted into a very handsome doily. It makes an excellent mat for a crystal pitcher or cut glass dish. Gold cord may be used in a similar manner, but it tarnishes more quickly.

To Preserve Parsley.

To preserve parsley, wash it and place in boiling, slightly salted water for two or three minutes, then take out, drain, and place on a sieve in front of the fire. Dry as quickly as possible. Then place in bottles, and store in a very dry place. When required, pour a little warm water over the parsley, and allow it to stand for five minutes.

Many a man who pretends to be looking for work looks the wrong way.

Cook's Cotton Root Compound.

A safe, reliable regulating medicine. Sold in three degrees of strength—No. 1, $1; No. 2, $3; No. 3, $5 per box. Sold by all druggists, or sent prepaid on receipt of price. Free pamphlet. Address THE COOK MEDICINE CO. TORONTO, ONT. (Formerly Windsor.)

ONE SOLDIER GIRL.

French Maidens Are Wearing Suits Like This.

Worsted in khaki color is the material used to build this smart suit. The full skirt is finished cartridge belt fashion at the top, and the peplumed jacket takes a soldier's cape almost as deep as itself. Military buttons close it, the only trimming except stitching.

SO DEMURE.

SUBSTANTIAL SANDWICHES.

Tasty Spreads For Summer Luncheons and Picnics.

Sandwiches are an excellent thing for summer luncheons, and if they are of the substantial sort they need nothing more than the addition of a cup of tea or a glass of iced chocolate and some fruit to make a very tempting and satisfying meal.

Bacon is often a desirable part of the luncheon sandwich. Without being heavy, it still gives the sandwich an element of substantiality. And bacon tempts even a listless appetite. To be cooked just right for a sandwich the bacon should be made slightly crisp, not crisp enough to fly to pieces when touched with a fork.

Watercress and bacon combine well. Spread thin slices of bread with butter, pile one with watercress, lay two slices of broiled bacon on it and top with another slice of buttered bread.

Scrambled egg sandwiches are delicious. To make them spread whole wheat or graham bread with butter. Break the eggs into a bowl, mix lightly with a teaspoonful of cream for each egg and salt and pepper to taste and scramble quickly in a very little butter in a hot skillet. Spread generously between the buttered slices of bread.

Tomato sandwiches can be made in several ways. Sliced tomato on lettuce leaves with mayonnaise dressing is good, and sliced tomato with French dressing between brown bread and butter is also good. Any sandwich in which French dressing is used should be made just before eating so that the French dressing will not soak into the bread.

If there are chicken giblets left over grind them to a coarse paste with a meat chopper and season with mayonnaise. Spread between buttered whole wheat bread for unusual and delicious sandwiches.

Care of the Refrigerator.

The shelves and floor of the refrigerator should be cleaned thoroughly at least once a week. In this weekly cleaning all food must be removed. The racks should be removed and washed in hot soapy water or soda solution, scalded and then dried and if possible sunned. The inside of the refrigerator should be thoroughly washed.

The drainpipe should be cleaned with hot soda or soapy water and a long handled bottle brush. After it is thoroughly cleaned boiling water should be poured through it. If the waste water drains into a pan, this, too, must be thoroughly washed in hot soda or soapy water and then scalded.

Pickled Peppers.

Use the long green chili peppers; wash and wipe dry; prick each pepper with a fork three times, then put them in a stone jar in layers; season each layer with salt, a handful of whole black pepper and little bits of garlic, about a teaspoonful over each layer of peppers. Repeat until jar is nearly full, then cover with good cold vinegar, put on this a clean cloth and then a saucer, on top of this a clean stone to press down. Tie over a clean cloth and set in dry, cool place. They are just fine for use in ten days and will keep for a long time.

MISERABLE FROM STOMACH TROUBLE

594 Champlain St., Montreal.

"For two years, I was a miserable sufferer from Rheumatism and Stomach Trouble. I had frequent Dizzy Spells, and when I took food, felt wretched and sleepy. I suffered from Rheumatism dreadfully, with pains in my back and joints, and my hands swollen.

A friend advised "Fruit-a-tives" and from the outset, they did me good. After the first box, I felt I was getting well and I can truthfully say that "Fruit-a-tives" is the only medicine that helped me". LOUIS LABRIE.

IN GREAT DEMAND

B. C.'S SAILING SCHOONERS ARE FAST NEARING COMPLETION.

It is well known that tonnage has been very scarce, and it is no longer a novelty to learn of ships earning their first cost from one year's freights. In the past two years there has been no limit to the rates charged. In some cases they are ten times higher than those which obtained at the outbreak of the war. Of course such circumstances stimulate shipbuilding very materially. But Canadian plants are at some disadvantage in that materials are very hard to get, and the plants that could turn out shipbuilding parts are engaged upon the making of munitions. Government persuasion and the impetus that comes from a loyal desire to do everything possible to keep the boys at the front well supplied with ammunition have resulted in a concentration of effort for that purpose, and hence such normal requirements as those of the peaceful mariner have been somewhat neglected. Despite difficulties, however, there are many vessels at present under construction. In British Columbia it is understood that there are at least twenty-five vessels either in course of construction or projected, and of these three are of steel. The wooden constructions are intended more particularly for lumber export purposes and the steel vessels for general tonnage. Of the wooden vessels the Canada West Coast Navigation Company has contracted for eight, and although none of these is yet completed, four of them have already been chartered. The first, it is expected, will be ready in January next, and from that month forward one each month will be delivered by the yards. Of the steel vessels under construction one is for the Japan trade and the other two for general freight purposes. When the wooden vessels, which have a lumber capacity of 1,500,000 feet each, commence their sailings it will result in important developments in the lumber industry at the coast. The exporters in British Columbia have been working under some real disadvantages, one of the chief being that for every export shipment the chartering had to be done in San Francisco at a cost higher than from points in the United States.

Discussing the situation from the lumbermen's standpoint The Western Lumberman says:

"In the very near future the lumber exporters of this Province will have at their command eight or nine auxiliary power wooden schooners of good carrying capacity—the nucleus of a merchant fleet which is expected to number at least twenty-five vessels within the next twelve or fifteen months. No longer will our lumbermen be entirely at the mercy of foreign charterers, and British Columbia forest products, shipped in British Columbia bottoms, may in time earn the recognition that has heretofore been denied them through being marketed as American lumber. These desirable things have been made possible as a result of the passage of the British Columbia shipping bill, under the terms of which the builders are advanced fifty-five per cent. of the cost of construction, to be paid back with interest in five years, while each vessel operated in accordance with the act will earn an annual subsidy for ten years, not to exceed the sum of five dollars per ton, if same be necessary to bring the annual earnings of the ships up to fifteen per cent. on the total cost.

"The need of a British Columbia fleet had long been recognized and very frequently advocated, but it was early in 1914 before the Government lent an attentive ear to the cry for ships. At that time the lumber manufacturers of the Province were experiencing difficulty in keeping their plants running—a financial stringency had developed and the prairie demand for lumber had fallen off badly. Then came the war, with its blighting effect on the export trade of the Province, not because the products of the Canadian west were not in demand, but because there were no 'bottoms' available to handle it. Tonnage was at a premium. Anything in the shape of a ship was placed under charter at large figures. In America nothing to carry the outshore trade of the Province was obtainable except at such exorbitant prices as to 'eat up' all the profits of the shipper. In other words, the lucky individuals with the boats were making everything there was to make, and the business of British Columbia was becoming stagnant."

Sleepy Time Story About a Wicked Witch In Finland.

CRUEL PLAN FOR REVENGE.

How the Schemes of the Arch Plotter Failed to Work Out as She Had Intended—A Finnish Legend—Many Things of Interest to Small People.

Well, said Uncle Ben to Polly Ann and Little Ned, I suppose you are waiting for a story. This time it will be about FOXES AND SHEEP.

Once upon a time, so long ago that no one even remembers the year, there were no foxes in Iceland, but plenty of sheep—nice woolly sheep living on every farm in the country.

It happened that a man from Iceland was obliged to go to Finland to spend an entire winter there in attending to some business affairs.

Neils was a most attractive young man and every one liked him. Indeed, so very handsome and attractive was he that a wicked old witch fell quite in love with him and wanted to marry him.

Neils, however, had a sweetheart at home and had no mind to give her up for any one, and politely, but firmly, refused to marry the Finnish witch, and as soon as springtime came home he went, in spite of all the entreaties of the witch.

Of course she was very, very ugly and determined to be revenged on Neils.

"Very well, my fine Neils," she said, shaking her fist after the ship that was bearing him away. "I'll see that you will regret all your days the slight you have put upon me!"

So the witch made every effort to think of a plan to punish the insensible Icelander and at last hit upon a most ingenious and wicked one.

She took two foxes and repeated so many charms and incantations over them that they were completely bewitched and ready to obey all her commands.

Taking them down to the seashore she put them on board a ship bound for Iceland.

"Go!" she ordered, "to that land in which cold hearted men live and destroy the first living thing you meet and ever after all others of the same kind!"

Now the cruel witch was sure the first living things the foxes would meet would be the owners of the ship waiting at the landing place to meet it coming in, and she intended that the foxes should destroy all the people on the island, Neils himself being among them.

As it chanced, however, a sheep that had strayed away from the fold had wandered down to the waterside, and when the bewitched foxes sprang ashore the sheep was directly in their path.

So the poor sheep was sacrificed and the foxes remaining multiplied.

As for Neils he married his sweetheart and was very, very happy, but never again did he leave his own country.

Trial Marriages Proper.

Trial marriages are quite the thing in the Far North, according to George H. Wilkins, of London, member of the Canadian Government Arctic expedition, who has reached Chicago laden with films and trophies of all sorts from the little known land about Coronation Gulf.

"The blond Eskimos, as they are called, are very interesting people," he says. "They have no regular marriage ceremony; polygamy is prevalent, and trial marriages everywhere are recognised as legitimate.

"The girls are a bit chunky for our ideals, but by no means without fascination. Once one grows accustomed to their physical type he learns to admire them, particularly for their kindness and loyalty. Most of the girls get married between the ages of 15 and 16. They pick a man they want, and if he does not ask them they ask him to marry. If there is trouble she returns to her parents, or she need not do so.

"The man may take a second wife, or several if he wishes, and all the women live together in harmony."

A VERY small yield considering the size of the bush. It takes about 6½ bushes to yield a pound of ordinary tea—and about 10 bushes to yield a pound of Red Rose Tea, as only the tender shoots and buds are used to produce the distinctive flavor and richness which characterize this high-grade tea.

Handling a German Baron.

Many heroic incidents were crowded into the hours in which Canadians captured and held the village of Courcelette. The commanding officer of a famous French-Canadian unit is now in a London hospital for an operation which will, it is hoped, prove to be a comparatively minor affair. It is a sequel to the strenuous fighting in which he and his battalion have been engaged on the Somme of late. A representative of The Canadian Gazette has obtained from this commanding officer the following narrative: "Among the prisoners we took were two officers—one a baron and the other a count. The baron did not like being sent back with the other prisoners as the Germans were shelling us pretty badly. So I gave him a quarter of an hour to think about it. I asked him if the Germans respected a Red Cross flag, and he said "Certainly." So I gave him one which had been flying over some wounded. He handed it to one of his men who waved it vigorously. But Fritz did not respect the flag, and the little column of wounded and prisoners acting as stretcher-bearers was driven into the sunken road. The baron tried to run away. For a time we lost him, but we found him later. He had been very arrogant to begin with, but toned down later. I might add that the two German doctors we took behaved extremely well in looking after the wounded."

Urges Everyone to Quickly Get on Water Wagon

Drink Glass of Hot Water Before Breakfast to Wash Out Poisons.

To see the tinge of healthy bloom in your face, to see your skin get clearer and clearer, to wake up without a headache, backache, coated tongue or a nasty breathe, in fact to feel your best, day in and day out, just try inside-bathing every morning for one week.

Before breakfast each day, drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it as a harmless means of washing from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach. The action of hot water and limestone phoshpate on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases and acidity and gives one a splendid appetite for breakfast.

A quarter pound of limestone phosphate will cost very little at the drug store but is sufficient to demonstrate that just as soap and hot water cleanses, sweetens and freshens the skin, so hot water and limestone phosphate act on the blood and internal organs. Those who are subject to constipation, billous attacks acid stomach, rheumatic twinges, also those whose skin is sallow and complexion pallid, are assured that one week of inside-bathing will have them both looking and feeling better in every way.

CITY COUNCIL WILL NOT REMIT THAT $300 FINE

The members of the Legal Committee last night, after hearing the request from G. N. Gordon for a remission of a $300 fine imposed on A. Harding, decided to take no action in the matter as the Act distinctly forbids such a proceeding.

Harding was fined for illegal sale of liquor.

The Employers' Liability Corporation wanted to issue a liability policy to the city which would protect them against accidents of any kind such as the Trombley and Carton cases. Their charge would be $5.50 per 100 of population.

City Clerk Armstrong will get full information and a copy of the policy and the chairman will find out how much damage suits and costs have been paid in the last ten years.

Account of $25

The account of Dr. C. H. Amys for medical treatment and fees in connecting with the Trombley case amounting to $25 was ordered paid.

The police department will be asked to notify City Solicitor Gordon the very minute news is received of any accident. This will give him a chance to get at the facts while witnesses' memories are fresh.

The street inspector will report to the Council, giving a list of dangerous places in the city which in his opinion require action on the part of the municipality.

The chairman drew the attention of the members to the number of eaves that are leaking and dropping water on the sidewalk. The police are notifying the owners to repair them at once.

The Dominion Railway Board has issued a statement respecting car shortage in the prairie provinces, urging shippers and transportation companies to co-operate as far as possible.

PREVENTION OF ACCIDENTS ON CITY STREETS

The members of the city Legal Committee held a conference with the officials of the City Engineer's department last night and discussed at considerable length the question of accident prevention on the streets and sidewalks and other public places.

Street Commissioner Evans told of the trouble that was caused by the expansion and contraction of the water service cut offs and he advised that in future the Water Commissioners place them clear of the sidewalk if possible, either in the boulevard or on the inside of the walk.

Several members of the committee thought the idea a good one and Ald. Stratton and Edgar fathered a resolution that in future the Water Commissioners be asked to place their water shut-offs clear of the sidewalk except in the down-town district, where they be placed as close to the, building as possible.

The Ash Question

Before adjournment Ald. Langford asked the City Engineer if he had any places where the winter ashes could be dumped handily by the garbage collectors. The Bonacord Street approach in the west end was mentioned as one point and the City Engineer would also favor filling in more of the Goose pond if the neighbors would not molest the drivers. The city could also use ashes at Townsend Street.

Alderman Langford stated that he brought up the question so as to prevent property owners from getting the ashes when the city could use them.

NEW PREMISES FOR ANDREW BROWN & CO.

A large and upto-to-date garage is to be provided for A. Brown & Co. at the premises now occupied by Messrs. Heard and Northey at 393 Water Street and will be vacated at the first of the new year. The success which Mr. Brown has attained with the agency of the McLaughlin cars has encouraged him to greater effort and at his new stand on Water Street he will be able to display the new models and to the best advantage and carry on a much larger business.

Mr. Brown will continue his real estate agency at the new premises.

FINE OF $200

LIQUOR IN BREMAN HOUSE AT FRANKFORD.

BELLEVILLE, Nov. 23.—License Inspector Arnott of Hastings County and Prince Edward County visited the village of Frankford and found a quantity of liquor in the Breman House which is conducted by Mr. C. P. Rose. The latter was convicted of the offence and fined $200 and costs.

JUDGMENT RESERVED IN WOODBECK-WALLER CASE

At the non-jury sittings of the Supreme Court yesterday the case of Woodbeck against Waller was concluded and Justice Kelly reserved judgment.

There was a good deal of interest taken in the result of this case by the residents of Tweed and Havelock as well as by others who are interested in the legal points involved regarding the garnisheeing of the maker of a chattel mortgage by creditors of the mortgagee.

F. D. Kerr, of Peck, Kerr and McElderry, conducted the case for the defendants while J. A. McIntosh, of Toronto, with Bennet and Goodwill, appeared for the plaintiffs.

INSPECTOR R. W. WARD'S REPORT TO DAIRYMEN

Urges Patrons of Factories to Have the Milk Cooled and Delivered at Certain Temperature.

The Peterborough Dairymen's Association annual meeting opened this afternoon at 2 o'clock in the City Council Chamber with a large attendance of those interested in the different dairy products. Mr. G. A. Gillespie, M.L.A., presided.

Mr. R. W. Ward, dairy instructor and sanitary inspector for Peterborough and Lindsay sections of the province, presented the following comprehensive report before the annual meeting of the Peterborough Dairymen's Association yesterday:

Gentlemen: With your pleasure I will now give a short report of conditions, requirements and work done this season.

This report will not contain as much statistical information as last year on account of the early date of this meeting, and not having returns from the factories of amount of milk, cheese, money, etc.

The season has been very favorable for the producer of milk from a monetary point of view.

The highest prices have been realized for milk, cream, butter and cheese this season in the history of dairying in this country, coupled with a very good quantity of milk on the whole for the season.

The season until the fore part of July was extremely wet and cool, resulting in an abundance of nice succulent green food (grass everywhere), also ideal weather for milk reaching the factories in nice cool condition; also nice weather for making and curing the cheese, resulting in an extremely good yield of cheese of fine quality per 100 lbs. of milk.

In the fore part of July the weather changed to dry, with extreme heat day and night, and very long continued. The conditions and weather that make us think and long for milk producing foods, ice on the farms, and cool curing rooms at the factories. In the last half of the season a lot of my time has been taken up testing milk for butter fat.

Each patron's milk in all the factories that pay by the pooling system has been tested, and a copy of the test set opposite the patron's name left at the factory.

This work no doubt has been done for demonstration and educational purposes, on account of the act passed at the last sitting of the Ontario Legislature, and becomes operative on March 31, 1917.

This Act is called the Dairy Standards Act, and provides that all milk sent to cheese factories shall be paid for by the butter fat test.

These tests that have been made in the individual factory should convince the most skeptical that milk has different values per 100 lbs.

In my work of testing I have found a range in legal milk all the way from 3.8 to 6 per cent. of butter fat.

An average of difference has been from about 3.3 to 4.8 per cent. of fat.

These tests have disclosed a great deal of adulteration of milk in eastern Ontario, another strong argument in favor of the Act and the paying for milk according to quality.

My work of testing in these two sections has revealed some indications of adulteration, but in only two cases sufficient to warrant an investigation.

I was pleased to be informed by the Public Prosecutor for the Dairymen's Association of Eastern Ontario that there had been less prosecutions in these sections than in any of the twenty-odd sections in eastern Ontario.

I have left in each factory for each patron a copy of the Dairy Standards Act, also containing the speeches of the Hon. Jas. S. Duff, the two chief dairy instructors, Mr. Publow and Mr. Herns, and discussions by the committee re this Act, before being made law.

I trust each patron will receive their copy and familiarize themselves with the same, for I believe it is one of the most important steps that has ever been made for the improvement and the placing of the dairying industry on a fair, right and equitable basis for everyone engaged in the business.

I have 37 factories in my sections. This year 26 paid by pooling and 11 by butter fat test.

The world war has produced unusual conditions which in most cases has been very favorable to the producer, but are pressing pretty hard on the consumer and your makers.

I trust due consideration will be given to this question when re-engaging your makers for next season.

To my mind the inspection of cheese has been lax as is usual in all commodities when we have an abnormal demand and price.

But when this war is over and conditions drop back to normal and we have an increased export trade, you will find inspection will be more critical, probably more so than ever, so it behooves each of us to try and maintain the quality of our butter and cheese at the highest standard possible.

The first requisite to accomplish this is clean, cool, sweet cream and milk of first quality, which is the raw material, and the finished product cannot be better than the raw material in whatever line of manufacture you may engage.

I think we all understand how to have milk and cream of finest quality if we make use of present daylight and knowledge. Clean and cool pretty near covers it all.

I would advise a strong effort being made for an earlier delivery of milk to the factories. The earlier the delivery the better condition the milk is likely to be in, which means more money to the patrons and a better and more satisfactory job for the makers.

Please do not forget that the patrons' and makers' interests are mutual: What benefits the one must benefit the other.

The factories are mostly in very good condition, but they all can be improved by careful overhauling, and the use of some lime and paint. There are a few that need very substantial improvements in order to be able to comply with the sanitary law, which I advise being done before opening next season.

Have everything ready to perfection before the first pound of milk reaches your receiving door.

Makers, I think, will be well advised to thoroughly familiarize themselves with the testing of milk and the using of the Babcock test, and if at all possible take at least a short course at one of the dairy schools.

I will again urge the patrons of the different factories to make it obligatory by resolution passed at their annual meetings, that every patron must cool and deliver their milk at a certain temperature.

If you realized as your maker and I do the loss you are sustaining by reason of the few careless ones you would act at once.

The manufacture of cheese is carried on on the co-operative plan and the time has arrived when our best patrons have the right to say that all the milk shall be delivered in right condition and stop this unnecessary waste and loss.

If the few careless ones had to pay the loss caused by their carelessness individually we would soon have no careless patrons.

If all milk was delivered as good as the best it would be quite satisfactory.

The outlook for dairying next season I would consider good. Stock has gone into winter quarters in good condition, and the outlook for your dairy products re prices would seem to be excellent.

Cheese have reached record prices, but when you consider the value of their food content as compared with other foods and prices, they could still go higher.

According to analysis, one pound of cheese has more food value than two pounds of beef steak.

In closing, I thank everyone that has assisted me in carrying out my work, which I have done with the one object in view of improving our great national industry—dairying.

COUNCIL HAS NO POWER TO REMIT THE POLL TAX

Returned Soldiers Not Exempted by the Act.

The City Council has no power to remit the poll tax on returned soldiers who have been discharged from service. This was the opinion of the City Solicitor to the Legal Committee last night, so they will all have to pay up.

Several months ago H. Stinson, a returned soldier, wrote the Council on behalf of himself and other returned men asking that the Council remit the $5 poll tax which had been imposed on all males over 21 years of age who did not pay other taxes.

When the matter came before the committee last night Ald. Stratton said that it would be as well to decide the point and make it apply to all returned soldiers for all time to come.

Ald. Langford thought that they ought to be allowed their poll tax for the first year they were home.

Ald. Stratton at this point asked Ald. Langford if he was going to run this year and the north end alderman replied, "I never think of that," and Ald. Duncan laughingly remarked, "I don't think you do."

A Dangerous Move

Mayor Duffus thought that it was a very dangerous move to make as one man who owned property would have a right to come to the city and ask that all his taxes be remitted, if the Council decided to remit his comrade's poll tax.

City Solicitor Gordon stated that he did not think the Council had power to remit it. This class were not exempt by the Act and the only others that could be dealt with were people sick and out of work with no possible chance of paying their taxes and the Court of Revision had power to deal with the matter.

Mayor Duffus moved that Mr. Stenson be written to stating that the City Council had no power to deal with the matter and that he must apply to the Court of Revision for legal relief.

City Clerk Armstrong pointed out that there was no use Stenson appealing to the Court of Revision as he was working every day.

Ald. Duncan seconded the Mayor's motion and it carried.

Y.M.C.A. WORK FOR SOLDIERS

Letter-writing in a Y. M. C. A. tent at Camp Borden.

Thousands of Canadians every day are anxiously watching for letters from the boys at the front and in training camp. We wonder if it is known where thy are written, but probably it is, because so many of the letters bear the scarlet triangle. A captain recently returned from France states that were it not for this service thousands of letters would never be written because it is impossible for the soldiers to keep paper dry and envelopes from sticking together.

This is only one item in the vast Y.M.C.A. programme that adds cheer to the men's lives and contributes the "spirit" referred to in despatches. Other activities are, arranging concerts in camps; supplying equipment and expert supervision for football, baseball, boxing, etc., providing moving pictures in camp and at the front; conducting lending libraries; supplying entertainment by gramaphones, in many cases to isolated units; distributing tons of magasines; discharging innumerable personal commissions; conducting singsongs, Bible groups and religious services. There are instances where the Y.M.C.A. front line canteen saved many lives by distributing free all provisions in stock because rations were temporarily cut off during the drive.

The Somme Area

There are over thirty Canadian Y. M. C. A. branches in the Somme area, varying in size from a tiny dugout to a large encampment where 2,000 men are accommodated. Wherever our soldiers are in Canada, on train, on transport, in Egland, at the front or in the hospital, the Y.M.C.A. is engaged in making them happier and better men.

Over 500 persons are employed in the service, of whom 55 in England and 24 in France hold the rank of honorary captain. Soon three honorary captains will devote their whole time to accompanying our returning wounded soldiers and by giving special attention to vocational guidance and personal interest that will follow them right to their destination, assist these men to readjust themselves to civilian living again. The trip eastbound will be made when possible on transports with troops.

Such a large and growing undertaking requires considerable money. Special speakers are to present the story in a way that will win the support of our citizens during the campaign to take place.

FREIGHT MEN LOSE PENSIONS

BY REASON OF THE RECENT WALKOUT.

MONTREAL, Nov. 23. — Such of the freight handlers as are being reinstated by the C. P. R. after the recent "walkout" at Toronto must put up with the loss of their pensions, according to the statutory rules under which the C. P. R. pension fund is governed. General Superintendent Purvis, who has been arranging the terms of settlement with Mayor Church, made it clear that those taken back into such vacancies as remained could only come back unconditionally, and though generous terms will no doubt be made by the company, the men have lost their pensions through their precipitate action. An interesting feature of the recent negotiations is that the C. P. R. offered to accept the arbitration of any editor of a Toronto paper, but the men refused even this tempting offer and went on strike.

St. Catharines City Council will arrange for a series of lectures and demonstration for housewives who are unable to bake bread.

MUCH EVIDENCE IN THIS ACTION

INVOICES AND CORRESPONDENCE ARE PRODUCED.

The damage suit of the Canadian Hood Haggie Company against the Dominion Supply Company of Kingston is occupying the attention of Mr. Justice Kelly in the Supreme Court today. A great mass of invoices and correspondence is before the court to bear out the plaintiff's statement of claim, and on nearly every item there is some legal point involved.

The Judge gave counsel on both sides a half an hour extra for lunch with the hope of coming to a settlement of the material points involved and said he would deal with the legal points later.

J. A. McIntosh, when court reopened, stated that some progress had been made, and he re-called Mr. Bruce Fowler to the witness box.

Norman Hawkin, lumberman, of Parry Sound, was nominated by the Liberals of Parry Sound as Federal candidate, at a convention at Emsdale.

Cured His RUPTURE

I was badly ruptured while lifting a trunk several years ago. Doctors said my only hope of cure was an operation. Trusses did me no good. Finally I got hold of something that quickly and completely cured me. Years have passed and the rupture has never returned, although I am doing hard work as a carpenter. There was no operation, no lost time, no trouble. I have nothing to sell, but will give full information about how you may find a complete cure without operation, if you write to me, Eugene M. Pullen, Carpenter, 545C Marcellus Avenue, Manasquan, N. J. Better cut out this notice and show it to any others who are ruptured—you may save a life or at least stop the misery of rupture and the worry and danger of an operation.

CONSTRUCTION OF CANAL TO BE UNDERTAKEN

HYDRO-ELECTRIC PROJECT WILL COST $9,000,000.

200,000 HORSEPOWER.

TORONTO, Nov. 23.—The Hydro-electric Commission of Ontario has decided to undertake forthwith the construction of the projected canal between the Chippewa Creek and Queenston for the supply of 200,000 horse-power of additional electrical energy for the people's system. The decision was reached at an important meeting of the Commission yesterday and the work will proceed as soon as the necessary Provincial Order in Council is passed.

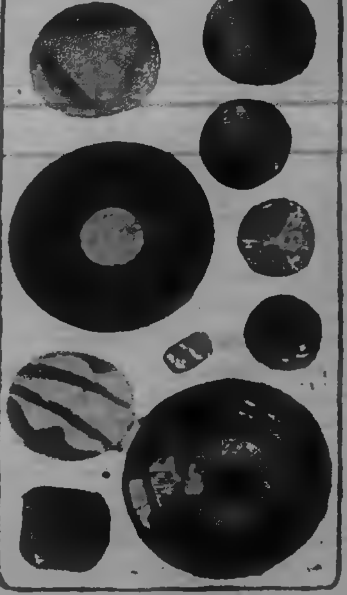
The enterprise is a great one and its inauguration will mark another milestone in the successful history of the project undertaken on behalf of the public by the Commission headed by Sir Adam Beck.

It is estimated that the electrical equipment will cost between $800,000 and $900,000, as it will call for general excavation machinery of the heaviest type, while the entire construction of the canal, which will be some twelve miles in length, will reach $9,000,000. Estimates demonstrate, however, that considerably more than the entire cost of equipment and construction will be saved to the Hydro-electric enterprise by undertaking the construction itself, not including the subsequent possession by the municipalities of the valuable construction equipment.

WHO'S GOT THE BUTTON?

A Few of What Fastens Smart New Garments.

Buttons are not at all left in the lurch because of the amount of hand work used. In fact, they serve to accentuate the special feature of the waist, coat or suit they adorn. Buttons increase the importance of pockets, belts and capes and give themselves a chance to assume extraordinary shapes and sizes.



A LA MODE.

Because of the vogue for dark suits with white hat, shoes or gaiters, white ivory buttons are allowed. Sometimes they are ringed with black or a fashionable color, sometimes they have a pearl center, but all of them are light in weight, and this accounts for at least part of their popularity. They are also used on dark taffeta dresses.

Those used on coats and suits are more conservative, mushroom and saucer shapes being the most popular. Balls, squares and cubes are also employed, as well as acorns.

Pearl buttons come in all sizes and shapes, from the large ball buttons appropriate for novelty skirts to the tiny ones for shirt waists. Heavy corded materials make use of ribbed buttons.

Checked suits may be thanked for the plaid and checked buttons, as well as the black and white effects in combinations with white rims.

White cotton crochet buttons, especially the tiny ones for blouses, are still suitable.

Among the new colors shown is a French gray button to match the shade now so popular in dresses. A ring of black is often used to enhance its beauty.

HORSE MARKET.

TORONTO, Nov. 22. — While the Toronto horse trade is still quiet, there is additional activity in buying for war purposes at present by reason of the fact that the French inspectors are operating daily at the Repository this week. The British Government buyers, on the other hand, have planned to stop buying for the present at least, after this Thursday's inspection at the Union Yards. Since the latter part of September the British secured between 700 and 800 horses at the Union Yards horse exchange alone. The French are getting fairly good results at the Repository. The carlot trade with the Canadian West is assuming more activity, as there were several parties making purchases in the vicinity of Toronto last week. For local trade, a few expressers and wagon horses are being picked up at about $175 for the former and $150 to $160 for the latter.

Quebec is Prospering.

The recent tour of the Province of Quebec by a representative delegation of business men from Ontario reveals the fact that Quebec, probably more than any other portion of the Dominion, is reaping a marvellous measure of prosperity and industrial advantage through the present war period. Directly through contracts for munitions of war, and indirectly through the increased demands for such products as pulpwood and paper, lumber, cotton, and woollen goods and asbestos, Quebec has been immensely enriched. The labor problem, which has been so acute in other parts of the country, does not apply to any great extent in this Province; and with the exception of the asbestos miners in Thetford there have been no strikes or other adverse conditions to interfere with the progress of industry.

The only cloud in the sky of commercial Quebec is the high cost of foodstuffs, which has made comfortable living amongst the industrial classes, especially in Montreal and the other larger centres of the Province, a serious and difficult problem. But with the increased trade which has come to Quebec, much of it through the ordinary commercial channels as well as from the war, the general basis of wages and the standard of living also have tended to advance to higher levels.

Enlistment Creeps Up.

Enlistments for the first half of October totaled 3,160. This is an increase of 124 over the preceding fortnight. Recruiting continues at the rate of about 6,000 per month, but it is hoped that with the advent of winter the release of a considerable number of men now engaged in agricultural or other outside work will again stimulate enlistment. Total enlistments since the outbreak of war are now placed at 368,863.

To gauge the present effective fighting force there must of course be deducted from this figure probably at least twenty per cent. for wastage at the front, desertions, and rejections for physical unfitness.

By military districts the recruiting figures for the period from October 1st to 15th are as follows: No. 1 (London), 314; No. 2 (Toronto), 447; No. 3 (Kingston), 256; No. 4 (Montreal), 672; No. 5 (Quebec), 120; No. 6 (Maritime Provinces), 336; No. 10 (Manitoba and Saskatchewan), 425; No. 11 (British Columbia), 286; No. 13 (Alberta), 286.

AGAINST MANUFACTURE OF OLEOMARGARINE

IX

Dairymen Pass Resolution Asking the Government to Keep Restrictions on the Product.

At the meeting of the dairymen of Peterborough, held yesterday, Mr. H. Glendenning, of Manilla, representative of the Department of Agriculture for this district, started his address by having a resolution passed asking the Dominion Government to refuse to raise the restrictions which prevented the manufacture and importation of oleomargarine into this country. He pointed out that at present a great pressure was being brought to bear on the Cabinet to raise the embargo owing to the high cost of living. It was up to the dairymen to protect their own interests.

He then gave the farmers a splendid address on the necessity of more care in feeding the cows. Not so much the quantity fed, but what is fed them. Plenty of attention had been given to hay, grain, roots, bran etc., but not a word was said about pastures. It was a mistake to plow up the old pastures. In England the pastures were very much better than they were in Canada and the reason was that they had remained in their natural stage for hundreds of years. Timothy grass made the poorest pasture, both red and white clover were good as they contained a very large portion of protein which is very essential for dairy purposes.

Alfalfa was the most successful with the up-to-date farmer who has careful to see that he got the proper kind of seed. The so-called northern grown alfalfa seed was not suitable for Ontario seeding and he advised the Ontario variegated as the best seed to plant here. He was quite certain that alfalfa was generally more successfully grown than sweet clover although there were lands that would grow a better crop of sweet clover than alfalfa. There was no difficulty in getting the cattle to eat it; it was just a question of getting them used to it. Blue grass makes the best seed for a permanent pasture.

Here is the seed which Mr. Glendenning used on a pasture land with good results: 4 lbs. red top, 2 lbs. timothy, 4 lbs. orchard grass, 2 lb. alsike, 1lb. white clover, 4 lbs. Kentucky blue grass.

T. Mann and S. Armstrong were the sponsors for a motion expressing regret at the death of the Minister of Agriculture, Hon. J. S. Duff.

This finished the business before the association.

Ontario Flags in the Abbey.

A battalion of Canadian infantry a few days ago marched from Waterloo Station to Westminster Abbey, where the colors of the Ontario regiment were deposited in the care of the dean and chapter. The ceremony took place immediately after the morning service.

A procession, formed of the choir, the dean (Bishop Ryle), the Rev. L. H. Nixon (precentor), the Rev. J. H. T. Perkins (minor canon), and Lieuts. Hutchison and Jacobi bearing the colors, advanced to the chancel steps, accompanied by Lieut.-Colonel Sam Sharpe, Major Smith, Major Cooke, Major Every, and Capt. Wellesley, McConnell. The hymn, "O God, Our Help in Ages Past," was sung and the flags were then received by the dean and laid on the altar, to be afterwards grouped with other flags round the Wolfe monument.

The dean, addressing the men, of whom there were many hundreds present, said: "You have deposited in our keeping the flag of your own and the country's honor, and in your breasts, sons of the great Dominion, is deposited a noble share in the honorable task of preserving and vindicating the liberty of the great Empire of Britain and its dominions. I am speaking to-day in the Abbey on the very spot where five years ago your Sovereign was crowned amid the plaudits of his loyal people. Here he was seated in the Coronation chair; here he received into his hands the Orb of Empire surmounted by the Cross, fit token of a vast Christian Empire.

"This, then, is the very heart of that great Empire for which you are called and privileged to bear arms. God preserve you in the coming hours of danger; God give you victory in the day of battle, and send you back whole and sound, crowned with success, to claim from us in this sacred place the colors you have entrusted to our keeping. As they bear witness of you here, so may you bear witness for them, in field and trench, in life and death, with honor undimmed, with the illustrious courage of true British soldiers having duty as your watchword and in your hearts true fear of God."

After prayers the National Anthem was sung.—London Times.

HOCKEY LEAGUE FOR 3RD MILITARY DISTRICT

Intention is to Have Peterboro, Belleville, Bowmanville and Lindsay Represented.

KINGSTON, Nov. 23. —The 3rd Military District is to have a lively hockey league this winter. Major R. D. Sutheland of the 253rd (Kiltie) Battalion is back of the scheme, and the arrangements are well under way. Besides Kingston it is the intention to have Ottawa, Belleville, Renfrew, Peterborough, Bowmanville and Lindsay enter teams, and possibly other places. The team at Renfrew is already organized and has a number of fast players.

Cobourg will enter a team in the intermediate series of the O. H. A. this season. There will also be a town league, giving them a good opportunity of developing their skill for future O.H.A. games. The officers elected are: Honorary presidents, T. W. Hargraft, J. M. McColl, ex-M.P. C. A. Manson, M.P., Sam Clarke, M.L.A.; hon. vice-president, Dr. Watson; president, Mr. La Londe; vice-president, Charles Jones; secretary-treasurer, Hugh R. Butler; manager, T. McIntosh; executive committee, K. Kayne, A. Plunkett, E. Drumm, J. Surague, O. F. Allison, James Robinson.

LINDSAY CLAIMS CUP

LINDSAY, Nov. 23. — An unsatisfactory condition of affairs has developed in connection with the newly organized Intercollegiate Institute Football Union comprising Lindsay, Peterborough and Belleville.

The gridiron gladiators of the Lindsay school succeeded in defeating the Peterborough team in the round recently played. They were then drawn against Belleville, but the latter defaulted on short notice. Lindsay is, therefore, entitled to the G. N. Gordon cup, but it is understood that the union executive declines to turn the trophy over to the winners, owing to the failure of Lindsay and Belleville to play their round.

The Lindsay players have shelved their football armor for the season, but are determined to repeat their successes when the gridirons are chalked out next season.

CURLERS AT MILLBROOK

A. A. Smith is Elected President of the Club.

An enthusiastic meeting of the curlers is reported by the Millbrook Reporter in the office of Mr. A. A. Smith. Everything points to another successful season.

Mr. A. A. Smith was in the chair and Mr. C. Needler gave an encouraging report of the club's finances.

The following officers were re-elected with a few changes on the executive committee:—

President, A. A. Smith.

Vice-president, W. T. Wood.

Secretary-treasurer, C. Needler.

Executive committee, John Allen, Sr., H. B. Allen, G. W. Sayles, Geo. Hetherington, W. G. Hetherington, L. C. Russell and R. H. Edmunds.

Prizes will be offered by the club for the successful rink in the inter-rink games, and also for the 13-point competition. Mr. R. H. Edmunds intimated at the meeting that he intends donating a prize for a 13-point fixture to be competed for by the first and second stoneman only.

Mr. R. H. Edmunds was again appointed to look after the rink.

INTERMEDIATES FOR PORT HOPE

NO JUNIOR TEAM FOR THE LAKE SHORE TOWN.

PORT HOPE, Nov. 23.—Port Hope will be represented this year in the intermediate series of the O.H.A. This was decided at a largely attended meeting. Those present were of the opinion that there was more material available for an intermediate team than for a junior. The officers are: President, H. A. Scultorp; vice-president, H. Trew; secretary-treasurer, B. Lowe; manager, R. Jex.

Upset Kaiser's Record.

The Kaiser and the Crown Prince have always been more or less at daggers drawn, and an amusing story of the Crown Prince's "cheek" on one occasion is told in London Tit-Bits. They were out shooting with a party. At the end of the day it was announced that, as usual, the Kaiser had "beaten all records."

The deer he had "shot" were laid before him on the ground in a long line. The photographers began to get busy. "Sixty-four head, your Majesty," announced the head keeper dutifully in the meanwhile.

The Kaiser made no comment or contradiction, but suddenly the Crown Prince chimed in scornfully, "Sixty-four head? That's rather funny, considering you had only sixty cartridges, isn't it, father?"

"Father" became black with fury, but the mischief had been done; a good many of the party had overheard the remark, as the Crown Prince had meant they should.

Jap Marmons Defy Sun.

Under a scorching sun that at times drove the mercury up to 130 degrees Fahrenheit, 2,000 soldiers of the Japanese army, stationed in Formosa and the Pescadores, made a twelve-day march in Formosa between July 1 and July 12. Only three cases of sunstroke are reported. The first nine days were spent in marching, and the troops actually covered more than 100 miles. The last three days were spent in manoeuvres.

With a view to finding the best clothing to protect soldiers from the heat, the soldiers were allowed to wear any costume they pleased. Some wore helmets, some straw hats; some wore an ordinary uniform with a hole on either side, or a knitted undershirt, or a thin kimono; some wore their heavy boots; some tabi. Besides their clothing, the best food and drink for soldiers under these conditions were also studied.

Socialists Want Peace.

The Berlin Vorwaerts, commenting on the recent interview given by Field Marshal von Hindenburg, in which he discussed many phases of the war, says, according to a Berlin despatch forwarded by Amsterdam: "He advises France to be reasonable and not to act as a further obstacle to peace. This advice will have a better chance of being heard abroad if we show ourselves reasonable, too. If we are going to drag this war on indefinitely, then the whole of Europe will bleed to death and America and the colored races would be our heirs. But we want Europe to live; not Germany only, but all the nations. We want France to live. We see her now bleeding white, but we have never hated her. We want peace also for England and Russia, peace for the whole blood-stained world."

Canada's Musical Output.

An attempt to catalogue Canada's contribution to the musical world was made recently in the Canadian Courier, which unearthed the following list:

British Columbia gave the world Mme. Edvina; Calgary sent out Kathleen Parlow; Portage La Prairie gave origin to Edith Miller, mezzo-soprano, who is now with the Chicago Opera Company, and Winnipeg was the first musical arena for Redfern Hollinshead, the lyric tenor, who has [illegible] the main part of his musical career in Toronto; Guelph, Ont., gave us Edward Johnson, the noted operatic tenor.

Toronto produced Ernest Seitz, gifted pupil of Lhevinne and formerly of Vogt; Elizabeth Campbell, contralto, born in some little town like Whitby and afterward with the Century Opera Company in New York; Bertha Crawford, now in England, and half a dozen others. Ottawa turned out Diane Lavoie-Herz, pianist and pupil of Scriabine; Eva Gauthier, popular soprano and protegee of Sir Wilfrid Laurier. Montreal gave Edmond Burke, operatic baritone and colleague of Melba; Donalda, light soprano and musical ward of Lord Strathcona—with many more. Chambly, P. Q., furnished the immortal Albani. Some small town in Nova Scotia produced Evelyn Starr, violinist.

Africa has nearly 700 languages or dialects.

Homemade Buttermilk.

Beat sour milk very rapidly for about two minutes, and a superior kind of buttermilk is produced. This is well worth knowing, as much of the buttermilk produced in creameries is unfit to drink and that made from tablets requires a certain temperature which is not always easy to command.

BIG GAME IN BRITISH COLUMBIA

(1) A herd of caribou.
(2) Mountain goat near Banff
(3) Fine black bear.

OWING to its immense areas of forest and mountain, British Columbia has remained a stronghold for the wilder forms of big game, which at one time were fairly numerous also in Wyoming and Montana, but which have practically disappeared in the United States, owing to the advance of settlement and insufficient game protection. The heavy snowfall which makes the ten thousand foot-high peaks inaccessible in winter is the natural refuge of the grizzly bear, the mountain sheep and the mountain goat—pelts and heads of which are three of the most prized trophies of the big game hunter, while in the untrodden forests of the Kootenays and the Cassiar district the great antlered moose—the last surviving of the prehistoric giants—ranges undisturbed except for the bolder spirits who with pack horse and canoe and guide come upon him unawares.

The moose of British Columbia are claimed as being the largest in North America. They are especially numerous in the northern interior of the province; they have a particular liking for the banks of the Findlay and [illegible] rivers. Excellent hunting can be had in the vicinity of Atlin, and also of Cassiar, north east of Quesnel Lake. As the moose was protected in the Kootenay district for a time, the animal is again becoming numerous there. Hunting the moose is one of the most attractive of sports, and happy is the hunter who succeeds in shooting one of these antlered monarchs of the forest.

Not less fascinating than the moose is the caribou, of which there are two varieties, the woodland and the barren ground caribou. The caribou attains to its greatest size at Cassiar. Not long ago an entry from this place won the gold medal at an exhibition in Vienna. Glacier, Athalmer (on the Kootenay Central Railway), Revelstoke, and Cranbrook are good points from which to start in search of caribou. Hunting districts in Lillooet can be reached from Ashcroft and Lytton.

Columbian or coast deer are found all along the west coast of British Columbia as far east as the Cascade Range and all through the Crows Nest Pass. British Columbia has an increasing number of mule deer. A deer of this variety also got a gold medal prize at the Vienna exhibition. Those deer are found over the whole of the interior of the province, but there are some spots which are more congenial to them than others; they are most plentiful in the Lillooet district. White tailed deer abound in East Kootenay.

The bighorn or rocky mountain sheep makes its home in the fastnesses of the Canadian Pacific Rocky Mountains. A bighorn is counted upon as one of the most valued prizes a hunter can obtain, for it is very difficult to get within shooting range. The bighorn is of a suspicious, timid nature, and can travel as far over the mountain peaks in a few minutes as a hunter can go in two hours. Epicures say that the flesh of the bighorn is the most delicious of the world's game. Its massive horns make a beautiful ornament. The [illegible] ground for hunting the bighorn is that portion of the Lillooet district roughly described as being north and south of the bridge at Chilcoten River and east and west of the Fraser River at Chilcoe Lake. The town of Lillooet is reached by stage from Lytton, Clinton or Ashcroft. Michel and Golden are good points from which to reach the Kootenay sheep country. The Cassiar country is easy of access.

Amongst the giant peaks of the Rockies we find the home of the Rocky Mountain goat. He is clad in a coat of soft fluffy white, is fast and fearless in his motions, and can travel fleetly over precipices where man could not attempt to climb. As a fighter the goat is wonderfully brave and can use his sharp horns to great advantage for himself and destruction for the dog that faces him.

The sportsman visitor to British Columbia will find a delightful climate and general environs which will appeal favourably to him. Guides can be easily procured.

The Canadian Pacific Railway gives a splendid service to the most convenient starting and outfitting points. The game is protected by excellent laws, and the guides, who are expert packers, are themselves keen sportsmen and familiar with the haunts of the animals they help to hunt.

In addition to the game already mentioned, the hunter in British Columbia may chance to have a shot at panther, elk, wildcat, antelope or wolf.

MELON LORE.

How to Select a Good One Despite Its Thick Skin.

SWEET AND SOUR PICKLES.

The Season Is on, and Here Are Hints to Help You Enjoy and Devour This One Big Recompense For Sizzling Days—Each One of the Recipes Won a Prize For Excellency.

The proof of a good melon lies in the plugging—at least the melon dealers tell you so. But even if the plug shows a gorgeous, scarlet meat, dripping with sweet juice, have a care of it if the flesh inclosing the seeds is mealy and stringy and the well colored fruit lacks crispness. Pale flesh, slightly slimy to the touch, shows that either the melon was picked too green or from a dead vine; hence it is, in southern phrase, "sickly."

Small clear blisters upon many of the seeds denotes over ripeness, while melons heated in transit, though not to the point of rotting, have a peculiar dead odor that once experienced can never be forgotten. Those that have been stored too long in a cellar take on a slightly earthly taint, and those having been left too long in the sunshine develop an acrid odor, with much juice at the expense of flesh.

Choose, then, the melon whose rind is without spot or blemish, first testing it by scraping up a bit of green skin with the finger nail. If the skin comes up easily, bringing a little of the rind with it, the chances are that the melon is fresh. Skin that slips, leaving a bare surface, indicates a poor melon.

To use for pickle, either sweet or sour, spiced relish or citron freshen them thus: Drain and wash thoroughly, scald for a minute in boiling water and take out and soak in cold water until the next day. Then drain off the water, add fresh and repeat each morning until there is no trace of salt (usually two or three days). Now wash again in cold water, rubbing the strips well between the hands, and discard any that appear soft.

For sour pickle all that is needed further is to scald lightly in weak vinegar, drain and pack in sterilized jars with layers of mixed spices to taste. Cover well with good cider vinegar, drop in two or three lumps of sugar that have been well rubbed on a lemon rind, fasten the jars and allow the pickle to stand for a week.

For sweet pickled rind (this is delicious) weigh the soaked rind and to five pounds of it allow three pounds of sugar and three pints of vinegar. Mix sugar and vinegar, bring to a boil, skim well and add a spice bag containing nutmeg, stick cinnamon, mace and whole cloves. Cook for three or four minutes and pour boiling hot over the rind that has been packed in jars. Next day drain off the sirup, boil up again with the spice bag and again pour over the rinds. Repeat twice; then put the whole mass, rind and all, into a preserving bottle. Allow it to boil for three minutes, add the strained juice of four lemons and cook for three minutes longer. Seal boiling hot in fruit jars, sealing them airtight, and store in a dry, cool closet.

Ironing Hints.

Lay in the sunlight articles that have been scorched in ironing and the scorch will disappear.

Small tucks will iron smoother and look better if ironed on the wrong side.

When laundering embroidered pieces iron smooth on right side and then iron on the wrong side over a thick pad.

To iron napkins iron perfectly dry before folding. Iron only on one side and with the selvage to preserve the polish and bring out the pattern.

THE GERMAN PRESS.

How the Teutons Whistle to Keep Up Their Courage.

Germany's relations with Russia continue to be discussed in the German Press. Herr Bassermann's organ, the Badische Neueste Nachrichten, asserts that Herr von Bethmann-Hollweg's references to Russia in the Reichstag speech may well be regarded as the first harbinger of a new orientation of German-Russian policy, and really ought not to meet with an unfriendly reception from the Left in Germany. The Chancellor, naturally did not speak of the great issue separating Germany and Russia, the Dardanelles question, which must be handled if further progress is to be made on the part of the Chancellor's declarations in the Reichstag. Many German politicians erroneously maintained that it was a question of life or death. With skilful treatment it might become a question of diplomatic understanding which would keep for Turkey her property and sovereign rights in Constantinople and assure for Russia free passage through the Straits. Russia suggested in 1908 summoning a European conference for revising the Berlin Treaty concerning the Straits. The Central Powers then opposed to this desire an obstinate resistance which, doubtless, promoted England's encircling policy. It might be thought that Germany and her Allies in the stronger position in which they find themselves to-day towards Russia could resume without danger the policy abandoned in 1908.

The Vorwarts, commenting on this, says these utterances deserve attention because they reflect the views of certain very influential circles. It is noteworthy that in the passages quoted the mistake committed in 1908 is avowed, but it is false to regard it now as isolated and to pluck it out from the whole context of German Eastern policy, apart from which the Straits question cannot be subjected to revision. But then the question goes far beyond the limits appointed it in the Bassermann organ.

Great efforts are now being made in the German Press to comfort the people with the thought that the harvest in Germany, in spite of the bad weather, has been better than it was last year. Articles entitled "Harvest Thanksgiving," which avoiding details, lay stress on the idea that Germany can now herself satisfy her requirements.

Our breast swells with pride (says the Kreuz Zeitung) when we see today that all the starvation devices of the enemy were a miserable failure. How many of us expected to see the devil of hunger already stalking through the land. But now our bitterest anxiety is again removed for a year.

The latest Memorandum on the economic situation presented to the Reichstag, covering the period from the beginning of March to the middle of September, states that, in spite of the increased severity of the British blockade, "the critical moment has been happily overcome."

But the memorandum adds that, "in spite of this satisfactory result, it would be a mistake to talk about a record harvest," and to expect, therefore, a less restricted distribution of food. It considers, however, that, if the limitations are continued, there will certainly be not only enough food for the present agricultural year, but the prospect of something left over for reserve.

Use Huguenot Caves.

Caves dug by the Huguenots during the religious wars in France two centuries ago are helping the Germans maintain a strong resistance to the French armies in the Province of Santerre, the southern extremity of the Anglo-French offensive.

When allied artillery, at the beginning of the Somme assault, demonstrated the pregnability of all kinds of defensive fortifications on the surface of the earth, the Germans began placing their reliance on caves, cellars, and underground works.

In the Province of Santerre the Huguenots had constructed a great number of caves, both for refuge and for the concealment of money and valuables. Most of these were dug deeply into solid rock and others were built up with masonry that has stood the wear of centuries. The Germans have stationed machine gun squads in these positions.

GARMENTS LONG AND STRAIGHT

RATHER THAN FRILLY AND VOLUMINOUS, ADVANCED SPRING STYLES.

CHICAGO, Nov. 21—Huge shirred and pleated pockets, long trails of silken fringe, loose stitching, variegated embroidery and large buttons form some of the trimmings which were shown for advance spring styles at the fifteenth annual convention of the National Cloak, Suit and Skirt manufacturers. One of the startling suits was a sports garment of green wool jersey trimmed in deep cream jersey. Another suit of brown taffeta, the color of young spring saplings, was made to suggest an opening leaf, with lapels, coat-skirt and cuffs finished in points. Color combinations that ranged from magenta trimmed in orange to plaids of the most vivid yellows and greens made the gowns as they were worn by the pretty models suggest an oriental bazaar.

Long and Straight, Not Frilly

"The cut of the garments is to be long and straight, rather than frilly and voluminous as during this season," declared M. A. Black, chairman of the style committee. "In spite of the difficulty in getting the dyes, the colors seem more suggestive of spring than ever before. Linings of the cloaks are to be brighter than the cloaks themselves. The skirts are to be lengthened to the ankle, and the trimmings will be placed to emphasise the lines of the garments."

A Sleepy Time Story About a Very Queer Happening.

LITTLE PEOPLE AT THE MILL

Wonderful Experience of a Miller With the Good Little People From the Forest—How They Worked For Him With Very Little Pay—The Yachtsman.

Well, children, I am going to tell you a fine story tonight, said Uncle Ben to Polly Ann and Little Ned. It is a

BELGIAN LEGEND.

Kurt was a miller and owned his own fine mill, which went merrily click-clack, click-clack, all day long.

One evening Kurt was at supper when he suddenly remembered that he had promised to meet a neighbor, Hansa, the blacksmith, at that very hour.

Up he rose at once, for Kurt was a man of his word, and left his supper unfinished—a slice or two of meat, half a loaf of bread and a little cider in the tin mug.

When Kurt reached his home in the mill he was so tired and sleepy that he went straight off to bed.

When he rose in the morning he was surprised to find that the bread, the meat and the cider had all disappeared.

Still stranger, however, was it that all the grain that Kurt had intended pouring into the grain sacks was already neatly packed away.

Of course Kurt knew that it must be the elves who had been so obliging.

The next night Kurt was careful to set out on the table meat, bread and cider, as well as the bags which were to be filled again with the grain.

Next morning the food was gone, and again were the sacks neatly filled.

Thus it went on for a long time.

One night Kurt thought to himself, "I think I'll watch this evening and get a glimpse of the Little People."

So that very evening Kurt hid himself in one of the big corn bins after placing the meat and bread on the table.

As the clock struck 12 he peered out and saw one little fellow dressed in brown, like the color of the forest leaves in autumn, with red pointed shoes and a red cap, ornamented with a beautiful silk tassel, come into the room.

Then a second came, and a third, and then another and another, until the room seemed filled with them.

Promptly they began to work, and all would have been well for Kurt if it had not happened that the grain when being poured into the bags made so much dust that some of it flew into Kurt's nostrils, and before he could help himself it made him sneeze.

Immediately every elf stopped working, for they were very angry at being spied upon. Then they began to stamp about, crying aloud:

Keep your sup and keep your bite,
Come we here no more at night.
Prying Kurt, your luck is o'er;
Elves will work for Kurt no more.

And never again did Kurt have any help from the little people, for they never came back to the mill.

And—mixed with water—mud

A highland weapon, broad and bright.

THE "HUMAN MIRACLE."

Laughter a Blessing No Bird, Beast, Fish or Reptile Possesses.

In the London Opinion the sage James Douglas, speculating on that pleasurable emotion which is accompanied by face cracking movements of the muscles of the physiognomy and a brightness of the eyes and is known as laughter, describes the phenomenon as "the human miracle" and says:

"No bird or beast or fish or reptile can laugh. You can teach an ape to do almost anything, but you cannot teach him to laugh. The awful solemnity of animals is the one really intolerable thing on this earth. They are cut off from the abiding miracle of humor.

"A wise man has warned us to interrogate ourselves when we laugh. I totally and entirely repudiate that diabolical doctrine. Never interrogate yourself when you laugh. You should never look a laugh in the mouth.

"There are many kinds of laughter, but they are all good. Interrogate yourself if you like when you weep. But if you value the well being of your soul never interrogate yourself when you laugh. Laughter is a good thing in itself and an end by itself. The quality of laughter, like the quality of mercy, ought never to be strained. Laugh before you look."

ASK PETERBORO TO PAY PART OF THE EXPENSE

Davis Case Cost the Victoria County About $400.

The Victoria County Council in session at Lindsay has had a discussion of the Davis manslaughter case which ended in a resolution being passed expressing disapproval of the Police Magistrate in having the case tried in Victoria County when, according to the opinion of the Council, it should have been tried in Peterborough. The clerk was instructed to communicate with the Peterborough County Council asking that Peterborough pay a portion of the cost of the case, which amounted to about $400.

The Lindsay warder, in reporting th discussion by the councillors, has the following:—

Reeves McLean and Junkin thought it was an unfortunate affair that the County of Victoria officials interfered in the matter in the first instance.

Reeve Howkins said there was some mistake on the part of the officials that did not send Mrs. Davis to Peterborough in time.

Reeve McLean suggested sending down a deputation to Peterborough County Council and endeavor to get a remittance of costs.

Reeve Junkin: It was common ground and Peterborough should bear its share of the expense.

Reeve Hotherington: If there has been a mistake made we had better abide by it as it is impossible to compel Peterborough to pay the costs.

Reeve Morrison moved, seconded by Reeve Jenkins, that the clerk ask for the full costs of the Davis case incurred on the county.

Reeve Tiers said it was better to let the case drop.

Reeve McLean: We should not let this thing pass and should express our opinion on how the police magistrate is doing his work.

Warden Robertson: It would be nonsense to look for the costs from Peterborough.

Moved by Reeve Brock, seconded by Reeve Thomas, that the Council express regret that the case was not tried in the County of Peterborough and we disprove of the action of the police magistrate in having the case tried in Lindsay under his control, the cost of which was about $350. Had the magistrate not taken up the case there would not have been any assizes held and thus save this cost on the county.

SIR HERBERT AMES LIKES THE VOLUNTARY METHOD FOR THE PATRIOTIC FUND

Has Always Placed Great Faith in Local Branch

Sir Herbert Ames, originator of the Canadian Patriotic Fund, paid a visit to the local committee last night and discussed with them the requirements of the fund for 1917.

He had addressed the Council Councils of Victoria and Haliburton in Lindsay yesterday, in which it was urged that the county contribute $60,000 towards the fund for the coming year. It was pointed out that there were 60,000 families dependant on the funds of the society. It required over a million dollars a month to make up the obligations that had been undertaken.

Last night Sir Herbert arrived from Lindsay on the Port McNichol train and after dining went to the patriotic office, where he was met by Judge Huycke, Mayor Duffus, ex-Mayor Buller, J. A. Aylmer, F. D Kerr and other members of the local committee. The visitor expressed great interest in the plans of the Peterborough committee to raise $60,000 in the city and $40,000 in the county by a scheme of general taxation. He had always placed great faith in the work of the Peterborough branch but he still impressed upon them the necessity for voluntary subscriptions. There were people who could not be reached by the taxation method that would feel hurt if they did not have a chance to pay their mite to the fund.

Peterborough Highly Regarded

When Mr. Aylmer referred to the necessity for immediate action, so as to have Peterborough's credit good at Ottawa. Sir Herbert told the committee to proceed in the usual way and when their credit got bad he would promptly advise them. Sir Herbert has a high opinion of Peterborough.

It will require fifteen million dollars for the fund in 1917 and of this Ontario is expected to contribute six million. The Ontario Government has given one million, leaving five million to be raised by subscription.

Sir Herbert left on the G.T.R. train at 9 o'clock last evening for Ottawa.

DAIRYMEN PROTEST.

THE DAIRYMEN of this district, at their meeting the other day, unanimously adopted a resolution asking the Government at Ottawa to maintain the embargo on oleomarkarine and margarine, and to continue the prohibition of its importation and of its manufacture in this country.

A prominent commercial concern, in a recent manifesto, stated that the relief in sight for the high cost of living is economy and the use of substitutes. Oleomargarine and margarine have long been recognised as desirable substitutes for butter. In the United States these articles are manufactured extensively at the packing houses under strict governmental supervision, and when offered for sale must be labeled, so that it is next to impossible for a customer to have the substitute palmed off on him for the real article. Like every other law, this is frequently broken, but the penalties for infraction are heavy.

It was to encourage the dairymen that the Canadian Government decided to prohibit the manufactrue or importation of the substitute for butter. In ordinary years there was no complaint on the part of the consumer. Now times are changed and butter has become a luxury beyond the means of all below the fairly prosperous class it is surely not unreasonable to ask the producers to surrender a portion of the special privileges they have enjoyed for years. Sixty cent butter is in sight, and this will place it above the purchasing power of another section of the consumers.

Oleomargarine and margarine, made according to specifications and under supervision, sold according to law, are healthy and invigorating articles of diet. They could be made in this city and sold for less than half the prevailing price of butter. To encourage home production the embargo against importation could be continued.

Consumers all over the Dominion are sending in petitions to the Government asking for a relaxation of these restrictions. The Mothers' Club and the Local Council of Women have placed themselves on record. In reaching a decision, the authorities will no doube have regard to the welfare of the majority rather than to anything that may be brought to their notice by a class financially interested in the matter.

Dealers have said that when the price of butter is high, their sales, and consequently their profits, are limited. Somehow or other these arguments do not hold water. If their contention is right, they should welcome any measure intended to reduce the price. Even if substitutes are allowed there will be a ready sale for all the butter that can be produced in Canada. At all events people who are anxious to use substitutes rather than go without entirely should be given an opportunity.

NEWSPAPERS AND RECRUITING.

ONE OF THE SPEAKERS at he recruiting meeting at Lakefield charged the newspapers with interfering with the work of recruiting by their very optimism in dealing with the war. He asserted that the papers, by representing the Huns as on the edge of defeat and the final and complete triumph of the Allies as assured were fostering a feeling of security in the community until the young men of the ocuntry were led to think that the war is so nearly over that there is no necessity for their enlisting.

If the newspapers of Ontario have erred in this regard it has certainly not been due to any lack of enthusiasm for the cause. But what are they to do? Fault will be found with them if they picture the outlook as gloomy. Even the speakers at a recruiting meeting are not always able to take the same view. One orator will make an impassioned appeal to come forward and save the Empire from extermination. Another immediately following will devote his powers to representing the Germans as on the run and the Allies as triumphantly sweeping everything before them.

The great drawback to the success of recruiting meetings is that the young men it is most desired to reach will not attend. The oratory is expended upon audiences in which women and men over military age or otherwise unfit predominate. Publishing long appeals, editorially or otherwise, calling upon the fit to do their duty, is so much wasted space and effort. If they will not attend recruiting meetings they certainly will not read articles prepared for their special benefit.

PAYING FOR THE GAME.

WHEN A WOMAN at Kinmount shot a man who was forcing his attentions upon her, she was arrested by a zealous officer from Victoria county and placed in the jail at Lindsay. As the offence had been committed close to the county line, the proceeding was permissible, although in the ordinary course of events the defendant would have been brought to Peterborough for trial.

Now that the case has been disposed of and the woman sent to the penitentiary, the question of paying the bill arises. The Victoria County Council have censured the officials responsible for bringing the case to Lindsay and fastening the expense upon the county. It was proposed to send a delegation to the Peterborough County legislators to ask for assistance in the payment of the costs, but this plan was voted down, as it was considered poor business policy to send good money after bad.

Lindsay officials have had their little lesson. Excessive zeal is not always appreciated. Ambition to assume duties that properly belong to others is not, as a general thing, to be recommended. Lindsay had the game, and by all known rules and regulations, has a right to foot the bill, and should do so without a murmur. If they finally decide to send a delegation to this city, the members of it will be received with every consideration and the outing will probably be beneficial to them both in the acquisition of valuable information and improving their health.

MONEY FOR THE PATRIOTIC FUND.

IT APPEARS that all the ratepayers of the city do not yet thoroughly understand the plan by which it is proposed to raise money for the Patriotic Fund by taxation. Some of the largest property owners are under a misapprehension, and for that reason are inclined to oppose the move.

In the first place, the sum to be raised is $100,000 in all, of which amount $60,000 has been asisgned to the city and the balance to the county. This is to be secured by the issue of debentures covering a period of twenty years. No detail has been overlooked by the committee that is behind the matter, and no resident of the city can possibly escape his share of the burden. The tenant of a house or other building will virtually pay the extra tax, just as he does all other sums assessed against the property, whether or not it is so specified in his lease.

The man with an income only and no real estate will not be suffered to escape lightly. Under the law the income of a householder up to $1500 a year escapes taxation. The non-householder earning a yearly revenue in excess of $600 is subject to the income tax. What it is now proposed to do is to apply to the Legislature for special authority to levy a flat rate of say $10 upon all incomes that can now be taxed.

Some large property owners say that the heavy portion of the tax will fall upon them while the man whose wealth is in the form of stocks and bonds will escape altogether. Such a contingency has been foreseen and provided for, and special legislation will also be sought to cover such cases.

The plan appears perfect in all its details and has only to be thoroughly understood to meet with general favor.

"SAFETY FIRST."

THE PUERILE JIBES of our evening contemporary are worthy of the narrow spirit which inspires its every action. We understand it too well to hope that it will ever raise its voice against anything in the shape of an evil that may exist locally. Safety first is its motto, caution, an eye on the main chance, its leading characteristic. Nothing arouses its indignation locally except perhaps the cutting down of a tree that keeps the sunlinght from some citizen's home.

One paid official of the city may do his best to clean up Peterborough. When he has a case in the police court, another official, drawing a regular salary, almost invariably appears in his private capacity, for mere financial gain, to counteract the efforts of the other. If our contemporary can see anything wrong in such an arrangement it lacks the courage to utter a single word of protest.

We see our neighbor rail at the munition makers all over the country, insinuating that they are allowed excessive profits and are robbing the Empire with the connivance of the Government. There are munition workers in this city operating under exactly similar conditions and getting the same prices, and yet our "safety first" contemporary cannot even make a local reference.

Our contemporary has criticized the administration of the Patriotic Fund away from home. It has never placed its finger on a case in Peterborough that was open to question.

The war contractors and the managers of the Patriotic Fund in Peterborough are above reproach. It is only a desire to excite popular prejudice against the Government that induces our contemporary or any other paper to assail the systems anywhere.

Our contemporary in one column pleads for recruits. In another it asks its readers to believe that our soldiers are neglected and made the victims of administrative inefficiency.

It poses with pharisaical phrases as the friend of temperance, recognising that locally that side is in the majority, while it ungallantly brands as a freak a countess in England who was so set in her principles that she made financial sacrifice for the cause she advocated long before the conversion of our neighbor.

Partisanship is always deplorable. It is especially offensive and dangerous when it has financial lines set in every direction.

FEAR NOTHING FROM MR. GORDON.

THE EXAMINER insinuates that we attacked City Solicitor Gordon for the purpose of injuring his chances to realize his ambition to carry the standard of the Liberal party at the next Federal election.

By no means. The Conservatives of West Peterborough would not be alarmed if the nomination goes to Mr. Gordon. That gentleman will serve as a victim just as well as any other man the party could nominate.

TESTS OF REAL ESTATE VALUE

(John M. Oskison.)

A reader who is experienced in the handling of city real estate has recently written me a letter that contains some excellent hints to investors who want to appraise their investments before making them.

He wrote to correct the impression given by another reader that the value of rented property in the city ought to stand in reference to its rental income as 100 to 15. He warns that this is not a safe general rule to lay down.

It is a crude truth that rented property is fairly worth seven times the rental income. But many exceptions must be noted. If through a certain sort of jugglery rents are boosted beyond the average for the neighbor hood, the investor who followed this rule would probably be cheated.

According to my informant, there has been a tremendous inflation of values of city real estate. This has resulted from the over-liberal loans made on such security. He says that presumably sound mortgage companies and even savings banks have loaned up to six times the rental income—that is, up to six-sevenths of the real value of the property.

City property carrying such burdens of loans cannot yield to its normal owner and manager any return that will be worth striving for. One consequence is that many of these properties have ben turned over to the banks and mortgage companies to satisfy the mortgages they hold. In many cases it has been found impossible to sell the properties for enough to satisfy the mortgage.

So, as a possible buyer of bonds based on mortgage on city property, you want to know what is behind the bonds. You ought to know.

My informant says that on average apartment property the safe loan will not exceed a sum equal to four times the annual rental income.

When that rule is followed, the lender is leaving to the borrower a substantial interest in the property. He will almost certainly be able to meet the interest charges on the loan and to repay it. If he doesn't, the property will bring more than enough at forced sale to satisfy the mortgage.

Guelph's New Scheme for City Government Explained in Detroit

(Guelph Herald.)

The by-law for submission to the electors asking their approval of a change in the method of city government was brought before Council last night. It is not materially different from the proposals made by the special committee some time ago. If adopted it will dispense with every commission or board now governing the various departments of the city, with the exception of the Board of Education and the Guelph Junction Railway Board, which are by law separate bodies. If the by law receives the assent of the electors it will go before the Legislature, and if it is approved by that body, beginning with the election for the year 1918, and thereafter, the Council of the said city of Guelph shall be composed of sixteen aldermen, twelve of whom shall be elected by a general vote of the qualified electors of the city, and the remaining four of whom shall be elected by the twelve aldermen theretofore elected, at the first meeting of the said twelve aldermen held after the election in 1918. It is provided that the twelve elected aldermen are to hold three year terms after the proper rotation is secured, and the four appointed aldermen will hold office for four years each, one retiring yearly, together with four of the elective aldermen. All of them are to possess property qualifications as at present, and the Council as then constituted will elect a mayor for the term of one year. The members so elected are to exercise the powers and rights of the said several boards and commissions, and the members of the Council shall be the directors of the Guelph Radial Railway Company under the Act relating to the company. Upon the organization of the Council, the then several boards of commissioners and the then board of directors of the Guelph Radial Railway Company shall be dissolved and they shall have no further authority in respect of the utilities, works and matters heretofore under their charge, respectively.

Aso recommended, the city clerk is made an ex-officia member of all commissions, and he shall from time to time make such recommendations as he may deem advisable. In other words, he is made a sort of general manager, and it is left to the Council so appointed to carry into effect the proposal to place more responsibility upon the official head of each civic department.

The by-law, taken as a whole, has many things to recommend it, making as it does for economy by the co-ordination and co-operation of all departments, the securing of longer terms for civic administrations, and for the prevention of overlapping. There will be opposition to the appointment of the mayor by Council instead of the electorate, and objection will be raised to the appointment of four aldermen, who, while having seats at the Council board have no direct responsibility to the people, and it is possible that this objection may have considerable to do with the fate of the by-law. There is, however, no good reason why objection on these points should be carried to the point of defeating the proposed measure. Personally, we believe the mayor should be elected by the people, although no great object is achieved by the people electing him. If they elect the men who appoint the mayor the electors should have confidence that they will honor the man entitled to it. Every board or commission in the city elects its own chairman. As proposed the City Council would greatly resemble the Board of Education; in fact, the trustees ought to be complimented at the many points of resemblance to their organization in the proposed new City Council. The Board of Education is composed of twelve elective members holding three year terms. Six additional members are non-elected, but appointed by the City Council, nominally as high school trustees, but comprising part of the board and holding the same powers. These eighteen appoint their own chairman; their secretary sits with all committees, advising them whenever it is required, and the principals of the schools are made responsible for the work under their charge. The system works out well in the educational board. There is no reason why it shouldn't in the Council.

Some changes have been made in the by-law by Mr. Guthrie, corporation counsel, and a few others may yet be made before it goes to the people. When submitted it ought to receive the most careful consideration of the electors. We believe it is a step forward.

SHIPBUILDING WHEN WAR IS OVER

Although a country with many miles of unprotected coast lines on the two great oceanic highways of the world, Canada has no navy worthy of the name. It has relied entirely upon the British Navy to guard its commerce on the seas.

Nor have Canadians interested themselves in matters maritime commercially—the development of shipbuilding and other industries allied to the business of "going to sea" and capable of such wonderful development in our country.

Shipbuilding will be one of the greatest industries of Canada very soon after the war is over. There will be a scarcity of ocean-going vessels, the submarine policy of the treacherous Hun is obviously to cripple rival nations in the struggle for commercial supremacy. British capital and enterprise will be able to cope with this contingency, however, and is doing so there will be unprecedented development in shipbuilding and in the profits therefrom Canadian labor as well as Canadian capital will have an opportunity of sharing.

One of the most practical ways in which Canadians can prepare themselves for profitable employment when peace comes, in shipbuilding and in sea-going occupations, is to enlist in the British Navy until the war is over. By doing so they will not only discharge a patriotic duty, but they will pave the way for permanent positions for themselves in industries that will be established in Canada to meet the demand for ships to carry the products of farm and factory to the markets of the world.

EDITOR'S MAIL

Editor Review: I am a hard working man, earning about $15 a week and living in my own little home. I never miss a day at the place where I am employed. It was a pleasure to sign the petition asking Council to raise $60,000 by taxation for the Patriotic Fund, as I believe this is the fairest way. It comes very hard on the workingman when everything is so high and only one person in a large family earning any money, but while this war is on we all must do our duty. I have no boy old enough to enlist or I would insist upon his going to the front.

But I do wish our aldermen would pass a bylaw making it illegal for any person to peddle tickets from house to house for entertainments that might be dispensed with, concerts, dances, or anything of that description. As it is now it is almost impossible to get a rest after a hard day's work as the doorbell keeps ringing at intervals. When you answer it you find a girl or grown-up person with a bunch of tickets for sale.

There are causes to which we should all contribute while there are others that might better be postponed.

How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Kept Her Well and Strong.

Lincoln, Illinois.—"I have used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for ten years with good results and I have four healthy children. This summer I was in a very run down condition and the very hot weather seemed more than I could stand, but I commenced taking your Compound in June and from then until September 25th, when my last baby was born, I got along much better than I had before. My baby was a girl and weighed 14 pounds at birth, and I recovered very rapidly which I am sure was due to your medicine. I am well and strong now, nurse my baby and do all my work. I had the same good results with your medicine when needed before my other children came and they are all healthy. My mother has taken your medicine with equal satisfaction. Britain's Generous Handling Of Crude Rubber Situation

Has Held Down Cost of Rubber Footwear While Prices of Other Necessities Soar

When, some twenty years ago, Great Britain began to establish great rubber plantations in her tropical Dominions, the outside world's industrial experts laughed in scorn. Were there not thousands of square miles of wild rubber trees in Brazil and elsewhere simply waiting to be tapped? Were not the marvellous chemists of Germany working diligently to devise a process for making synthetic rubber at a fraction of the cost of the natural article?, Britain, they averred, was wasting time and money.

Six years ago the price of crude rubber jumped to $3.00 a pound, because the 60,000 or 70,000 tons which seemed to be the limit of the forests fell far short of the enormously increasing demand—and the synthetic rubber promised by Germany failed to materialize. The 8,200 tons produced by the British plantations in 1910 was more than welcomed, and the scoffing ceased. By 1914 the plantations were producing nearly 100,000 tons, or 60% of the world's supply, and the price had been reduced to one-third of the 1910 figures. This year the plantations are contributing 150,000 tons—75% of the total production—and Britain holds a monopoly which has been of vital importance in the War,

Controlling the seas as well as the supply, the British Government has effectually cut off the Teutons, while providing an abundance for the Allies. To neutrals, who might easily have been forced to pay any price, the monopoly has been truly a benevolent one, for so long as they resell none to the Germans, they get all the rubber they want at a lower price than before the war.

No nation, neutral or belligerent, benefits more generally from Britain's foresight and generosity in this matter than Canada. Besides the general use of the scores of rubber products, practically every Canadian uses rubber footwear more or less for at least six months of the year. Now that leather has gone up 80%, and shoes are costing two to five dollars a pair more than normal, the advantage of wearing rubbers and overshoes this winter is strongly emphasized. They cost so little compared to the shoes whose term of service they practically double, that it certainly is economy to wear them at every sign of bad weather. And there's another point, even more important:

The need for leather at the Front is so great, and the scarcity so serious, that it is a patriotic duty to save it all we can by wearing rubbers and overshoes.

HON. A. E. KEMP IS APPOINTED

SUCCEEDS SIR SAM HUGHES AS MILITIA MINISTER.

OTTAWA, Nov. 24.—Hon. A. E. Kemp was sworn in late yesterday afternoon as Minister of Militia and Defence, succeeding Lieut.-Gen. Sir Sam Hughes.

Mr. Kemp's assumption of the Militia portfolio necessitates a bye-election in East Toronto. Nominations will take place on Thursday, Dec. 14, and the election, if there is to be a contest, on the 21st. It is considered doubtful that the Opposition will contest the re-election of Mr. Kemp, but in any event there is no uncertainty as to the outcome.

Frank and Henry McDonald, brothers, held at Chatham on charges of murder resulting from the derailing of a train, will be separated until their trial in the spring, and Frank will be kept in Essex County Jail.

NICKEL UPROAR IS GIVEN QUIETUS BY MR. MEIGHEN

Solicitor-General Shows Absurdity of Charges Made by Hartley Dewart---Germany Gets No Nickel From Here.

TORONTO, November 24. — Hon. Meighen, Solicitor General, made in this city last night a statement of the Government's and the British Admiralty's position in regard to nickel shipments that should put an end for all time to the efforts made to make political and personal capital out of the nickel "issue." Incidentally he exposed a remarkable attempt by a leading Canadian Liberal to get in between the Russian Government and its nickel supply and to collect a commission as a reward. That attempt was made by G. G. S. Lindsey, and its failure, which Liberal politicians have in the past week endeavored to convert into a weapon for use against the Government, was due to the thorough control exercised by the British Admiralty upon the firm of Henry R. Merton & Co., European agents for the International Nickel Co., a firm of which 85 per cent. of the shareholders are British subjects.

Embargo Impossible.

The Solicitor General covered the whole nickel field. He pointed out the impossibility of prohibiting the export of Canadian nickel since that would promptly tie up the great plants that are turning out munitions for Great Britain and her allies; he showed that not a pound of nickel matte leaves Canada except with the license of the Canadian Government, and that not a pound could be sold by the International Nickel Co. without the approval of the British Government's committee on enemy supplies. He met the statement made by Hartley Dewart, K.C., that statistics showed that 2,400,000 pounds of nickel had been shipped to countries other than those of Britain and her allies, by declaring definitely that it was not true, and backing his statement up by statistics showing that fully one million tons of it went to Russia in Asia, which had not been included in the countries named.

Charges Refuted.

Hon. Mr. Meighen paid particular attention to the recent Dewart charge that Merton & Co., the British agents of the International Company, had been censured in the British courts for attempts to collect compensation on nickel seized by the British navy while en route to Belgium, apparently for German use. He pointed out that, while that had occurred, it had to be admitted that the shipments in question were made before the war broke out. Since that time the firm of Merton & Co. had been reorganized, so that today it was absolutely controlled by British subjects, with not a share of stock in the hands of enemy citizens; it was still being used by the British Government as a medium for handling all European orders for nickel, and the fact, as revealed by Mr. Dewart in the Lindsey letter that Merton & Co. had to approve all orders for nickel for European countries meant simply that those orders had to be approved by the British Admiralty, since Merton & Co. were the point, or the funnel, through which all orders came to them.

CHILDREN'S AID AT LAKEFIELD IS ORGANIZED

REV. C. W. BARRET ELECTED PRESIDENT OF THE BRANCH.

The first of a series of meetings under the auspices of the Children's Aid Society was held in the Town Hall, Lakefield, last night and the large attendance showed that the residents of the village are in deep sympathy with the work on behalf of unfortunate children.

Mr. C. A. G. Spence, the agent of the society, organized the meeting and he was assisted by Adjutant McElhiney, who by lantern slides demonstrated the welfare of a child under Children's Aid guardianship until it reached manhood or womanhood.

A branch of the county organization was formed with the following officers: President, Rev. C. W. Barrett; vice-president, Mrs. W. Graham, secretary-treasurer, Miss Nina Sherin; executive, Rev. M. and Mrs. C. W. Barrett, Rev. Mr. and Mrs. A. W. McKenzie, Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Simmon; Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Robinson; Rev. Father Maher; Mrs. Marling, Mr. F. Spencer.

WIND CAUSES DAMAGE.

The wind storm today did considerable damage in the city. The smokestack on the Peterborough Metal Products Co. premises fell a victim to the tempest's fury, while at Smith street the huge billboard on the south side of the street nearly struck one of the cars of the Radial Railway Co. as it was hurled from its rightful place.

Incomplete View.

"Do you enjoy seeing a game of football?"

"I never see one in its entirety," replied Miss Cayenne. "The excitement is so intense that I am constantly shutting my eyes in fear that somebody is going to get hurt."

We hear that a wedding is impending in Gustine which will interest all of us. The happy event may not transpire in Gustine, but both parties are well and popularly known here and everybody will welcome the bride and congratulate the groom and give him a bushel of good wishes.

Different.

"They say marriage is a lottery," remarked the morose young man.

"It isn't," replied Miss Cayenne. "In a lottery you can go on buying tickets."

DESTROYED BY AN EXPLOSION

PETROGRAD OFFICIALLY REPORTS DESTRUCTION OF NEW WARSHIP.

PETROGRAD, Nov. 24 The destruction of the large new battleship Imperatritsa Maria by an internal explosion on Oct. 20 and the loss of 200 lives is officially admitted.

"The position of the ship, which lies in shallow water, gives hope that it may be refloated and completely repaired in a few months. The bridge is only one yard below water," the statement adds.

The loss of the battleship was reported several days ago and the above is the first official word from Petrograd.

CAPTS. JONES AND NEAL SPOKE TO "Y." WORKERS

About thirty members have been enrolled in the Y.M.C.A. since the call went out for 300 renewals and new members. Most of the members mentioned were office receipts and do not count to any of the team workers. However, one man reported at the supper last night that he had made over forty calls and as all of the workers are apparently on the job good results will be shown at the next meeting. Just seven days remain of the contest and these days will pass so quickly that every worker should make each day count.

Capts. Jones and Neal, of the Y. M. C. A. overseas staff, addressed the team workers last evening.

True.

"So the State has gone dry?"

"Yep; and soon the fellows who can drink or let it alone will have to let it alone."

Liquor will not be sold to soldiers in Montreal until after the war, if the wishes of President George Payett, of the Licensed Victualllers' Association of Montreal, are complied with by the licensees.

Nervous Dyspepsia

The Modern Scourge and How to Meet it.

The speed at which we live, the hustle now so necessary for success have unfortunately a very adverse effect on the nervous and digestive systems of Canadians. The baneful results, increased lately to an alarming degree, often lay the seeds of more deadly trouble, but it will be satisfactory to learn of the ever-increasing popularity in the Dominion, of the Great British Remedy, Dr. Cassell's Tablets.

Dr. Ramsay Colles, J.P. of the City of Dublin, a man of high eminence in the scientific world, says:—"I have great pleasure in expressing my satisfaction as to the curative effect of Dr. Cassell's Tablets in cases of nerve troubles. From several cases which have lately come under my notice I am able to form the opinion that Dr. Cassell's Tablets constitute a safe and reliable family remedy, and appear to be specially effective for nerve and bodily weakness."

THE ARMY BULWARK

A LONG LINE OF Y. M. C. A. SHELTERS FOR THE SOLDIERS.

Backing the line across France held by the English and Canadians is a row of Y.M.C.A. shelters that have been described by the London Times as the "bulwark of England." Some scores of Y.M.C.A. buildings, tents, dugouts, etc., are making happiness in the lives of ur soldiers by providing heat, entertainment, games, athletics, letter writing facilities, religious activities, and innumerable personal services for the men.

Canada's army is served by over 500 Y.M.C.A. workers in Canada, England and France. Of these 50 are honorary captains in England and 24 in France, each of whom has several assistants.

Already over 30 branches are being operated in the Somme area; these plants running all the way from one equipment composed of canteen marquee huts for writing, and a huge concert marquee, accommodating a couple of thousand men at a single spot, down to the tiny dug-outs where not more than four or five can be allowed in at one time.

"One of the most interesting plants is carried on in a cellar of a much shelled city, frequently referred to in our Canadian papers, and, strange to say, this Y.M.C.A. handles more refreshments than any of the other 42 with the Canadians in France."

Y.M.C.A. members: get a line on the fellows who should enroll in the Association during Contest Week—Nov. 20-30.

If you are suffering from dyspepsia, indigestion or sour stomach you should try a mixture of Salon Pepsin and Iridin.

This is said to be the formula of Dr. Banta's famous prescription which gave him a world-wide reputation.

These powders are sold in Peterborough at Lynch's Drug Store, 168 Hunter Street.

Public Opinion Demands that the "Middleman" Must Go

Canada is groaning under the heel of the "middleman," the consumer is finding the load too heavy, and is demanding that the "MIDDLEMAN MUST GO." Cities and towns all through the Dominion are holding meetings, and public indignation is being expressed by appeals to Federal, Provincial and local governments for relief. The situation is acute. But it is not a new problem. We have always had the middleman—he has always exacted tribute from those who choose to pay. Sixteen years ago we eliminated the creature from our business. We went direct to the source of supply and established the beginning of a tailoring business that today is National-wide in its character.

We Abolished the Middleman and Passed the Profits over to You

If it were not for our "MILL-TO-MAN" plan of business, we would be asking $25.00 to $30.00 for the clothes you get here for $18.00. That is what "Direct From the Mills" means to every man who deals here. A clear saving of $7 to $12 on the Suit or Overcoat we make for you.

Come in to-morrow and to-morrow Night and investigate. We want you to see the splendid range of New Woollens Direct from the Mills, and no middleman's profit added to the price.

We give you Style — We give you Value—
We pass the Middleman's Profit to You.

NO NEW APPOINTMENTS TO POLICE FORCE THIS YEAR

Judge Huycke Would Give Positions to Soldiers Returned.

No new appointments to the police department until after the new year was the decision made by the City Police Commissioners at their meeting last night. Judge Huycke, Police Magistrate Dumble and Mayor Duffus, the members of the Commission, were all present.

The resignation of Constable Wm. Smyth was accepted.

Three applications were received for appointment to the force as follows:—

Andrew Young, age 22, height 6 ft.; weight 175 lbs.; married; Anglican; farmer.

Edward Gange, age 21; height, 5 ft 11 in.; weight 170 lbs.; single; Anwlican; farmer.

W. B. Spenceley, age 21; height 6 ft. 2 1-4 in.; weight 165 lbs., Methodist; employed by Spenceley Bros. as motor 'bus driver.

Judge Huycke when informed by the chief that the department was two men short remarked that he would not give an appointment to any of the applicants. Let them enlist. There will be plenty of returned soldiers who after convalescing will be able to do police duty.

Force Has Less Work

Magistrate Dumble remarked that since the Ontario Temperance Act went into force the work of the police department was very much less and it would not be necessary to fill the vacancies for a while.

Chief Thompson stated that at this season of the year it was not possible for the police to use the bicycles in patrolling the outlying districts and he was two men short. Reference was made to the illness of Constable Lawrence, who was a good officer but would not be ready for duty for over a month.

Mayor Duffus: How long have you been in this position?

Chief Thompson replied that the department had been short since before the Ontario Temperance Act went into force. He also stated that one of the applicants had been twice rejected for military service and ahd his rejection card.

The Commissioners unanimously decided to allow the department to struggle along till 1917.

Lawrence to Continue

Chief Thompson was instructed to keep Constable Lawrence on the force for another month and when he gets well to put him on station duty until he completely recovers.

SILVER MINE TO BE OPERATED

W. J. KEARNS INSTALLING MACHINERY ON HIS GALWAY FARM.

Mr. W. J. Kearns is busy these days moving mining machinery out to his farm in Galway, where valuable silver and lead deposits have been found. Yesterday he was around in the city in quest of cable with which to operate his derricks. The services of an expert have been secured and the work of operating the mine will be vigorously pushed.

Every property owner in the vicinity is excited over the find and hopes that similar prospects of wealth may come to him.

A PARADISE FOR THE CONSUMER

SOME FOODSTUFFS CAN BE BOUGHT REASONABLY AT CARNARVON.

The purchasing agent of a camp of working men at Carnarvon, Haliburton, on Oct. 20 last bought butter for 28 cents a pound. At that time it was selling at 42 cents in this city. On Nov. 15 the same man bought another supply at 32 cents a pound, while butter was retailing here at 45 cents. At the same time he laid in a supply of ham cured by the farmer, and of excellent quality, at 20 cents a pound.

The headquarters of the camp referred to is in Peterborough. When the above figures were brought to the attention of the local dealers a number of them attempted to secure a stock from Haliburton, but their letters were seldom answered. The Carnarvon dealers are supplying the Toronto trade.

Why this difference in price should exist in practically the same territory is another problem among a hundred or so created by the high cost of living.

THIS CITY SENT TWO DELEGATES

MESSRS. WALTER STOCKER AND FRANK WISE AT MEETING OF HORTICULTURISTS.

Walter Stocker, president of the local horticultural society, and Frank Wise, superintendent of Little Lake Cemetery, returned from Toronto yesterday, where they attended an interesting meeting of the horticultural societies of Ontario. Dr. F. E. Bennett of St. Thomas, was elected president in recognition of his undivided efforts on behalf of the society and of the fact that his city has the strongest branch to be found in Ontario.

The Peterborough delegates were somewhat surprised to learn that the Provincial Government has in its employ an expert, Mr. A. H. Tomlinson, of the Agricultural College at Guelph, whose services are at the disposal of the municipalities entirely free of charge in the work of laying out school grounds, parks and and grounds in which the people are interested.

W. O. Fraser of Oxbow, was chosen Conservative candidate for the Legislature in Souris, Sask.

OUR PLACE IN THE SUN.

Human Beings, Like Plants, Need Much of the Outdoor Life.

A home without windows was built for the blind in a certain English community. Scientific heating and ventilation were provided. But architects and trustees reasoned that light was not necessary in a house of sightless people.

Then they discovered that human beings, like plants, dwindle and die when deprived of the light of the sun. And they had to remodel their building and let in the sun's rays to keep the blind alive.

Since the invention of the electric light we have all treated sunlight with amazing indifference. In summer especially we spend much time, thought, energy and money protecting ourselves from the sun.

And in so doing we often are acting not much more wisely than the committee that built a house without light for the blind. In summer, for instance, we try to escape the sun when we actually need its services in the cause of good health.

So take your work and play out of doors when possible. Don't fear sunstroke. Don't be afraid of sweat and tan.

The Western Canada Live Stock Union, meeting in Calgary, passed a resolution asking for Federal legislation to regulate the marketing conditions of live stock, including the licensing and bonding of commission men.

STARTLING FACTS —READ THEM

United States Government Statistics Reveal:

That Only 358,000 out of their 100,000,000 population report incomes in excess of $2,500 per year.

That Nineteen out of every twenty fail to provide either for their families or old age.

That Every second man of the population at age twenty-five will be dependent upon someone else at sixty-five. Which class will you be in?

That Nine out of ten men leave no estate.

That Life Insurance Companies are distributing more than $2,000,000 per day.

That Life Insurance has decreased pauperism more than thirty-three and one-third per cent. in thirty-five years.

That Less than seven per cent. of the value of American lives is covered by life insurance.

That Life Insurance saves the nation more than $30,000,000 per year in maintaining the poor.

Under such conditions, what is your plain duty, aye, and privilege? Clearly to insure your life while you can. You say where and how can this best be done?

We answer — A monthly Income Policy for your family or an Endowment for yourself in the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada.

CAN BREAK HUN LINE.

General Sir Henry Rawlinson is Confident of Success.

"Can the German line on the western front be broken?"

Next to General Sir Douglas Haig few British soldiers are in a better position to judge than General Sir Henry Rawlinson, General Haig's right-hand man in the Somme offensive.

"Undoubtedly it can," was General Rawlinson's reply to the question which the whole world is asking.

"Rawley," as he is known, has been for nearly four months directing the sledge-hammer blows of one of the armies under Sir Douglas' command. The character of each commander being impressed upon his surroundings, General Rawlinson's headquarters might be recognized by the smartness of the sentries, the neatness of the grounds, and the look and sharp manner of his subordinates. He is hardly the accepted phlegmatic English type, except in his bulldog tenacity, and he has all the spirit that he had as a young guardsman when he was noted for his abundant vitality, his love of sports, and his professional zeal.

Wherever young Rawlinson appeared there was bound to be action. He is still equal to putting in most of the night and all the morning directing a big operation and then finding relaxation from the strain in a game of tennis.

In the big staff rooms on the lower floor of the chateau, which he occupies as headquarters, there is an alertness among the junior officers which is communicated from a little room upstairs, where a raised map is set on a standard by the window, and the man who receives a visitor has lost none of the dapperness which distinguished him in his youth. In that little room General Haig and General Rawlinson have held many conferences, and the result of them seems to be invariably to attack again.

The commander-in-chief is 55 and the army commander 52. Officers of the same generation in the old British regular army, they have known each other for nearly thirty years. They have played polo together and fought together in India, Egypt, and South Africa. Now they are directing multitudes of men in the greatest battle of all time.

There is the same good fellowship and accord that there was when they were junior officers. Both came to France at the outset of the great war, Rawlinson as commander of a division, Haig commander of a corps.

SUGGESTED FORMATION OF TWO CURLING CLUBS BEING DISCUSSED

Prospects Bright for An Increase in Membership.

The Peterborough curling club are already preparing for the winter game. Banks Garage, who have occupied the building during the automobile season, have already taken their departure and the rinks are being got ready for the first favorable opening from Jack Frost.

Secretary Brownscombe reports that the membership dues are coming in rapidly, with the prospects that the club will have a larger membership than ever before.

Two Club Suggestion

Just what will emerge from the suggestion that the club be divided into two divisions, as in days of the old Thistles and Granites, it is hard to tell until after the first meeting of the curlers.

There never was so much keen rivalry among the curlers as there was in the old days when the Thistles and the Granites had their friendly competition for the oyster, supper or a barrel of flour to be given to one of the local public institutions.

Judging from remarks made on the side by curlers and would-be curlers, there will be no vacant spots in the personnel of the rinks this year. After the successful season last year everyone is looking for a chance to try their hand at the game.

Of course Angus McIntosh will be in charge at the rink again this season.

Ladies' Curling Club

The Peterborough Ladies' Curling Club will also have an increased membership this year.

Belleville and other towns east have already organized for the 1916-17 season.

A FRENCH AIRMAN'S ESCAPE.

Birdman Was Still Alive After a Terrible Fall.

The Paris Matin describes how Lieutenant Guynemer, the well-known airman, after having brought down three enemy machines, had a fall which nearly cost him his life.

He was 3,000 metres (about 9,800 feet) up, says the journal, when a shell burst full in one of the wings of his aeroplane, and the frail bird seemed mortally wounded. The whole left wing was completely cut to bits, and the canvas fluttered in the wind, making the rent still worse. In a few seconds there was nothing left of the frame but a piece of canvas the size of a pocket handkerchief. The machine fell with a crash through space; it could not support its pilot any longer. Guynemer declares he gave himself up for lost; the only thing he asked Providence for was that he should not fall in enemy territory.

"I was powerless to make my will felt. My machine refused to obey me. At 1,600 metres I determined to make a fight for it all the same. The wind had brought me back into our own lines. I was almost happy. I was already thinking of my funeral, with sorrowing friends walking behind my last remains. I had nothing more to fear from the Pickelhauben. However, I felt that it was death, and the thought is not a very pleasant one.

"My fall continued. In spite of all my efforts I could not do what I wanted with my machine. I tried to turn it first to the right and then to the left. I pushed and pulled, but all to no purpose. I could no nothing. Down I fell, faster and faster, drawn surely and inevitably to the earth, where I was going to be smashed to atoms, a brutal end and a futile one. I shut my eyes. Then I opened them again and looked down. At something like 180 kilometres (112 miles) an hour I crashed into a pylon. There was a terrific cracking sound and a deep thud. I looked round and found that nothing was left of my machine.

"How is it I am still alive? I wonder myself. I think it was the straps which held me in my seat which saved my life. They had eaten right into my shoulders anyhow, but if it had not been for them I should be dead at this moment."

The airman roared with laughter, adding: "It is frightfully funny when one thinks of it. For twenty-four hours I was absolutely stunned. It is an odd sensation." And Kuynemer was off on a new aeroplane to continue his exploits.

Formosa Made Over.

Twenty years ago, when Japan took it over, Formosa was a haunt of pest and crime. To-day the island can show a collection of clean, modern, prosperous towns. The present Governor-General, Baron Ando, is a fine looking man, with a clear eye and a kindly manner. In answer to a question as to the problem that interested Baron Ando most keenly regarding the island, he answered that the problem that always held him was how best to govern for the good of the people. Pressed as to his idea of spiritual advancement for the Formosans, he said that in his opinion all great religions were good; that he would encourage both Buddhism and Christianity, but he thought that it mattered little what religion was taught to the people so long as the teacher was good. In his opinion, the personal influence was the most important. He said that during the uprisings there were no Christian rebels, and he thought that in practice Christianity was, perhaps, better than Buddhism. He said that, with regard to religion for savages, it was good to teach them Christian ethics. Buddhism was beyond their grasp, but they could be taught sacrifice through Christianity. The idea of self-sacrifice appealed to the mothers, and in gaining the mothers the children were reached.

KAISER LOSES SUPER-ZEPPELIN

Entente Ultimatum to Greece----German Destroyers Raid the English Coast

PERRY TAGGART DEAD MOTHER SERIOUSLY ILL BROTHER ALSO SUFFERS

COAL AT $15.

COBALT, Nov. 25.—Coal has jumped to $15 a ton and at the present time the dealers are out of stock until more arrives.

Unless the price goes down before real winter sets in it will be a serious question with the poorer classes of people.

Wood also has taken a big advance and sells at $3.50 for a single cord of 16-inch wood.

Lives Are Endangered From Coal Gas At Home

Dr. T. N. Greer, after making an examination of the body, decided that Perry Taggart had died of heart failure, possibly during an epileptic fit, and that an inquest was not necessary.

The funeral will take place from Belleghem's undertaking parlors on Monday morning at 10 o'clock.

Perry Taggart is dead, his mother, Mrs. Taggart, is in the hospital, and the circumstances surrounding the case are peculiar to say the least.

The facts, as taken from the statements of those first to render aid lead to the conclusion that the death was caused by coal gas asphyxiation.

It appears that on Thursday night Perry Taggart returned to his home at 1035 Water Street after spending the day at his candy shop, 458 George Street. After partaking of supper he complained of feeling ill and lay down on the couch in the room. He never moved from the time he lay down and must have died soon after as the evidence of the doctor was that he had been dead for some time before his arrival to assist the mother.

Mother Fell in Faint

The discovery of Perr's death was first made by his brother Albert, who late on Thursday night heard his mother fall to the floor upstairs, and although very weak himself, managed to get upstairs and discovered her lying unconscious at the foot of the bed. He rendered what assistance he could and started to get help, but he was in such a weak condition that he thinks he fainted and did not recover till last night, nearly twenty-four hours after his mother's illness.

He then discovered that the fire in the coal stove was nearly out and he at once put some more coal on and then managed to reach the Children's Shelter, where he told Superintendent Henry the trouble.

First Aid Given

Dr. McClellan was at once summoned. Mrs. Henry, Mrs. Scott and a number of ladies went at once to render what first aid that could be given. As soon as Dr. McClellan arrived he found that Perry was dead and that Mrs. Taggart was in such condition that her removal to the hospital was necessary in order to save her life. Today she is in the Nicholls Hospital in a very precarious condition.

Albert Taggart, the brother, is also in a very serious condition, due, it is thought, to the coal gas and his previous ill-health and exposure.

The body of Perry Taggart was removed to Belleghem's undertaking rooms pending further investigation.

The Taggart family lived in a house owned by Dan Martin and the brother Albert is well known as a dispenser of family remedies. The deceased brother Perry for a number of years sold his candies and cough drops to the people of the city. Both of the brothers were near the three score and ten mark and the mother is nearly 90 years old.

Interests are at work to bring about the repeal of the by-law providing for the closing of grocery stores at 7 p.m., a move that does not find favor with the majority of the trade. Should the question come before Council there will be plenty of arguments advanced in favor of the by-law being retained.

SPLENDID EXAMPLE OF HEROISM BY ARTILLERY OBSERVATION OFFICERS ADDED TO CANADA WAR RECORDS

Lieut. Oliver, One of the Party, Was Killed, Second Got Back With Valuable Information, and Third Spotted Machine Gun for Artillery.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

The following communication is issued by the Canadian Record Office, London.

LONDON, Nov. 25.—The night of Nov. 20th was relatively quiet along that portion of the Somme-Ancre front which is held by our Canadian troops. The new line which we have occupied as the result of our firm advance on the 18th is a strong one. Our pioneers are busy strengthening it still further and extending communication trenches. Last night an officer of our sappers was moving up one of these trenches when he was surprised to meet a party of six Germans, one of them an officer, who had apparently lost their way. He demanded their surrender. They promptly obeyed, and he led them all back.

A splendid example of the heroism of our artillery observation officers has just come to hand. During the battle of the 18th it became necessary to secure a certain piece of vital information as to matters beyond our front. Three of the F. O. O.'s of the second artillery division from three separate points were sent forward through the enemy's barrage to procure this information. It was an undertaking of supreme peril. One of them, Lieut. Oliver, was killed in the attempt. Another officer succeeded and got back with the information, and a third, while yet some way behind the most advanced section of our attack, was severely wounded and fell into a shell hole. As he dragged himself out and started to crawl back he found himself directly in front of a German machine gun which had emerged from some hiding place and was about to open fire upon the rear of our line. He rolled into another shell hole, and the fire went over him. He crept off to one side, worked his way into the nearest battery, and, in spite of his desperate condition, was able to locate the machine gun so exactly that it was speedily destroyed with all its crew.

IN SHELTER OF POLICE COURT WITH GOLD ORE

81-YEARS-OLD PROSPECTOR ALSO HAS SLOGAN ON TO OTTAWA.

Trapper and prospector was his occupation, as told by Walter Gordon to Police Sergeant Brown at the police station this morning.

The old gentleman, who claims to be 81 years of age, had spent the night in the warmth of the police station, and when bidding farewell to the officers proudly pulled a sack from his pocket and disclosed several samples of gold ore, which he claims were taken from a prospect in the Rainy River district which he owns. He is on his way to Ottawa to see what the minister of mines can do for him.

DECLARE WAR ON BULGARIA

PROVISIONAL GOVERNMENT OF GREECE MAKES FORMAL DECLARATION.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, Nov. 25.—The provisional government of Greece, formed by supoprters of former Premier Ventzelos, has formally declared war on Bulgaria, says an Athens despatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company

BANDSMEN WILL COME HOME SOON

Bring the Instruments With Them to City.

Although The Review has made an effort to get something definite on the home-coming of the 93rd Battalion band, it can only be said officially that three of the members will be leaving England soon on their return to Peterborough, and the balance of the band will come later. They will bring their instruments with them.

It must not be expected that all the original members of the band will return.

The Peterborough bandsmen who were transferred to the 39th Battalion had a part in the Lord Mayor's parade in London recently, and in writing home tell of having had a fine time in London.

ST. JAMES' METHODISTS WILL HAVE HANDSOME EDIFICE FOR WORSHIP

New Church Has Been Bricked and Roofed and Interior Will Soon be Ready for Plasterers---Bricks From Saskatchewan to Quebec.

The new St. James Methodist Church is coming along fine. When completed the building will compare favorably with any of its sister edifices in the city. The pressed brickwork is completed, a slate roof has been put on and the interior work has advanced to the point of lathing, which operation is now under way. When ready for use the building will include a gallery at the north end, and will give accommodation to seven hundred persons. The estimated cost of the structure is $17,000 and it is expected the opening date will be about Good Friday of next year, one year from the date of the first sod being turned for the excavation work.

Quite a change from the tent and its congregation of 35, eight years ago, and it is all due to the progressive spirit of St. James' congregation and the work of an untiring leader, in the person of Rev. Ben. Greatrix. In the building of the new edifice it is interesting to note that Peterborough has not contributed one cent towards the cost of the 69,500 bricks in the building. Some of the brick money came from as far west as Saskatchewan and as far east as Quebec. At these points and between them, the St. James pastor is well known and he must be a strong drawing power as be has had but little difficulty in enlisting aid. His friends and members of former congregations have done well. "I got $90 from one church where I preached when a young fellow," Rev. Mr. Greatrix told a reporter yesterday. All his ministerial life has been spent in the Bay of Quinte Conference.

Some Staunch Friends

Locally, St. James' congregation has been greatly assited by the people of Trinity Church, Mr. B. F. Askerman, Mr. A. W. Cressman and Mr. W. G. Morrow and others to a lesser extent. The gift of the Charlotte Street Church building was great in itself. The building was torn down and carted to the southern part of the city, as much as possible to be used in the new building. They told Mr. Greatrix the building could not be moved for less than between $700 and $1,000, but the feat was accomplished at an expense of $100. It made 250 loads. The secret of it all was the work done by the men and friends of the congregation. The windows of burnt glass, very valuable in themselver, were removed and are in use at the new church. This meant a great saving. The organ, the seats, the lighting fixtures all figured in the freewill offering and all will be used to the best possible adventage.

Mr. Greatrix will long remember the night when he appeared before the trustee board of Charlotte Street Church and asked them for the building. It was the week of prayer. Mr. Greatrix did not start off with a funny story. He hit the members of the board right from the shoulder and they were quite taken back. But not for long. Mr. Robt. Neill was the first to recover himself. Up he jumped to his feet and with an enthusiastic wave of the hand said, "Give it to them." And it was given, for the recommendation of the board was on the following Sunday placed before the full congregation, who arose in a body and expressed their approval of the question.

And now the St. James Methodists are going ahead with stout hearts, confident that with Divine guidance theirs will be a bigger and better church in the sense that is intended for it.

RESISTANCE BY THE GREEKS

ALLIES GO AFTER ARMS AND AMMUNITION.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

ATHENS, Nov. 25.—The Entente Allies have delivered an ultimatum to Greece requiring the delivery of Greek arms and guns which was demanded recently.

LONDON, Nov. 25—Reuter's Athens correspondent says it is stated in circles close to the Greek Court that any attempt of the Entente Allies to obtain possession of Greek arms and ammunition as demanded by Admiral Du Fournet, will meet with resistance.

SIX GERMAN DESTROYERS IN THE COAST RAID

The raid was ineffective, according to the statement, which declares that the German destroyers participating in it steam away quickly after firing a dozen rounds of shell, striking a small vessel but causing little damage and no injury to the crew.

PETERBOROUGH, SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 25, 1916

CHRISTMAS FOR THE LONELY.

WHAT COULD BE more appropriate, what more graceful, than a Christmas entertainment for the wives and children of the men who are fighting in Flanders for the safety of their homes and their families in Peterborough?

It remained for Capt. Burnham to make the suggestion and to cable to his home city a generous contribution to provide for a portion of the expense.

Capt. Burnham went into the service with motives that were unselfish, as all must concede. He was looking for neither fame nor emoluments. What he actually wanted was not office, but a place with the men in the fighting line. His first request was for a position as a transport driver, but he was barred by age. That is the only reason why he is not handling a rifle in the trenches today.

Financially, Capt. Burnham has not profited one iota by the office which he holds in the army. Every cent of his salary as paymaster since the day he enlisted has been donated to the Red Cross, and his contributions from his private funds have been liberal. His suggestion on behalf of the wives and children of the men under arms is worthy of the man who has done so much, who has always championed the cause of Canadian heroes.

It is to be hoped that Mayor Duffus will act promptly on the proposal and that the lonely wives and little ones will receive a practical assurance from the citizens that the sacrifice through which they are passing is understood and appreciated.

MORE AND MORE does it appear possible for capital and labor to get together on the compensation question without war.

WHAT THE GIRLS CAN DO.

THERE WILL BE another recruiting meeting held at the Armories before long, and, as usual, the young men eligible for military service will be conspicuous by their absence. They will not, however, be in actual hiding under the bed or in some other place of safety. If they follow their usual custom of spending Sunday night, they will be in droves on George street, the most of them acting gallantly as the escorts of young ladies. The matter of teaching the slackers their duty is in the hands of their feminine friends. It is within the power of the girls to insist that the boys accompany them to the recruiting meeting. If the women of the city, who have done so much, who have endured so many sacrifices since the war began, would only realize their opportunities in this regard and act accordingly, the Armories could easily be packed to the doors with young men, the very ones for whom the appeals are intended.

There is little honor for the young man who parades the streets in civilian attire while the country is offering him free of cost a change of raiment. There is as little honor for the girl who endures his company.

It is the part of a man to protect a woman. Still, women are tolerably safe on the streets of this city at any hour of the day or night. An efficient police force will see to that. If the young men really wish to fill the role of champion of womankind let them recall the fate which befell the wives, mothers and sisters of Belgium, and go where their gallantry will really count for something.

HOW WOULD a transportation service by airships strike the people of Ashburnham? Transfer every few blocks would at least be impossible.

RETURNED SOLDIERS FOR THE FORCE.

JUDGE HUYCKE, in his capacity as a Police Commissioner, makes, as usual, a practical and sensible suggestion, when he recommends that vacancies on the police force be filled by men who have done military duty at the front. What better material for a police force could be found than men who have had months of strenuous discipline and hard service?

Any young man who aspires to a position as a policeman is eligible for military service if he is equal to the physical requirements that are insisted upon by the police regulations. That being the case, the duty of all such is clear, and the proper place for them is apparent.

Chief Thompson is not likely to object to recruits who come to him with the advantage of months of rigid military training.

"IS EATING A LOST ART?" demands the New York World. Perhaps not yet, but it may become a habit that must be conquered if prices continue to rise.

DO SOMETHING, BUT WHAT?

TAKING THEIR CUE from their wily leader, who is averse as a matter of expediency to arousing the opposition of his compatriots, the Liberals join frantically in a chorus calling upon the Government to do something in the interests of recruiting. These same journals shudder at the very mention of compulsion, knowing well that such a system would affect most of all the people of a single province whom it is their one hope and aim to propitiate. Nothing like a practical suggestion is made.

Short of introducing conscription or some form of compulsion, what more can the Government possibly do to encourage enlisting than it has already done? How can all races be got into the service while one political faction is doing its utmost, in a quiet way, perhaps, to nullify the efforts of the party in power? The masterly inactivity of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, his emphatic refusal to co-operate in the work, is having its effect.

Registration will accomplish nothing further. That has practically been completed in every military district already. In Peterborough there are slackers, and the military authorities, after a house-to-house canvass, know the names of these young men who can best be spared by their families and from the ranks of industry.

And even with this knowledge in their possession, what can the recruiting officers do further? They are in the same position as a police officer would be if, although convinced of the guilt of some citizen, he lacked authority to arrest him, but had to rely upon moral suasion to induce the offender to adopt the right course and voluntarily deliver himself over to the authorities at the nearest jail.

SOME NEWSPAPERS we know of never can decide between right and wrong until convinced as to which side has the most hard cash.

WHAT TO BELIEVE.

NOW THAT Solicitor-General Meighen has explained the nickel situation in a manner which entirely relieves the Government of all suspicion and which must be accepted with satisfaction by the general public and effectually quell every disquieting rumor, will the journals that wanted to believe that no Canadian nickel was going to Germany but could not bring themselves to that point, change their minds? It is not a question of what we want to believe. The honest man and the honest newspaper ought to believe that which is palpably the truth.

When Hartley Dewart, the new hope of the shattered Liberal party in Ontario, appeared with his sensational charges, strengthened by the old trick of suppressing part of the evidence, charges that not only reflected upon the Canadian Administration but upon the British authorities as well, he found ready listeners among the Opposition. A local journal, with Liberal proclivities, but with financial leanings, acclaimed him as the new apostle of political veracity. It found no difficulty in giving unqualified and unreserved credence to all he said, even to the fiendish insinuation that Cabinet Ministers in this country were in league with the Huns to manufacture munitions to take the lives of Canadian soldiers.

Mendacity never pays. Sensations always work their own destruction, and the newspaper that falls for such campaign methods weakens its own cause and influence when the inevitable exposure comes.

We do not profess to know what The Examiner wants to believe, although we suspect that there are things which it finds inexpedient to accept as the truth. What it ought to believe in this case is as clear as daylight. Will it give the same prominence to Mr. Meighen's explanation as it did to Mr. Dewart's charges?

WITH CATLIKE regularity and admirable consistency Mr. Arthur Hawkes comes back as often as he goes anywhere.

DANCES A BAR TO RECRUITING.

THE METHODISTS of the St. Thomas district adopted a resolution protesting against the riot of pleasure indulged in by so many people at a time when the Empire is in the throes of war. They believe that dance halls and other places of amusement are luring the young men of the country from their duty and that while they can find a variety of entertainment they will not enlist.

The contention is sound. Not until the eligible young man who hangs back is in some way made to realize his dereliction will he seriously consider answering the call of his country. He will regard himself as an equal of the other members of the community so long as he is received with hospitality into the homes of his friends, some of these homes that have been desolated by the war. While the young women of the country not only tolerate his company but encourage his advances he will linger behind the fighting phalanx in security and comfort.

On our city streets every night the slacker is in evidence, sometimes leaning against a dead wall and ogling the feminine pedestrians. More often he is in the company of a young woman who may be as indifferent to the other's duty as himself. The women of Canada, irrespective of age or social condition, have accomplished a wonderful work since the war started. They can do still more by ostracizing the men who are contented to wait while others serve.

NOTES AND COMMENT.

THE GIRLS can't enlist, but they can cut dead the young fellow who can but won't.

"HAPPY AL" PEARSON SPEAKS HERE MONDAY

Will Tell of the Y. M. C. A. Work in Behalf of Soldiers.

CAPT. H. A. PEARSON

Captain Pearson, an old Peterborough boy, who is at present on furlough in Canada, was until his departure from France senior representative of the Canadian Y.M.C.A. staff. He went to France Nov. 20, 1914, and worked for three months with the British Y.M.C.A., acting as their military representative (they had no one in uniform). The duties at first were to take supplies from London to the newly organized branches in France, and at that time each shipment had to be personally conducted. Up to the beginning of 1915 a trunk full of stationary, ink, paper, etc., weighing about 250 lbs., would last the association in France about a week, and an instance of how the work has grown is shown by the fact that at the time the Poperinghe building was hit they had on hand 1,800,000 sheets of paper, which was the supply needed for free distribution by the Canadians alone for one month. The first shipment of canteen supplies to France was fifty cases of slab cake, some of which spoiled before it could be used, but now the Canadians alone use an average of 300 cases of supplies a day. The first Canadian division arrived in France without association equipment, but by the time the secon division arrived they had buildings and tents worth $1,000 and a great deal of equipment.

At first the association officers were looked upon as being unnecessary, and great difficulty was experienced in getting even a place to sleep. But in a few months association officers both in England and France demonstrated the fact that they could make a big contribution to the efficiency of the soldiers, and today the association in France has more requests from officers commanding for Y.M.C.A. officers and tents than it can fill.

Services at first were held without the assistance of books or music, and in old barns or any place that they could get rent free, but today each brigade in the Canadian corps has a well-equipped association tent or hut, and some brigades have three or four smaller branches. They own 18 pianos and have ordered ten more, 84 grafonolas, and over a thousand records, all the hymn books and testaments they can use, and a very valuable assortment of athletic equipment.

Captain Pearson will address a meeting for women at the Public Library on Monday afternoon; a meeting of the Retailers at 6:30, and will address the Peterborough Club at 8:30. Chas. W. Bishop, secretary of the National Council, will also be here for the three meetings.

GIRL DECIDES NIGHT RIDE NOT WORTH $50,000

VIOLET BRAHAM, WHO ASKED DAMAGES FROM WEALTHY MAN, DISCONTINUES SUIT.

CAME TO IN BATH TUB

NEW YORK, Nov. 25. Violet Braham, 18 years old, agreed with a few million other persons that there's no place like home yesterday when Justice Philbin of the Supreme Court discontinued her suit for $50,000 damages for alleged assault against Samuel S. Long, wealthy varnish manufacturer, and she decided to return to her parents in Grand Forks, N.D.

Violet first came into notice this spring by winning in her home town a comfortable sum in an action for personal injuries. With her ambitions fired, she bade good-bye to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Braham, and set out for New York.

Arriving here in June, she put up in the Hotel McAlpin in a room costing $4 a day. When she left the hotel on the evening of June 6 she said in her affidavit submitted in court she noticed an automobile sidling up to her in Thirty-fourth St., near Park avenue, and she received an invitation to a free ride from its occupant, Mr. Long, who was a stranger to her, but who immediately "impressed her as a gentleman."

Miss Braham said she accepted the offer innocently. In the limousine her narrative continued, Mr. Long took her to various resorts in Central Park, the Pelham section, and Broadway, the purpose being mainly, it appeared, to sample certain quaint concoctions which Mr. Long described as soft drinks." At one inn, according to Violet's statement, Mr. Long positively forced his large diamond ring upon her in exchange for a smile.

About 2 a.m. Miss Graham, feeling there was no place left to see except the McAlpin, asked to be taken to the hotel so she could sleep off the evening's excitement. She says that Mr. Long agreed, but as her brain was skidding strangely from sleepiness, or something, she declares she did not notice that he carted her to a different hotel in Forty-ninth St. until she took a bath there.

The shock of cold water aroused her, acording to her statement, and gong to the room where Mr. Long was she repeated her request to be taken to the McAlpin. Her affidavit relates that Mr. Long refused to comply until she returned his diamond ring and an an uproar ensued that attracted clerks and attendants.

It ended, her story runs, when Mr. Long gave her a cheque for $50 which she demanded from him in order to learn his name and not for the purpose of getting money. She stated she did not cash the cheque after bringing suit against him for $50,000. William A. Sweetser, the attorney who filed the action for her, sent her to the home of a woman acquaintance in 27 West Eighty-second St., and there, after some crisp correspondence from the old folks at home she decided to drop both the action and New York.

Attorney Sweetser opposed her motion for a dismissal of her complaint, asserting that Violet had told him that a man had offered her $500 at Fifth avenue and Thirtieth Street just for making a few little marks on a paper, and that she remarked, "The money really looked very good to me."

But Miss Braham insisted on a dismissal in an affidavit in which she repudiated her charges against Mr. Long, including the accusation that he had induced her to drink anything which could upset her poise. She said she did drink wine on the big night, but the truth was she liked it. So Justice Philbin granted her motion.

THE GEISHA

PRETTY STORY TOLD IN ITS STAGE PRESENTATION.

The reproduction of the Geisha, or the Story of a Tea House, in the Grand Opera House next week in aid of the funds of the Progressive Club by Mr. R. J. Devey will recall to some people the quaint story written by Mr. Owen Hall and set to music by Sydney Jones of the adventures abroad of a yachting party and several officers of the Royal Navy stationed with their ship in Far Eastern waters. To many, however, the operatic libretto will be new.

Wun-Hi, a Chinaman, runs a tea house outside the limits of a treaty port, and the ship's officers when on leave make this a rendezvous. Lady Constance Wynne and her lady friends also discover the tea house and Lieut. Fairfax, in company with a beautiful singing girl, which she resents, as he is engaged to one of her guests, Molly Seamore. Marquis Imari, governor of the province, also discovers the officer, with the singing girl he has set his heart on marrying and angrily orders Wun Hi to be sold up, girls as well. Molly Seymour comes to the house in a rickshaw and in fun puts on a Jap. kimona, not knowing of the sale, and is sold off with the rest, becoming the property of the Marquis Imari, who was outbid by Lady Constance for the girl he wanted. In the second act the ruined Chinaman and a French tea girl plot to restore the English girl to her friends, assisted by the chief Geisha, O Mimosa San, and in a weird fortune telling scene frighten the governor into admitting the French girl into the palace, who, procuring the English dress for Molly Seamore, restores her to her friends and takes her place as the bride. The scores contains many beautiful numbers, notably, The Amorous Goldfish, A Geisha's Life, Pearl of the Radiant Eastern Sea, Star of My Soul, The Jewel of Asia Toy Duett, Chon Kina, Toy Monkey, Ching a ring a ree, and the Interfering Parrot.

REFERENCE WORK MADE EASY AT PUBLIC LIBRARY

AN ARTICLE CONTRIBUTED BY MR. F. M. DELAFOSSE, LIBRARIAN.

First of all, consult the catalogue; failing this, consult the encyclopaedias; failing these, ask the librarian or his assistants to help you in your search. These preliminary remarks are made, first, because not a day passes that one does not notice people wandering up and down the aisles in quest of a book of whose whereabouts they have not the faintest idea, and, secondly, because there are many instances in which neither encyclopaedias nor catalogue can help one, and assistance has to be asked of those who, as their custodians, may be assumed to know where they are to be found.

Now, as regards consulting encyclopaedias and catalogues, there is nothing much to be said. It is an easy enough matter for anyone to consult either of these reference agencies. The real difficulty arises when some question looms up wherein the resources of both fail to satisfy the enquirer. It is just here where reference work proves its value from the intellectual standpoint because it causes one's mental powers to get into action in the endeavor to reach the proper source of information. But it would be foolish to aver that anyone can make a success of reference work without a certain well-defined background of knowledge to work upon. It is not necessary to be a very advanced scholar, but it is necessary that one should possess that modicum of learning which will enable the prosecution of research along certain mapped-out lines. Take, for instance, such a subject as Patriotism. If one were to look for an article on Patriotism in the Encyclopaedia, the amount of information he would obtain would be somewhat disappointing. He would have to go further afield, and, by seeking in the right quarter, he would get very valuable information in the articles on Civilization and Geography. Very little consideration will suffice to show that patriotism is aroused by geographical conditions, and that it must also necessarily figure in anything bearing on civilization.

A short time ago a request was made for the name of the author of the well-known lines:

"Be good, sweet maid, and let who will be clever,
Do noble things, not dream them
all day long;
And so make life, death, and that vast forever,
One glad sweet song."

It was an easy enough matter to say off-hand that the author was Charles Kingsley, but it was not so easy to say where the poem could be found, as we did not possess a copy of Kingsley's Poems in the Library. But the course to be followed was simple. There were anthologies of poetry on the shelves, and in one or another it was fairly certain the lines could be found. It was discovered in Ward's Anthology. Most people are under the impression that the four lines quoted comprise the whole poem. As a matter of fact, it is the second of a two-stanza poem, entitled "A Farewell,' the first stanza of which runs thus:

"My fairest child, I have no song to give you;
No lark could pipe to skies so dull and gray;
Yet, ere we part, one lesson I can leave you
For every day."

One difficult problem that confronts reference workers is the hunting up of material on imperfect data. The following is an instance:

"Can you tell me, please, who was the author of the saying, "Virtue alone is true gentility"? Not being acquainted with the saying, the librarian had recourse to all the volumes dealing with quotations, but found nothing, simply because the key word of the sentence had not been given. It took some thinking before the right word was hit upon and a satisfactory solution made. The proper rendering of the line is, "Virtue alone is true nobility." It was written by Gifford, most probably William Gifford, first editor of the Quarterly Review, and occurs in the following quatrain:

"Fond man, though all the heroes of your line
Bedeck your halls, and round your galleries shine
In proud display; yet take this truth from me—
Virtue alone is true nobility."

The above serves to show the great value of accuracy in dealing with reference work. If a person does not come properly prepared, he not only is at sea himself, but is very apt to put those who wish to help him at sea also.

Origin and Authorship.

Another and a hypothetical case is given to show the wonderful importance that attaches to the conserving of extracts from newspapers or periodicals. Librarians are often asked for information as to the origin and authorship of hymns. In the majority of cases enquirers can be satisfied by referring them to Julian's Dictionary of Hymnology. But even in that valuable work there are many instances where nothing but the name of the author is given, and one is left ignorant of the facts concerning his or her personality.

Most of us know the well-known hymn beginning

"Holy Father, in Thy mercy, Hear our anxious prayer—"

Julian tells us that the authoress was Isabella S. Stephenson, and nothing more, but on looking at the catalogue reserved for clippings and magazine articles, we find an article on this very hymn, from which the following extract is taken:

During the war few hymns have become so popular as the one "For Absent Friends," which is found in "Hymns Ancient and Modern" and other hymn-books. The Rev. J. B. Stopford, rector of St. Mark's, West Gordon, has published a 2d. pamphlet dealing with the history of the hymn, with story illustrations. "We owe the popularity of the lines," says Mr. Stopford, "in the first instance to the King and his navy. They were inserted in a small hymn-book of H.M.S. Bacchante long before they found their way into any other collection. It came about in this way: The authoress was a Miss Isabel Stephenson, who lived at Cheltenham with her father and mother, and died there in 1889. A loved brother went out to South Africa, and the pang of separation called forth the verses. They were written in the 'Seventies of last century and were privately circulated; some friends received copies in the authoress' own hand-writing. Among others into whose hands the hymn came was Mrs. Purefoy Fitzgerald, whose son was at that time a young officer in Her Majesty's fleet and was serving on board the Bacchante. On the same ship were the grandsons of Queen Victoria; they were on their famous voyage round the world. Mr. Fitzgerald, now Admiral Purefoy, received from his mother a printed copy of the hymn, and it became known to the young princes, who liked it so much that it was used at services on board. Queen Alexandra received a copy from her sons. The hymn's first use in public worship was by sailors "tossing on the angry sea," and it passed from this use into Hymns Ancient and Modern and Church Hymns.

IT'S A SHAME

To see so many people in the city of Peterborough suffering from backache, kidney trouble and rheumatism when they can be relieved by using a medicine of undoubted value. Instead of describing your ailments and having a sorrowful story to tell to your friends, just as soon as you can, after reading this notice, send or telephone to Lynch's Drug Store for a bottle of Dr Banta's Kidney and Rheumatic Pills. You will be surprised how quickly you will receive good results from them.

New taxes to yield 600,000,000 francs have been decided on by the Appropriation Committee of the French Chamber of Deputies.

A Superb Gift to your Family

ON this page you see the photograph of Zenatello, the great Italian dramatic tenor recently knighted by the King of Italy. He is singing in direct comparison with Edison's Re-Creation of his marvelous voice. Zenatello is but one of the many great artists who have proved in this manner that Edison's new invention Re-creates every voice and every form of music with such literal perfection that, when heard in comparison with the original, it is impossible to distinguish one from the other.

The New Edison has been submitted to the acid test of direct comparison with living artists before more than 200,000 music lovers. It has never failed to sustain this astonishing test. The music critics of more than 200 of America's leading newspapers bear testimony to this fact in the columns of their own papers. We shall be glad to show you what the critics say.

Will there be real music in your home at Christmas?

A talking machine gives but a hollow imitation of music. The New Edison is not a talking machine. The New Edison gives you the literal Re-Creation of music. In speaking of it, the New York Tribune said: "Edison has snared the soul of music." The New York Globe called it "the phonograph with a soul." We want you to investigate this wonderful new invention.

WAS ASSESSED $5.10

A farmer of North Monaghan who thought it was cheaper to feed his horse in the rear of a George Street store than pay 10c to a hotelman for shed room found to his sorrow this morning that he was wrong.

Police Magistrate Dumble felt that the owners of standard hotels were entitled to protection, and imposed a fine of $2 and costs, a total of $5.10, as a warning to others.

This will be the first of a number of summonses which will be laid against people who trespass on private property in order to get out of paying the stabling fee as now charged by the hotels.

CAR OFF RAILS

A TIE-UP IN TRAFFIC AT HOARD'S STATION.

Two cars of a double-headed freight train jumped the track at Hoard's station last night and tied up the passenger traffic for some hours.

Before the auxiliary engine from Lindsay had the track clear it was found necessary to send Conductor Jobbit with the Lakefield train down, and transfer the passengers from the Belleville train and take them to Lindsay.

It was about three o'clock this morning when the Lakefield crew got home.

Hard Working Women

Will Find New Strength Through the Use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

It is useless to tell a hard-working woman to take life easily and not to worry. Every woman at the head of a home; every girl in offices, shops and factories is subjected to more or less worry. These cannot be avoided. But it is the duty of every woman and every girl to save herman and every girl to save her strength as much as possible, and to build up her system to meet unusual demands. Her future health depends upon it. To guard against a breakdown in health the blood must be kept rich, red and pure. To keep the blood in this condition nothing can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They strengthen the nerves, restore the appetite, bring the glow of health to pallid cheeks and renewed energy to listless people. Women cannot always rest when they should, but they can keep up their strength and keep away disease by the occasional use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Mrs. N. E. Tompsett, Ottawa, Ont., writes: "For several years I suffered terribly from nervous debility and was scarcely able to do a thing. During that time I consulted several doctors, and used many medicines without getting any help, and I began to think that I would never get better. One day I saw Dr. Williams' Pink Pills advertised and thought I would try them. After taking four boxes I was much better, but I continued using the pills for several months, when I was again in the best of health. When I began taking the pills I weighed only 100 pounds. While under their use with my renewed health I now weigh 140. I recommend Dr. Williams,' Pink Pills to everyone whom I knew to be ailing."

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills from any dealer in medicine, or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

RESTORE THE NATURAL SIGHT

A. A. FOWLER IS CHOICE OF EAST-SIDE RESIDENTS FOR THE SCHOOL BOARD

Ashburnhamites Convinced They Are Entitled to a Say in Educational Affairs---Ald. Evans' Good Work for His Constituents.

ASHBURNHAM today has no representative on the School Board, although it contains one of the best school buildings in the city. The residents, always ambitious to advance the interests of their section of the city and always quietly working to secure what they regard as justice, are not disposed to accept present conditions. They have decided to combine their forces and to elect a member of the Board of Education, feeling that they are as much entitled to one as they are to representatives in the City Council.

Mr. A. A. Fowler, the well-known eyesight specialist, is the man upon whom popular choice has been fixed for this particular civic honor. Mr. Fowler has been a resident of Ashburnham for over twenty-five years and knows every resident of the ward. He numbers his friends by the score throughout the entire city. He has been in business for the past twenty years, for fourteen years in his present line, so that his acquaintance with the electorate is general. Mr. Fowler has always taken an active interest in the affairs of the city and in the schools especially. The residents of Ashburnham feel that he is the one man among them for the position, and he can have the nomination if he says the word. His strength, it is assured, will not be confined to his own district, but he will find active supporters in all sections of the city.

MR. A. A. FOWLER

Since Ashburnham was annexed to the city the east side has had only three representatives on the School Board. The second of these, Dr. Middleton, was defeated three years ago by John H. Smith. The defeat of Dr. Middleton is easily accounted for as at the time he faced the people for the second time he was moving across the river, and the voters naturally transferred their allegiance to Mr. Smith, the local man. The latter one year ago was beaten by a narrow margin. He is a personal friend and neighbor of Mr. Fowler and could render the latter valuable aid in a campaign.

And There Was Light.

Ashburnham is gradualy coming into its own. One short year ago the residents of that section depended upon the moon for their nocturnal light. No cautious Ashburnhamite ventured forth on a moonless or cloudy night without equipping himself with a lantern to avoid the risk of colliding with other pedestrians or precipitating himself into the gutter. Thanks to the work of Ald. Evans, they have artificial illumination now in abundance until their section is as bright under the evening sky as any section of the city. The northern portion of Ashburnham has more adequate fire protection now, a new fire alarm box being among the improvements made during the past twelve months. Every pledge made during the campaign of last year has been carried out to the letter.

The New Foot Bridge.

Ald. Evans has had opportunities during the past year to work for the benefit of his ward as chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Committee. Careful management has made it not only possible for him to approach the end of the year with a surplus, but placed him in a position to help out the railway committee to the tune of $450. This amount was required to supplement the funds of the latter committee in order to build the foot bridge across the C. P. R. bridge, so that Ald. Evans is really entitled to the credit for this improvement, which will be a veritable blessing to the residents in the south end on both sides of the river.

Street Railway Wanted.

Ashburnhamites realize that the proper degree of development will be impossible of attainment until the street car system is extended across the river. The foot bridge is a compromise, but it will tend to relieve the situation. The residents realize that before they can hope for a street car service a high level bridge must be built at Hunter street, and there is little chance for that until the close of the war. That was generally understood one year ago when the different candidates, including Mayor Duffus, announced their platforms.

It has been suggested that the car line be extended across the bridge ready for the ties, at the Auburn dam, and built from that point through Ashburnham to Little Lake. Future needs may call for such a line, but the majority of the residents feel that prospects are remote and that, anyway, it would be incomplete without a connecting link at Hunter street.

Prospective Candidates.

But even Ald. Evans is not likely to have a walkover. He is not looking ing for an election by acclamation as he would prefer to be returned on his merits and not owe his reelection to public indifference. J. H Smith may be a candidate for alderman, and other east-siders mentioned are G. L. Hay and Frank Whitehouse.

Geisha Rehearsal.

A Geisha rehearsal will be held tonight at 7:30.

DRINK HOT WATER IF YOU DESIRE A ROSY COMPLEXION

Says we can't help but look better and feel better after an inside bath.

To look one's best and feel one's best is to enjoy an inside bath each morning to flush from the system the previous day's waste, sour fermentations and poisonous toxins before they are absorbed into the blood. Just as coal, when it burns, leaves behind a certain amount of incombustible material in the form of ashes, so the food and drink taken each day leave in the alimentary organs a certain amount of indigestible material which, if not eliminated, form toxins and poisons, which are then sucked into the blood through the very ducts which are intended to suck in only nourishment to sustain the body.

If you want to see the glow of healthy bloom in your cheeks, to see your skin get clearer and clearer, you are told to drink every morning upon arising a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, which is a harmless means of washing the waste material and toxins from the stomach, liver, kidneys, and bowels, thus cleansing and purifying the entire alimentary tract before putting more food into the stomach.

Men and women with sallow skins, liver spots, pimples or pallid complexion, also those who wake up with a coated tongue, bad taste, nasty breath, others who are bothered with headaches, bilious spells, acid stomach or constipation, should begin this phosphated hot water drinking, and are assured of very pronounced results in one or two weeks.

A quarter pound of limestone phosphate costs very little at the drug store, but is sufficient to demonstrate that just as soap and hot water cleanses, purifies and freshens the skin on the outside, so hot water and limestone phosphate act on the inside organs. We must always consider that internal sanitation is vastly more important than outside cleanliness, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, while the bowel pores do.

Drastic Change For Canadians

OTTAWA, Nov. 25.—A statemnet given out by the Militia Department says in part:—

"It is altogether possible that the practice of authorizing, recruiting and sending battalions overseas intact will be discontinued, and further that some of the battalions at present authorized and recruited in Canada will b converted into draft-giving battalions.

"There are a number of battalions in Canada which have not as yet been able to recruit up to strength and the advisability of amalgamation of such with other similar battalions is receiving the consideration of the department.

"It is expected that a number of senior officers now in England will be given an opportunity of reverting and going to the front. Unless their services can be utilized for military duty they will be given an opportunity of returning to civil life until their services are needed."

$200 FINES

Two young farmers, one from North Monaghan, and the other from Smith, were charged by License Inspector Stewart before County Magistrate Langley this morning with a breach of the Ontario License Act and each was fined $200 and costs. Both defendants pleaded guilty to the charge.

It is understood that both of the men took liquor to a threshing and gave it to persons there, an act that is directly contrary to the law, which forbids anyone from having any intoxicant except at their own homes.

than ten years. We have still room for a largely increased population, and the war has made it more than ever important that we should conserve infant life, and make sure that it shall be healthy and vigorous.

By the time the war is over the English people may expect to have acquired a number of very good ways. Among other things they will have learned (in summer at all events) the virtues of early to bed and early to rise, to drink within limited hours, and to do their shopping well before bedtime. The new order under which most shops are to close at 8 in the evening, except on Saturdays, ought to be a boon to everybody and incidentally it will conserve our resources by conserving coal and light. And to save coal is becoming a virtue of the first water. We shall gradually be compelled to dine earlier and to amuse ourselves earlier. We had become a very late country—late in the morning and late at night—and it is to be hoped these good new habits will continue after the emergencies which have produced them have happily passed away.

A keenly felt want is filled by the opening of the Imperial Nurses' Club at 137 Ebury street, London S. W. The work of the nurses in this war has been admirable and devoted beyond all praise, and their numbers are now very large, but it is a fact that they stand almost alone in no provision having been made for their comfort and refreshment when off duty. In many cases they have no friends in London, having come up to undertake their heavy tasks from long distances, often indeed from overseas, and there is nothing in their brief spaces off duty to alleviate the heavy pressure of the calls upon them. Yet their claims upon the gratitude of the public and of the myriads who have benefited directly from their ministrations is incontestable. So the idea has originated of this home of peace, to which the nurses can look for rest and quiet and meet their friends when not on duty.

OLD COUNTRY JOTTINGS

The following advertisement appears in The Church Times (Church of England): "A Catholic clergyman wanted for South Elmsall immediately. Charge of mission church. Daily mass. West Riding. Eastward position. Evangelical. No higher critic. No spike. Married or single. House or lodging. Mining population. Zepps occasionally."

Mr. G. W. E. Russell's book, "Portraits of the Seventies," is already having a very large circulation. It is a lively account of the external features of the many distinguished persons whom he had known. Your readers may be interested to know what G. W. E. Russell thought of the late Mr. Joseph Chamberlain and Mr. Parnell and Lord Hartington. I select these three because their names were and are as well known in Canada as in England.

He remarks that Mr. Joseph Chamberlain's resemblance to Pitt "began and ended with the angle of the nose," and continues:

Pitt was tall, gaunt, stiff and supremely dignified. Chamberlain was rather short than tall; not the least dignified; singularly pliant and active. The extreme alertness of look and manner and movement irresistibly suggested the associations of the counter, and Gilbert's

Pushing young particle—

Threepenny 'bus young man.

His whole appearance was conspicuously neat and glossy. He looked, to use the common phrase, as if he had just come out of a bandbox—but critics said that it was a provincial bandbox. He wore his tie in a ring and displayed his handkerchief outside his frock-coat like a star.

Two pages back, Mr. Russell says of the same man:

"I never had a disagreeable word from him, and, even after the disruption, many kind ones." But Mr. Chamberlain had committed the unpardonable sin; he had upset Mr. Gladstone, and Mr. Russell never forgave him.

Of Mr. Parnell Mr. Russell has this to say:

That Parnell should have established so complete an ascendancy over the Irish people, from whom he was separated by every circumstance of blood, faith, speech and temperament, is, of course, a striking testimony to what, in the jargon of the present day, is called his "personality." That he should have seemed "majestic," "regal," "prince-like," and all the rest of it, to the rabble of shop-boys, booking-clerks, whiskey-sellers, and gombeen-men who formed his political following, is not so remarkable; for at any rate he had the appearance, manners and bearing of an English gentleman.

Perhaps Mr. Russell's warmest tribute of praise is that which he pays to Lord Hartington, known in later times as Duke of Devonshire, an uncle of our new Governor-General. He asks:

"What was the dominant characteristic of Hartington's nature? I say Honesty...... A professional politician on my own side once said to me with a significant snuffle, 'Hartington can't be bought.' By special grace I was able to forbear the too obvious reply; but the politician was right. Not the strongest inducement that political life has to offer prevailed to move Hartington by a hair's breadth from the course which commended itself to his judgment. He said what he meant and meant what he said...... The same straightforwardness which he practised he expected from others, and where there was any departure from it he did not spare the offender."

This is from The Church Times: "We regret to learn that St. Paul's Cathedral was demolished in the course of a Zeppelin raid in October, 1915. The authorities have naturally been very reticent in the matter, but it seems no longer possible to conceal the fact, as photographs of the ruined cathedral are in circulation in Germany. With imperturbable British hypocrisy we give this week a sermon alleged to have been preached in St. Paul's last Sunday."

Whatever individual views upon the use of alcohol in England may be, we are all agreed that the nation consumes too much of it. Thus it is more than gratifying to learn that between April and September this year there was a reduction over the same period last year of two million barrels in the consumption of beer, and that we drank little more than half the quantity of spirits. For this improvement we have mainly to thank the Liquor Control Board which, by careful regulation and bold experiment, has helped the country to keep in its pockets, or to lend to the State, money needed for the prosecution of the war.

The large and comprehensive scheme for the saving and strengthening of child life which has been outlined by the Home Secretary at Oxford is, in many ways, the most important social departure ever taken by an English government. It provides a chain of organization for watching over the health and welfare of the child from a very early stage until it goes to school—its physical interests after that date are already provided for.

How vast is the field for effort in this direction we may gather from the fact that, thanks to the determined efforts that have been made, infant mortality has been reduced by nearly one-third in little more

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

BANKS—FLETCHER.

A very pretty military wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Fletcher, in the township of South Monaghan (Bensfort), formerly of Hovingham, Yorkshire, England, when their youngest daughter, Eva E., was united in marriage to C. Q. M. Sergt. Robert H. Banks, of the 234th Battalion (Peel's Pride), Toronto, he being the fourth son of Henry Banks, Esq., Toronto, formerly of Ampleforth, Yorkshire, England.

Promptly at 3 o'clock Miss Jean Finney, presided at the organ, and the bridal party entered the artistically decorated drawing-room to the strains of the wedding march, the groom, clad in khaki, standing under a beautiful arch of evergreens, which was banked and overhung with the Union Jack. Little Velma Nurse acted as ring-bearer.

The bride, who was attired in a travelling suit of navy blue serge, with large hat trimmed with fur to match, was duly presented by her father for marriage, and the ceremony was performed by Rev. W. T. Wickett, Fraserville, pastor of the bride, in the presence of a few of the immediate relatives and friends.

Congratulations having been extended, the guests partook of a sumptuous wedding dinner, after which the happy couple left by motor, amid showers of good wishes, for an extended trip. Mr. and Mrs. Banks will reside at 627 Quebec street, Toronto (West).

The groom's gift to the bride was a set of lynx furs, while among the presents, which were numerous and useful, there was a variety shower by the members of the community, and a cut-glass dish which was presented by the choir of the Bensfort Methodist Church, in which the bride had served as organist.

All join in tendering best wishes to Mr. and Mrs. Banks for a long, prosperous and useful life.

MR. H. M. BISHOP STATES CASE IN HIS OWN BEHALF

TROUBLE WITH PRINCIPAL OF QUEEN MARY SCHOOL AND TEACHER.

ASKS THAT DAUGHTER BE ALLOWED TO ATTEND SOUTH CENTRAL.

Mr. H. M. Bishop, who is engaged in a dispute with the School Board, in which two of his children, formerly pupils in the Queen Mary School, are involved, sends the following letter to The Review and assumes all responsibility for the statements made. One of the pupils, a son of Mr. Bihop, is attending the South Central School, by special permission of the school authorities. All that Mr. Bishop asks for is that the same privilige be extended to his daughter, who has been kept out of school since last February owing to a difference with the principal and one of the teachers at Queen Mary School. The issue is a matter between Mr. Bishop and the Board, and The Review publishes the letter without committing itself as to the merits of the case.

Editor Review: Since my letter of November 11th appeared in your paper I have been favored with an interview with Mr. Mowat, the inspector of Public Schools, and learned to my great surprise that the reason why my daughter has not been permitted to attend the South Central School is because no direct charge had been made concerning her case.

I cannot understand why every technical point should be seized upon by the chairman of the investigating committee to keep the child from school, when he and the inspector know fully well every feature in connection with the trouble, or at least should know, as the circumstances have been given to them by the writer

To give the plain facts, Muriel was forced to stay away from school on account of the action and statement of the principal, Mr. J. F. Voaden. His words to Mrs. Bishop were as follows: "They (meaning Stanley and Muriel) are both lying, and if you are going to continue to believe their lies, take them out of school; there will be no more trouble and I don't want to hear anything more about it."

The insult is too great to be overlooked, when a parent knows his children have not lied, and to say that we, as parents, resent any such ungentlemanly conduct, is putting it mildly.

All we ask is to have the privilege of sending Muriel to the South Central School with her brother, and thus comply with the instructions given by the principal to take her from Queen Mary School.

When Trouble Started

This trouble started last February, and we have not been approached by those in authority to get the matter straightened out, until since Nov. 11th, the inspector claiming that he had no grounds for making inquiry as to the reason for Muriel's absence from school, that he understood that the child was keeping in touch with the school work by getting the home-work from the scholars as they came from school, and while this is quite true, it appears to me as evidence of the fact that those in authority were quite satisfied to let matters stand, and thus avoid granting a fair and open investigation. It would also cause us to think that it is simply a case of letting the Bishop family suffer, and they will be forced to submit to the treatment they have received, and this mode of procedure might possibly serve as an object lesson to other parents not to take any interest in the school work and in this way the principal and teacher would automatically become exonerated from any wrong-doing.

I was informed by the Principal that parents should not be interested in their children's work at school but rather leave that part of their training entirely to the teaching staff.

Who, with any sense of parental responsibility, can agree with such doctrine. We are looking for advancement of our children and gladly sustain any teacher who will hold them up to a proper standard of discipline, and even punish for inattention and imperfect recitation, but to send my children into a room where scholars are made targets of by the teacher throwing black-board erasers, rulers, etc., at them, and using such phrases as "Your tongue is as long as from here to Toronto;" "Your head is as empty as a rain barrel." "Don,t laugh at him, or you will make an idiot of him.", does not appeal to me as sending them where conditions are of such a nature that much progress can be expected.

Discipline Essential

Discipline is a very essential feature in a school room, but to punish a scholar for a slight mischievous move when forming lines and allowing the scholar to go unpunished for innumerable mistakes in the work, caused by inattention, is not good school management and this has been my unfortunate experience in connection with one form in the Queen Mary School.

All I ask is to be relieved from those conditions by allowing my daughter to attend the South Central School.

I thank you, Mr Editor, for the space given this letter and hope that it may serve the purpose of allowing parents to become acquainted with conditions under which some of our children are forced to receive their education.

OTTAWA, Nov. 25.—The officials of McLeod Street Church assembled in large numbers to welcome back to duty the pastor, Rev. Isaac Couch, M.A., B.D. The pastor has been off duty for some time in order to regain his health, and the congregation has been patiently waiting for his return. As Mr. Couch entered the room accompanied by Dr. Armstrong, recording steward, the officials rose and sang "Blessed Be the Tie That Binds." Mr. Couch feelingly thanked the board for its greetings and continued kindness, and rejoiced with the members that he had been restored to health, and at their request he would now resume his duties. The officials then stood and sang "Praise God from Whom All Blessings Flow," and approached the pastor, bidding him a welcome return on behalf of the congregation.

Rev. I. Couch was pastor of the George Street Methodist Church prior to Rev. R. G. Peever taking the pastorate.

MEMORIAL SERVICE HELD AT ST. JOHN'S CHURCH LAKEFIELD.

LAKEFIELD, Nov. 27.—A memorial service was held in St. John's Church last night as a tribute to the supreme sacrifice paid by Pte. William Rowe, a member of the congregation. Mention was also made of Pte. John Hull, another Lakefield soldier who had also died on the battlefield.

Rev. A. W. Mackenzie in his sermon paid great tribute to the Lakefield men who were overseas fighting for the honor of King, the Empire and Canada, and he specially mentioned Ptes. W Rowe and J. Hull, whose bodies lay buried on the fields of Flanders.

The splendid honor roll of the congregation was pointed out and prayers were offered for the comfort of those bereaved, and the safety of the men now on duty in the trenches or military camps.

WM. HILL IS COMMITTED TO STAND TRIAL

DECLINED TO PLEAD OR ELECT AT HEARING BEFORE MAGISTRATE.

HIDE IS IDENTIFIED.

WM. DAVIS TELLS COURT OF HIS LOSS OF ONE YOUNG STEER.

William Hill had his preliminary examination before County Magistrate Langley at the Court Magistrate Langley at the Court House this morning. The charge against him was stealing a steer from William Davis of the township of Dummer, some time during the months of September or October of 1916. When arraigned the prisoner declined to elect or plead.

William Davis, the victim of the aleged theft, told of having pastured cattle in different parts of the township. He had missed four steers from the field on the 7th line, but the three-year olds have been found on the Hill farm and brought back. The fourth, a two-year-old, had never returned. There was no place for it to get out, but there was a small opening large enough for the smaller ones to get out. He had made a search for the animal and had been informed of an animal being sold which answered the description. He had identified the hide at a Peterborough hide dealers's on Haggart street (Carton's old packing house). The red and white markings were peculiar and he had his private mark on the ear. There were several farmers who lost cattle there at the same time along with Constable Moore and Detective Newhall. The hide was produced in court and again identified.

In his cross-examination Mr. Davis admitted that cattle had been let out of his pasture on other occasions. He could identify the hide without the private marking.

Committed for Trial

H. A. Perry identified the hide produced in court as one that he had purchased in Hastings.

J. N. Simpson, a butcher of Hastings, identified William Hill as the man who sold him the steer in question. The identification was also strengthened by Simpson's daughter.

After hearing all the evidence the magistrate committed the defendant for trial.

The case against Davis Hill will be heard by Judge Huycke tomorrow morning.

BOBCAYGEON FAMILY INTHE WAR

Since the war broke out, six members of the Boyd family of Bobcaygeon have been in khaki, three of them have paid the supreme price, and the others are on duty in different parts of the Empire. The six men are:

Pte. Thornton H. Boyd, P. P. C. L. I.—Killed in action some months ago.

Lieut. Ormsby Boyd, Lancashire Regt.—Killed some months ago in Mesopotamia.

Lieut. Mossom R. Boyd, 59th Batt'n, C. E. F.—Reported believed to be killed a few days ago.

Lieut. W. W. Boyd, Canadian Artillery.—In France.

Lieut. Herbert Boyd, British Mechanical Transport Division.

Flight Lieut. Laurie C. Boyd, Royal Flying Corps.—On active service in Northwest India.

Pte. Thornton Boyd (killed) was a son of Mr W. T. C. Boyd, of Bobcaygeon, and Lieuts. Ormsby Boyd and Mossom R. Boyd (both reported killed) are sons of Capt. H. Boyd, medical officer of the 109th Battalion, now overseas.

LT. REGINALD STRATTON AWARDED MILITARY CROSS

Another Peterboro' Soldier Wins Decoration.

Another Peterborough young man at the front has covered himself with glory and brought new honors to his city and country. Lieut. J. R. Stratton has been awarded the Military Cross for distinguished bravery on the field of battle. A cablegram containing the news was received yesterday by Mr. A. H. Stratton, the young man's father, from his son, Wilfrid, an older boy, who is in the Aviation Corps of the British army, holding the rank of Lieutenant. Mrs. Strattion, in company with Mrs. T. F. Matthews, is now in Europe on a visit to her sons.

Lieut. Stratton, whose gallant conduct has been appreciated and rewarded by a grateful Empire, was as a student one of Peterborough's brightest young men. The signal honor which has been conferred upon him is all the more significant when it is stated that the young man was only 19 years old on his last birthday, June 24th. In 1913, after a brilliant course in the Collegiate Institute, he passed with honors the matriculation examination for Toronto University. After that he spent a year in the Royal Military College at Kingston.

The young man enlisted as soon as he was eligible by age for military service, with the 237th Field Company, 41st Division of the Royal Engineers. He left this city for England in August of last year, and spent the months until the following Christmas in training at Chatham Barracks. Since that time he has been on actived uty at the front, and his record has been among the best of the many enviable ones made by Canadians. Twice he has received honorable mention by his superior officers for conspicuous bravery while on duty.

The cablegram does not state for what particular gallant act among the many to his credit Lieut. Stratton has been decorated by the military authorities. Some months ago prominence was given to his heroism when, in company with a sergeant of his company, he braved death by rescuing wounded comrades from under a raking fire from the enemy. It is likely that this is the deed for which he has been awarded the mark of distinction. England holds the life of none of her soldiers lightly. The man, officer or private, who saves a comrade from death, has a greater honor in the eyes of his superior officer than the one who takes the lives of a score of the enemy, especially when the former feat is performed at the risk of his own existence.

MAJOR SNEATH WINS PRIZED DECORATION

The local friends of Major D'Arcy Sneath will be glad ot learn that he has been awarded the Military Cross. He led a company with great courage and initiative and organized and consolidated the position.

Major Sneath spent some time in Peterborough when the 8th Mounted Rifles were being recruited here. He was promoted from the rank of lieutenant on the field.

Lieut.-Col Ackerman, O.C. 247th Battalion, addressed the Ministerial Association this morning, when he explained the stiuation as regards recruiting and told of the methods he was adopting to further the work. The ministers passed the following resolution:

That we have heard with deepest interest the enlightening address by Lieut.-Col. C. H. Ackerman and are all seized with the pressing urgency of the matter of recruiting in general and with the work for the 247th Battalion in particular, and assure him of our heartiest sympathy during the months before us. And that we hereby commend to our people the special effort he is putting forth to accomplish the aim of organising a Peterborough battalion, believing the first duty of Christian civilisation in the present hour is to bring to a successful conclusion the great war in which we are engaged.

Arrangements were made for the co-operation of the clergy of the city in the recruiting campaign.

Pte. Vaughan Pearson, son of the Rev. E. A. Pearson, of Chatham, a former student at the Collegiate Institute here, has been named as one of two signallers for a new howitzer battery in England. This is quite an honor for him.

Mrs. Claude Brady has received a letter from Capt. Thos. H. Best, who sends condolences in the death of her brother, Pte. Peter White, who was officially reported killed. Pte. White met his death when in the trenches.

Sergt. LaPlante has written to his parents on Wescott street under date of October 28th saying that he was leaving for England for instructional training. He was reported wounded on October 10th.

A meeting of the manufacturers and business men of the city will be held in the Patriotic rooms on Simcoe street tomorrow evening at eight o'clock to discuss recruiting with Lt.-Col Ackerman and other officers.

Six fires within an hour and a half threw the population of Leamington into a state of great apprehension.

BUCHAREST ADMITS RETIREMENT

BUCHAREST, Nov. 27. — Roumanians have retired from the line of the River Alt, the war office announces.

BERLIN'S VERSION OF SITUATION.

ALD. EDGAR MAY DECIDE TO TRY FOR MAYORALTY

Mayor Duffus Has Made no Further Announcement With Regard to His Intention ---Likely Candidates in South Ward.

Some time ago Mayor Duffus stated in the columns of The Review that he had not decided whether or not to be a candidate for re-election to his present position. The only reason that he has for retiring at the end of his present term, if that be his final decision, is that his private business, which is constantly growing, requires all his time. If he remains in public life he will find it necessary to neglect either his civic duties or his own interests, and, naturally enough, he is not disposed to do either.

Mayor Duffus has added nothing to that statement, so that the voters are not yet familiar with his intentions. If he decides to run again, and is denied what is his right by old established precedent—a return by acclamation—there will be aldermen who will enter the lists against him. Ald. McIntyre, as was stated the other day, aspires to the mayoralty. Ald. Edgar, of the South Ward, has similar ambitions, the general impression being that he has kept that goal before him throughout his entire aldermanic career.

It must be said for Ald. Edgar that he has been an active member of Council, especially during the past year, and that he has always kept the interests of his ward to the front. He is a man with ideals in civic affairs. One of his pet hobbies is government by commission, something in the advocacy of which he found little encouragement from his colleagues. He was the only member of Council besides Ald. Dobbin who opposed the cut in civic salaries. One of his achievements through the new railway committee was the new footbridge, especially designed for the benfit of the section of the city which he represents, as well as for the residents in the southern portions of Ashburnham.

If Ald. Edgar drops from the aldermanic race to run for mayor, or if he decides to have another say at his present position, there is sure to be a contest for civic honors in the South Ward. Two likely candidates are Thomas Brown, one of the directors of the Peterborough Exhibition, and William Taylor, the well-known insurance man. The South Ward, like every other division in the city, has plenty of desirable men for public office and if the voters fail to get the best the fault rests upon no one but themselves.

Ald. McIntyre's Position

Ald. McIntyre stated to The Review this afternoon that he will not run for Mayor if Mayor Duffus is a candidate again. He believes in the principle of a second term and thinks that Mayor Duffus is entitled to a reelection if he seeks it. If the mayor decides to withdraw Ald. McIntyre says he will then announce his intentions.

George Savigny is another resident of the South Ward regarded by his friends as possessing all the requisites for civic service.

RUSSELL PATTERSON QUEEN'S GRADUATE.

J. Russell Patterson, who came home from overseas service in Egypt to complete his medical course at Queen's University as provided for by the authorities, is among fifty-six graduates announced from the university.

THE VOICES OF THE DEAD.

REV. R. G. PEEVER, in his eloquent and touching reference to the young men from George Street Methodist Church who have laid down their lives for the Empire—Lieut. Arthur Ross Ackerman, Lance-Corporal Harold Losey, and Privates James English, Norman Darling, Harry G. Edmison and Angus McIntosh—emphasized the point that, though dead, the heroes yet speak to those left in life. Greece could never, he said, have been free but for the inspiration of its gallant patriots long since passed away.

The spirit of Wellington today animates the men who, in the Somme trenches, are striving to break down a tyranny such as the Iron Duke, with an energy that never wearied, succeeded in crushing after long and bloody years of effort. Nelson bears a part in every naval battle in which the British tars engage.

The spirit of Abraham Lincoln still helps to shape the destiny of the nation which he saved not only from the reproach of slavery but from actual disruption. The precepts and examples of the fathers of Canadian Federation still live, although the last of the men who brought union out of discord and welded together warring factions into a virile nation has passed from earth.

The future of any country depends largely on its history. Heroes arise from the graves of the departed brave. The annals of warfare contain no accounts of sacrifices more unselfish, of deaths more illustrious, than those of Peterborough's young men, whose memory the living now delight to honor. The brightest and most inspiring chapters in Canada's history will be a recital of their heroism. For ages to come they will speak with all the power of a blameless record from their tombs, even though the burial place of some of them is unknown.

Greece in slavery called for a remnant of the Spartan band of old to free her people from the Turkish yoke—for only three of that invincible three hundred who held the pass of Thermopylae against the hosts of Persia. The appeal was not in vain:

> "The voices of the dead
> Sound like a distant torrent call,
> And answer,' Let one living head,
> But one arise, we come, we come.' "

SENDING BOYS TO BE SOLDIERS.

A WORKINGMAN writing to The Review the other day says that he has no sons, but that if he had boys of the right age he would insist upon their enlisting. The chances are that if such a man had had the good fortune to raise sons they would have inherited the spirit of their father and would have put on the khaki without any parental or other coercion.

Parents in Peterborough who have boys in the trenches or in honored graves in the battle zone, did not find it necessary to use either persuasion or authority to get the young fellows to answer the call. The good soldier goes of his own free will. He is not sent. The honor due the parents lies in the fact that they raised such offspring, not that they sent them, however severe may have been the sacrifice in parting from them.

SOME CITY NOISES.

AN IRATE SUBSCRIBER in the southern section of the city complains of the noise made after school hours and on Saturdays by boys who gather on vacant lots and engage in athletic games that are dear to the hearts of vigorous juveniles. He calls upon the police force to do something to abate the nuisance, as he terms it.

"Subscriber" should not worry if the vacant lots which abound in the city are producing some crop other than healthy specimens of burdocks. The boys who play in these places are growing up into useful citizens, their usefulness being in proportion to the ardor with which they engage in youthful pastimes. Have no fear for the future of the noisy, active boy, the cost of whose raiment is a serious consideration, due to his propensity to wear out his garments in active participation in healthy play. It is the quiet youth with the always exasperatingly immaculate attire who should be made the subject of parental solicitude.

Canadian boys these days are making considerable noise on the fighting line, and we venture the opinion that the din does not offend the senses of "Subscriber." If he pauses to investigate, he will find that the young fellows in the forefront of the battle now are the developed specimens of the active and strong-lunged little fellows he would suppress at home.

HELPING THE PUPILS.

A CITIZEN who has children attending the public schools of the city states that the principal of one of these schools told him that parents should not be interested in their children's work at school, but should leave that part of their training entirely to the teaching staff.

Is it not just possible that the principal was misunderstood, and that what he really said was that school discipline should not be impaired by parents setting up their children to oppose it, and that parents should not insist upon having their children taught according to theories of their own or by the system that was in favor when they themselves were at school?

The methods of imparting instruction from the lowest grade in our public schools to the graduating class in our colleges, has been changed—improved, too, beyond a doubt—just as have business and manufacturing systems. The teachers are trained in their profession. The parent who zealously attempts to supplement their efforts by taking a hand in teaching his own children after hours is more likely to work mischief than to accomplish any good. Even men who thirty years or so ago taught school and who in their day were regarded as tolerable educationists, are behind the age now in this regard. Set them today to instruct a class even in the rudiments, and their efforts would be greeted with amazement, probably derision, by the pupils themselves.

Leave expert work for those who are trained in that particular line, if efficiency is to be attained. If a man has sons or daughters at a business college learning the most modern system of bookkeeping, he should not pester them with disquisitions on the superseded system he himself learned years ago. The theology or law student is left in the hands of his professors. Parents should be content to have their children taught to read and to acquire other branches of knowledge by the modern methods as employed by those who have made them the subjects of special study.

A SUBSTITUTE FOR CONSCRIPTION.

THE VIEWS of an academician on any public question possess a peculiar interest for the reason that he gazes upon the world through a haze of erudition. All his opinions are formed by meditation in his library, his ideals live only in books, his study of human nature is confined to the students he meets in his class-room.

Speaking in Toronto, President Falconer, of the Provincial University, said: "If the whole of the community were to lead a simple life, to give up all extravagance, and live in a reasonable, quiet manner, there would be no need for conscription."

There is a pleasing sound about that statement, it is highly idealistic, but somehow or other the most of us will fail to get the point of the learned professor. The simplest life any one could possibly lead, the most economical course that could be adopted, would do nothing toward removing from the face of modern civilization the foulest blot ever placed upon it—the impressing by the German nation of Belgian men into slavery and the conscription of Belgian women into prostitution.

LIBERALISM AS OF YORE.

"PATRIOTISM dominated politics"; "There was nothing of mere carping party criticism." These are some of the phrases employed by The Globe in reporting the recent annual meeting in Toronto of the Ontario Reform Association.

In the ingenuous language of a contemporary, we want to believe this, but we cannot. The details of the report justify skepticism. It contradicts itself. For example, Mr. Rowell, speaking on his favorite theme, his recent visit to the battle line, said: "When one turns from the noble grandeur of Canadian service overseas to the indecision, the inefficiency and the graft of Canadian administration at home, is it any wonder that hot questionings burn the lips?" And the questions which Mr. Rowell proceeded to propound in the interests of party were calculated not only to burn lips but to blister any human tongue that uttered them.

Is there no party criticism, carping or otherwise, in such addresses? To what lengths would the Liberals go if they really decided to break all bounds? What would be their charges and insinuations if they gave themselves full swing?

How can young Canadians be expected to enlist when a man holding a prominent place in the public life of the Province goes from one end of the country to the other declaring that every soldier who is fighting the battles of Canada in Flanders is the victim of and has his life imperilled by the inefficiency of the Administration that sends him there, and that every new man who takes up arms is but another opportunity for those in authority to indulge further in a riot of graft?

The Liberals, in annual session, betrayed their hand. With them the winning of the next election is paramount, and victory in Europe a mere incident in the program.

POLITICAL MORALITY AT HOME.

IT IS A MATTER for congratulation that a local representative, at the recent meeting of the Reform Association at Toronto, advanced the claims of Peterborough for a place in the sun, and stood valiantly for political morality and purity in public service. When a resolution was introduced by a Western Ontario delegate demanding reformation in administration and a class of office holders above reproach, a Peterborough delegate rose to the occasion and, without so much as a blush or a quiver of an eyelash, seconded the proposition.

Every little move in the interest of righteousness in politics helps some. The stand taken by the local man may divert, in a measure at least, public attention from the fact that the Liberal party while in power, maintained in this immediate district, encouraging them and extending to them official protection to the very end, a bunch of the boldest grafters who ever by good fortune have escaped the penitentiary.

NO MORE PICTURES OF SIR SAM FLASHED ON SCREEN AT MOVIES

"Let's go to the movies," suggested Ramble to his wife.

"It's too late," objected Mrs. Ramble. "We would have to sit down too close to the screen."

"So much the better," insisted Ramble. "We can watch the band."

"If it's the band you want, we can turn on the phonograph and stay at home and be entirely comfortable," said Mrs. Ramble.

"No," retorted Ramble. "You can get band music out of the phonograph, but you can't get theatre band music. The band has added a lot of new accomplishments to its repertoire since you last went. Time was was when the band played a supe part and confined itself to horse-hoof harmony and pant-ripping melody, but now the band is no longer a supe, but the star.

"Many a $10,000-a-minute comedian would get less than a vice-president's salary but for the zest added to his work by the band. When the comedian falls into the water the band plays the splash and then gives the hero's shivers perfectly. The band's performance is more expressive of wonder, admiration, fear, exhortation, entreaty and submission than the hero's visage.

"The band now makes nearly all the necessary noises we naturally miss in the picture, such as meowing cats, fellows kissing girls and eating soup—"

"How does the band play a kiss?"

"I don't know, but it does, and you can hear it, all right. And when the fellow eats soup you can hear every scoobie and splash! And when the comedian's pants catch fire and he starts to run, the band gets just the right comic expression on the crescendo——"

"How does the band reproduce the sound of burning trousers?" inquired Mrs. Ramble.

"Why, there is a kind of giggling to show the man's desire to speed up and if possible get away from the fire, and there is the crackling of the flames, and there is a kind of suggestion that they and we of the audience are glad it isn't us wearing the burning garments, which, of course, reminds us that we may laugh with impunity, and we do. It's wonderful!"

"Still, I don't believe I care to go," decided Mrs. Ramble. "They don't show the picture of Sir Sam Hughes any more, and some way or other no film seems complete without him."

COUNTESS' CURSE SEEMS TO HAVE BLASTED RULER'S LIFE

Following was the famous curse of the Countess of Karolyi upon the late Emperor of Austria:

"May your life be stripped bare of all happines, to the last shred; may suffering and misery untold strike upon those nearest and dearest to you; at the end, may you be crushed to earth in utter despair!"

The Countess of Karolyi stood upon the very steps of the emperor's throne when she uttered this malediction upon him. Behind it was all the tense hatred of a mother whose son had been put to death for taking part in the Hungarian revolt of that year, 1848.

The countess' curse has been to some extent fulfilled.

His brother, Maximilian, was executed by the Mexicans.

His son and heir, the Crown Prince Rudolph, committed suicide.

His wife, the Empress Elizabeth, was assassinated.

His son, Archduke John, was drowned at sea.

Two other royal relatives committed suicide, one was burned to death, and one was killed by a fall from a horse, and another by an accident with a gun while hunting.

His heir, the Archduke Francis Ferdinand, and wife, were assassinated at Sarajevo.

The story of the Hapsburgs since Francis Joseph came to the throne has been a story of scandals and sudden deaths.

Every Man At His Post Ready

(Archbishop of York in London Times.)

"Yet in spite of all they are full of cheerfulness. Every captain had the same word—nothing could be better than the spirit of the whole crew. On deck you may see officers wrestling with the mighty 'medicine-ball,' and men playing cricket or quoits and every variety of ingenious game. Thanks to excellent food, fresh air, exercise, and the absence of shore temptations, the health of the fleet is admirable. When I was with the largest section, the rate of sickness (including accidents) was just under one per cent. The men at work on board ship are a vision of smartness and alacrity. They are all splendidly 'fit' in body and spirit.

"Of the efficiency of the fleet it is not for a mere outsider to speak; but even he cannot fail to be impressed by the all-pervading sense of 'readiness.' It seemed as if there was one word written on every ship, on every part of her, on every man within her—the word 'Ready.' There was no haste, no bustle, no confusion. Every ship in her place, and every man at his post was ready.

"I have kept to the last the deepest and most lasting impression of all—the splendid spirit of 'comradeship and unity' which binds the Grand Fleet together.

Editor Review: Before this war aroused the prejudice of every other civilised power against the German nation, the educational system of the latter was conceded to be one of the best in the world. Germany made the teaching of English and French compulsory in her schools not because she loved either England or France, but for the reason that she recognised the commercial advantages to be derived from a knowledge of these foreign languages. Why should anyone in Ontario oppose the teaching of French in the Public schools of the province? Cannot the same argument be used in favor of bilingualism here as the one which applies in the case of Germany?

R. R.

There is no person in Ontario who understands the situation who would contend that a knowledge of French is anything but an advantage, especially to those who have business dealings with Quebec. What Ontario insists on, however, is that every child has a right to an English education, first and foremost. Even if Germany did provide for instructions in French and English, no German was ever known to advocate the teaching of these languages to an extent that would endanger the survival of his own.—Editor Review.

TWO DEADHEADS.

Sir Ernest Shackleton is almost as well known as a lecturer as he is as an explorer, and he has had many funny experiences in the former capacity. Once he was giving a lecture at a town in Scotland, and his expenses in connection with the hiring of the hall were fairly heavy. He drove in a cab to the lecture place and told the cabman to wait for him. In the hall he found an audience of five people, two of whom were children.

Wishing to add to the number of his listeners, Sir Ernest went outside and asked the cabby to come and hear the lecture.

"Oh, no, thanks, sir, I'm all right here," was the man's reply, so Sir Ernest went inside again and manfully gave his lecture from beginning to end. At the close his audience had increased to twenty-five people.

Next day Sir Ernest was sorrowfully recounting his experiences to his wife.

"Twenty-five people at a quarter a head," he said, "makes $6.25."

"Oh," exclaimed his wife, "you must deduct fifty cents from that, dear. I sent the cook and one of the maids!"

QUEEN THANKS CANADIAN WOMEN

Buckingham Palace,
24th October, 1916.

On the threshold of the third winter since the beginning of the war, I appeal to all those who have generously responded to my requests for work during the past two years, not to relax their efforts in providing comforts for our soldiers and sailors.

The applications from regiments and hospitals at home and abroad increase instead of diminish, and an almost unlimited number of things is needed if the Queen Mary's Needlework Guild is to meet all the demands made upon it.

As Sir Edward Ward has recently pointed out, the chief needs at the present moment are mittens, mufflers, helmets, socks, gloves, and cardigans, and my guild is also being specially asked for pyjamas, day-shirts, bed jackets, blankets, and sheets.

I wish to take this opportunity of thanking again the many workers in many lands who have so kindly contributed to the splendid total of 3,990,784 garments which have been sent out in 26 months from Friary Court.

(Signed.) MARY R.

A copy of the above appeal was enclosed to Mrs. Arthur Van Koughnet, President for Ontario, the following being an extract from the letter: "I feel sure you will like to know how much Her Majesty appreciates your generous support of her Guild, and I hope you will be able to help us as loyally in the future as you have done in the past." A copy of the appeal has just been inserted in all the newspapers.

(Signed.) Aimee Dawson
(Lady Dawson).

In answer to the appeal, Lady Hendrie has graciously arranged a shower for soldiers' comforts, to be held at the Government House on Thursday afternoon, December 7th, and all those desiring to contribute in response to the Queen's request may send their gifts of comforts or money, by post, to Lady Hendrie, Government House, Toronto, at any time before the 7th of December.

LESSON FOR THE CHURCH.

Has the time come when the church should take a more sympathetic view of Christian Science? asks a Winnipeg exchange. The opening of the fine new Christian Sciench church in this city has suggested to Dr. Sinclair his subject for Sunday evening in New St. Andrew's (auditorium of the Kelvin school). What can Christian Science teach the church? Mrs. Eddy could never hae succeeded in attracting so many followers if her teaching had not emphasized some vital truths neglected by the orthodox churches.

An Anglican minister in the United States has recently published an article advocating the adoption of Christian Science by the church. Dr. Sinclair does not go so far as this, but he believes that the average church member with his fears and worries, his pagan view of death, and his religion that brings him neither joy nor strength, has a real lesson to learn form this new cult.

SIR GILBERT PARKER WRITES NEW NOVEL

It has always occasioned Canadians a certain feeling of pride to know that one of the few British novelists possessing a knighthood is Sir Gilbert Parker, a son of the Dominion. Every year, when he publishes a new story, the people of this country turn to the book with interest, especially when the scene of it happens to be Canada. Although Sir Gilbert Parker has occasionally strayed beyond Canadian borders for the scenes and the people of his stories, he has easily found his way back to the undoubted delight of his readers and presumably to his own satisfaction. He has written of England, of Egypt, of South Africa, and of other parts of the world, but it is of Canada alone that he is a master. If his novels and his stories have any lasting vigor in them it is because their origin and his are the same.

Ever since the days of the first popularity of "The Pomp of the Lavilettes" and "When Valmond Came to Pontiac," Sir Gilbert Parker has found his best and most frequent literary resource in the old-fashioned story of adventure. World politics and the problems of imperialism are not his forte, as he clearly manifested not long ago in "The Judgment House." He is thoroughly at home in describing those human passions that find their outlets in physical action. Tempests of the soul are also his to command, but they receive full value from his pen only when they are allied to tumults of the body. A census of the fights in fiction between men, and with women often involved, would disclose the fact that they are his favorite means for the expression of human turmoil. And there is no denying that from his earliest to his latest story they are very good fights that stir the reader's blood and draw forth his admiration for the descriptive skill of the novelist.

The most recent contribution of Sir Gilbert Parker to our literature is "The World for Sale." In this novel he sets his scene in the newer part of Canada which is so rapidly becoming the powerful heart of the British Empire in the West. The story starts with a reckless young woman running a dangerous rapids at low water in her canoe. She faints and is brought ashore by the hero, an efficiency expert in charge of the development of the district. The place is a spot in the North-West, where an old slow town and an enterprising new town face each other across a river. There is trouble of all kinds between them due to differences of race and of religion as well as industrial rivalry, which the hero tries to keep down. He is opposed by a dastardly and disreputable French Canadian. More trouble arises through their rivalry for the girl. She is the daughter of the chief of all the gypsies, who has come into the wilderness because he has promised that his daughter shall not belong to his people. He is followed up, however, by the son of the man he deposed, a wholly disreputable scamp, who insists on the observance of the child marriage between himself and the girl. She will not have him and the old man turns him out, whereupon he joins forces with the French Canadian. In a riot the hero is blinded, the girl nurses him, but he will not ask her to marry him till he can work for her. Then the girl is kidnapped by the gypsy, but is rescued in time. The hero recovers his sight, the old gypsy dies, the girl renounces her people and marries the hero.

It is true that this story will not add greatly to the laurels of Sir Gilbert Parker, but it is Canadian and good Canadian novels are not nearly so plentiful as we might wish them to be.

Quebec's Cotton Industry.

The textile industry, especially the manufacturing of cotton goods, has a big place in Quebec. At the big Valleyfield mills at Magog and Three Rivers plants are operating to full capacity. Many of them are wholly engaged in filling contracts for war materials. One remarkable exception was the Canadian Connecticut plant at Three Rivers, which, with its 1,200 hands, is working overtime producing its accustomed line of cotton lawns. One manufacturer explained that, without the aid of a single war contract, the cotton mills of Quebec would be kept engaged to their utmost capacity in supplying the ordinary demands of the Canadian market, and as proof of his statement he drew attention to the fact that Canada's imports of all lines of cotton goods, both from Britain and the United States, and particularly from the latter country, had increased from thirty to one hundred per cent. during the past six months, as compared with the same periods in the past two years. Cottons are substituting more and more the silk and linen fabrics, which have been cut off from America in such large measure as a result of the war.

Vesuvius Near Eruption.

The crater of Vesuvius is filling up little by little every year, says a despatch from Naples. The base of it to-day lies at a depth of 66 metres, 69 metres higher than it was a year ago. Frank Alwood Perret, the American engineer and volcano expert, just made this discovery. With Professor Alexander Malladra of the Vesuvius Observatory he camped for twenty-four hours in the heart of the lava-spitting mountain.

HOMEMADE NIGHTGOWNS.

Tips About the Newest Ways of Making Such Robes.

The day when a homemade nightgown necessarily indicated weeks of hand embroidery or else a few hours' stitching on stiff, thick muslin has gone by. And now we can make a nightgown in a few hours, with only a saving touch of hand work, and yet produce something that is charmingly dainty.

Sheer materials, of course, which are always used nowadays for nightgowns, have much to do with this change. The fact, too, that nightgown patterns now almost invariably show short sleeves and open necks also has much to do with their daintiness.

The nightgown with an empire waist line is a favorite just now, and is deservedly so, for the long, full lines of the skirt are most becoming. Some sort of wide collar, too, is always becoming, but it wrinkles very easily in a nightgown. Reveres at the front are shown in some of the newer patterns, and those give softness and fulness and are not so easily wrinkled as a collar. Much variety can be given by the use of slashed and puffed sleeves, and the use of cuffs of various sorts is also worth trying.

Batiste is a very good material for nightgowns, especially in colors. The pale pink and blue shades of this material, which can be had for about 20 cents a yard, are especially attractive. Nainsook in a soft quality is also a good material. Figured dimity, too, can be used, and this season much figured cotton crape of soft quality and dainty design has been used for pretty and durable nightgowns.

The use of much entre deux in the seams of fine nightgowns is a dainty touch, and especially in the nightgown which shows much hand work is this method of finishing seams advisable.

Hand embroidery can also be set into a nightgown with entre deux. In this way fine hand embroidered yokes and panels can be used.

The rolled hem that is so much seen nowadays—in handkerchiefs and fine blouses—can be utilised in the nightgown. The hem is finely rolled and is then whipped with thread of color, first in one direction and then in the other, forming a sort of cross stitch finish.

A pretty finish for a white nightgown is a binding of colored bias folds of muslin. This folded bias finish can be bought both in plain colors and in stripes and plaids. Sleeves and neck can both be bound in this way and a band of the colored fold can be placed at the line of an empire waist line, to have ribbon run under it.

In the same manner chiffon or georgette crape underwear can be finished with ribbon used as binding.

SONNY BOY'S GARB.

Small Men Delight In This Masculine Attire.

Over a shirt of white silk, linen or poplin is this suspender suit of blue linen cut on loose lines. The jumper top is buttoned on to the trousers with large white pearl buttons and conspicuous buttonholes. Side pockets for treasures are a feature.

THE WORKINGMAN.

Fall Styles For Children.

The question of fashion in garments for the tots is largely one of becomingness. But, of course, every item of apparel planned for the small citizen should wash.

Some of the smart little simple dresses for children shown this fall are plaited from shoulder to hem; some are in Russian blouse effect with plaited skirts. Suspended dresses with washable waists and little frocks equipped with washable guimpes are also in favor.

Tub fabrics are unquestionably first choice, or should be, for the very young children. But plain and plaid serge and velveteen dresses for girls of eight to ten and twelve years are smart. For school wear bright colors and cuffs are used on dark color frocks, and detachable collars and cuffs of linen, pique, etc., are also used very effectively on some of the school frocks.

Sleepy Time Story About Some Interesting Little People.

LEGEND OF LONG GONE DAYS.

Strange Thing That Happened to a Good Natured Farmer and His Wife. Fairies Show Gratitude For a Kindly Act—Things of Interest to Children.

Tonight, said Uncle Ben to little Ned and Polly Ann, I am going to tell you about the LITTLE HILL MEN.

In the district of Ersley stands a fine farm which is known all over the country as the "Mound Garden," or, as some would say, "Hill Garden," and this is why it is so named.

Near the farm is a beautiful green mound or hill in which dwell many little Bergmen or Hill people.

When the farmhouse was built Jon, the farmer, wanted for his garden some fresh green sod. So, going to the Mound, he carefully cut the greensward from it and carried it to his farm yard.

In the evening Jon's wife, Thyra, went to the kitchen to light the lamp and prepare supper, but to her great surprise she could not enter.

"This is very strange!" she thought. "The place seems crowded. I can't find room even across the threshold."

Thyra began to feel frightened and called loudly for her husband:

"Jon, Jon, come quick; I cannot get into our own kitchen!"

Jon came at once. "You must be out of your mind," he said. "Why don't you make a light?"

"I cannot get near the lamp," answered Thyra.

"I'll go and do it," announced the farmer.

But, lo, when Jon tried to enter the kitchen he found it so crowded that he could not enter either, push as he might.

"Who is here? Who is here crowding up my kitchen?" he demanded. Immediately there was a chorus of replies.

"We others, we others, who live in the Mound!"

"And what do you want in our kitchen?" cried Jon.

"You have taken the roof off our home; all the greensward has been cut away; so 'we others' have come to your kitchen!" was the reply.

"I did not know it was your roof," said Jon.

"It was," declared the Hill people. "And now it is raining hard and the rain comes down into our very dining hall. We do not want to get wet, so we have come to your kitchen to keep dry and warm."

"Very well," replied Jon; "stay where you are until the rain is over and tomorrow I'll put back every bit of sod I took away. I am sorry I have given you so much trouble."

So the farmer and his wife allowed "we others" to remain in the comfortable kitchen, and next morning when the rain had ceased to fall Jon carried back all the grassy sods and replaced them carefully on the Mound.

Back to it then trooped all the Bergmen or Hill people, and from that day Jon prospered and nothing ever went amiss on the farm. He had the richest fields of grain, the finest crops in the countryside, for, of course, having gained the friendship of the Bergmen, they were always working for him and aiding him in every way they could possibly devise. So no wonder Jon and Thyra prospered in everything they undertook.—Philadelphia Record.

Practical Hints About Sweeping

To find the necessary coverings on sweeping days has often sent the maid scurrying about for old aprons, sheets, towels and anything else she could lay her hands on to use for this purpose.

One housewife has solved the difficulty in this way: She purchased a quantity of gray cambric and made from it a large sheet, with which to cover the beds and sideboard. Smaller covers for dressers and toilet tables were made, and still others in suitable shapes were designed to put over lamps, mantels and the like. She also made from the cambric a bag to keep the covers in. This was hung in the broom closet.

While light, the cambric formed a perfect protection against dust, and a simple shaking when the sweeping was finished freed the covers from all dust that had settled upon them, so that they required washing but once a month. The use of these dust covers saved much valuable time and extra work. The cost of such a set is moderate, and it does not take long to make them.

BE PATRIOTIC—WEAR RUBBERS

British Government Has Given You Rubber at Low Price, So You Can Wear Rubbers and Overshoes to Protect Your Expensive Shoes.

Before the war a cow cost sixty dollars; now a cow's hide costs as much. This means expensive shoes—the same quality as before with a price fast approaching double that formerly paid.

"What's to be done?" asks the man or woman in moderate circumstances.

"Buy Rubbers and Save your Shoes" is the answer the British Government gives.

The British Government has put the price of rubber down so that you may benefit. Think of this and think of the rise in the price of other staple articles. Then, be patriotic and wear rubbers—rubbers made from British Government rubber—and save your shoe leather from winter's snow and fall rains.

Somehow we can't help feeling sorry for an ex-hero.

EXAMPLE OF PATRIOTISM WILL GO DOWN IN HISTORY

Peterboro Soldiers Who Died at the Post of Duty Are Held in Memory at George Street Methodist Church.

Impressive in the extreme was the memorial service held in the George Street Methodist Church last night in honor of five young men of the congregation who had paid the supreme price after enlisting in the army of their King and country. Members of the congregation, friends and relatives of the five soldiers turned out in large numbers to take part in expressing their tribute.

The sermon of the pastor, Rev. R. G. Peever, B.D., centred about the great sacrifice that the young men had made for the security and permanency of civilization and how by their great spirit and deeds they bore testimony to a super-natural reinforcement. The Presence of God was with them at all times.

The address of Mr. Duncan Walker was marked for its comparisons of heroes of today and heroes of old and the honor due men who had died voluntarily for their country and the Empire.

The choral service had been appropriately chosen for the occasion. Fight the Good Fight, O God Our Help in Ages Past, Onward Christian Soldiers were the hymns selected.

Great Cloud of Witnesses

Rev. R. G. Peever took as his text the first two verses of the 12th Chapter of Hebrews:

> Wherefore, seeing we also are compassed about with so great a cloud of witnesses, let us lay aside every weight and the sin which doth so easily beset us, and let us run with patience the race that is set before us.
> Looking unto Jesus the author and finisher of our faith: who for the joy that was set before Him endured the cross, despising the shame and is set down at the right hand of the throne of God.

The pastor pointed out that it was right and opportune that the members of the congregation gather in a memorial service to the splendid men of the congregation who had died for the security and permanency of all future civilization. They were:—

Pte. Angus McIntosh, of St. Paul's but who sometimes worshipped at the George Street Church.

Pte. James English, who died on April 23, 1915.

Pte. Norman Darling, who died May 4, 1916.

Lieut. A. F. Ackerman, died of wounds Oct. 11, 1916.

Lance-Corps. James H. Losey, died of wounds Sept. 29, 1916.

Pte. H. G. Edmison, died Sept. 15, 1916.

Canada Will Not Forget

These heroes were all referred to in very feelings terms and the great spirit that had been in them was evidenced by the letters that the pastor had read from them from time to time. Canada cannot forget and will not forget those who had responded to the Empire's call and paid the supreme price. The service was not one of sadness, but one of triumph and victory.

Years ago people in Greece went to the Olympic games, some to take part, others to make merchandise and others to look on (balcony viewers). The young men who were remembered last night were not the balcony viewers in the great conflict of world forces. They had taken their part in the struggle for supremacy of right. These young men had not gone into the fray for mercantile interests, they had left homes and dear ones, chosen separation, training and hardship, had made the choice of death and were witnesses as in the words of the text. They had entered the conflict that the things we hold sacred might remain and the future of cilization be guarded. They were patriotic in that they suffered for cause and country, liberty and freedom, religion and King. These young men had stood in the breach; they had done their bit and all their letters bore testimony of the presence of God with them. The mothers had recognized this. A prominent divine had said: "The atmosphere of the trenches was one that Christ would love to walk in."

The deeds of the Canadians at Langemarck, St. Julien, Givenchy, and other battles were related. How they stood in their places and held the lines for over 5,000 yards when the foe numbered 150,000 against the stalwart 7,000. Theirs had been the way of duty, the way of honor, the way of death.

"He that saveth his life shall lose it but he that giveth his life for My sake shall find it." The principle of the sacredness of human life has several things more sacred. Loyalty to Jesus Christ; defence of truth; virtue of the home; moral and intelectual welfare; devotion to our land and our flag; and these young men gave their lives for them; they still look down as witnesses to the conflict. They are not dead but live in the memory of the people of the city and the country and for Canada had quickened the pulse of the Imperial people.

In concluding his discourse, Mr. Peever quoted the following, which appeared in the Christian Guardian last week from the pen of Col. J. L. Hughes, who has lost a son in battle:

God gave my son in trust to me,
Christ died for him, and he should be
A man for Christ. He is his own
And God's and man's; not mine

He was not mine to "give." He gave Himself that he might help to save
All that a Christian should revere,
All that enlightened men hold dear.

"I trust," said the speaker, "that all those who mourn will receive consolation from the same source."

In the music by the choir an effective rendition of Lead, Kindly Light (Dykes) was given by a male quartette, Messrs. Edward Jones, Harry Hill, Edwin Walton and Wesley Dartnell, and as an offertory solo Mrs. J. H. Renwick sang "In the Holy Land of Heaven" (West). The anthem was Martin's "O God Our Help in Ages Past." Mr. J. H. Renwick presided at the organ. Chorus of Angels, by Clarke, was played for the prelude, and March Religioso, by Watson, was the postlude. The Lord's Prayer and the Vesper Hymn were chanted by the choir.

PRINCIPAL D. WALKER'S EULOGY OF CANADIANS WHO DIED IN BATTLE

Mr. Duncan Walker, Principal of the Normal School, gave the following address at the memorial service in George Street Methodist Church Sunday evening:

You meet tonight to pay tribute to the memory of six members of this church and congregation who in the full vigor of youth, as yet scarcely upon the threshold of manhood, for the honor of home, of country and of Empire have sacrificed their lives and all those hopes and prospects which life holds out to youth.

We should be ungrateful indeed, lacking in loyalty, patriotism and Christian spirit and unworthy of our citizenship if, under the spell of such a sacrifice our hearts did not burn within us, our emotions kindle and our faith in human goodness deepen and heighten.

These young men came from different homes in civil life, followed different vocations and in military life held different ranks, but in our tribute we can make no distinction. All were nature's noblemen.

The hero is not the product of any special age, nationality, rank or calling. Nor are they even rare or exceptional men in the brilliancy of their attainments—but they all possess certain spiritual and moral qualities which in trouble and adversity, in stress and storm, in danger and in peril, keeps them firm of purpose and unflinching in the efforts towards the achievement of their aims.

The hero must have courage—not that courage which results from our fear or shame or of disgrace, though such is better than none—not courage prompted by the hope of gain, fame or popularity—not even that courage which knows no fear—but a courage which enables him to conquer his fears and which is prompted by a conscientious devotion to duty and an unwavering confidence in the righteousness of his cause.

The hero must be unselfish—entirely oblivious of self. His one thought is for others. His whole creed is service; service to his fellows, his King, his country, and his Christ. What a priceless debt we owe to the glorious company of martyrs and the innumerable band of heroes who have given their lives to the service of humanity; who have given up every comfort save that which comes from the consciousness of duty done; who have labored, served and died that others might be the better; that the standard of life might be raised to a higher and nobler level; and who strove only for the Master's commendation — "Well done, thou good and faithful servant."

The hero must have worthy ideals. It is the possession of these more than all else that differentiates him from the sluggard, from him whose actions are dictated solely by bodily ease. Where there is no vision the people perish. It is our visions, our ideals that give life its flavor, and it is the hero that teaches us that our ideals are possible of realization. He is therefore the leaven that leaveneth the whole earth. He has visions of sufferings to be relieved, of wrongs to be righted, national and social sores to be healed; slavery to be abolished, injustice to be avenged; tyrants to be dethroned; a world to be redeemed and saved by that righteousness which exalteth a nation.

Every age has had its hero, real or imaginary. We cannot live without him. In the world there are so many forms of woe and misery that there is never wanting occasion for the working out of the highest and noblest qualities of which mankind is capable. In plague and pestilence, in squalidness and distress, in drought and famine, in storms and torrent, in forest and in mine, in wreck on sea or land, in oppression and in pillage, in weakness and in suffering, in battle and in flame—wherever honor calls or danger threatens there has not been lacking one who will dare to suffer and to die and in his thought for others counts not his life dear unto himself. "A daring pilot is extremely pleased with the danger when the waves went high. He sought the storm."

Of all forms of heroism that displayed upon the battlefield seems most to command our respect. In all times the war-scarred soldier has been an object of the highest admiration. The reason appears to be that war is only possible by an unconntenanced and unprecedented disturbance of universally accepted principles of right and justice. It presents such horrors; it calls for sacrifices great and general; it is so vividly staged—civilisations great tragedy! We feel at once that our soldiers must be endowed with heroic virtues commensurate with their task. No coward, no lover of bodily ease, no galley slave, no hireling, no traitor, no lukewarm patriot, could be enrolled for such a service. Here is the field for action, and the world loves activity—a stage where every man must play a part. And in it all there is that widespread personal interest due to the vicarious nature of the service. It is our cause, our rights for which each soldier fights.

In days of chivalry the knight—that early type of hero—contended in arms with dragons, sea monsters, demons, giants, tyrants. These typified the powers of darkness, the dominance of might over right, soulless materialism, greed, piracy, hate, brute force and slavery. The knight symbolised humanity, light, love, purity, service, religion. His strength was as the strength of ten because his heart was pure.

Modern Parallel

The parallel in modern times we need not dwell upon. This Canada of ours has sent its hundreds of thousands of heroic sons to fight in Flanders and in France, as did the knight of old for civilization and for all that civilization stands for. At Ypres, Langemarck, Neuve Chapelle, Givinchi, St. Eloi. On the Somme they have paid the price, but won the prise. They have done their duty as becometh gallant sons of gallant sires and upheld the best traditions of a worthy race. Theirs will be an illuminated page in the Empire's history.

But some will not come back again. Too true, and to those whose hearts are yearning, let us share our deepest sympathy. But we believe that they find their greatest consolation, not in the question, Will they come? but Did they go?

This congregation, too, is fewer in number, but rich in power. Ackerman, Darling, English, Losey, McIntosh and Edmison bear witness to your teaching that a man's life consisteth not in the abundance of the things which he possesseth; and "greater love." Had there been no response to the country's call it would have been a sorry day for the future of our families, our schools, our churches and all those other agencies which through the ages have been strongly for the uplift of humanity.

But then how young to fall!
We live in deeds, not years.
In thoughts, not breaks,
In feelings, not the figures on a dial.
We should count time by heart throbs.
He most lives who thinks the most,
feels the noblest acts the best.

And as Byron says:—

"One crowded hour of glorious life
Is worth an age without a name."

They sleep in soldiers graves, but what was most worth while in their lives will here abide.

"From the ground there blossoms red,
Life that shall endless be!"

Their names may be forgotten, but that for which they strove will remain throughout the ages a perpetual memorial to the efficacy of their lives.

Inspired by their examples and examples such as theirs, Canadian manhood will rise to a higher plane, will be invigorated by ideals worth while, become more spiritually minded—moving upward to that destined goal of universal brotherhood.

This, however, is a long, far-off, Divine event. What of the present? It cannot be that these men have made a vain sacrifice. Indeed, it must not be! In paying our tribute of respect to them we must not lose sight of the work in hand. Their task is accomplished, but much is yet to do. A brighter day is just at dawn; a new world is in the making; let us do our share to usher it in and for it clear the way.

"Men of thought, be up and stirring,
Night and day.
Sow the seed, withdraw the curtain,
Clear the way."

MORE PRIESTS FOR GROWING CATHOLIC POPULATION HERE, BISHOP'S APPEAL

HIS LORDSHIP BISHOP O'BRIEN
The first pastor of the Church of the Sacred Heart.

At Anniversory of the Sacred Heart Church.

Dean McColl Preached

Addressing the parishioners of the Church of the Sacred Heart at Pontifical Vespers on Sunday, His Lordship Bishop O'Brien expressed his own joy and satisfaction on the occasion of their seventh anniversary and congratulated the parishioners on the spiritual progress made, and the choir leader on the singing of Vespers by the choir. His Lordship took occasion to refer to the scarcity of priests in the diocese, and he expressed the desire that parents would give their sons and daughters for the priesthood and sisterhood. Bishop O'Brien said he had spent the past two weeks in the United States. There, in spite of the fact that seminaries were filled to overflowing, a scarcity of priests prevailed. On asking for an explanation, he was told that it was due to the growth of the Catholic population. This was true of Peterborough and was the explanation of the need for more priests and sisters.

His Lordship's address was one of congratulation to pastor and parishioners on past achievements and encouragement to make greater efforts in the future.

Sermon by Dean McColl.

The sermon at Vespers was preached by Very Vev. Dean McColl, pastor of the Church of the Immaculate Conception. His discourse dealt with faith, founded on a sure and firm belief in Jesus Christ and taught by Him through the instrumentality of the Catholic Church. The preacher pointed out how Jesus Christ had prevailed against all things, that the Catholich Church had also prevailed, and that all believers in His Church must so prevail.

Pontifical Mass.

Pontifical Mass was sung by Rev. Father McAuley, curate of the church, and the pastor, Rev. Father O'Brien, preached. Father O'Brien announced that the number of Holy Communions during the past twelve months was 42,300, and he urged his parishioners, and especially the parents, to attend the sacrament. Parents should not tell their children to "go," but should say, "come."

In his sermon, Father O'Brien spoke of the advantages to parishioners in the establishment of a parish church and of what the Catholic Church, established by Christ, means for the whole world. "Almighty God uses this church to convey to you the blessings and graces for which Christ established His church," said the preacher. 'While your interests are centred here, you are not limited to this church. Catholicity means world-wide. Your Catholic charity and co-operation should radiate from this centre to the very bounds of the earth.

REV. FATHER O'BRIEN
Pastor of the Church of the Sacred Heart.

Father O'Brien said that without the Catholic Church the world would be in the condition it was in before the Catholic Church, and that condition was abomination and desolation. It would be a world without a knowledge of the true God. His truth would not be known to us in our day were it not for the Catholic Church. There would be no true civilization.

The preacher went on to point out the progress made in pagan countries through the instrumentality of the church, and then told his hearers how the parishioners would get the full advantage from the church, and what it stood for. He said their catholicity was more important than their health, their possessions and other things temporal. The church meant more than anything else under heaven. In the matter of contributions to the church, the true Catholic would not say, "I can't give anything to the church because I bought this and that"; he would say, "I can't buy this or that because I must give something to the church."

Throughout the day large numbers of the parishioners were present, and the anniversary Sunday was a most successful one.

FIVE NEW MEMBERS FOR THE SESSION OF ST. PAUL'S

Elders Installed in Office Yesterday With Impressive Ceremony---House-to-House Visitation Begins To-night.

> The elders which are among you I exhort, who am also an elder, and a witness of the sufferings of Christ, and also a partaker of the glory that shall be revealed.
> Feed the flock of God which is among you, taking the oversight thereof, not by constraint, but willingly; not for filthy lucre, but of a ready mind.
> Neither as being lords over God's heritage, but being ensamples to the flock.
> And when the Chief Shepherd shall appear, ye shall receive a crown of glory that fadeth not away.—I. Peter v. 1-4.

The above was the passage of Scripture chosen by Rev. R. Pogue in the sermon in St. Paul's Church yesterday morning, the special occasion being the ordination of five new elders who had been elected by ballot by the members of the congregation. The sermon dealt with the scriptural warrant for the selection of such church officers and clearly defined the duties that were required of them. Above all, they are to protect the congregation from slander and, the better to accomplish this, should follow the example of pastors and close their ears to anything of the kind.

The New Elders.

The new members of Session elected by the congregation are: Messrs. J. A. Johnston, Jas. MacDonald, Jas. Hunter, Jas. Dutton, and Peter Ferguson. At the close of the sermon they were called to the front of the church and there received by the pastor and the other fourteen members of the Session. Mr. Pogue read the impressive service by which elders are installed in office and which opens with the declaration that the Apostle Paul during his ministry went from place to place among the little bands of Christians appointing elders to save the church from absolute clerical control.

The new elders were called upon to acknowledge their belief in the Holy Scripture and to pledge themselves to be governed by the rules and regulations of the Presbyterian Church. The congregation by uplifted hands promised to accept the new officers as men in authority over them.

Kneeling before the pastor the five new elders were duly installed as members of Session and were given the right hand of fellowship by those with whom they will collaborate.

House-to-House Visitation.

Sixty or seventy of the men of St. Paul's congregation will during Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings of this week make a house-to-house visit of the members and adherents, and those connected with the church are asked, to arrange their affairs so as to be ready to receive the workers. The campaign, a yearly event in most of the churches, will open this evening at 6:30 when, as a preliminary, the volunteers will be entertained to supper at the church by the ladies of the congregation.

LT. R. BOYD ON MISSING LIST

BOBCAYGEON OFFICER ATTACHED TO THE 80TH BATTALION.

BOBCAYGEON, Nov. 27. — Mrs. (Dr.) H. O. Boyd received a cablegram on Saturday that her son, Lt. R. Boyd, is reported missing, wit the probability of being killed. Lt. Boyd enlisted with the 40th Victoria Regiment in October, 1914, and was stationed at Lindsay till June, 1915. He was promoted to the rank of sergeant, and when at Barriefield was quartermaster-sergeant in the 59th. In the fall of 1915 he was given a commission in the 80th Battalion, and spent the winter in Picton with his company. He crossed to England with the 80th in May, 1916, and was later attached to the 74th, and being found a proficient officer was sent to France in August, 1916, with a reinforcement to the 50th Battalion, where he has been ever since. He has been in the thick of the fighting on the Western front, and, if the report is true, another excellent young man of the village has made the supreme sacrifice for King and country. His oldest brother, Lieut. H. O. Boyd, was killed in action in Mesopotamia last May. Dr. H. O. Boyd, his father, left with the 109th Battalion as medical officer.

Sir Robert Borden

In his urgent appeal for National Service, on October 23rd, Sir Robert Borden said:

"Let us never forget the solemn truth that the nation is not constituted of the living alone. There are those as well who have passed away and those yet to be born. So this great responsibility comes to us as heirs of the past and trustees of the future. But with that responsibility there has come something greater still, the opportunity of proving ourselves worthy of it; and I pray that this may not be lost."

STORY OF FIGHTING ON SOMME FRONT IN FRANCE

British Blasting Way Through German Strongholds.

Writing to his parents, Harry Hastie gives some interesting details of the fighting on the Somme. He is with a 4th Division battalion:

Somewhere in France,
November 1, 1916.

Dear Father and Mother—

I have three or four letters to answer now, as I have not written a letter for over two weeks. The news you received in the press that our regiment, the 87th C. G. G. and the 73rd Highlanders, were badly cut up on September 15th, must have been a mistake, as neither of these regiments were in action on that date, as we were in the trenches at Ypres at that time, and things were very quiet. We were not in the attack which took the two villages you mentioned, but I have been through them often since. One would never know there had ever been a village there, everything is flat and level. This seems unreasonable, but it is nevertheless true, as the artillery has levelled everything, trees, houses and all. You never saw such a condition as the country here is in. I do not see how it will ever be of any use again. Shell holes are so thick that one has to walk around them, and as there is only a narrow piece of earth between each it is risky at night. Many a one I have fallen into, and climbed out, mud from head to foot. I went two weeks without either a wash or a shave, and was out every night carrying supplies over two and a half miles of this kind of country to the front line. One would be staggering along—one can't walk straight—when a shell would be heard coming toward you. The procedure would be to lie down and roll into the nearest trench or shell hole; never mind the mud or anything else; get in there as quickly as possible. It is really laughable to see a fellow flop into a foot of mud and water when a shell sails over head. I have heard so many shells now that I can tell whether they are coming close or not; I can also distinguish a German from a British shell by the noise it makes.

One night a number of us lay in the bottom of a trench for over an hour while a steady stream of shells went over, knocking half the parapet of the trench in upon us. There was about three or four inches of wet mud in the bottom of the trench, but nevertheless we lay there. After these trips you could not touch any of us without getting mud on you. Without a word of a lie I have waded through mud three feet deep, and it is the most exhaustive work I have ever experienced.

I will not try to tell you of any of the sights I have seen; you could not believe them if I did tell you. I can't tell you what is going on or what takes place, but some day hope to tell you personally, although I have grave doubts if you will believe them even then. I am not complaining for we are now going through the hardships for which we enlisted. I don't mind these hardships, because they are necessary. Am finding it hard on the nerves going through so much shelling.

The artillery never stops here; at times one can't hear anyone speak. Have had my ears plugged part of the time. The country is covered with British artillery, and they are blasting their way through. How the Germans stand up under the hail of shells we send over I don't know; it must be hell for them.

Several of our fellows are being awarded the D. C. Medals today for bravery in the attack we were in last week. No doubt you will see this in the papers. We lost heavily in the attack. It is said our casualties were over four hundred. We have won a pretty good name for taking this line of trenches, as it had been taken three times previously, but never could be held. We held it against five counter-attacks, and when we ran out of ammunition and bombs we had to use captured German rifles and ammunition. Talk about aeroplanes, one can't look up here without seeing a dozen or more. One day I counted thirty-four large balloons—these are connected to the ground with cables and are used for observation purposes. They are over a mile up—and along with them thirty-two aeroplanes in the air at once. I saw two German aircraft brought down one day. One of them fell about two miles. I am getting quite expert at building dugouts now.

Some of us (signallers) have been on the carrying party, carrying ammunitions, rations and supplies to the front line at night. This is very hard, dangerous work, and hope I never have the job again. It has been raining here for some time and the trenches are in an awful condition. Well, they get so bad that, in- tion. Well, they got so bad that, instead of trying to get along the trenches, we went right up to the front line overland. This was much more dangerous, but one made better time and got out quicker. This was my work the night our boys took the above-mentioned line of trenches and held it at an awful cost. We will be getting another draft soon to bring us up to strength again.

I received the box O. K. when up the line. It was doubly welcome to get it when under fire. There were four of us in a small dugout when it reached me, and we sure had a feed. The apples were fine and tasted great. I have seen the far-famed tanks; in fact have been all through one of them, and they are a wonderful machine. Don't worry, as I am well and looking after myself.

Your loving son,
HARRY.

PAPER ON ROUMANIA TO TEACHERS' GUILD

Description of Country and People by Miss Dorman.

At the regular meeting of the Teachers' Guild at the South Central School on Friday evening, Miss Dorman of the South Central teaching staff read the following paper on Roumania:—

Roumania is a little country of 53,000 square miles, with a population of less than 8,000,00, or 140 persons to the square mile. It lies in the half embrace of the Carpathian Mountains. Like most of southern Europe, it owes its first civilization to the Phoenician traders. They brought ideas of progressive trade to Macedonia and Rome. As these states prospered they began to extend their territories, and, in time, Rome controlled the Danube Valley. Fertility and natural fortifications made the land tempting to the emigrants until the banks of the Danube became only a lesser Italy. Traces of the Roman language are easily recignized in the speech of the people in isolated parts of Roumania today. The Roumanians are very proud of their Roman ancestry and take every opportunity of emphasizing it. By the middle of the 3rd century the country was too proud to escape the covetous notice of the Goths and at the first sign of the weakening of Rome they overran a great part of the land. Closely following them came the Huns. For ten centuries the Roumanians lived a sort of wandering, pastoral life in the Carpathians, always waiting for an opportunity to reclaim their old homes. Legends of their glorious past were told by father to son, which kept alive a burning patriotism, and an absorbing desire to repossess the fertile valleys. In course of time they had their wish. By the Treaty of Paris, 1856, two principalities, Moldavia and Wallachia, were recognized by the Powers of Europe. Each was to elect its own king. By a rather unexpected turn of affairs both provinces elected the same king. He proved so unpopular that he was forced to abdicate after ten years, but he had brought into effect the coalition of the two principalities, and the Modern Roumania was the result. His successor was Prince Carol of the House of Hohensollern. About this time Roumania threw off her dependence on Turkey and called on Europe to recognize her neutrality. Shortly after, she entered into an alliance with Russia, giving Russia permission to pass through her country in time of war. But she was forced to give up Dessarabia, getting instead the small province at the mouth of the Danube—Dobrudja. But the Roumanians will never be satisfied until Bessarabia again becomes part of the country. In it are over a million Roumanian people.

Mostly Peasant Class

The bulk of the people of Roumana belong to the peasant class, for there are comparatively few cities, and most of them are small. Two dissimilar types are found among the Roumanians: one, fair-haired, florid and blue-eyed; the other, dark, resembling the Italian. The average peasant is not given to the kind of thrift which leads him often to the savings bank. They have striking superstitions and primitive ways of looking at things in general. It is regarded as worthy of honor to be the head of a large family. Though their death rate is high they still have an annual excess of 118,000 birth over deaths. The people are great for neighborhood gatherings, and always there is a kettle of cornmeal mush and baked pumpkin and potatoes and pop-corn for the occasion. All hands join in combing, carding and spinning the household supply of wool or flax, while their tongues are equally busy, gossiping. The more uncivilized people are picturesque, indeed. About a third of the country is inhabited by semi civilized shepherds. In the winter the shepherd leads his flock down into the valleys, and in the summer, up into the Carpathians. He sleeps under the starry sky and lives alone. He wears his hair and beard long and has a coarse white woollen shirt and long mantles of wool-covered sheepskin. His trousers are twice the length of his legs, and fit with numerous wrinkles. His shirt hangs tunic-like over the trousers and is tied at the waist with a red belt. The Lowlanders wear high conical caps of lambs' wool or felt, but the highlanders prefer low, round hats.

Few peasants cling so tenaciously to their national costumes as do the Roumanians; white is the prevailing note, but it is generally gay with embroidery.

The Roumanian Lover

When a young Roumanian peasant lad's thoughts turn to love, and his mind begins to incline toward marriage, he goes to his mother with his tale, rather than to his sweetheart. He confides in his mother, but not in his father. He perhaps feels that his father has faced the stern realities of life so long that he has forgotten that he ever was a boy. The mother acts as ambassador to the father, and, if he can be induced to look with favor upon the young lover's choice, he calls in two of his best friends, and tells them of his son's dreams, and asks them to accompany the said son to the house of his sweetheart. Maybe the girl, herself, has not received from the youth a single hint of his love, but even so, as she sees the little party near the house, she suspects the object of the visit. If it happens to be winter, the father of the girl invites them in, and, surmising their mision, gives some hint as to his attitude by the way he looks after the fire. If he keeps it burning brightly they know he is favorable; when it smoulders, he is of open mind. when it goes out entirely, they know there is no use arguing. The boy's spokesman tells what a good son he is, how industrious he is, how good he is to his sister, etc. In some localities a flower is painted on the walls of a cottage which is the home of a girl of marriageable age.

The Roumanian peasant has a saying that he must dance on Sunday to keep the creak out of his bones on Monday. Most of the dances are at the public houses and young and old gather there. There is very little drinking except on Sundays; that is the day of the tipsy man. When the girls reach a marriageable age, and have been sufficiently instructed in the household arts, they are allowed to attend these dances as participants. "She dances at the dance" is the peasant way of saying she is eligible for marriage.

Deeply Religious

The Roumanians are a deeply religious people. Five and one-half millions belong to the Orthodox Greek Church.

The peasant is much given to superstition and he has a sign for everything. If you have money in your pocket when you see the new moon, you will not "go broke." If a child sees its image in a mirror before it is three years old it will become a victim of the falling sickness, which will send it falling through life. If a sparrow takes a bath in the dust, it will be fine weather, etc.

There are about twenty thousand Jews in Roumania. The Roumanians treat the Jew very harshly. If the Jew has lived there for forty years he is an alien still. Jews are not allowed to be bankers, druggists, government officials, land owners, or to bacconists. But she does not regard him as an alien when she needs men for her army. Then he is a Roumanian from the crown of his head to the sole of his foot.

Buildings of more than one storey are very rare, even in the cities. The streets are very wide, and the many boulevards use up a large amount of space.

Although an act of 1864 endowed Roumania with free and compulsory education, the services of the children are deemed so necessary that the schools are slimly attended. If a boy does not intned to become a priest, the need of an education is not apparent. The institution that has attracted universal sympathetic interest in the school for the blind, endowed and protected by the poet-queen, Elisabeth, better known by her pen-name, Carmen Sylva. Her life was saddened by the death of her only child. When looking about to see if there were any others as unfortunate as herself she became interested in some blind children so she equipped a model school and found some respite from her loneliness in brightening the lives of those doomed to unending night. She spends much of her time in reading to the pupils.

Most Prosperous State in Balkans

Roumania is the most prosperous state in the Balkans. In the foothills of the mountains are mile after mile of vineyards, producing excellent wine, most of which, however, is consumed at home. The great plains afford admirable pasture lands, where great quantities of sheep, cattle and swine are raised. It is essentially an agricultural state. The chief products are: Wheat, maize, cereals, plums, grapes. Salt mining and petroleum peaches, walnuts, apples, pears and raising and distillation are among the principal industries. The petroleum beds are a great national asset, particularly as the Roumanians claim that their product has a higher percentage of the pure oil than is found in the American or Russian wells. The industry has been developed to such an extent that Roumania stands

IT'S A SHAME

To see so many people in the city of Peterborough suffering from backache, kidney trouble and rheumatism when they can be relieved by using a medicine of undoubted value. Instead of describing your ailments and having a sorrowful story to tell to your friends, just as soon as you can, after reading this notice, send or telephone to Lynch's Drug Store for a bottle of Dr Banta's Kidney and Rheumatic Pills. You will be surprised how quickly you will receive good results from them.

A judicial inquiry into the civic administration of Montreal generally is being asked for in a petition signed by seventy prominent taxpayers, with F. J. Laverty, K.C., acting as attorney for the petitioners.

PROHIBITION FOR QUEBEC

THE MATTER IS BECOMING PRACTICAL POLITICAL ISSUE THERE.

Three hundred leading citizens, lay and clerical, of the province of Quebec, recently waited on Sir Lomer Gouin, the premier, and the members of the provincial cabinet, and urged the responsible ministry to use its influence in favor of at least a test of the attitude of the Legislature as to prohibition of the liquor traffic. In the deputation were judges, officials of temperance organizations, clergymen, and laymen of all callings. They held steadfastly to their straight demand, and refused to be diverted by intimations that light drinks should be excepted. They impressed the Government officials strongly by their unity and zeal. Sir Lomer Gouin pledged serious attention to the arguments presented, intimating that it was now more a question as to whether the public opinion of the province had been educated to insist on enforcement of such a law, and less a question of the righteousness of prohibition itself.

The character of this deputation, as well as its size, the respect with which it was treated, and the answer it received, all combine to make friends of temperance throughout Canada more hopeful. It has been assumed by many that Quebec must be left out of any general prohibition scheme, however remote its complete accomplishment. The supposition, for a long time, has been that ecclesiastical and political forces too strong to be overcome stood in the way of even converting cities like Montreal and Quebec and a peasantry such as inhabits the villages to any favor for prohibition, much less getting a statute on the law books. And no doubt the past history of reform movements in the province has given much cause for the supposition.

The fact is, however, that example teaches louder than precept, and the victories for prohibition in Ontario, and in the provinces of the west, are not being overlooked in Quebec. The facts cannot be hidden, and they are having an educational effect. The burdens of taxpayers will be heavy, and if jails can be emptied, prisons relieved of many inmates, and bank deposits increased, the French-Canadian town or country dweller will not miss noting the relation between cause and effect, between temperance and thrift. He is as shrewd a citizen as any country boasts, albeit thrifty to an extraordinary degree.

Captured With a Football.

A prominent Paris paper, Le Journal, records the impressions of an Australian soldier, one Jack Bullock, who was wounded at Thiepval. He went out with five comrades in an attempt to bomb into silence a German machine gun. He says:

"Getting near the enemy blockhouse, we threw all the bombs we had so as to leave the Huns before us no respite. They were certainly on the point of surrendering when we found that our ammunition had given out. What bad luck! Already the Germans were showing their noses over the redoubt. In the fear that they would find out our embarrassment and profit by it one of my two surviving comrades—have I said that three had been killed?—seized a Rugby football which we had dribbled before us from our trench and made a motion as if to throw it at the enemy. They, not understanding the nature of the object, and no doubt taking it for a new and formidable engine, held up their hands, and we captured them easily."

Ontario is Generous.

For the second time since the war started Hon. T. W. McGarry, Provincial Treasurer, is able to announce that the collections for the British Red Cross Society in Ontario are away ahead of those from any other portion of the Empire. Last year Ontario sent $1,550,000—a sum greater than that received from all other parts of the Empire. This year, while the returns are not all complete, it is expected that Ontario will send $2,000,000 to help carry on this splendid work, and information so far available indicates that Ontario is again in the enviable position of a year ago.

Ontario Much the Dearest Province

WORKMAN'S WEEKLY OUTLAY FOR NECESSITIES $15.04 IN SEPTEMBER

The Labor Department's October publication of the cost of living figures shows that the average weekly budget of a workingman's family, for staple foods, fuel, lighting, and rent, had by the end of September risen to $15.01, as compared with $14.63 for August last, $13.67 for September of last year, and $13 for September of 1911.

The average is made up from prices obtained from sixty cities in Canada, and the items included concern practically only the essentials of very plain living. Nothing is included for clothing, doctor bills, amusements, church or contingencies.

The increase in the cost of living for the wage-earners, on the modest scale measured by rent at $16 per month, is $1.54 per week during the past twelve months, and $2 per week since September of 1911. If the increased cost of clothing is also taken into account the total increase in the workingman's weekly bill for necessaries will be considerably greater. Unless his wages have gone up by more than twenty per cent. within the past four or five years he is worse off now than he was in 1911.

Rent is the only item which shows any downward tendency. The average weekly cost of rent is now put at $4.08, as compared with $4.58 in September of 1914, and $4.75 in September, 1913.

Food costs $8.69 per week now, as compared with $7.73 in September of last year, $7.82 in September of 1914, and $7.13 in September of 1911.

Ontario is the dearest province of the Dominion for food. The average weekly budget for the province is given at $9.18, as compared with $8.64 for Quebec, and $8.65 in Manitoba.

A Y.M.C.A. membership is a great investment. Yearly fees are, boys 10 to 15 years, $3; intermediates, 16-18 years, $4; senior, $6; business men's sustaining, $10. Activities are adapted to men of all ages. Join during the contest, Nov. 20-30.

Dr. Marshall Sutton, of Cooksville, was found dead in bed from apoplexy, aged 66.

Y. M. C. A. MAN ASSISTED THREE SOLDIERS THROUGH FEARFUL EXPERIENCES

Worn Out and Lost They Found "Y" Hut Haven of Rest

Capt. F. F. Best, uncle of Mr. Ray P. Best, who is with the Y.M.C.A. in France, tells of assisting three soldiers through fearful experiences, in the following letter:

"This is a dark night because of clouds, and the wind is favorable for German gas, so we are ready for a 'stand to' order again. The time of quiet and comparative security seems to have passed, and for the past ten days 'things has been doing.' I'm greatly tempted to tell you some of it, but we are under orders not to put anything in letters that would give the Germans any clue in case our mail fell into their hands; and then, you get it, or some of it, in the papers long before my letters would arrive.

"But I might give you an outline of my program of a recent Sunday. We are aroused at an early hour by the buzzing of aircraft and the pom-pom-pom of our anti-aircraft guns. We dressed hurriedly and rushed out of huts, dugouts and tents, to see a score or more of the German planes soaring around above us and all over dropping bombs at will on camps and towns. Our guns did not seem able to reach them, they flew so high, but we had the satisfaction of seeing one come down, and a lot of others flew for home; but many stayed. The sky was clear and white clouds like a veil were very high, and almost as high these German aeroplanes could be seen, and every little while a bomb would drop, but often in a field or yard, falling harmlessly. All this time a big battle was in progress and had been since Monday night.

First Square Meal.

We hustled through our morning program, not knowing what would befall us at any minute. I started for V——, two and a half miles distant, where most of my troops were. On the way I found three soldiers who had been in the fight for four days, just to the north of us. They were dirty, tired, sleepy, hungry, nervous, bloody and lost. I took them into my little 'Y.' branch in the transport and fed them what they called the first 'square meal' they had had in a week. Their battalion went in 1,100 strong and came out 210 strong. These lads had been burying the dead for three days, piling their comrades into shell-holes and trenches, covering them up there as best they could. The poor chaps' nerves were all shot to pieces, but they said the battle of Ypres was not a patch on this one, and they had been in both. While they admitted heavy losses they claimed that the German losses were much greater, that the German dead covered 'no man's land' so thick that the earth could not be seen, and in some places they were piled high and used as parapets by our men. I directed them to their rest camps, and seldom have I seen more grateful men. One of our officers said afterwards. 'That was truly a Christian act.'

"This fighting is going on now only one mile from our left front and perhaps three miles from here, so you can imagine the noise—big guns jar the earth and shake our hut, making our little window rattle, and the machine guns are seldom silent, while the pop-pop-pop of the rifles never ceases."

MYSTERY OF THE TANKS ONE OF WAR'S SURPRISES

London Daily Express Fears That Machines Are Receiving Praise Which by Right Belongs to the Men Who Operates Them.

THE "worship of the tanks" is getting a bit overdone. The pæans of the uninformed grow louder and louder, and it would seem only incidentally that it is taken into account that the great battle in which they first appeared was won by men and not by machines. Some persons are talking and writing as if the "tanks" had won the war, while Mr. Lloyd George himself has warned everybody not to expect too much from them.

It is recalled in The Daily Express that at the beginning of the war mysterious references were made in the newspapers to a wonderful high explosive with which the French were going to blast the Prussians from the face of the earth. Its merits were discussed in messes, in ward-rooms at sea and at clubs and in drawing-rooms at home.

"We are," The Express says, "in spite of the war, a simple nation. We believed the yarns. We went even further and enlarged upon them until a new surprise was launched on the top of us which completely eclipsed the old one.

"Very few of these early surprise packets materialized. Who among us did not hear stories of the wonderful concrete built ships which were to be sunk in the mouth of the Kiel Canal; of the Zeppelins which would asphyxiate towns with their loathsome bombs, or of the great howitzers which were to plaster the cliffs of Dover with a daily 'hate' as a reminder that Calais was nearer than it seemed?

"In those early days we were most efficient talkers. Nevertheless, it was the Prussian who sprang the first surprise on us with his poison gas. We were deeply shocked. It was unsportsmanlike. It was not cricket. We raised horrified hands to heaven . . . and talked . . . and went on talking, till one fine day we made gas ourselves, and later used it. War is a great leveller. The poison gas surprise was first blood to the Prussian. As Tommy and Jack have it, they 'did it on us—proper.' We made gas every bit as good as the Prussian, improvised gas helmets and respirators, and—waited for the next surprise. It was not long in coming. The Prussian went one better than the poison gas invention and treated us to liquid fire.

"While we were busy making gas helmets and poison gas, Grandpa Tirpits so far forgot his whiskers as to hurl a bomb at us in the shape of his famous 'unterseeboot' campaign. They were most wonderful boats, those submarines of Grandpa Tirpitz. Tens of thousands of miles was their radius of action; they carried torpedoes innumerable, their speed was at least thirty knots, and they bristled with guns. Grandpa Tirpitz has had a fair measure of success. We must give him his due, but where in the sea do those great dreadnoughts and cruisers lie which were to fall such an easy prey to the torpedoes of his U-boats?

"Russia has had her surprise as well as England and Germany. The great Sikorsky biplane, a huge aerial monster of efficiency, was brought into use early in the war, and there were few Zeppelin commanders who dared the flight over the Masurian lakes with these giants of the air for antagonists. There have been many surprises in the shape of inventions, but of all the inventions which have borne fruit and prospered, the new mystery cars are the greatest. What are they like, these great, formidable, steel-clad monsters? Of what calibre are these 'tanks' which override trenches and trees and dugouts and shell craters? Are they merely the mechanical perfections of the human brain, or in truth real devils that can put a battery of guns out of action, charge a prisoners' 'cage' and enfilade a trench in one fell swoop?

"The Prussian cannot tell you. Of a surety he must have thought some form of Satanic incarnation had broken loose when he saw the great mammoth-like 'buses' rolling toward him in the cold, grey morning, menacing and ugly, utterly heedless of barbed wire and shell holes, plunging over mine craters, spitting fire and smoke as they came.

"They are wonderful cars, these 'tanks.' Whose was the clever brain that thought them out and perfected them? Where and by whom were they made? The stories about them are almost as miraculous as the cars themselves. Here are a few 'real truths' which have been circulated about them:

"They carry a crew of 400 men.

"They have 12-inch guns.

"Their speed is 30 miles per hour, and:

"They were made by Swedes in Japan!

"Whatever the 'tanks' may be, whether fish, flesh, or good red herring, they are marvelously efficient. They are a real surprise, and, what is more, an effective one.

"It is extraordinary how like we are to Cousin Hans. It is not such a long time ago that our protests rose to the skies against poison gas. It is a still shorter time since we used it ourselves. We have thoroughly scared Hans with our 'tanks' and already he is complaining that they are a cowardly and unfair weapon to use against an honorable nation in modern warfare!"

PAPER ON ROUMANIA

fifth on the list of petroleum-producing countries in the world. The fisheries in the Black Sea and in the Danube are of great value. Roumania is now far in advance of the other Balkan countries in means of travel. Fast express trains run daily the length and breadth of the State. It is a noticeable fact that only one railway connects Russia and Roumania, while Hungary and Roumania are connected wherever commerce warrants. Parts on the Danube collect and ship the produce of the country to various ports. It has also a fast Roumanian steamship line.

Constitutional Monarchy

The kingdom is a constitutional monarchy, having a Parliament of two houses. The Senate consists of one hundred and twenty members, elected for eight years. They must be forty years of age and have an annual income of eighteen hundred dollars. The Chamber of Deputies consists of 183 members, elected for four years. They must be at least 25 years of age.

Military service is compulsory and universal. Frontier defences have been constructed, and the nucleus of a navy has been established on the Danube and Black Sea.

The entrance of Roumania into the war on the side of the Allies will materially shorten the war. Roumania is in the war for the spoils. It is simply a matter of bargaining. Had she not thought the Allies were going to win in the present struggle, she would, no doubt, have retained her attitude of not too benevolent neutrality. Their one great passion is a greater Roumania, that shall include Transylvania and Bessarabia, and it is natural for them like other races, to indulge in dreams of a greater day. Yet the fulfillment of their ambitions seems remote beyond possibility, because they are not of the nature to make friends with their unlike neighbors.

A woman never thinks of writing a letter if she has someone to talk to.

CONSERVATIVES BEHIND NEW MILITIA MINISTER

TORONTO, Nov. 27.—A feeling of deep and universal satisfaction prevails among Conservatives in East Toronto over the appointment of Hon A. E. Kemp to the office of Minister of Militia. This was expressed in the unity and enthusiasm which characterized a meeting of the executive of the riding at Broadview Hall on Saturday afternoon. The Beaches, Norway and the associations of Wards 1 and 2 were fully represented. During the meeting the Minister appeared and spoke briefly. He received a welcome which indicated warm personal regard and earnest political confidence. By a unanimous standing vote, and with much enthusiasm, a resolution of confidence was passed.

SHOWERS FELL ON POPULAR BRIDE-ELECT

SEVERAL PRESENTATIONS MADE BY PEOPLE OF COLDSPRINGS.

On Tuesday evening, Nov. 14th, the people of Coldsprings spent an enjoyable time at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Huston in honor of two of Coldsprings' Sunday school teachers, Miss Susie Close and Mr. Herbert Peters, who were recently married. A variety shower was given and many useful and valuable presents were received by the bride and groom. Miss L. Bennett, superintendent of Coldsprings Sunday school, told them in a few words with how much pleasure they gathered for a social evening, and on behalf of the Sunday school wished them much happiness for the future.

Mr. Peters, although surprised thanked all for the many presents and also for showing them what a large circle of friends they had.

Light refreshments were served and the remainder of the evening was spent in games and singing. Three cheers were given for the young couple, and also for the kind host and hostess. All joined hands and sang "Auld Lang Syne" and "God Save the King."

Class Entertained.

On Friday evening, Nov. 17th, Master Donald Rose entertained the two intermediate classes of the Sunday school, of which Mr. and Mrs. Peters are teachers, and presented them with a beautiful fruit set, a cream pitcher and sugar bowl and two splendid addresses. The address to Mrs. Peters was read by Miss Stella Huston and the presentation was made by Miss Rosanna Tully. The address to Mr. Peters was read by Master Harry Huston, the presentation being made by Master Carl Wilson. After ice cream, which was provided by Mrs. T. Rose, had been freely partaken of, the classes joined in wishing their teachers much joy and happiness in the years to come.

A Variety Shower.

On Monday evening, Nov. 20th, the ladies of Coldsprings gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Rose to present Miss Annie Peters with a variety shower on the eve of her wedding. On the arrival of Miss Peters, the favorite song, "She's a jolly good fellow," was heartily sung and the beautiful and costly presents were presented to her. Miss L. Bennett, on behalf of the Sunday school, expressed her regret upon losing one of Coldsprings' prominent teachers, and wished her every happiness in her new home. Miss Peters, although taken by surprise, made a suitable reply. After refreshments had been served and games played, three cheers were given for the bride-elect, and also for Mr. and Mrs. Rose. The friendship chain was formed and "Auld Lang Syne" and "God Save the King" were sung.

VIOLATIONS OF THE NEW EARLY CLOSING LAW

CHARGED BY GROCERS WHO SEEK TO HAVE BYLAW REPEALED.

The move to get signatures to the petition asking the City Council to repeal the grocers' early closing by-law is being continued, in spite of the fact that the majority of the grocers are quite pleased with the by-law and do not want it repealed. It is said in some quarters that the sale of articles which form part of the grocers' trade and are kept by other merchants are being sold after seven o'clock and this is one reason why a few of the grocers are making the move to have the by-law wiped off the slate.

The police may take a hand one of these days and prosecute in a manner that will effectually put a stop to violations of the by-law. Discussing the situation today, Mr. O. S. Matchett, of Goheen & Matchett, told The Review that they had been following out the seven o'clock closing for some months and had not noticed a downward trend in their business. Mr. Matchett is very strongly in favor of the legislation.

RUSSIANS TO SAVE NATION OF ROUMANIA

OPINION OF WAR CORRESPONDENT HOME FROM THE FRONT.

TWO YEARS OF WAR.

NEW YORK, Nov. 27. — The war will take two years more and the Allies will win, declares Will Irwin, author and war correspondent, who arrived in New York yesterday on the American liner Philadelphia, after an extended stay with the Canadian contingent on the Western front. Mr. Irwin also said he considered the French army, man for man and gun for gun, the finest fighting force in the world, and he declared that they had trained the British army to pit themselves intelligently against the German troops.

Like a Blasted World.

"The Somme battlefield resembles a blasted world," said Mr. Irwin. "Instead of wide, rolling plains similar to those of Ohio, one beholds a wilderness of destruction. Behind the lines a large city has grown up. The population consists of men, munitions, horses and artillery, which are continually moving from place to place. There is seldom a still moment. Long before sunrise troops are on the march, accompanied by the heavy rolling artillery and the incessant whirr of the aeroplanes on reconnaissance duty."

To Save Roumania.

When asked the general opinion in British war circles concerning the fate of Roumania, Mr. Irwin said he had never personally visited any of the fronts east of Italy, but declared the Roumanians would receive sufficient aid from Russia to ameliorate their present situation. He added that if the Russians, who are maintaining by far the longest front could provide themselves with the munitions and equipment, they would fulfil everone's expectations. He added that because Russia possessed far more men than any of the other allies, general opinion had been censorious toward them. "It is not men which can win present-day battles, but men and munitions combined, with the balance of power lying with the army that can put forward the greatest supply of munitions."

TAXATION METHOD FOR PATRIOTIC FUND PASSED BY CITY COUNCIL

Place Tax on Rateable Property and Income.

RAISE $60,000

$20,000 From Provincial Government $40,000 From County.

Sixty thousand dollars for the Canadian Patriotic Fund was voted by the City Council unanimously last night after the huge petition had been presented by Mr. D. O'Connell, who was the chief spokesman for a very large and representative deputation. The money will be raised by the issuing of 20-year debentures and while at present the tax will have to be paid by those paying property or income taxes, it is the intention of the Council and the Patriotic Fund committee to apply for special legislation which will enable incomes as low as $600 to be taxed and also bring forth yearly compellable contributions from large wage-earners who are not residents of the city but who are working here only during the manufacture of war materials. It was generally known that the petition, signed by all the important property holders, manufacturers and citizens had been under preparation for presentation to the council last night, but there was only one letter of protest. The Trades and Labor Council thought the Dominion Government should bear the whole burden.

Mr. O'Connell in presenting the petition, stated that the deputation which waited on them for the purpose of securing funds for the Canadian Patriotic Fund for next year was composed of the men who from the formation of the Peterborough branch had given their best efforts and assistance in order to carry out the promises made to the soldiers who had enlisted in the different Canadian contingents. It was pointed out that the first year 59,000 had been raised; in the second year $63,000; in all about $122,000, all by voluntary subscription, and he was glad to inform the representatives of the city that this money had been judiciously and economically spent. The operation of the Peterborough branch had been commended on all sides and the system used by Chief Officer Dobbin had been adopted by the central committee. Up to July 1, 1916, the local branch had expended $67,515 and up to Nov. 1, 1916, the amount disbursed was $112,212.36, leaving a balance to the credit of Peterborough at Ottawa of $191.09. A statement now in hand showed that $7,500 was the monthly requirement of the local branch.

$120,000 Wanted

The committee, after carefully considering everything and taking into consideration future enlistments for 1917, decided that $120,000 would have to be raised by Peterborough city and county. After deducting Peterborough's share of the Provincial grant ($20,000) it was figured that $100,000 would have to be furnished by the Peterborough branch. It had been decided also that to raise this sum by voluntary subscription was absolutely impossible as it was felt that contributions to Red Cross and other patriotic organizations had been a sufficient direct drain upon the people. The generous giving by the citizens had

COW ALLEGED TO BE STOLEN KNEW OWNER

TRIAL OF DAVIS HILL IS PROCEEDING BEFORE JUDGE HUYCKE.

The evidence in the charges of theft of cattle from Darlings, Carveth and Ferguson against Davis Hill is being taken together by consent of the Crown and the defence, and is proceeding this afternoon. It will likely be concluded tomorrow when argument will be heard in all cases.

The fierst charge proceeded with was that of stealing two cattle, the property of James Matthews. G. N. Gordon asked that the witnesses be excluded from the court room.

Cow Recognized Owner.

James Matthews, of Lot 23, Con. 1, Dummer, a farmer, told of missing three cattle in June or July this year. The cattle had come to the house for the purpose of salting. The next time they had returned from the pasture three of them were missing. One three-year-old he had found on Hill's pasture; another, a two-year-old, had been found at Collins' farm near Trent Bridge. The animal had recognized him, and he identified her by peculiar natural markings—four white legs, and a star on forehead. Collins had told him about a year-old at Scott's, and he had identified the animal, which he had raised.

Witness tsated to Mr. Gordon that Scott and Collins had told him the cattle were left with them to pasture.

Russell Matthews, son of James Matthews, told of identifying the year-old at Scott's. His father had to get papers from Peterborough before Scott or Collins would give them up.

Stephen Collins lives in the township of Seymour, about 1½ miles from Trent Bridge. He takes in cattle and horses to pasture. Pointing to the prisoner, the witness said, "There is a man there who gave his name as Davis and left a heifer to pasture." He could pick the heifer out of a hundred. A man by the name of Matthews came there and claimed it.

Geo. Scott told of buying a black cow from Davis Hill, who also wanted him to winter a red heifer. This was about October 4th. It was about three weeks after that Mr. Matthews came to claim the heifer.

This concluded the case for the Crown, and no defence was entered. Argument and judgment was reserved until the conclusion of the other charges.

Both Airships Were Destroyed and the Crews Perished --- One Raider Was Bagged After Being Attacked Nine Miles out to Sea.

DAMAGE REPORTED SLIGHT

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, Nov. 28. — Two Zeppelins were brought down in Monday night's raid on the northeast coast of England. The crews of both airships perished. Reports indicate that the latest raid was futile, so far as the infliction of any damage was concerned. Military authorities in a number of towns gave warning of the approach of the raiders, and all lights were promptly put out. In some places it was reported that the engines of the airships were heard overhead, but no bombs were dropped. It is said that most of the bombs fell in the fields in rural districts. Reports so far received mention only two German airships as having been engaged in the raid. A telegram from an unnamed town says the first raider arrived there at half-past twelve and remained a short time, during which several bombs were dropped.

NOBODY INJURED IN FIRST ATTACK.

Nobody was injured. The second airship appeared ten minutes later and hovered over the town for a few minutes as if the commander was uncertain of his whereabouts. It then turned seaward and disappeared without dropping any bombs.

YORKSHIRE AND DURHAM ATTACKED

A later official statement says: "A number of hostile airships approached the northeast coast of England between 10 and 11 o'clock on Monday. Bombs were dropped at various places in Yorkshire and Durham, but the damage is believed to be slight. One airship attacked by airplanes of the Royal Flying Corps was brought down in flames into the sea off the coast of Durham. Another airship crossed into the North Midland counties and dropped bombs at various places.

REPEATEDLY ATTACKED BY PLANES AND GUNS.

"On her return journey she was repeatedly attacked by airplanes and guns. She appears to have been damaged, for the last part of the journey was made at very slow speed, and she was unable to reach the coast before the day was breaking. Near the Norfolk coast she apparently succeeded in effecting repairs, and was proceeding east at high speed and at an altitude of over eight thousand feet, when she was attacked nine miles out at sea by four machines of the Royal Air Service and an armed trawler, and brought down in flames at 6:45."

LONDON, Nov. 28.—One woman was killed and 16 persons were injured in the Zeppelin raid. The airships dropped one hundred bombs.

PETERBOROUGH, TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 28, 1916

THE PATRIOTIC FUND.

ONE YEAR AGO the City Council, the same in personnel except for one member, made a grant of $20,000 to the Patriotic Fund. The aldermen were practically unanimous; three of them standing out for a smaller grant, to be increased if the war continued and the money was required to the amount asked for by the committee.

Last night, without a shadow of dissent, Council voted to raise by taxation the sum of $60,000 for the Fund, payment to be met by the issue of twenty-year debentures.

The city fathers had warrant for what they did. The crowd that packed the gallery in the Council chamber contained some of the heaviest taxpayers in the city as well as all the active workers for the Fund. Mr. Dan O'Connell explained fully the plan proposed, details of which have already been given in these columns, and eloquently drove home the arguments in favor of taxation. The committee realise that it is no longer possible to raise the money by subscription; the city's pledge to care for the dependents of soldiers must be carried out, so that the only alternative is a levy on the taxable property of the city. Every class in the community will be reached and compelled to pay their fair share, but if any individual is not taxed, the privilege of making a voluntary contribution will be still his.

There was little discussion of the matter, the aldermen evidently being of the opinion that the proposition so clearly stated by Mr. O'onnell and the other speakers did not admit of argument. Ald. Langford endorsed it at once. Ald. Weir, with characteristic native hardheaded sense, was in favor of thirty-year debentures, to the end that the slacker could be held to his financial duty as long as possible. Ald. Duncan personally favored paying off the $60,000 in one year, although willing to fall in with the plans of the committee.

With his usual foresight, Mayor Duffus pointed out that one objection to the debenture plan was that when the war is ended some of the returned soldiers may be required to pay their share of this special tax.

Special legislation can easily be invoked to remove this objection, and all returned soldiers can be exempted from payment if the city deems such action advisable, as it undoubtedly will.

When Ald. Stratton moved and Ald. Edgar seconded a resolution to draw up the required bylaw the audience broke into a storm of applause and heartily joined in the singing of the National Anthem, just as they did one year ago.

If ever a Council gave effect to the wishes of the majority, the Peterborough aldermen did last night. It was an exemplification of the referendum system of government down to a demonstration. It was, of course, impossible, in the limited time at their disposal, for the canvassing teams to see all the ratepayers, but the proportion that were interviewed and whose signatures were obtained represented a percentage of the assessed value of city property commensurate with their numbers. The sentiment among the taxpayers was practically as unanimous as that which marked the action of the aldermen.

Aside from the property owners there will be found no objection except on the part of the slacker and shirker who is averse to contributing one cent to the Fund. The man with an income subject to the tax will find his share lighter under the new system than it was when he assessed himself for a contribution. Any charitable or public-spirited citizen who realizes the obligations of the city to the wives and families of the solders can still send in subscriptions to the managers of the Fund if he is so minded.

One point is now settled beyond all shadow of doubt—Peterborough has made good its promise and is ready to keep faith with the beneficiaries of the Fund to the letter and in the spirit of the promise.

YOU CAN'T BEAT THE ACT.

TWO YOUNG MEN, who thought they could circumvent the Ontario Temperance Act, were brought before the Magistrate the other day. They now have in their joint possession, four hundred reasons, at a dollar a reason, for believing that they were laboring under the delusion of their lives.

The new prohibitory law is being made tighter and tighter by every new decision on one of its various provisions that are being handed down from day to day in the courts. He would be an ingenious citizen indeed who succeeded in finding a way around it.

The man who is fined for violating some clause in the Act cannot contend that he erred through ignorance of the law. He has certainly received sufficient warning from the press and from other sources. If be is simply defiant or disposed to regard himself as too clever to be caught, he can, when he comes to grief, blame no one but himself.

The new Act is "blind pig" proof if ever a temperance measure was. Even in private homes the use of liquor is restricted, and no one need be surprised if the next case out of the ordinary has to do with this provision. A man may in his own house put the bottle to the lips of his neighbor, that is if the Divine injunction has no terrors for him. If, however, he concludes, in his home, a business transaction with his friend, and seals the contract with a display of convivial hospitality, the new law regards him as the seller of liquor to the extent of his offering. Bet for this provision the evading of the Act would be easily possible, all that would be necessary being the completion of some deal, in good faith or otherwise, in order to secure a supply of liquor from the party of the second part.

The new Act is loaded to the muzzle, and the man who has respect for his own safety will handle it with all the caution that he may possess.

REALIZE THEIR MISTAKE.

"INQUIRER" has a letter in another column in which he refers to the visit paid by those companions in calumny, Hon. George P. Graham and Henri Bourassa, to Germany before the war, when the Teutons lulled their visitors into a sense of security by assuring them there was to be no war. The Canadian guests of Kaiserdom accepted this rather than the assurance given by the British Admiralty that preparation was the need of the hour if the Empire was to be preserved.

"Do these men realise their mistake?" asks our correspondent, They do, if they are able to realise anything. That they are afraid and ashamed of their record in this regard is best evidenced by the fact that it is one matter to which even George P. Graham in his public addresses lacks the hardihood to allude. He can talk glibly on every topic saving and excepting his party's worse than blunder on the defence question in 1913.

DRAWBACKS TO CONSCRIPTION.

IF THE GOVERNMENT decided to put conscription into effect there would at once be an exodus of eligible men to the United States. These slackers are at present engaged in more or less useful capacities either in the manufacture of munitions or in some other line of industry. Threaten them with compulsion, and by their flight to a haven of refuge they would deprive the country of their services.

There is a boundary line four thousand miles in extent between this country and the United States. The slacker could choose his point of crossing when making his getaway. It would be humanly impossible to head him off, even if the hundred thousand men now under arms in Canada were distributed along the frontier to intercept him. However, the slacker is not the kind of a man as a rule who could readily adapt himself to new surroundings. When all danger had passed his ambition would be to return to the land preserved inviolate to him by the sacrifices of others. The severest punishment that could be meted out to such a speciment of humanity would be to bar him from the country for all time as an undesirable.

THE CASE OF THE CANNERS.

IF IT IS NOT one class of dealers it is another who are blamed by the consumers for the high cost of living Even the men who can fruits and vegetables are not allowed to escape.

Fortunately, however, man does not live on canned goods alone. Any increase on these articles of diet have an inconsequential effect upon the total outlay for household necessities. And the canners are not without a defence. They can easily account for the limited supply and resultant high price by pleading the scarcity of labor and the increase in operating expenses. Students of the vexing problem have not yet uncovered the basic cause.

PATRIOTISM VERSUS PREJUDICE.

A PICTORIAL representation of the famous Passion Play, which tells the story of the life and death of Christ, and which has been played at intervals of ten years at Obermmergau, in Bavaria, was recently exhibited at Woodstock. A resident, whose excessive loyalty has evidently warped his judgment, writes the Sentinel-Review, protesting against the appearance in a Canadian town of anything that has even a remote German connection. The Canadians, he declares, who patronise such a performance are false to their country.

The critic not only objects to the Passion Play as a German institution ,but argues that it is nothing short of sacrilege to represent the Saviour either by silent or spoken drama, and especially so to reproduce that scene of suffering when He died upon the cross.

Christians from all parts of the world who have seen the play produced in Bavaria agree that it is one of the strongest presentations of the all-important story that could be devised. It probably makes ten converts to the faith for every one secured by regular church worship.

To argue that even pictures of the play should be barred from Canada is simply permitting patriotism to degenerate into prejudice. As well might a resident of this country contend that Canadians should give up the reading of the Bible because that Book is used in the churches in Germany, to little purpose, it may be, but interpreted according to Teutonic light and kultur.

WHILE PREMIER BORDEN TOILED LIBERALS PLOTTED AGAINST HIM

There was held in Ottawa last week a convention of Liberals from the various counties in the Ottawa district. The convention was attended by between three and four hundred Liberals. It was held with the approval and active participation of the Liberal party leaders from Sir Wilfrid Laurier down to the Hon. George P. Graham. It was, in short, a gathering of politicians, called by party organizers, to talk politics and to get warmed up for a possible election.

Just look at it for a moment. See what it means. Ottawa is the place where the bulk of the administrative work in connection with Canada's participation in the war is being done. Every branch of the administration at Ottawa is engaged more or less in that work. All the energy and time of the Prime Minister, Sir Robert Borden, are given to it. Every effort is being put forward by the Government to make effective and still more effective the part that Canada is taking in the war. It is not possible for members of the Government to do this work and to play the game of politics at the same time. They have chosen to give their undivided attention to the war, because it is the one great thing that matters to the Canadian people as a whole. That has been he situation ever since the war began and will continue to be so until the war comes to an end, unless it is altered in the working out of some less patriotic purpose than that by which the present Government is actuated.

Under the shadow of the buildings where all this war work is being carried on, the Liberals held their convention, passed their resolutions, went to their banquet, and listened to a number of speeches as openly and bitterly partisan as any which usually go into the making of a political campaign. This was done as an answer to the announced determination of the Government to propose a further extension of the parliamentary term rather than involve the country in the difficulties of a war time election. That answer was given under the direct personal sanction of Sir Wilfrid Laurier. It is in accord with his previous conduct. It is encouraging to the Empire's enemies.

COURSE IN CHRISTIAN TRAINING MAKES FOR BETTER CITIZENSHIP

A plan of popular short instruction in Christian doctrine to be carried on every Sunday for five years at all of the Catholic places of worship in the archdiocese of Chicago has been put into effect by Archbishop George W. Mundelein. An official letter was sent to every Roman Catholic priest directing that the systematic instruction begin Dec. 3, the first Sunday in the Roman Catholic ecclesiastical year.

The archbishop's letter in detailing the plan and setting forth the need of the work and reasons therefor will be read at all the low masses celebrated in Catholic churches on that day. Each Sunday thereafter at all low masses ten minutes of plain catechetical instruction will be given by the priests. The instruction is to be uniform in all the churches.

Apostles' Creed First Year

For the first year the subject matter of instruction will be the apostles' creed, divided to cover the fifty-two Sundays.

"In these days, when every appeal is made to the senses, when so many avenues of instruction and recreation are changed into pathways that lend to error and ruin, in these times when, openly and shamelessly, pernicious doctrines that propose license for liberty, unsound science for Christian faith and sinful indulgence for virtuous living are published broadcast; when money, success and pleasure are the gods of our modern pagan world, then our people need all the old-fashioned Catholic doctrines they can get to save them from mistaking the correct viewpoint and from losing their immortal souls," declares the archbishop in setting forth the reasons and needs for the instruction plan.

"These short, doctrinal discourses called catechetical instruction will be of great benefit. The intention is to bring about a better understanding of the truths of our holy faith, to promote greater spiritual good and to fulfill in a more uniform, practical and efficient manner the mission of our glory. This was strongly recommended by the beloved late Pope Pius X. in his encyclical letter of April 15, 1905."

Will Help Citizenship

According to Archbishop Mundelein, a well instructed, watchful and active laity will help both religion and good American citizenship. "This is the day of layman's apostolate," points the prelate. "At no time have the people been more in need of the anchor that a good knowledge of God's laws gives to hold us steady amid the wind and wave of temptation and to save us lest we perish than now," he said. "The better instructed in principles of religion, the stronger the affection and the more conscientious the practice thereof."

HOW ABOUT HORRORS OF PEACE?

Three years ago, in the summer of 1913, Stefansson, that intrepid Norse explorer, sailed away and disappeared into the silent ice floes and snow fields of the arctic. In that time he and his stout hearted companions faced untold hardships and dangers. Great adventures were theirs. A hundred times, no doubt, the men were heartened by the thought which they uttered each to each under the black sky of what a tale they should have to tell when they got back to civilization.

The other day, far up in the northern ocean, nearly touching the arctic circle, the Stefansson ship spoke the revenue cutter Bear. The news? What was the news of the world? What had happened since they sailed away in the summer of 1913? They could hardly wait to be told.

Very casually the captain of the Bear informed them that Europe was at war, that for more than two years Belgium had been a prison, northern France a shambles, Poland a burial ground, the Balkans a blackened waste.

The effect of the recital on the men who had just come back to what they had called civilisation was almost indescribable. They listened with white drawn faces and staring eyes. Stefansson the intrepid, the brave, the man who had faced death daily unblenchingly for three years, broke down and sobbed aloud.

And so would we all if we had heard such a story.

But it has been told to us in small, fragmentary chapters for over two years. We have grown accustomed to it. We have adjusted our lives to it just as we have accepted the horrors of peace, poverty, slums, unnecessary disease and deaths, capital punishment, industrial accidents.

Suppose someone revealed all these commonplaces to us in one horrible recital? Would it not shock our minds almost to the point of insanity?

The war is terrible, but it will end soon. How about the horrors of peace? Shall we endure them without protest forever?

Trials and Triumphs of the Famous

Prince Emmanuel Philibert of Italy, or as he is better known, the Duke of Aosta, is in command of the Italian forces operating around Gorizia on the Isonzo. He is a first cousin of the King of Italy and in the event of the death of the king's son, is the next heir to the throne. The duke, who has been a soldier all his life, specializing in gunnery, now has a chance to put his knowledge into effect, as practically the entire fighting in the Alps has been with big guns. The duke, who is only 47 years of age, has aged rapidly since the outbreak of hostilities and today his hair and moustache are now snow white. He is married to Princess Helena of France, a sister of the ex-Queen of Portugal, and has two sons, one of whom is fighting with his father as an artillery officer, and the other a midshipman with his uncle, the Duke of Abruzzi, on one of the Italian Dreadnoughts. The whole Italian Royal Family is fighting against Austria.

Mr. David Belasco used to tell the following little story:—

A particularly poor play was once put on at a certain theatre, and the author sat in the front row of the stalls on the first nigh.

The play was a most dismal failure, and at the final fall of the curtain, as the unfortunate dramatist sat pale and sad midst the storm of hisses, a woman behind him leaned forward and said in icy tones:

"Excuse me, sir, but knowing you to be the author of this play I took the liberty at the beginning of the performance of snipping off a lock of your hair as a keepsake. Allow me now to return it to you'"

EDITOR'S MAIL

Editor Review: If Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Graham, Carvell, etc., preferred to take the word of the Kaiser's political advisers (which they did) to that of the Admiralty of England, it would be a sorry day for Canada if that bunch of office-seekers got control of affairs.

You will remember when Bourassa and Graham visited German, shortly before the war broke out, and interviewed the Kaiser's military experts, who told them that there certainly was no prospect of war and Germany was a peaceful nation. At this very time Germany was prepared to the teeth and uniformed men were so numerous that they must have been rubbing shoulders with Bourassa and Graham.

The latter in Parliament refused to listen to the British Admiralty when Canada was warned of the impending danger and he and Laurier chided the Government for taking notice of the warning.

Could these men, or would they now, accept advice from the Admiralty or fiddle with the Kaiser until all our liberties were snatched from us? Do they think that the people of Canada can forget these things?

Wit and Wisdom

In court once an inspector gave evidence of the arrest of the prisoner.

"I went to No. 27," he said in a dignified staccato fasion, that came from long practice, "where I saw the prisones in bed. I said, 'I have a warrant for your arrest for burglariously entering the premises of S.' " and so on.

At the end of this speech the magistrate asked the prisoner, "Any questions?"

"Yes, sir, said the prisoner promptly; "the evidence is not correct. I'm sure," he said, "Mr. Jackson don't want to say anything that is not true. Didnt you come to my room" —turning to the inspector—"and say, 'Now then, Ginger, 'op out of it. I want yer'? "

"Do you believe the Channel tunnel is a serious proposition?"

"Well, at such a depth it could hardly be said to be a project in the air."

Belle: Herbert has been going out with me these three months now. Do you not think it is time he proposed?

Rival: Oh, no; it was nearly six months before he proposed to me.

TEUTONS GROGGY BUT PLENTY OF FIGHT LEFT

Palmer Predicts Allied Victory But Expects War Will Last Three or Four Years More

After living for seven months with the British Army on the Somme, where he was the only American war correspondent, Frederick Palmer, returned to New York recently on the Holland-American liner Nieuw Amsterdam, firmly convinced that the Allies would win, but that the conflict would last three or four years more.

The only possibility that he could foresee for peace in the fall of 1917 was for Russia, which is the unknown quantity in this war, to execute some grand coup next summer that would force the Central Powers to accept whatever terms the Allies might agree to give.

The French were determined to have a peace won by French courage and efficiency in the field, Mr. Palmer said, and not a peace by the grace of Germany. They would certainly insist upon having Alsace-Lorraine returned to France. The British officers and soldiers will not listen to any person who suggests peace to them now, and are confident they can beat the enemy. Apart from any other conditions, the British intend to keep the colonies they have captured from Germany, according to the writer.

"The Roumanian campaign will play a decisive part in the duration of the war," Mr. Palmer said. "At the start the Roumanians ran away with the bait. They would not listen to the advice of the allied commanders. They wanted Transylvania and started through the passes to take it, closing their eyes to Bulgaria. Indeed, they thought they had assurances that Bulgaria would not join in; but nobody ought to have known better than they that assurances are poor collateral in the Balkans. The Germans gathered all the Turks and Bulgars possible, on the one hand, and on the other all available Germans, Austrians and Hungarians; and with the best generals and every gun that they could concentrate, attempted another drive such as they had made against Belgium, Serbia and Poland.

Feared for Roumania.

"Experienced commanders on the Western front, when they saw what the Roumanians were doing, were pretty pessimistic. They knew the size of the Roumanian army, its experience, and how it had exposed itself over a broad front before the Russians could come to its aid. After the fall of Constanza, many thought that Roumania might suffer Serbia's fate as the result of her daring.

"However, once they were in retreat the Roumanians were ready to take advice, and welcomed the hundred French staff officers who are in Roumania pitting their skill and an inexperienced army against German staff skill and an experienced army. The rests depends upon Russia's ability to arm her numbers and transport them and their supplies and sufficient guns and munitions Pessimists thought thatt Roumania might be beaten by October 15th. When she was not, they thought that she surely would be all in by November 1. In mid-November, with Roumania still holding, the conclusion was that the German army had lost its old power of offensive. On the Western front, German deterioration was evident enough, but it was not thought sufficient to interfere with an eastern campaign.

"German victory in Roumania will give her control of valuable wheat and oil fields, and the front will be little longer than at present. She is fighting for a great stake. If she is held up in her present position, she will have a much longer line to defend when spring comes.

"All winter the offensive on the Western front will continue. Every time the weather favors, the French and the British, who have the guns and the shells for it now, will turn on their murderous curtains of fire — whirlwind curtains, creeping curtains, double and treble and quadruple curtains—and the infantry will charge under cover of this canopy of death and tear off another gain of a mile or so of front, and a thousand prisoners or more. Attacks for a few hundred yards of front have gone out of fashion.

"In attacks on a big scale, losses are relatively less and the bag of prisoners bigger. Then the soldiers all like what they call a big 'show.' It counts for something. When spring comes the French and the British will continue their drives with more men and more ammunition, and the Italians will continue theirs. If the Russians have munitions to continue all summer with drives of the same kind, something will break somewhere in the long front of the Central Powers; or if it does not, the Allies mean to go on with the war another year or more.

Yield Trenches Without Fight.

"In their machine gun positions in defence, the Germans have fought with desperate courage, but the British have wiped out these positions with their tanks,' and they don't hesitate to use two or three batteries of guns to flail a troublesome machine gun position with shells enough to make sure that nothing can survive in the neighborhood. The significant thing is the readiness with which anywhere from a score to a hundred Germans will yield a trench without making any fight. That does not mean that the German army is not still a great army; Germany is groggy, but she has lots of fight left. Her army has staggered several times under the blows on the Somme, but the staff has pulled it together. But, plainly, it is not the army it was—it is poorer than a year ago—and the French army is better.

"This idea of an exhausted France puzzles me. Where did it originate? From all I can see, France has the largest trained force, fully equipped for first-line fighting, that she has had since the war began. Paris appears more nearly normal, and business is better than at any other time since the war began.

"Yes, I've been accused of being a monopolist because I was the only American correspondent with the British army; but the British did not feel that they could have more than one American, when they had only one Australian, one Canadian and five men to represent the whole press of the British Isles. War correspondence, which was supposed to be dead, was never so much alive as today. You may go anywhere you please. The only holiday I had during the battle of the Somme was three days in London, and I flew back across the Channel to the front in an aeroplane in one hour and fifty minutes—which gave me more peace than I had anywhere else. Up above the clouds nobody could talk about the war to you. I felt a little giddy at first while mounting, but afterwards it was like riding in a 'bus.

"My own opinion? I ought to know something about who is going to win the war considering how much of it I have seen. I think that Germany must eventually crack under the allied pressure, and that the solar plexus blows which will decide the war will be given on the Western front.

"Probably you get the best idea of conditions in Germany from talks with prisoners. There is food enough for the soldiers, but the civil population is feeling the pinch. There seems no question that the Crown Prince has lost his popularity. Hindenburg's elevation to the Chief of Staff was in answer to public will. Still maintaining that they are patriotic Germans who will fight to the end, prisoners lay stress on the fact that the Crown Prince and all the military leaders around him and all who were in power at the beginning of the war have either been retired or are in subordinate positions. Hindenburg did not belong to that party. He is the product of the war which has put the authors of the war out of face. He holds the loyalty of the average German soldier, where the others have lost it. The Kaiser, however, still retains his hold on German affections.

Hindenburg's Eyes on East.

"Hindenburg has set his eyes on the East. Indeed, Roumania's coming into the war made it necessary that he should. As Germany must yield Belgium and Alsace, she seeks through Turkey her outlet to new fields of expansion. In the West Hindenburg's idea was an elastic front of defence on something of the same order which he maintained against the Russians so successfully. Only, of course, he expected to use much larger numbers to the mile.

"But the East is the East and the West is the West in this war, as all German prisoners agree. They say it is a cinch fighting in the East as compared with Verdun and the Somme. When anybody, who has been on the Eastern front and who thinks that he knows something about artillery concentration, visits the Western front, and is taken over the shrapnel-harrowed fields of the Somme and sees one whirlwind curtain of fire, he gasps and admits that he knew nothing about shell fire.

"With an elastic front the Germans mean to make the British and French pay a heavy price for slight gains. The villages destroyed by gunfire are French villages, and it is enemy soil which the Germans are yielding. But the cold facts are that through the month of September on the Somme the German losses were double those of the British and the French, as they were also at Verdun. The kind of elastic front which yields Thiepval and Douaumont and Vaux at such a cost cannot endure. Success in war seems still with the offensive, and the initiative on the Western front is with the Allies."

Mr. Palmer said the British tanks had prevented at fewest 25,000 casualties in the Somme attacks. The machines made the "Tommies" laugh.

"It is impossible to live as I have done with the British soldiers and not to admire their courage and cheery spirits," he continued. "Watch them singing as they go to battle, many of them never to return, and come singing back again after the attack is over.

"Sir Douglas Haig has proved himself to be the right man for the leader of the biggest army England has ever put in the field in her history. He has drilled his men by actual warfare in addition to putting them through every conceivable kind of drill in camp. After an engagement the troops go to the back of the lines for more drill until the Commander in Chief is satisfied that they are the kind of soldiers he wants around him.

"Gen. Skobeloff used to say that in every one hundred soldiers going into battle there would be twenty funkers, and it is these funkers in the German army who run forward and gladly surrender when a trench is captured. The Germans have not been able to announce big captures of prisoners on the Somme because the British would rather die than surrender. The British man cost in the fighting now going on is decreasing, while that of the Germans is steadily increasing."

Prisoners and Casualties.

Mr. Palmer said it was difficult to fix the ratio of prisoners to casualties in an action, but he thought it was about six to one, and as an illustration he believed that the six thousand prisoners taken in one week recently would represent 36,000 casualties.

The war correspondent related an amusing feature of the war which occurred just before he left France at the beginning of November. It was quite the thing with the younger officers and the men to wear a short thin line of hair on the upper lip just under the nose. The War Office officials decided that all men in the army must either wear the ordinary moustache or go clean shaven. The consequence was that more than three thousand shaved off their tiny moustaches, in which they had taken such pride, in one day, and the effect was startling to their comrades in the trenches.

CITY COUNCIL BOOSTS WAGES

BUT IT WAS BRANTFORD, NOT PETERBORO' ALDERMEN.

The high cost of living problem has lost part, at least, of its terrors for the civic employees of Brantford. Council in that city granted a general increase of wages as follows:—

City Clerk, $200; assistant, $60; City Overseer, $200; City Engineer, $200; Tax Collector, $200. Market Clerk, $120.

It was decided to pay Robert Woodley, for twenty years city fireman, now crippled by locomotor ataxia, three dolars wekely for an indefinite period.

The sum of $5,000 was given to the British Sailors' Relief Fund and $7,500 to the British Red Cross Fund, both to come out of a special patriotic levy in 1917.

Steps were taken to inaugurate an inquiry into the high cost of living under the new combines act.

OBITUARY

MRS. NATHANIEL PEARSON

Jane Mooney, wife of Nathaniel Pearson, Hall's Bridge, Ont., passed away on Saturday morning, Nov. 18, in her 50th year.

Mrs. Pearson was a native of Harvey township and for many years a resident of Hall's Bridge, known and highly respected by all. About two years ago her health commenced to fail, and an operation was performed but without avail.

About four weeks ago she was forced to resort to her bed as a means of rest and quietness in the midst of intense pain and weakness, which was borne with patience and fortitude until the angel of death relieved her that she might enjoy peace and rest.

Those who survive are her husband, Nathaniel Pearson, and two daughters, Mrs. Vernon Graham, Hall's Bridge, and Miss Gladys, at home.—Con.

MISS HATTIE NORTHEY.

On Friday morning, Nov. 17th, there passed away in the township of Smith Miss Hattie Northey, daughter of James Northey, of Lakefield. Deceased's illness was protracted, but it was borne by remarkable fortitude and patience. The late Miss Northey was born in the township of Smith forty-one years ago, and spent most of her life in this vicinity, and was a dressmaker. There are left to mourn her loss her parents and nine sisters and three brothers.

The funeral service was held at the home of Mr. Herbert Northey of Smith, Mr. John Gilchrist of Peterborough officiating. Many friends and acquaintances attended the funeral and followed the remains to Lakefield cemetery. The late Miss Northey knew the glorious fact that the work of salvation was done when the Lord Jesus died on the Cross for sinners, and therefore there was nothing for her to do but accept from Him the gift of eternal life. She had the assurance, "It is well with my soul."

When peace like a river attendeth
my way,
When sorrows like sea-billows roll,
Whatever my lot, Thou hast taught me to say,
It is well, it is well, with my soul.

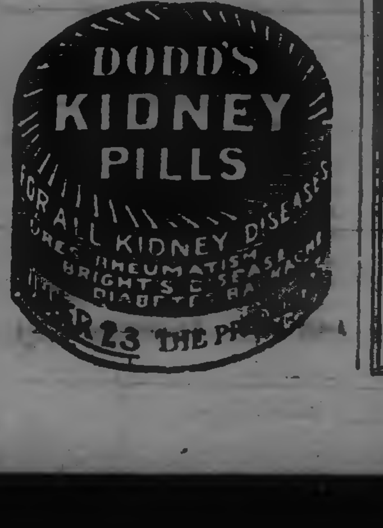
NEW INVENTIONS.

A rubber cover to almost completely enclose a watch to keep from slipping out of a pocket and to prevent it from being electrified has been patented.

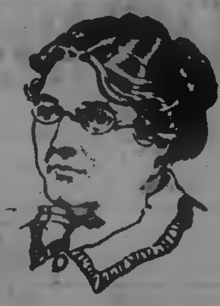
A device to be attached to a plug of tobacco to bite off pieces and thereby save its user's teeth has been patented by an Oklahoma inventor.

A waterproof electric motor has been invented by an Australian to drive brushes against the hulls of vessels to clean them without dry docking.

A new machine for hotel and restaurant kitchens washes vegetables thoroughly without injury by forcing hot water among them as they are held in a glass walled tank.



Mrs. Able Says:



PEOPLE ask me why my tea tastes so good. First, I use freshly drawn water. When boiling briskly I pour it over the leaves, allowing the tea to steep, not boil, five minutes. Next, I pour the tea off the leaves into another pot. In that way you get the flavor of Red Rose Tea in all its fullness and richness. Try it. In sealed packages only.

MOTOR TRUCK PROBLEM GOES BACK TO COMMITTEE

Majority of Council in Favor of Purchase But Not at Large Outlay of Money at the Present Time.

Ald. Langford at the Council meeting last night objected to clause 8 of the Fire, Water and Light Committee, which read:

"That a by-law be prepared to submit to a vote of the electors at the time of the next municipal election to authorize the issue of debentures for $8,500 to purchase a combination chemical and hose truck for the fire department, the debentures to bear interest at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum."

Ald. McIntyre did not think this was the time to buy motor trucks. "Wait till the war is over and save our debenture debt," he urged.

Ald. Edgar was strongly in favor of motor apparatus for the fire department. The manufacturers wanted it and he believed the people should have a chance to say something about it. He referred to the fire at Fernie, where five fires were raging all at once. What would Peterborough do if such should happen here?

Ald. Dobbin was in favor of a less expensive motor apparatus. He would be in favor of getting one or two trucks like Lindsay at a cost of $4,000 for the two.

Ald. Evans was surprised to know that Ald. Langford and McIntyre did not want the people to have a say in the matter.

Ald. Stratton agreed with Ald. Dobbin. One or two small trucks at a cost of $1,600 or $2,000 each would do. People were not in favor of spending $8,500 in one apparatus.

Ald. Weir was very much impressed with Lindsay's truck. It would be sufficient for Peterborough's present wants.

Mayor Duffus was in favor of motorizing the fire department, but thought that the city could get along with two trucks, one for hose and one for ladders, and pay for them out of the rate. The day of the horse was passed.

Ald. Saunders was in favor of the heavy truck. He did not think the smaller ones would go through the snow.

It was decided to refer the matter back to the committee for further consideration.

HIGH COST OF LIVING

Mayor Refers the Question to Legal Committee.

Mayor Duffus brought up the high cost of living before the City Council last night and the question was referred to the Legal Committee to deal with as soon as a copy of the order-in-council has been sent to them.

Communications to City Council

NOTICE OF A CLAIM FOR DAMAGES FOR LOSS OF HORSE.

The City Council last night received several communications that were of especial interest.

Messrs. Peck, Kerr and McElderry notified the Mayor and Aldermen that A. Preston claimed damages for the loss of a horse and damage to a waggon caued by an obstruction on Simcoe Street—a gas tank belonging to the Hydro Commission of Ontario. —Referred to Legal Committee.

The Canadian Pacific Railway Committee promised early attention to the city's request for a gatehouse and steady man at the crossing at George Street.

The Canadian Manufacturers' Association want the city to pay for an advertisement in the manufacturers' index. The Finance Committee will report on it.

The City Solicitor reported that he had prepared an agreement with the Canada Advertising Agency re waste paper boxes on the street corners, and enclosing bylaw. In this connection H. A. Fife, electrical inspector for the Hydro for Peterborough, notified the city that better electrical connections would have to be made to these boxes before winter set in. —The Board of Works will deal with it.

The Peterborough Utilities Commission agreed to remove 5 per cent of their poles in any year without cost to the city. They also asked that the city issue $30,000 debentures which have been passed but not issued. The Finance Committee will dispose of them.

The Trades and Labor Council objected to taxing the people for the Patriotic Fund. The Dominion Government should bear the burden, they thought. This was received.

SPEED TYPIST AT PETERBORO BUSINESS COLL.

CANADIAN CHAMPION GAVE DEMONSTRATION BEFORE STUDENTS.

Mr. Fred Jarrett, champion typist of the Dominion, gave an exhibition of his speed before the students of the Peterborough Business College yesterday afternoon. Previous to his demonstration he pointed out that a few years ago 69 words a minute was considered good work, then 86 was the record, and now 137 was the average speed of the first-class operator, while in the speed tests in New York and Chicago a much higher record was made.

Mr. Jarrett represents the Underwood Typewriter Co., and in his trials yesterday he wrote 88 words of hard copy in one minute, 121 words from ordinary manuscript and from class copy wrote 87 words in thirty seconds. At the request of Mr. McKone, the principal, Mr. Jarrett gave an exhibition of how difficult it was to go as slow as 40 words a minute after using the "touch" system. He tried to write 40 words but did not get below 52.

For the most rapid photography a camera has been invented in which the film is automaticaly shifted by the shutter closing and which is fitted with a pistol grip to aid in aiming it, at the same time keeping it level.

The CRESSMAN Company Limited

Business Transacted by City Council

TAXATION METHOD FOR PATRIOTIC FUND PASSED

all been made by the same people and he was sorry to say that there were large property owners in Peterborough who could well afford to contribute who had never come to the assistance of the families of soldiers now overseas.

It was then suggested that the amount be raised by a direct tax on the people generally and it was found that a proportion should be borne by the city and county and after considering the generous action of the county in the past, that the city pay $60,000 and the county $40,000 and as the petition prays, that debentures be issued covering a period of twenty years. The assessment of the city is $13,000,000 and that of the county $9,000,000.

Get After "Slackers."

If this plan was approved of the "slackers"—those who could and would not do their share, would be reached and made bear a just proportion of the money needed to carry out the obligations made by the Canadian people to the men who had gone overseas. The tax would be a universal one and tenant as well as landlord would pay their mite and it would be much easier to pay $60,000 in instalments than in a lump sum.

People in Favor

A test of the opinion of the people by the patriotic workers of Peterborough showed that the citizens generally were in favor of the plan and in the canvass the causes of refusal to sign were not worth mentioning. The signatures on the petition represent taxed property to the value of $4,145,000, or over a quarter of the total assessment of the city.

Letters were appended commending the plan from the head offices of the De Laval Dairy Supply Co., the Campbell Flour Mills Co., the Quaker Oats Co., the Bank of Montreal, the Royal Bank of Canada.

In conclusion, Mr. O'Connell invited Council to meet the Patriotic Fund committee and the County Council at a conference in the County Council Chamber on Wednesday night at eight o'clock. The City Council will go in a body and meet at the City Hall at 7.45 p.m.

Col. Miller: We must carry out the promises made to the soldiers when they went away.

The money was spent at home and he regretted to learn that there were objectors to the scheme.

Mr. R. R. Hall: There should be no slackers so far as finances are concerned. The pledges made must be carried out and Peterborough's name upheld.

Mr. Jas. Kendry said he would be glad to do anything personally and he felt it was the duty of the Council to pass the by-law.

The Aldermen

Ald. Stratton asked if there were any representatives of the Trades and Labor Council present.—No one answered.

Ald. Langford felt sure that the Council was of one opinion as to the assistance rendered to so worthy an object. The Trades and Labor Council wanted the Government to assume the burden. The Government was doing all in its power by granting separation allowances. None of the patriotic money went to officers' families but to men's dependants only.

Ald. Stratton was quite satisfied that the Patriotic Fund Committee had carefully considered he proposition and they were not far astray when they say it cannot be raised by voluntary subscription. The leading citizens were with the idea and he would support it and would do all in his power to get the county to co-operate.

Mayor Favors "Voluntary"

Mayor Duffus was aware of the several facts as stated but he thought the voluntary system was the ideal one if the result could be accomplished. He knew that there were men who did not contribute who could well afford to. In view of the petition the Council could do nothing else but pass a by-law. He would much rather pay the $60,000 at once if it could be raised easily.

Ald. Dobibn thought that there would be no objection to making the debentures 10-year ones if it was thought advisable.

Ald. Weir, while favoring the by-law, would make the term thirty years in order that the slackers would pay for a longer period and the voluntary subscribers let down lighter.

Ald. Stratton: It is rather funny that someone from the Trades and Labor Council is not present. They have always been represenat at other meetings.

Ald. Duncan personally would rather pay his share at once. He would refer it to the committee of the whole council.

The Resolution

Ald. Stratton moved, seconded by Ald. Edgar, that a by-law be prepared and passed voting $60,000 to the Canadian Patriotic Fund.

The resolution carried unanimously and Mr. O'Connell expressed the thanks of the deputation, who departed singing the National Anthem.

THREE FREE RINKS FOR CHILDREN

In South, West and North Wards This Winter.

Three municipal skating rinks will be the joy of the youngsters of Peterborough during the coming winter. The locations decided on are:—

South Ward, at Wolfe and Stewart Streets, next to the old carbon works.

In Inverlea Park, on the ground formerly occupied by the museum.

At Walton and Weller Street, on a lot loaned to the committee by Mr. Geo. Morrow.

Ald. McIntyre in his report of the special committee had recommended the old site at George and Sherbrooke Streets as the proper one for the South Ward, but Ald. Edgar and Saunders did not think it was central enough and the change was made to Stewart Street. The chairman of the board of works gave the estimated cost at $330.

Ald. Stratton thought the money well spent and moved the report be adopted as amended.

The Mayor was in favor of one good large rink rather than three smaller ones.

The three rinks will be under the supervision of Commissioner Evans and preparatory work started at once.

ACTION

To Prevent Trouble For De Laval Co.

In order that the De Laval Dairy Supply Co. will not have trouble with the flood water next spring the Board of Works and the North Monaghan Council will confer and arrange to keep the Park Street drain open to the river.

The city will bear a share of the expense. This was the decision reached at last night's Council meeting.

CHAMBERLAIN STREET PEOPLE TO GET SEWER

WORK TO PROCEED WHEN WOLFE ST. SERVICE IS COMPLETED.

The Chamberlain Street sewer will be constructed as soon as the Wolfe Street sewer is finished, which will be some time this week.

Ald. McIntyre gave this information to Ald. Duncan last night at the Council meeting.

Ald. Duncan thought it would be well to leave the work go until more favorable weather, but as the South Ward representatives, backed up by the Mayor and Ald. Stratton, stood for the carrying out of the promise made to the residents of the street in 1907, the work will be completed at once.

The pipe from the outfall sewer into the river will be placed at once.

Flowers are more fragrant when the sun is not shining on them, according to a French scientist, because the oils that produce the perfume are forced out by the water pressure in the plant cells and this is diminished by sunlight.

FREIGHT RATES ON TUBERS FROM NORTHERN ONTARIO

Carload of Potatoes From Kenora Costs the Shipper $209 for Freight Alone or 47 Cents a Bag.

The aldermen deserve credit for refraining from the last resort of the politician hard put for munition. When the question of the high cost of living came up in Council last night the city fathers did not assail the powers higher up and pass a resolution fixing the responsibility upon the Administration, or calling upon the Minister of Labor or some other member of the Cabinet, in general terms, to do something for the relief of the consumer.

The question of holding an investigation into local conditions under the authority recently conferred upon municipalities was referred to the legal committee. That at least was better than an attempt to play politics as so many civic legislators in other places are doing.

Mayor Martin, of Montreal, who is also a member of Parliament, says the Government alone is responsible for the high cost of living and produces an array of figures which he proceeds to put through marvellous gyrations, and if they do not convince the people, will at least so confuse them as to render them incapable of objecting.

If the aldermen here decided to start an investigation into the high cost of living they will find more than one case ready to their hands. For example, a carload of potatoes, brought in from Kenora in Northern Ontario, has been shunted on to a siding here and placed on sale in this city, the price asked being $2.30 a bag. There was this season a fair crop of potatoes in the territory from which the carload was brought. The freight rates charged by the railway company appear excessive, to the uninitiated at least. The car contains 672 bushels and 11 pounds of potatoes, or 440 bags. The freight bill for hauling the car from Kenora was $209.19 altogether. This includes $10 extra charge for the use of a refrigerator car, necessary at this season of the year to prevent the contents from freezing. There is a charge of $2 for transferring the car from one line to another. This makes the freight rate of every bag 47 cents.

If any company or individual is making undue profit out of this transaction, the aldermen, exercising their new authority, can easily locate the party. A move made by a committee would have more effect than all the railing that can be directed against the Government.

Sir Sam Hughes Will Not Run

NO INTENTION TO OPPOSE MR. KEMP IN EAST TORONTO.

Soon after the appointment of Hon. A. E. Kemp as Minister of Militia, a rumor was circulated in this city, where Gen. Sir Sam Hughes is so well known as to be regarded almost as a local character, that the latter was preparing to offer himself as a candidate in East Toronto in opposition to Mr. Kemp when he appealed to his constituents to confirm his selection for a Cabinet portfolio. Some refused to credit the report, while others declared that such a step would only be characteristic of the ex-Minister. All sorts of complications were foreseen. If Sir Sam entered the field the Liberals would be more than likely to put up a man with a fair chance to elect him through disruption among the Conservatives.

Sir Sam Hughes has set this rumor at rest. In an interview published in the Lindsay Warder he says that he wishes Mr. Kemp all success in his new office and that he will be unopposed in his election so far as his predecessor is concerned.

"Have you nothing to tell your constituents in Victoria and Haliburton as to your future intentions, an inkling as to any policy in the future?" Sir Sam was asked.

To this question Gen. Hughes replied:

"I feel it is a duty I owe to my constituents to give them an insight into the past and my purpose as to the future."

Continuing, Sir Sam said: "I intend taking a trip to the South, possibly to Virginia, and will be absent a week or two, but on my return I will address a public meeting in Lindsay."

A Y.M.C.A. membership is a great investment. Yearly fees are, boys 10 to 15 years, $3; intermediates, 16-18 years, $4; senior, $6; business men's sustaining, $10. Activities are adapted to men of all ages. Join during the contest, Nov. 20-30.

GOLLOPING AFTER RABBITS

A party of hunters went out yesterday afternoon in a wander for rabbits. They came back with three where they should have got considerably more. The following is a short story of the hunt: A rabbit came along and gollopsed over the foot of one of the shooters whose gun got smucked up when he let it fall after getting sight of a coon.

APPEAL TO MAN FIRST LINE TRENCHES AT HOME

Captains Pearson and Bishop Tell of the Great Work of Y.M.C.A. in France---Campaign to Raise $10,000.

It is the intention to go after $10,000 as Peterborough's contribution towards the work of the Y.M.C.A. in the training camps of England and at the fighting front in France. A meeting of professional and business men of the city will be held in the office of the Patriotic Fund on Wednesday at 8 p.m., when the campaign will be launched. It is hoped that the full amount will be subscribed by the end of the week. Mr. R. W. Morris is secretary-treasurer.

The ladies, the professional men and business men who were privileged to hear the Y.M.C.A. speakers at the three meetings held yesterday will not soon forget the story of the Y.M.C.A. in the war as related by the speakers. Capt. Pearson and Capt. Jones addressed the meeting for women in the public library yesterday afternoon. Mrs. J. A. Aylmer presided. The meeting was a most successful one and demonstrated in no uncertain manner that the mothers are behind the Y.M.C.A. in their great work.

At the Oriental Hotel, where Capt. Pearson and Capt. Bishop addressed the members of the Retail Association, a pin could be heard drop as the tale of sacrifice was related by these eye-witnesses. Capt. Bishop referred to Capt. Pearson's story as a fascinating one, but it was more. It was a story that gripped men. The former told of the early days of the Y.M.C.A. in England and of how it stretched forth its arms on into France and of the incalculable value it was to the men in the trenches. Mr. W. G. Morrow presided. President Barrie and other officers were present, as well as Mayor Duffus and several members of the Council.

The Somme Inferno

Capt. Bishop, who has just returned from the Somme front, told of the offensive movement there, of the Canadians' part in that inferno of shells and of the work carried on by the Y.M.C.A. In giving some insight into the magnitude of the struggle, he explained that the Canadian divisions were packed into one small sector to support the line—60,000 men to support a front held by two brigades. He described the conditions under which these men fought and gave illustrations of how the Y.M.C.A. assisted them when coming out of the trenches and returning.

Lives Were Saved

In a report made to headquarters was contained the statements that at one point the food and refreshments given by the Y.M.C.A. was the means of saving the lives of many men.

Capt. Bishop told of how at one Y.M.C.A. canteen the workers walked four miles for water in order that there would be a supply for the men when they came out of the trenches and would be expecting hot drinks and refreshments.

The speaker made it clear that the money raised for the work and the proceeds of the canteens is used exclusively for the overseas work. The proceeds from the canteens was not more than 20 per cent. of the cost of the operation of the Y.M.C.A. They used all these proceeds, the grant from the British Government, and $300,000 of subscribed funds to prosecute the work. The speaker's appeal was for the people at home to man the first line trenches while the Canadian soldiers held the line against the enemy.

At the Peterborough Club, Mr. T. F. Matthews presided and in support of the work as related by Capt. Pearson and Capt. Bishop, Mr. Matthews, Judge Huycke, Col. Ackerman and Capt. O'Flynn made brief remarks. The meeting strongly endorsed the work and the Peterborough Club will lend its support to the campaign.

HAVE HOPES OF FOUR PERCENT LAGER BEER

BREWERY REPRESENTATIVES HAVE BEEN "KIDDING" HAMILTON HOTELKEEPERS.

HAMILTON, Nov. 28.—Four per cent. lager is the dream of the holders of standard hotel licenses. At present they are not allowed to sell anything stronger than two and a half per cent. joy fluid and that apparently does not satisfy the appetites of their former patrons. One local hotelman says that at least half of the standard hotels in this city could have been out of business before now but for the fact that the brewery representatives have urged them to hang on, promising that at the next session of the legislature the present temperance act will be amended so as to provide for four per cent. lager. Only holders of standard hotel licenses will be permitted to sell the four per cent. lager, it is stated, whereas any person may sell the two and a half per cent. local option lager now permitted.

THE BUSINESS GIRLS' CLUB

REPORTS ON OPERATIONS FOR SECOND YEAR.

RECEIPTS OF $312.

Following is the second annual report of the Business Girls' Club for the year ending Nov. 17, 1916:—

At the first meeting of the year the girls were asked to give their contributions to the Red Cross Society through the club, and to give at least one night a week at the Red Cross rooms. To date the contributions have amounted to $75, which has been forwarded to the local society.

In February the club made application to become affiliated with the Local Council of Women, which application was duly accepted.

Application had been made for the adoption of two Belgian and two British prisoners of war, and upon receiving acceptance of same $90 was forwarded to Mr. Fane Sewell, Toronto secretary of the Overseas Club, for which purpose the Shamrock tea was held in March, the Hallow'en tea in October and the sale of ice cream from the booths on the De Laval and the Bonner-Worth Co. annual excursions in August and September respectively. The total amount realized on these occasions amounted to about $173.

Christmas boxes for the four prisoners of war were forwarded early in November.

The club regretted the resignation of Mrs. Travers upon her removal from the city, as she had always given such material assistance to anything undertaken by the club. However, members are fortunate in obtaining the consent of Mrs. F. C. Neal to act as our hon. president.

Eleven meetings were held during the year, nine business meetings, one picnic at Jackson Park and a tennis tea on the courts of the Brinton Carpet Co., for which pleasure the girls wish to thank Mr. Brock, the manager.

The average attendance during the year was 21. The members of the club extend hearty thanks to the De Laval Co. and the Bonner-Worth Co. for the use of the booths on their excursions, to Mr. Might for the use of the tea room on two occasions, to the Daughters of the Empire for dishes, to the J. M. Greene Co. for the Edison Diamond Disc, to Belleghem's for chairs and tables, and to all who assisted them in any way during the year—especially the press for their uniform courtesy and kindness in inserting notices, etc.

Following are the officers for the coming year:—

Hon. president, Mrs. F. C. Neal.

President, Miss H. Denison.

First vice-president, Miss M. Adams.

Second vice-president, Miss M. Sherlock.

Third vice-president, Miss J. Waddell.

Treasurer, Miss B. Gillespie.

Secretary, Miss M. Rae.

Executive, Miss B. Mowry and Miss Grace Evans.

Clear, Peachy Skin Awaits Anyone Who Drinks Hot Water

Says an inside bath, before breakfast helps us look and feel clean, sweet, fresh.

Sparkling and vivacious—merry, bright, alert—a good clear skin and a natural, rosy, healthy complexion are assured only by pure blood. If only every man and women could be induced to adopt the morning inside bath, what a gratifying change would take place. Instead of the thousands of sickly, anaemic-looking men, women and girls with pasty or muddy complexions; instead of the multitudes of "nerve wrecks," "rundowns," "brain fags" and pessimists we should see a virile, optimistic throng of rosy-cheeked people everywhere.

An inside bath is had by drinking each morning, before breakfast, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver, kidneys and ten yards of bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour fermentations and poisons, thus cleansing, sweetening and freshening the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

Those subject to sick headache, biliousness, nasty breath, rheumatism, colds, and particularly those who have a pallid, sallow complexion and who are constipated very often, are urged to obtain a quarter pound of limestone phosphate at the drug store, which will cost but a trifle but is sufficient to demonstrate the quick and remarkable change in both health and appearance awaiting those who practise internal sanitation. We must remember that inside cleanliness is more important than outside, because the skin does not absorb impurities to contaminate the blood while the pores in the thirty feet of bowels do.

INQUIRY BY REFUGE HOUSE COMMITTEE

HAD TO DO WITH MR. AND MRS. J. NEWHALL, AGED COUPLE FROM DUMMER

A special committee of the County Council visited the House of Refuge last night to inquire into the condition of Mr. and Mrs. J. Newhall of Dummer, an aged couple who have been living in the Home for the past year.

Councillor Bullied, as chairman of the committee, placed the matter before the Council. He stated that Mr. and Mrs. Newhall had been placed in the institution after their friends had left them in very destitute circumstances. It also was ascertained that the farm owned by Newhall had been transferred to a Mr. Peacock under certain conditions. Mr. Lytle, who addressed the Council yesterday, was willing to see that the old couple were cared for. Mr. Peacock had offered to assist, but the son of J. Newhall thought the father and mother would be better in the Refuge if they had a room together and were not separated. The son had spent $175 on caring for his parents during the past season, and had also given some attention to the farm.

Several of the councillors thought that arrangements could be made to fix up a room so that the couple would not be separated. The old gentleman is over 80 and his wife nearly 70.

It was finally decided, on motion of Messrs. Anderson and Brown, to leave the matter in the hands of the House of Refuge committee with a recommendation that if the committee was satisfied that friends would see that proper care and attention was given them, the old people be liberated.

MET DEATH IN ACTION

Gunner Bob Thompson Killed on Nov. 13th.

Gunner Bob Thompson has been killed in action. Only a few days ago The Review published a letter from him and in the latter part of last week also announced the wounding of Gunner Sid Armstrong, who was a chum of Gunner Thompson, both having joined the Cobourg Heavy Battery, being transferred to the 165th Canadian Siege Battery in France. Gunner Thompson was killed in action on Nov. 13 and Gunner Armstrong was wounded two days later.

Assistant City Clerk Ingram received the news of Gunner Thompson's death this afternoon by telegram from Mr. Walter Maguire, Montreal, a brother-in-law.

His mother, Mrs. Catherine Thompson makes her home with her daughter, Mrs. Walter Maguire, and only yesterday she wrote to a friend in the city expressing the hope that her son would not fall, and asking that her sympathy would be extended to the relatives of Gunner Armstrong.

The late Gunner Thompson was 25 years of age on November 9th. He was a machinist, having served his appreticeship at the C. G. E. Mrs. John Allin, with whom he lived for some time, is an aunt. He was a member of Massena Lodge, A. F. and A. M., and also of the Massena Chapter of New York State, and he was also a member of Knox Church.

Fessenden also received a parchment diploma signed by the Italian Minister of Foreign Affairs.

O.C. 247TH BATTALION MEETS THE EMPLOYERS

Interests of the Regiment Were Discussed Including Employment of Girls and Women to Relieve Men for Service.

Lieut.-Col. Ackerman met a number of the heads of local industries and business men in the rooms of the Patriotic Club last night and outlined his plans for getting more men into the ranks of the 247th Battalion.

The discussion was helpful to all interested and Col. Ackerman was given to understand that he would receive all assistance possible. The matter of the employment of girls and women to do work that would relieve men for overseas service formed a part of the discussion.

Mr. J. A. Aylmer, president of the Speakers' Patriotic League, presided.

A meeting in the interests of recruiting will be held in the Armories on Sunday night at 8:30. An outside speaker is being secured, and Hon. Arthur Meighen or Hon. G. P. Graham may come.

Col. Ackerman asks the eligible men to be present and hear the situation explained, assuring them that no person will be singled out in remarks that have caused many men to keep clear of recruiting meetings.

Col. Ackerman begins an invasion of Hastings tonight. He will speak at a meeting in Bancroft.

It has been said that clothes make the man; now that may be true, or it may not, but there is no doubt that a man can be known by the clothes he wears. Fashion designers of male attire have been accused of effeminacy of late, but there is one design of man's clothing that can never be categorised as effeminate, notwithstanding that many women

PETERBOROUGH, WEDNESDAY, NOV. 29, 1916

THE SPIRIT OF CHRISTMAS.

WE WOULD NOT CARE to go so far as those who claim that writing it "Xmas" is an evidence of pagan tendencies on the part of those who perpetuate the abbreviation. We believe that form of the word is only the result of unadulterated laziness and that it is on a par with other short cuts to the end of the row generally indulged in by those averse to physical or mental exertion.

The people of the present age are drawing further and further away from the old spirit which pervaded the Christmas season. It is no longer a church festival, the dignified and happy celebration of the central religious event in the history of the world, but is becoming more and more a secular holiday. The patron saint of Christmas, the idol of the children, was formerly kept in the background, and stood high by reason of the very mystery that surrounded him, in the veneration of the little people.

But now, at every Christmas entertainment, he, or a caricature of him, is paraded, until through familiarity he has lost all the charm which he once possessed. A figure arrayed in cotton whiskers and other articles of picturesque disguise, in momentary danger of cremation as he hovers around lighted candles, has taken the place of the good old Santa Claus who, in the days gone by, dashed around the country behind eight fleet-footed reindeer and made his entry to the houses on his route by the chimney and his egress through the same unconventional channel.

The astral light that flamed over Bethlehem so many centuries ago marked the dawn of the first Christmas day, and a little Child was the central figure. Wise men gathered at His manger-cradle, worshipped him, and presented Him with gold, for, though His birthplace was lowly, He deserved the portion of a king, and with frankincense and myrrh because long years of triumph mingled with suffering lay before him.

The One Whose birth is celebrated on the day should remain the central figure in the festivities and His name should be commemorated even in the term by which the holiday is designated.

LOST IN A LOST CAUSE.

A PHILADELPHIA MAN went to Brooklyn and immediately lost himself. He writes home daily to his friends, frantically calling for aid and declaring that he cannot tell what he is doing or where he is at, the past and the future being alike so many sealed books to him.

The story is not so difficult of credence when we consider that a like affliction might easily overtake a stranger in at least two places in Canada. First, he could easily bewilder himself beyond hope by venturing into the union depot in Toronto and then attempting to find his way out. Any directions that might be vouchsafed him by the officers in charge would tend rather to add to his confusion.

Or the same man could come to Peterborough and cast in his lot with the local Liberal party. Result—confusion worse confounded. Where is he at? Why this past dark as an African midnight with the natives abroad, this future in which he can discern nothing but a graveyard already crowded? Ruin and desolation and despair, broken only by the victim's cries for help from his former friends.

AS ENGLAND REGARDS IT.

THE WESTMINSTER GAZETTE just to hand discusses editorially the resignation of Gen. Sir Sam Hughes from the Canadian Cabinet, and expresses no surprise at the event which created so much excitement in this country. Our English exchange says:

"After Sir Sam Hughes' recent amazing speech in which he attacked the British military authorities, his resignation can hardly be called surprising. We are absolved from discussing the charges until we are in possession of Sir Robert Borden's statement, but we may say at once that we are utterly in the dark as to the allegations made by Sir Sam Hughes as to the treatment of the Canadian wounded. Accidents happen in the best regulated families, and it is just conceivable that our hospital arrangements may have broken down, to the injury of some individual Canadian. But the Canadians, like all the soldiers who come overseas to the assistance of the Mother Country, have the full advantage of our Red Cross arrangements, both official and unofficial. For the succor of our wounded we have mobilised all the available civilian surgery, and we do not even understand what can be meant by suggesting that our wounded, whether Canadians or not, are at the mercy of first-year medical students. We must return to this subject, but an immediate protest is necessary against allegations which, if believed, could not fail to shake public confidence and to discourage recruiting."

GERMANS COMPLIMENT THE BRITISH.

IT IS REFRESHING to find that the German Minister for War is recommending British stubbornness and British determination as an example to the German people. General Von Stein told the Reichstag at a recent meeting that he had come straight from the Somme battlefield, where he had learned much that was important for his office, but this especially, that "the enemy—and, above all, the British are introducing into the fight, with the assistance of the entire world, ever new and heavier expedients, in order quickly to attain their aim." More than this he found that "all British soldiers' letters conclude with the view that all must be borne because the State and the nation demand it."

Our men on the Somme do, indeed, deserve this tribute, and in future we may hope we shall hear no more from the enemy about British decadence and British incapacity for patriotic effort. We are glad that the German who gathers up the letters of British soldiers on the battlefield should find in them this brave constancy and endurance. It remains for the people at home to be equal in their effort and sacrifice.

And here, for once, we may return a German compliment and express the hope that, if ever the mass of the people in Canada are being tested as the mass of Germans are now, they will show something of German discipline and endurance. Our people have immense advantages over the Germans; large numbers of them are living not worse but better than they lived before the war. Greater demands will certainly be made on them. Let it be hoped that they will meet them without complaint.

NO RIGOR INTENDED.

CAPT. J. H. BURNHAM, M.P., now overseas, writes a letter to the London Times discussing the decision recently handed down by the Privy Council with regard to bilingualism in Ontario. Capt. Burnham says:

> Where two such eminent authorities as The Times and the Pope engage in settling the French-Canadian language question it would seem almost, if not quite, an impertinence for a humble member of the Canadian Federal Parliament like myself to take a hand. But your reference that "we would say to the Ontario Government that the legal decision which has vindicated their educational authority lays upon them the plain duty of deciding whether, remembering all that has happened since 1913, they will insist on exercising its rigor to the full," implies that the Ontario Government and the English-Canadians have been applying "the rigor of the law" to the full. Let me say that all that is sought is the control of the situation. There is no thought of rigor. But where is the foundation for the idea of the French-Canadians that they have as much right (in thise case more) as those who profess the English language to say how the teaching in our schools shall go? It is an attempt of a minority to "bulldoze" the majority and nothing else.

NOTES AND COMMENT.

IT IS INDEED a wise heifer that is able to identify its owner.

• • • •

GOVERNMENT by coalition really means government without representation.

• • • •

"MAN'S INHUMANITY to man makes countless thousands mourn." The Kaiser's especially.

• • • •

LIFE IS NOT without its compensations. With the coming of winter, out goes the sport shirt.

• • • •

THE WAR SITUATION is still hopeful, and, best of all, it is not the enemy who are doing the hoping.

• • • •

"I HAVE NO INTENTION of leaving the party," says a well-known Canadian public man, thus putting the matter up squarely to the party.

• • • •

AND EVEN the benevolent old Santa Claus will feel the pinch of the high cost of living, the prices of toys having gone away out of sight.

• • • •

SOME OF THESE DAYS a speaker will deliver a statesmanlike address at a ward meeting in Toronto, and the shock will prove too much for some of his auditors.

• • • •

OF COURSE, it is impossible to forecast Gen. Sir Sam Hughes' promised speech at Lindsay, but it is safe to offer odds that in respect of luridity it will eclipse even the new styles in men's neckwear.

• • • •

A KINGSTON BOY of 16 has been killed at the front. Too bad, isn't it, that such a promising youth should be taken away while there are so many slackers of twice his age left at home whose loss would not be so serious?

• • • •

CHRISTMAS MAY BE becoming more and more commercialized, but, thank fate, Hon. George P. Graham has never been able to devise a scheme to drag it into politics or in any way use it as a reproach to the Government.

• • • •

IN ARIZONA schoolma'ams get a bonus of $5 a month for remaining single. The figure would be ridiculously low in Peterborough. Almost any man would be willing to buy out such a claim at an advance of at least three hundred per cent.

READER: That popular phrase, "Passing the buck," means shifting the responsibility. That is what the dry provinces are passing up to the Federal Government, probably under the impression that the shoulders of the latter are broader to bear it.

OPINIONS OF OTHER EDITORS.

Just One Letter.

(Montreal News.)

After reading the German official reports, one feels tempted to ask what is the difference between the belligerents in this war? One lot is the Allies and the other the All-lies. German papers please copy.

The Indifferent West.

(London Free Press.)

The Western States know nothing of the war. Their newspapers carry little war news, and the public mind is otherwise occupied. It was easy to convince them that their prosperity had little connection with the conflict in Europe.

Did Not Act Impetuously.

(Montreal Star.)

Sir Robert Borden is not a man to act impetuously, and he was whole-souled in his recognition of Sir Sam Hughes' excellent work in organizing the Valcartier Camp and the sending of the first contingent. So we must conclude that he believed that it was in the public interest that Sir Sam Hughes should relinquish his portfolio.

Where Money Talks.

(St. Thomas Times.)

No sooner had Mr. William Tolmie, Reeve of Aldborough, been nominated by West Elgin Liberals, than some one discovered him to be a man of independent means. The party leaders in St. Thomas are now endeavoring to convince the nominee that to ensure success in his election campaign he should let the rural districts look after themselves and devote all his energies to rounding up the more doubtful vote in St. Thomas.

BAD TEETH BREED MANY DISEASES THAT OFTEN RESULT IN DEATH

"Clean your teeth! Unclean teeth bring on disease! Unclean teeth wreck lives! Unclean teeth may lead to death!"

If Peterborough spread this warning broadcast as a slogan such as "boil all water before drinking," some persons might be inclined to treat it as an exaggeration. No mother would threaten her child with such dire punishment for not cleaning the teeth—if she did she would be accounted cruel and inhuman. No teacher would address instructions in such a direct manner to her pupils. Even a physician, facing a specific case, and hovering between the conclusions reached by different schools of medicine, might hesitate before he published this statement. Yet if the opinions of scores of leaders in the medical profession are of any value, the teeth of the average Canadian citizen, man or woman, today cause more serious disease than any other one part of the human body.

"How Are Your Teeth?"

More and more family practitioners are asking their patients:

"How are your teeth? Have you had them looked after?"

More and more, in hospitals, surgeons about to operate for deep-seated disorders apparently unconnected with the mouth and seemingly having no relation to dental work, ask:

"What about your teeth? Are they in good order?"

They are asking these questions when examining patients for scores of diseases, among which the following stand out prominently:

Appendicitis.

Ulcer of the stomach.

Abdominal inflammations of various kinds.

Digestive disorders, such as indigestion.

Disturbances of the gastric juice in the stomach, known to doctors as hyperchlorhydrias.

Inflammation of the joints, rheumatic pains and gout, forms of what the doctors call arthritis.

Acute paralysis.

Inflamatory infection of the upper reaches of the throat, such as croup and quinsy. The general term "angina" is often used.

Poor heart action and cardiac insufficiency in general.

Nervous affections of various kinds, such as reflex neurosis and those covered by the broad term neurasthenia.

Insomnia and sleeplessness.

Phobias of al sorts, a phobia being a disease in which aversion or morbid fear plays a part.

Intestinal diseases.

Diseases of the gall bladder.

Bad Teeth and Gums

The cause of these diseases, which seemed annoying enough in themselves, has been traced in many instances to nothing more or less than infected gums, caused apparently by the eating of improper food, the lack of attention to the first symptoms of tooth decay and what is most important—improper cleaning of the teeth!

Consider the above list of diseases, whose origin often has been traced by competent physicians to infected teeth, and then say whether the warning at the head of this column is not fit to be given the widest circulation possible in all the highways and byways of Peterborough.

MODESTY COMING INTO ITS OWN

Modesty is again coming into its own. Woman attired for a George Street dress parade will no longer look like a member of an Alpine chorus in a musical show. Neither will she resemble the leader of the kilties band. The short, plump lady in the short skirt, the tall, rangy debutants, who, attired for the day, looked like a fourth chapter in a novel, will be of the past.

For the Designers, Association of Women's Clothes, emancipated from all European patronage, has completed the styles for 1917, which will be exhibited at the Hotel LaSalle in Chicago, at the biennial convention, opening Dec. 16.

The ideas promulgated by the designers are that beauty is not a matter of garish display that nature has its place, and that lines, drapes, colors and designs are more desirable in dress than shocks.

Having solved the short skirt problem to the satisfaction of all, the association has also turned its attention to the psychology of clothes, their effect on women, and the effect of styles upon their wearers. The theory that beautiful styles arouse beatiful thoughts in women and make them supremely happy will be illustrated at the convention by the first group of singing models in history. Fifty clothing models, all of whom will participate in a popularity contest, will exhibit the styles, bursting into song with each garment. Miss Lois Falkenberg, a well-known songstress, is the first to be enrolled for this purpose.

Special melodies are being prepared for the different styles—a brown suit or a black suit requiring a sombre tune, a gray, green and pink suit necessitating a mery strain. Alexander Weisz, president of the association, and Joseph Hecht, treasurer, are among those who are working for the convention and who have contributed numerous instances of Chicago art to the exhibit.

EMPEROR IS ONLY "SINFUL MAN"

The coffin of Emperor Francis Joseph has been finally closed at Vienna but the body will remain lying in state until Thursday, the day set for burial. At the burial in the crypt of the Capuchin chapel a historic ceremony will be caried out which ceremony will be carried out which was anciently designed to impress on the monarch's successor the fact that in spite of all pomp a monarch is merely a mortal.

The funeral procession will be halted at the entrance to the vault by a challenge from within: "Who is there?'

The reply will be made: "His most serene majesty, the Emperor Francis Joseph."

The challenger will then reply: "I know him not."

Responding to a second challenge the announcement will be made: "The emperor of Austria and apostolic king of Hungary is outside." Again the challenger will answer: "I know him not."

When, for the third time, the voice within asks who demands admission, the master of ceremonies will reply: "A sinful man, our brother, Francis Joseph." The portals will then open and the procession enter.

HEARD PLAY IN LIEU OF SERMON

A tall man, slightly stooped, wearing a black surplice, stepped into the chancel of Grace Episcopal Church in Chicago Sunday night, and while the congregation listened wide eyed, rendered five scenes from "The Sign of the Cross," Wilson Barrett's drama, once one of the big pieces of the stage, in lieu of the sermon. The man was Benjamin Scovell, a nephew of the late Sir Henry Irving, and himself an English actor of repute. A remarkable gathering was on hand to hear him, for word of the unusual performance had spread through the town and, in addition to the church membership, a large group of the Sons of St. George was on hand.

"It was a great success," declared the Rev. Francis R. Godolphin, rector of the church. "Of course, it was decidedly a novelty, but there could be no possible criticism because of the giving of a dramatic performance in a church. The piece was highly reverential and I may say that it was as good a sermon as I ever heard. Mr. Scovell appreciated the effect of the remarkable lines in a church and there was no suggestion of theatricals in it. In fact, I was so struck by it that I have asked him to undertake the organization of a dramatic society in my parish."

The actor, whose resemblance to his famous uncle is striking, took his place immediately after the announcements had been read and plunged into his performance, which lasted fifty minutes. He presented five scenes from the play, in which formerly he appeared with Wilson Barrett, taking in all eighteen parts during the course of the evening.

"It was certainly a novelty," said a member of the church. "We all enjoyed it, I think. Something novel and unusual, as long as it is not irreverent, often is good for the church."

He—Is that so?

She—Yes, he thought the other morning that he left his watch at home and he took it out of his pocket to see whether he had time enough to go home for it.

Teacher—Bobby, can you tel Tommy what comes after ten?

"I hear, said the reporter to the manager of a railway noted for the unpunctuality of its trains, there was an accident on your line last night.

"Oh, do you?" was the sarcastic reply.

"Yes."

"Do you know anything about it?"

"Only that it happened to the train which was due here at 8.15."

"That train came in to the minute, sir."

"Are you sure of that?"

"Of course!"

"That must have been the accident referred to." And the reported dodged out safely.

Visitor—I hear you have been very ill, Maggie. Did you suffer much?

Maggie (aged 5): Yes, ma'm. I enjoyed an awful lot of pain.

Teacher—Now, Tommy, can you tell me what 't-o-o' spells?'

Small Tommy —Yes, ma'm; it spells too.

Teacher—That's right. And what does t-o spell?

Small Johnny— I guess it spells one.

Little Harvey—Mamma, has your tongue got feet?

Mamma—Of course not. What makes you ask such a question?

Little Harvey—I heard papa say your tongue ran all day long, and I wondered how it could run without any feet.

Rubber Supply Is Steady While Leather Gets Scarcer

This Explains Low Price of Rubber Footwear in Spite of Increasing Cost of Fabrics, Chemicals and Labor

The war is using up enormous quantities both of leather and rubber. At the same time it is seriously restricting the output of the former, much of which came from Russia—while rubber production keeps pace with the demand. From the great plantations now reaching maturity in Britain's tropical Dominions will come this year 150,000 tons of raw rubber—75% of the world's production, and an increase of over 40,000 tons from last year.

Thus, thanks to the British Government's foresight in encouraging these plantations, the Allied armies have been abundantly supplied with all the rubber products they need—Germany and her allies have been cut off—and the price to the world at large has actually been reduced. Meanwhile, leather has been getting scarcer and more expensive—80% higher than in 1914—and the end is not yet.

At normal prices a pair of good shoes cost about four times as much as a pair of standard quality rubbers, and would last nearly twice as long if the rubbers were worn to protect them in bad weather. So even before the war rubbers were a mighty good investment, to say nothing of their prevention of wet feet, colds and doctors' bills.

Now, when shoes cost seven or eight times as much as the rubbers, the saving from wearing the latter is so outstanding that no one who believes in thrift will think of going without them. Nor will those who are anxious to help win the war, for by wearing rubbers and overshoes we conserve the leather so scarce yet so absolutely necessary for the soldiers.

PASTOR QUITS SMOKING AS AN EXAMPLE

MINISTERS ENDORSE ANTI-CIGARETTE MOVE IN THE SCHOOLS.

CHICAGO, Nov. 29. — The Rev. Dr. Olin M. Caward, pastor of the Normal Park Presbyterian Church, has quit smoking. No more will the blue rings from a pure Havana waft their way from his lips, nor the richness of a "10 center" bring after dinner solace. His conversion came as the result of the anti-smoking campaign being waged in the public schools with the indorsement of the school board.

"I have always liked a good cigar," said Dr. Caward at the union ministers' meeting at the First Methodist church, in advocating a resolution indorsing the anti-cigarette agitation in the schools, which the ministers unanimously adopted, "but now I have quit for good and am going to work heart and soul for the spread of anti-smoking clubs among high school boys.

"I have indulged in tobacco since I was 25 years old, although I was a moderate user. Some days I would smoke once or twice and then sometimes go days without any. But when a generous friend had two good cigars I wasn't averse to taking the other one. And an after dinner smoke always appealed to me.

Clear Record for Four Weeks

"But when this agitation commenced four weeks ago, I quit. And I have managed to get through these four weeks very comfortably. I went to my physician and told him I was willing to take medical treatment, if necessary, in order to leave off the habit. He said abrupt stopping would not have any ill-effects.

"Though I was not a cigarette smoker I have signed this pledge so that I can advocate it with a clear conscience among the schoolboys. And I advise you brethren that smoke to quit. I don't know how many of you indulge, but probably some of you do. I saw the light when I realized that any father in my congregation in trying to persuade his boy to stop smoking would find it difficult to get around his son's retort, 'But, papa, the preacher smokes!' Gentlemen, cut it out. It doesn't pay."

DUKE OF DEVONSHIRE NEW HEAD OF THE CAN. PATRIOTIC FUND

OTTAWA, Nov. 27. — The new Governor-General, the Duke of Devonshire, has manifested his interest in the work being carried on by the Canadian Patriotic Fund by consenting to become the president of the fund. This position was held by the Duke's predecessor, the Duke of Connaught, from the inception of the fund until his departure from Canada and the present position of the fund in National confidence and financial strength is largely due to his inspiration and personal devotion to its interests. The new Governor-General evidently proposes to take the same active part in promoting the welfare of this great national undertaking.

A SAM HUGHES STORY

There is a typical story of Sir Sam Hughes, former Canadian minister of war, who recently visited England and France. He was invited to visit a hospital twenty-five miles out of London to see Canadian wounded. "Right," he replied; "I will come one day, but can't give a date." Two days later he wired that he was coming in two hours' time. Soon there came a 'phone call from the hospital imploring the general's A.D.C. to postpone the visit.

"Nobody's here," wailed the speaker. "The colonel in charge and the matron are both away and we're not prepared." "Can't be helped," was the reply. "We don't want to see the colonel and we don't want to see the matron—we want to see the wounded. We're coming right now—expect us in an hour." And the general and his party went.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

BY JOHN W. S. McCULLOUGH, M.D., D.P.H., CHIEF OFFICER OF THE PROVINCIAL BOARD OF HEALTH.

HEALTH OFFICERS' CONFERENCE.

THE annual conference of Ontario Health Officers for 1916 was held on the last two days in May. It was, in point of numbers, importance of papers presented, and general interest, perhaps, the most interesting meeting of medical officers of health we have ever had.

One of the most instructive papers was read by Dr. W. H. Park, who for many years has been Director of the Laboratories of the Health Department of New York City. Dr. Park is an expert upon Diphtheria, and in his address he outlined the methods of his Department in the diagnosis, prevention, and treatment of the disease in which he and his associates have been specializing. The City of New York is divided into sections and the children grouped in order that tests may be carried out to discover those who are carriers of the disease, and to obtain more thorough information as to the causes for the spreading of the disease. Dr. Park said that the scheme has been productive of wonderful results. Regarding the use of antitoxin he said that from practical experience he was of the opinion that the full amount of antitoxin required should be given in the first injection; another way to obtain prompt results was by injection of the remedy directly into a vein so as to reach the blood stream at once. He advocates single large doses.

Dr. Cruickshank, M. O. H. of Windsor, gave a most instructive paper upon tonsils and adenoids in children. The doctor is one of the best of our Health Officers. He has been engaged in making tests in this subject among children in the Windsor schools, and has come to the conclusion that tonsils and adenoids are responsible for a good deal of disease among children. He advocates their removal, and in addition suggests that the abolition of baby comforts, the provision of proper ventilation in school and sleeping rooms and the proper care of children's health would prevent a lot of disease. There is sound wisdom in his remarks.

A timely discussion, in view of the great prevalence of the disease during the past season, was carried on in reference to Measles. It was pointed out by various speakers that Measles is most difficult to control from the fact that it comes on like any ordinary coryza or cold, and that the most contagious period of the disease is probably before the rash appears. The present quarantine period (three weeks) was regarded by the officers present as being too long and failed to do the good expected of it. The concensus of opinion seemed to be that two weeks, which would cover the period of incubation and contagion, is long enough. It is probable that this discussion will be given due weight by the Board, and lead to a shortening of the quarantine period.

There was considerable discussion regarding the question of allowing the breadwinner of the family to go to work while his child is ill of Measles, or other communicable disease. This is at present a matter of discretion with the M. O. H. and is usually allowed except, of course, in cases where the man of the house is a teacher of pupils at some school, or is engaged in the manufacture of food or clothing. It is very unlikely that these diseases are carried by a third person unless he or she is a "carrier."

These annual conferences have had a very marked affect upon the efficiency of the various medical officers who are regular attendants. In almost all cases our medical officers of health are seen at every meeting, where there is ample opportunity for the discussion of the problems which are met by them in their various municipalities.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

J. C. B., Welland. Sanitoria expenses of indigent.

Q.—What provision is made for the care of a poor patient with consumption?

A.—The local Board of Health and the Medical Officer of Health may, under the regulations for the control of Tuberculosis, send to a hospital or sanitorium an indigent who, in their opinion, endangers the health of others in the same house or in personal contact with him. The expense of this patient's care must be borne by the municipality where he has had his usual place of abode. The Ontario Government pays $3.00 per week toward the maintenance of such patient.

SOLDIERS WIN VICTORIA CROSS

TWO CANADIANS ARE HONORED FOR BRAVERY AT THE FRONT.

The following Canadians have been awarded the Victoria Cross: 72133, Private (Acting Corporal) Leo Clarke, Canadian Infantry (of 785 Pine street, Winnipeg), for most conspicuous bravery. He was detailed with his section of bombers to clear the continuation of a newly-captured trench and cover the construction of a block. After most of his party had become casualties he was building a block when about twenty of the enemy, with two officers, counter-attacked. He boldly advanced against them, emptied his revolver into them, and afterwards two enemy rifles which he picked up in the trench. One of the officers then attacked him with a bayonet, wounding him in the leg, but he shot him dead. The enemy then ran away, pursued by Acting Corporal Clarke, who shot four more and captured a fifth later. He was ordered to the dressing station, but returned the next day to duty.

Private John Chipman Kerr, Canadian Infantry (of Fox River, Cumberland Co., N.S.), for most conspicuous bravery. During a bombing attack he was acting as bayonet man, and knowing the bombs were running short, he ran along a parados under heavy fire until he was in close contact with the enemy. When he opened fire on them at point-blank range he inflicted heavy loss. The enemy, thinking they were surrounded, surrendered. Sixty-two prisoners were taken and 250 yards of enemy trench captured. Before carrying out this very plucky action one of Private Kerr's fingers had been blown off by a bomb. Later, with two other men, he escorted back prisoners under fire, and then returned to report himself for duty before having his wound dressed.

Sergt. Leo Clarke, who was awarded the Victoria Cross, died of wounds on October 19. Clarke was born in East Flamborough, near Hamilton, Ont., 24 years ago. He went west with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry T. Clarke, in 1905. For several years he was engaged in the survey department of the Canadian Northern Railway. He took an active part in athletics, and in 1910 won the five-mile championship in Saskatchewan. In a letter to his parents, stating that he had been promoted to the rank of sergeant, he told of being ready to take his bombing party forward for duty. He was formerly incapacitated by shell shock, once wounded, and upon an other occasion was entirely buried by a shell explosion. Upon this occasion he was dug out by his brother Charles, who was a private in the same battalion.

The other Canadian winning the V.C., Private J. C. Kerr, enlisted at Edmonton, though his next-of-kin is Robert Kerr, Fox River, N.S.

FOR OUTDOOR WOMEN.

Footwear That is Modish and Leggins Too.

By all means use woolen stockings. Get a shoe whose sole is at least as big as your stockinged foot when you put your weight on it. Get a heel as broad and low as you can comfortably walk with, and remember that walking on earth trails and leaf mold is infinitely easier on the nerves than walking on cement.

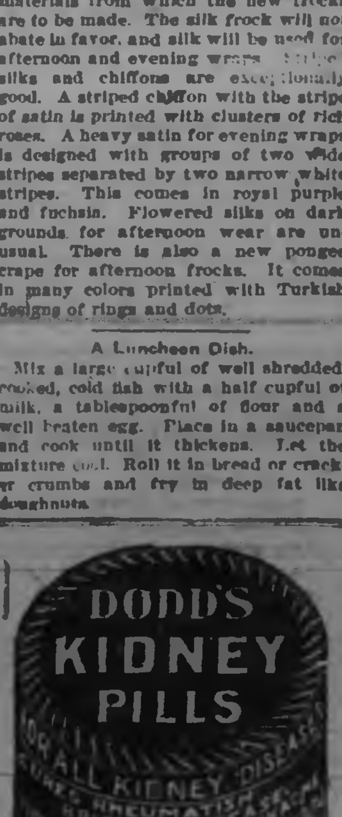
Have your shoe five to seven inches high; not lower, because rain and cold and mosquitoes have an affinity for unprotected ankles; not higher, because you add expense, weight and stuffy heat without gain. Leggins, if you want them, will protect the calf. They should be of material resembling your skirt and knickerbockers.

Fall Silks.

It is always interesting to know the materials from which the new frocks are to be made. The silk frock will not abate in favor, and silk will be used for afternoon and evening wraps. Striped silks and chiffons are exceptionally good. A striped chiffon with the stripe of satin is printed with clusters of rich roses. A heavy satin for evening wraps is designed with groups of two wide stripes separated by two narrow white stripes. This comes in royal purple and fuchsia. Flowered silks on dark grounds for afternoon wear are unusual. There is also a new pongee crape for afternoon frocks. It comes in many colors printed with Turkish designs of rings and dots.

A Luncheon Dish.

Mix a large cupful of well shredded, cooked, cold fish with a half cupful of milk, a tablespoonful of flour and a well beaten egg. Place in a saucepan and cook until it thickens. Let the mixture cool. Roll it in bread or cracker crumbs and fry in deep fat like doughnuts.



Of course, you can buy cheaper teas, but "SALADA" is undoubtedly the most economical and what appears to be 'cheap' in price will prove to be extravagant in use. The fresh young leaves of "Salada" will yield you generous value for your money. B115

MODERN MOSES LED HOST OF ARMENIANS TO SAFETY

Irishman Saved Many Civilians From the Turks.

Twenty-five thousand unharmed civilians of Armenia are indebted to a Belfast man for their safe retreat from the danger zone by Lake Van, through mountainous country for a distance of 150 miles to Igadjah.

The modern Moses who conducted this remarkable exodus is Mr. George F. Gracey, who has been working for many years in Armenia under the American Mission. At the time he was administering the Lord Mayor's Fund (which is now badly in need of help). He was the only Western European in the district, and he managed the entire exodus single handed, working under Russian authority.

Early in August Mr. Gracey learnt that Mush had been retaken by the enemy. He heard, across the lake the guns of the Turkish advance, and was warned by the glare of burning buildings. The military authorities told him that the Armenians under his care should be withdrawn.

The only available line of retreat lay through the Pass of Bekri-kala, a lonely mountain outlet infested by Kurds and other marauders. No Russian soldiers guarded this gateway to safety, and Mr. Gracey began by hastily arming with rifles 250 volunteers. This force seized the pass, dealt with the Kurds, and secured the retreat of a hundred times their number, free from interruption.

For five days the march continued. The average distance covered was thirty miles a day, and the 25,000 refugees, with their 6,000 cattle, took two days to pass any given point. There were practically no mishaps. Many children got separated from their parents, but were "sorted out" at Igdiah.

Five babies are known to have been born on the way, and all survived the experience.

About 4,000 miners are idle in the Crow's Nest Pass coal strike.

HOUSEHOLD ARTICLES NEEDED FOR FAMILY OF A SOLDIER

Case of the family of a man on service in England. The family (wife and seven children) are living in a small house. It is very poorly furnished; furnished isn't the word to be used in this connection. A few things, just such as you may have no use for, are badly wanted; more, badly needed. The wife is frail and not just a good manager. Who can help? Here is a list; the things may be scattered around—look up in the attic.

Double bedstead (without mattress).

Single bedstead.

Some kind of sideboard of cupboard; see that the hinges are there.

Six chairs.

A bureau (or what was called a bureau) and a wash stand.

A table of some sort.

Small heating stove—coal or wood.

Few pieces of old carpet, oilcloth, matting, or such floor covering, for the floors are cold for the kids.

Friends, this is not a large order when so many can divide it up. Never miss the things, and most of them are in the way, anyway. Better clean them out. Most thankfully received, and please notify Patriotic Fund office.

Of course, it is frankly admitted that it looks queer if the family of a man on service is in such hard circumstances. But there is a story behind it. (That is, the circumstances, not the family.) If interested, ask the office. But phone as to all and sundry. That is the important thing. N.B.—Phone on Saturday, not before.

IT'S A SHAME

To see so many people in the city of Peterborough suffering from backache, kidney trouble and rheumatism when they can be relieved by using a medicine of undoubted value. Instead of describing your ailments and having a sorrowful story to tell to your friends, just as soon as you can, after reading this notice, send or telephone to Lynch's Drug Store for a bottle of Dr Banta's Kidney and Rheumatic Pills. You will be surprised how quickly you will receive good results from them.

BIG PART BY "Y" IN THE WAR

Prospects for Raising $10,000 Are Bright.

Optimistic reports are at hand indicating that the campaign for the Y.M.C.A. $10,000 fund will be a success. The campaign will be put in motion at a meeting of men in the Patriotic Fund rooms tonight at 8 o'clock. While it is hardly necessary to add to what has already been said so well, there is a big list of accomplishments to the credit of the Y.M.C.A. which are not generally known as well as they might be. For instance, every military prison has its Y.M.C.A. representatives, who are doing a vast amount of good work.

There are 43 branches of Canadian Y.M.C.A. in France; 63 men who rank as hon. captains have been sent overseas; 30 of these are now in France.

Altogether over 500 persons under Y.M.C.A. direction are serving our boys in the army.

Plans are under way to appoint six conducting officers who will help returning soldiers by vocational guidance, etc. They will make the eastbound trip on transports with troops. Capts. Kneale and Jones are now on orders to report for this service.

One million sheets of letter paper with envelopes and writing facilities are provided free every month, in both England and France, and two millions have been similarly used in Canada since June.

On request of soldiers overseas, snapshots of their families are sent to them.

Hundreds of thousands of new and used magazines are supplied in England and France each month.

Circulating libraries are kept in many of the branches.

Wherever possible a Y.M.C.A. officer accompanies troop trains to point of embarkation. These secretaries are well equipped with writing material, reading matter, small games, song sheets, etc.

Errands of varying importance are willingly attended to, and small purchases amounting at times to hundreds of dollars a day, are executed for soldiers at the front by a special Y.M.C.A. secretary in England.

Vast quantities of athletic and games equipment are freely supplied in England and France.

Testaments and prayer cards have been circulated by thousands, every branch is well supplied to meet the many requests from soldiers.

Entertainment in the rest camps in France, and the big camps in England always includes moving pictures, often the small portable moving picture outfits are used to entertain isolated units.

In France wherever the Y.M.C.A. is, grafonolas are to be found. At the present time there are 84 of these instruments in Canadian branches in France.

The Canadian Y.M.C.A. in France also owns 18 pianos. Every evening finds thousands of Canadian soldiers in concerts, entertainments and lectures under Y.M.C.A. auspices.

Thousands of Canadian soldiers assemble every week to hear religious addresses and sing the old hymns. In France Y.M.C.A. secretaries find great difficulty in closing the meeting, the men are so glad to get together in this way.

The city associations do their part for our soldiers. In a summary covering the winter seasons of 1915-16 the following items appear: 46 associations report a total of over half a million baths; 1,200 gymnasium classes were attended by over 103,000 soldiers; 234 entertainments and socials attended by 42,334; 246 religious meetings and Bible classes with attendance of 13,000 soldiers; 300 education classes with 5507 in attendance.

Besides these special activities, the association's service and staff are always ready for the soldier's call. In some cases Y.M.C.A. gymnasium is used for regular military training. There are many instances of physically unfit recruits receiving special treatment from Y.M.C.A. physical director and then accepted for active service.

There have been occasions when the Y.M.C.A. canteen near the front line was able to save many Canadian lives by giving away free the entire stock when rations were interrupted during a German drive.

The whole Y.M.C.A. program is distinctly religious. In the home training camps this is particularly true. In England while the religious is not overlooked greater use is made of other features to counteract certain outside activities. In France every opportunity is taken advantage of (for religious activities) and the value of the Y.M.C.A. in keeping men in touch with old ideals of living and reminding them of the old environment cannot be over estimated.

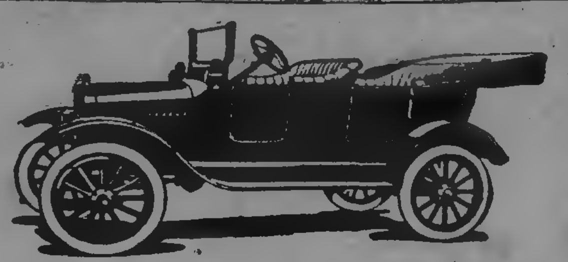
A great contribution is made to "the spirit" of the army in France by supplying quantities of athletic material, the concerts in the rest camps, the services of the dug-out canteens, etc.

This programme involves an immense outlay in huts, tents, etc. In France these vary in size from tiny dugouts to immense quarters where 2,000 men may be accommodated in a concert at one time, besides all the writing and refreshment facilities.

Y.M.C.A. officers in Montreal and Toronto give special attention to hospital work.

Twenty-five to thirty-five concerts are held in the Canadian area in England every week when best artists and speakers appear before thousands of Canadians.

Major Birks, in charge of the Y.M.C.A. military work overseas, says, "The work is about as varied as the number of men."



SALES DOUBLED PRICES REDUCED

At the end of the Ford year, July 31st, 1916, the Ford Motor Co. of Canada, Limited, had shipped

32,645 CARS

Nearly doubling the previous year

60,000 CARS

is the estimated production for this year, and with it REDUCED PRICES all over Canada, to correspond with the increased output. You can draw conclusions. ¶While most products are going up in price, this Canadian industry, by careful management and close buying of large quantities of materials, is able to slice a portion off its selling prices, thus:—

REPORT OF BUILDING COM. OF NEW ST. JAMES' CHURCH

Nehemiah's Band Will Have Another "Bee".

At the meeting of the building committee of the new St. James' church last night, considerable business was transacted.

Mr. Harold Fry, under whose supervision the new church is being erected, made his report, which was very satisfactory to the committee. Mr. Fry is being complimented on all sides on the success of his undertaking. His report showed the brick work had been completed: 69,500 Milton pressed bricks had been used, also 197,000 other bricks, making a total of 266,500 used to erect the building.

Cuff Bros. did the brick work and the workmanship speaks for itself. Adamson and Dobbin have completed the parts of steel roofing and they have also been awarded the contract for the plumbing. Alexander and Miller are doing the wiring. W. R. Turner & Son received the contract for the heating.

Nehemiah's Band

If the weather man keeps things in the present shape for a day or two, Nehemiah's band will have another of the many bees and the grounds will be all levelled up. Those on the job will be the guests of the Ladies' Aid for dinner and all may be sure the Rev. Ben. Greatrix will be on the job to superintend the work, and he will be found at the head of the table with that good-natured fatherly smile of his that makes all the boys feel so much at home and is sure to bring them back another day.

LAID TO REST.

The funeral of the late Mrs. John McDonald took place Monday morning at 9 o'clock from her home, 569 Gilmour street. High mass was celebrated at St. Peter's Cathedral by Rev. J. O'Brien, and Rev. Father Phelan assisted at the grave. The pallbearers were her five sons, John, George, Robert, Michael, Stephen and her son-in-law, Will Miller.

In religion Mrs. McDonald was a Roman Catholic and a member of St. Peter's Cathedral.

Five sons and three daughters are left to mourn her demise. The sons are John, George and Robert, Rochester; Michael, Toronto, and Stephen, of Regina, and the daughters, Mrs. Moreland, of Seattle, Mrs. Miller of North Bay, and Frances, at home.

Mrs. McDonald lived to an advanced age, and she will be greatly missed by her friends.

H. W. Aird, manager of the Canada Paint Co., died suddenly at Montreal.

A Message From Lloyd George

The Right Hon. David Lloyd George, speaking on "The Lesson of Sacrifice," said:---

"We have been living in a sheltered valley for generations. We have been too comfortable and too indulgent, many perhaps too selfish. But the stern hand of fate has scourged us to an elevation where we can see the everlasting things that matter for a Nation, the great peaks we had forgotten---of Honour, Duty, Patriotism, and clad in glittering white, the towering pinnacle of Sacrifice, pointing like a rugged finger to Heaven."

Compared to service in the trenches, Service in the Munitions Plant is the lesser sacrifice, but it is hardly less vital to the Empire.

INSURES LIFE FOR $1,720,000

FOUR DAYS FOR PHYSICAL EXAMINATION AND POLICY DETAILS.

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.— H. T. Dunn of Toledo, a vice president of the Willys-Overland Company, and president of the Fisk Rubber Company, has taken out life insurance for a little more than $1,750,000 This became known yesterday when the last of the policies was issued and the big transaction became a topic of discussion among insurance men.

Rodman Wanamaker, according to report, carries more life insurance than this amount; John Wanamaker is supposed to carry as much, but Mr. Dunn nevertheless is one of the most heavily insured men in the world. When it was disclosed that Tom Shevlin, the former Yale coach, had been insured for $1,000,000 not long before his death, the fact caused considerable comment, but Mr. Dunn is insured for almost twice this sum.

Part of the insurance is made out in favor of the companies with which Mr. Dunn is connected. The rest is income insurance for his wife and daughter, paying them handsome annuities after his death.

The Toledo man is 41 years old, and five physicians who examined him pronounced him an excellent risk The policies were issued by twelve companies, the largest risk assumed by any one company being in the neighborhood of $250,000. It took four solid days to put Mr. Dunn through the physical examination and to attend to the mass of detail incident upon issuing the many policies.

PARTISAN PRESS STILL RAILS AT GOVERNMENT

Local Paper Again Raises its Voice for Reciprocity as a Panacea for all Kinds. of Human Ills.

Canadian canners have lately been selling tomatoes to United States dealers at 90 cents per dozen cans and charging for the same goods in Canada $2.25 per dozen cans. This is startling, but is only an example of what the canners of the Dominion are doing in boosting the cost of living.—Renfrew Mercury.

The Mercury heads the above extract "Is this True?" Evidently it is unable to place implicit trust in its own statement. Why, then, should a newspaper, unless partisanship is its inspiration, build an argument and reach a conclusion upon an asertion which it is unable either to believe itself or substantiate?

If The Mercury is worrying over this question it should possesses itself in peace. The above statement is not true. Tomatoes are selling at wholesale in Chicago, acording to the latest market reports, at $2.20 a case. He would be a simple minded Canadian business man indeed, who would go up against such combinaation as that and attempt to bear the market by selling his goods at 90 cents.

The Stone the Builders Rejected .

A local contemporary cannot in its own mind disassociate the Government from responsibility for the high cost of living. And it proposes a program for the Cabinet to follow. It would take the stone, marked "Reciprocity," and so emphatically rejected by the Canadian people in 1911, and make it the crown piece in the fiscal structure that it rears in its imagination. It suggests that the Government get busy and arrange for a free interchange of foodstuffs with the United States, where it suspects there is a surplus.

There is no surplus of food supplies in the American republic, as anyone who studies the market reports across the border can see. The Canadian duty keeps out no supplies when the trend of exports for the entire American continent is in the direction of Europe.

The Canadian duty on canned tomatoes is 1 1-2 cents a pound, the weight of can included, with 7 1-2 per cent. added for war tax. Our contemporary erroneously states that the duty is 37 per cent. ad valorem, a considerable difference.

The local grocer who is selling tomatoes at 25 cents a can makes a profit of a shade over a cent on each can disposed of, which, as all reasonable persons must admit, hardly pays for the cost of handling.

The canners, too, have their own troubles on account of the high cost of labor. It is foolish to say, as The Examiner does, that the canners can buy their supplies from the producer at 5 cents a bushel. That would not pay for the cost of picking and the grower would be money in pocket by letting his crop rot in the fields rather than accept such a price.

Complimentary Tickets Given Returned Men

FREE MEMBERSHIP IN "Y." FOR SOLDIERS RETURNED AT FT. WILLIAM.

FORT WILLIAM, Nov. 29. — An important step taken by the Y. M. C. A. here is the giving of complimentary memberships for one year to all soldiers as they return from overseas service. This will, of course, mean a big expense, but the directors are confident that added memberships from the men who have not been able to go overseas will help to balance this up. In any event, the feeling of the board that nothing is too good for the men who are fighting our battles at the front. The Fort William Y. M. C. A. in this is taking a forward step looking to helping to meet the new conditions which will follow the close of the war.

147 DESERTERS IN THE ONTARIO REFORMATORY

GUELPH, Nov. 29. — There are 147 men at the present time serving terms at the Ontario Reformatory for desertion from the various units of the Canadian overseas forces. This information was given out by Dr. Gilmour, superintendent of the Reformatory. According to the grace exercised by the Duke of Devonshire, all these men will be released on condition that they at once return to the unit from which they deserted, or to the officer commanding the military district from which they came, and every effort will be made to get them to the firing line as soon as possible.

CASE WAS ENLARGED.

In police court this morning Crown Attorney Hatton asked for an enlargement until Monday, Dec. 4th, of the charge against the Calcutt Brewing and Malting Co. of delivering ale direct to the consumer contrary to the provisions of the Ontario Temperance Act.

This case is the first of its kind in Ontario where the brewer delivers direct on an order sent in from Montreal.

MR. HARRY LONG BACK FROM WEST

EIGHTEEN DEG. BELOW IN COUNTRY AROUND EDMONTON.

Mr. Harry Long has returned to the city after a ten weeks' visit in the West, principally in the country around Edmonton. "The weather out there is much different to what it is here," said Mr. Long to The Review. "We had it 18 degrees below sero. When I left the weather was fine and clear.

"Much of the threshing is completed, and in the districts I visited the reports are favorable. At some points, where the frost got at the grain, there is considerable loss to the farmers, while at other points the crops are unharmed. With the high prices prevailing, the farmers are breaking about even."

Mr. Long met many of his old friends, including some former Peterboroites.

Soldier's Son is Carried to Grave

APSLEY, Nov. 29.— The death occurred on Thursday, Nov. 23. of Charles H. Bronson, aged three and a half years. He was the eldest child of Mr. Ephriam Bronson, who enlisted with the 93rd Battalion and is now on active service in France. Surviving him at home is his mother and little sister Luella. The funeral took place on Saturday afternoon. Service was held in the Anglican Church by Rev. E. W. Gardiner. He took his text from 2 Samuel, Chapter 12, containing the words "I shall go to him but he shall not return to me." The hymns sung during the service were Jesus Lover of my Soul and Safe in the Arms of Jesus. Four little boys acted as pall bearers: Herbert Lean, Gordon Lean, Teddie McIlvena and Stewart Brown. Floral offerings of crosses and wreaths were laid on the little white coffin.

LINDSAY POULTRY SHOW OUT OF BUSINESS FOR LACK OF FUNDS

For want of finances the Lindsay poultry show will be a defunct organization until other days and other men may probably resurrect it and bring about some change that will put it on a strictly sound basis, says the Warder.

At a meeting of the members held last night it was decided unanimously that no show be given this year. A deputation from the society approached the County Council last week, when it was in session, but the request for $50, or even $25, was turned down by a majority vote.

To those who contributed cash towards the carrying on of a show in Lindsay a refund of the money and prizes, if any, will be made. All outstanding debts will be settled with whatever money is in the bank at present to the association's credit.

FINED $50 FOR TAKING ORDER

MAGISTRATE DUMBLE IMPOSES MINIMUM FINE.

WHAT ACT SAYS.

For taking an order for intoxicating beverages from a customer in Peterborough, a local man was fined $50 and $9.80 costs at this morning's session of the police court.

The charge was laid under Section 42 of the Ontario Temperance Act, which expressly forbids the taking of orders in the province. The penalty provided for is a minimum of $50 and not more than $300. As the defendant pleaded guilty, the lowest fine was imposed. Defendant has a wholesale branch in Montreal.

Clause in Act.

Clause 42 of the Ontario Temperance Act says: "Every person, whether licensed or unlicensed, who by himself, his servant or agent, canvasses for, or receives, or solicits orders for liquor for beverage purposes within this province, shall be guilty of an offence against this Act and shall incur the penalties provided in section 59 of this Act."

O. C. 24th Battalion

in Great Britain and Europe have seen fit to clothe themselves with clothing of this design—the uniform of the soldier, the clothing that really denotes the man.

It must be disconcerting, to say the least, to the hundreds of physically fit men of this country to read of the heroism and devotion and martial courage of the brave women of Serbia, Belgium, Poland and other European countries, who are doing a man's part on the battlefields of Europe today, whilst they are at home enjoying the privileges of increased wages and other favorable conditions created by their friends, or even relatives, who are fighting in their cause or sacrificing themselves at the front, to defend them from the curse of Prussian militarism. Wake up, men of Canada! wake up to the fact that there is an issue at stake that intimately concerns You, an issue that is being fought on the battlefields of Europe, just as much for you as for Belgium, Serbia, Poland or England.

Don't hide behind subterfuges and excuses. There is a place for every man and every man can find that place if he will. Don't go to a phrenologist or palm reader to find out what your character is, enlist today, don the uniform that will be evidence of your manly character. The opportunity is at your door. The 247th Battalion needs men, the 216th (Bantam) Battalion needs men; every branch of the service needs men; your King and country need men, so enlist today; don't wait till you are compelled to go. CONSTABLE MOORE GIVES EXPLANATION TO COUNCIL

The matter of paying the expenses of the police officers in apprehending the Dummer cattle thieves was referred to the County Solicitor at this morning's session of the County Council.

Counstable A. Moore explained the matter to the County Council, telling the number of trips he had to make without results and the expenses of necessity were increased. County Treasurer Elliott pointed out that there was no way of paying the expenses until the presiding magistratte had issued an order for payment after the apprehension of the fugitive.

Regulate Traffic

He also asked the Council to take some action regarding traffic of roadways by autos and other vehicles so that the right and wrong side for passage would be clearly defined.

He had had many complaints made to him but could take no action in view of a recent judicial decision.

No action was taken in the matter.

YOUNG MEN NOT FROM APSLEY

REEVE LEAN DEFENDS REPUTATION OF HIS CONSTITUENTS.

Reeve N. Lean, of Burleigh and Anstruther, was a caller at The Review today. Mr. Lean is jealous for the reputation of the municipalities which he represents in the County Council, and says that his district was libelled in the statements made to the effect that three young men recently fined for violating the Ontario Temperance Act were from Apsley. Further prominence was given to this case by the application of Mr. G. N. Gordon for a remission of the fine.

Reeve Lean says that the young men cannot claim residence at Apsley nor anywhere in his constituency. Burleigh and Anstruther residents are law-abiding citizens, and in that district there are neither boozers, cattle thieves nor other desperate characters.

TOM SAVIGNY MADE MISTAKE

LINDSAY HABITS ARE NOT PERMITTED HERE.

"You brought Lindsay hotels with you," was the remark of Police Magistrate Dumble to Thomas Savigny in the police court this morning when he pleaded guilty to a charge of being drunk in a public place yesterday.

The defendant stated that he had been working all summer at the arsenal in Lindsay, and was on his way to his home in Ottawa. Mike McCarthy, another Lindsayite, on his way to Montreal, was the man who furnished the two drinks to Savigny.

Savigny will have to pay $10 and $3.75 costs or spend a month on the hill.

SPORTS OF ALL SORTS

OFFERS JESS WILLARD $40,000 FOR ENGAGEMENT

Promotor Hangs up Plum for Fight With Fulton.

CHICAGO, Nov. 29.—Tex Rickard of Goldfield and Broadway and Tom Andrews of Milwaukee have begun hot competition for a ring battle involving Jess Willard, Fred Fulton and the heavyweight championship of the world. Andrews, director of the Cream City A. C. of the Wisconsin metropolis, has felt out Willard and Fulton and Rickard is carded to dangle an attractively baited hook before Willard in Chicago late this afternoon. Willard and Fulton are willing to enter into a slam affair, only awaiting the best inducements obtainable.

Offers Jess Willard $40,000

Andrews has offered Fred Fulton $10,000 or 20 per cent. of the gross receipts and Willard a flat sum of $40,000 to engage in a ten round no-decision fracas in the Auditorium at Milwaukee early in 1917. Rickard has become one of the most dazzling lights in fistic New York and he is expected to go the limit to bring the big fellows together in Madison Square Garden late in January or early in February.

Rickard is reported to have the big say in the conduct of the Garden, which for some time has had rough and uncertain sledding in a financial way, but the venturesome Tex believes top-notch boxing bouts will draw a big wad of money into the box office of the big show place. He is said to be willing to bid to the skies for a Willard-Fulton match and bouts between the king pins in other divisions. A bunch of prominent western sportsmen, including a number of men who reached Easy boulevard via the gold fields of Nevada, and several eastern men of means and sporting proclivities, are reported to be willing to share in the venture with Rickard.

Fulton Has Improved

Willard, reports to the contrary notwithstanding, is not much heavier than when he started training for his match with Frank Moran last March in the Garden. Whatever superfluity of flesh there may be on his mammoth frame, he says, can be whittled off with a short stretch of brisk training. He believes he could get close to 250 pounds for a fight and be at his best. Fulton has taken on flesh within the last year and men who have seen him in action pronounce him a much better scrapper than they ever thought he could be. His showing against Andre Anderson recently at Eau Claire strongly impressed followers of the game with his ability to sling the sleep producing mitts.

NEW YORK AMERICANS WILL HAVE BIGGEST BALL STADIUM

CHICAGO, Nov. 29.— News that the New York American League club has laid plans to build the greatest baseball stadium in the country, with a double decked grandstand to hold 28,000 and bleachers and pavilions to make a total capacity of 50,000 persons, was given out by Ban Johnson, president of the American League.

He had just returned from French Lick, Ind., where the plans were fully gone over with Col. Jacob Ruppert and Capt. Til Huston, and announced that practically the only unsettled business was to get the grounds. The arrangements contemplated will exceed the capacity of the Boston National League park by about 8,000, it was said.

President Johnson said the location already had been considered and an option obtained on a piece of property big enough to take care of the playing field and the stands. It is not expected that the new ground will be ready for occupancy until 1918.

"The American League always has been opposed to playing on any grounds but its own," said Johnson, "and the new venture is in keeping with this policy. The outlay will be over a million dollars. Still, New York is big enough for two parks, so we will have one of our onw."

ACTIVITIES AT Y.M.C.A.

By the "Y" Scribe

Seventy-five members of the membership contest teams were present at the supper conference held on Tuesday evening. The total result of the effort up to Nov. 28 is 95 members enrolled. It is expected that when the teams meet at nine o'clock Thursday evening, Nov. 30, to hand in the final reports that each team will have many names to add to those previously reported. Every individual worker should make a grand-stand finish Thursday for it is the tenth day of the effort and is scheduled to close the team work. Many men who need the Y.M.C.A. and who woud like to join are still holding back waiting to be invited to become a member. These men should walk right in at the association office and join at once in order to boost the "Y" before the close of the contest. The activities of the association were never more inviting and helpful than at present and are adapted to men and boys of all ages.

We are pleased to welcome the representatives of the Y.M.C.A. National Council of the military department. Four of these men, who are themselves in the active work for our soldiers, have been in our city during the past few days presenting the overseas work in a manner to stir the human heart to its deepest parts. Dozens of men and women in personal conversation and by letter and phone have communicated to the local Y.M.C.A. office their surprise and admiration for the grand work being done by the "Y" as reported by the National representatives. Peterborough must show its appreciation of the Y.M.C.A. overseas work by giving the support expected from our city. Let us do our bit for our own boys who must be served by the association right up to the front trenches.

CAPTURED AT DUNKIRK

Raider Over London Failed to Make Escape.

LONDON, Nov. 29. — The following announcement by the Admiralty late last night indicates that the German aeroplane raiders on London yesterday failed to escape:

"The Commodore of Dunkirk has been informed by the French authorities that they brought down an airplane at 2:15 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, carrying two naval lieutenants, and with a large-scale map of London aboard."

LT. DEWART IN PLACE OF HONOR

WHEN COLORE WERE DEPOSITED IN CANTERBURY CATHEDRAL.

WARSAW, Nov. 29. — A ceremony of interest to people of this neighborhood took place on Saturday, October 21st, when the colors of the 86th Machine Gun Battery, which had been donated by Mrs. W. E. Sanford, of Hamilton, and presented by the Countess of Aberdeen on the morning of May 16th, 1916, the day on which the battery left for overseas, were deposited in the ancient and historic Cathedral of Canterbury.

The bearers of the colors were Lt. J. A. Dewart, son of the late John Dewart, of this place, and Lt. Alexander McFarlane, both of whom have been warned for France and were expecting to leave in a couple of days for the firing line. The other members of the color party consisted of three non-commissioned officers, Sergeant-Majors Rowe, Neal and Haylock, and an escort of ten men, carrying rifles with bayonets fixed, and all belonging to the original 86th Battalion.

When the color party reached the Cathedral they were admitted by the west entrance, which is only opened for Royalty or on strictly military occasions. The party marched with unfurled colors up the centre of the nave and halted at the steps of the choir, before the dean and canons, who stood upon the altar steps. The Dean of the Cathedral then read the service appropriate for such occasions, including the 46th Psalm, and a prayer that "He, before Whose awful presence Moses laid up the tables of the law, and David the sword of victory, might vouchsafe to receive these colors beneath the protection of His Holy House."

Japanese Evening.

The Japanese evening held in the Methodist Church was a splendid success. Tea was served from 6 to 8, after which an excellent program was rendered. Many beautiful and unique articles were for sale in a booth presided over by two fair maids in Japanese costume. The bale of goods was sent by Miss Ada Payne, a former member of this circuit, who is now a missionary in Japan. A fine "log cabin" quilt, made and donated by Mrs. Jacob White, sold for $5.25. The program, which was long and varied, was as follows:

CAMPULUNG CAPTURED--PRILEP BOMBED

Greek War Minister Resigns---Austro-Germans Advance in Roumania and Take Prisoners---Berlin Reports Attack by Allies Near Ypres on Two Mile Front.

RUSSIANS CONTINUE MOVE IN NORTHERN ROUMANIA

Gained Small Advantages, the Announcement by Berlin---Austro-Germans Capture Campulung and 1200 Prisoners---Mackensen Has Taken Nearly 2500 Prisoners.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

BERLIN, November 30.—(Official.)—The Russians are continuing their new offensive on the northern Roumanian front without important results, although they yesterday gained small advantages at a cost of heavy losses.

Troops defending the line before Bucharest in Western Roumania have been driven further back. Austro-Germans have captured the Roumanian city of Campulung with 1,200 Roumanian prisoners, thus opening the road through Torzburg Pass.

Near Ciolanesti more than 1,200 men and ten cannon were captured.

Mackensen's troops, which crossed the Danube, have captured nearly 2,500 Roumanians.

EMPLOYER IS LIABLE FOR ACT OF AN EMPLOYE

OWNER OF STABLES FINED $200 FOLLOWING FIND OF LIQUOR THERE.

HAMILTON, Nov. 30.—No matter how many men may be in one's employ, the proprietor of the establishment is liable under the Ontario Temperance Act if liquor is found in his establishment. This was the ruling of Magistrate Jelfs when he imposed a fine of $200 upon Frank Fulkerson, owner of a livery and sales stable. Sergt. Clark and Constables Duffy and Melton visited and searched Fulkerson's barns last Saturday night, where they found one quart of whisky hidden in the hay loft. Two flasks, partly filled with whisky, were discovered, also hidden under hay in mangers down stairs. Some empty whisky bottles were taken from a sleeping room adjoining the office and ten empty beer cases were in another part of the premises.

When placed in the witness box, Fulkerson stated that he was away from the city last Saturday night. He did not return until Sunday night. He was not aware that complaints about drinking among his men had been made to the police. Nor did he know that the men ever had liquor on his premises. The stuff found found by the officers was not his and he had no knowledge that it was there.

Mr. Kerr: That's our case, your worship. I don't believe Mr. Fulkerson should be made responsible under the circumstances. Suppose a man had 200 employees, that one of them sneaked a bottle of liquor into his premises, would that employer be responsible?

The magistrate: I think so. That is, unless the employer can show who brought the liquor upon his premises. In that case we can reach the guilty party. Otherwise the purpose of the Temperance Act would be defeated. This construction of the act may seem like a hardship, but I can't help it. I shall find Mr. Fulkerson guilty, but I will impose the minimum fine.

NEW YORKERS HERE TO SEE DUSTLESS SWEEPER

DWELLINGS AND HOTELS RAIDED BY THE POLICE

STORE ROOM AT POLICE STATION IS STOCKED WITH ALL LINES.

Successful raids were made by the police department in the early hours this morning. Several standard hotels as well as suspected residences were visited and as a result the store room at the police station presented the appearance of a small liquor supply house.

Nearly every officer on the force was engaged in the round-up. In East City it is said that they found several cases of whisky at the home of a local bartender. In the south end of the city two other houses were searched and a supply of wet goods discovered that the police say are nearer 100 than 2 1-2 per cent. Just what success the officers met at the hotels has not yet been disclosed, but at one, a small flask was found in possession of the proprietor.

"For Personal Use"

Every kind of liquor imaginable was taken in the seizures, from French wines to German beer. It is claimed by some of the owners of the residences raided that the goods were for personal use and not kept in contravention of the Ontario Temperance Act.

Summonses will be issued today and trial will be held on Monday morning.

MR. GORDON HAS A ROW AT THE POLICE COURT

ILLEGAL ACTS BY POLICE IN SEARCHING WITHOUT WARRANTS!

At the police court this morning a local man was charged with being drunk and after he had pleaded guilty the magistrate fined him $10 and costs, $13.75.

Chief Thompson put him in the witness box to find out where he got his liquor, and Mr. G. N. Gordon, who was present in the court room, objected very strenuously to the manner of the examination by the chief. Police Magistrate Dumble overruled the objections and the question of last night's raids came into the discussion. Mr. Gordon got his ire up and accused the chief and his officers of committing illegal acts for years—to wit, making search of premises without a warrant. To this remark the Chief and the Magistrate took great exception and when the witness refused to answer the questions he was remanded to jail for a week.

PATROL FIGHTS ARE REPORTED

NO IMPORTANT DEVELOPMENTS ON FRENCH FRONT.

PROMPT PAYMENT OR DEBENTURES

Difference of Opinion as to Whether the Patriotic Fund Should be Paid in One Year or Provided for by Debenture Issue.

SO FAR as heard from, the only opposition to the raising of $60,000 for the Patriotic Fund by taxation instead of by voluntary contribution comes from the delegates to the Trades and Labor Council, who sent in a protest to the aldermen, but failed to send a delegation to back up their contentions. While the sentiment in favor of taxation appears to be all but unanimous, there is a difference of opinion among the ratepayers as to whether the payment should be made in one or even two years, or spread over a period of two decades.

Some of the heaviest taxpayers in the city are in favor of cleaning up the payment at once, or in two years at the outside. It is safe to say, however, that if the matter were left to a vote of the property owners, the majority would be found to favor the debenture plan as now proposed.

ARGUMENTS FOR QUICK PAYMENT

The arguments of those who favor a quick payment are that the slate should be wiped off in order to make room for a similar array of figures in the future. There is little hope of an early end to the war. In 1918, beyond a doubt, another contribution, larger than ever, will be required for the Fund, and to issue a new set of debentures would only tend to complicate matters.

A debenture debt will, it is urged, remain as a mortgage upon the real estate in the city and lessen its value to such an extent as to affect sales. A high rate of taxation in the city discourages manufacturers to locate here or others to take up residence.

The average working man is well able to pay his entire share of the tax at once. If a man who owns a home and is earning four or five dollars a day in a munition factory, cannot meet the payment now, how is he to do so when the war is over and he is able to make only normal wages?

The owners of houses now leased by workingmen find tenants easily in these days of prosperity due to the war. There may come a time when a number of their houses will be vacant, and then the entire burden will fall upon them. If the money is paid at once, the owners can guard themselves against loss.

THE RIGHTS OF POSTERITY.

"Have the citizens," ask those who favor a settlement at once, "the right to saddle an obligation upon posterity? Every generation has its problems to solve and its burdens to bear. The people who come after us will be benefited by the sacrifices made by those now living, but they will have their own war debts to pay. The millions of dollars that will be required to pension the soldiers must be raised by them, perhaps by a stamp or other tax such as the people are paying today. Posterity is likely to have heavy obligations without inheriting any from those who lived while the war was actually in progress.

The debenture plan, it is also maintained, will make, year after year, extra work for the assessor, and necessitate the keeping of an additional clerical force.

THE OTHER SIDE

With the most of people, however, "sufficient unto the day is the evil therof." The time to settle an account or meet any obligation is conveniently postponed as long as possible, so that the debenture plan is always popular with the masses. Nine men out of ten, perhaps, will fall in with a proposition that provides for payments by instalments rather than in a lump sum.

The City Council will consider the matter further at a special meeting tonight. It is yet possible to decide whether to issue debentures to raise the whole amount next year or to pay off the amount by yearly instalments. The following table will show the difference between thirty-year debentures and the instalment plan, figured on a $50,000 basis for convenience:

$50,000.00, 5 per cent. thirty-year debentures—
Annual interest	$2500.00
Annual sinking fund on 4 per cent. basis	891.50
Total annual cost for sinking fund debenture	$3391.50
If issued on the Instalment Plan—
$50,000.00, 5 Per Cent. 30-Year Debentures—
Annual interest	$2500.00
Payment of principal first year	752.57
Annual payment for 30 years, including interest and principal ..	$3252.57
Each year more principal and less interest would be paid.
Annual saving	$ 138.93
Difference in thirty years	$4167.90

If sinking fund on straight term debentures was calculated on a 5 per cent. basis instead of 4 per cent. the annual cost would be the same as an instalment debenture.

Annual sinking fund for $50,000 30 year debentures on a 5 per cent. basis	$ 752.57
Annual sinking fund for $50,000, 30 year debentures on a 4 per cent. basis	895.50
Difference	$ 138.93

NO COMMUTING POSSIBLE.

When local improvement debentures are issued covering a period of twenty years, any ratepayer who wishes to do so can pay his share at once and have done with the matter. The authority to raise money by taxation for patriotic purposes was conferred upon the municipalities by the Legislature in 1915, and no provision was made for commuting, as in the case of other debentures

EMPRESS HOTEL BELL BOY ASPHYZIATED IN ROOM BY LEAKAGE OF GAS FROM PIPE

His Own Act Was Apparently Responsible for His Death.

Others Escaped

Louis Smith, a bell boy, was found dead in bed at his rooming house at 336 Water Street, shortly after nine o'clock this morning. His room was in the basement. The house is rented by Mr. G. N. Graham, proprietor of the Empress, as a dormitory for the employees of the hostelry.

This morning, Miss Agnes Forrest, one of the girls, getting out of bed on the first floor between 5 and 6 o'clock, noticed a strong smell of gas, but knowing that gas was not used in the house, thought it came from the street. Later on another one of the girls detected the strong gas odor and notified Mr. Chris Graham, who went over to the house and on going to the basement was almost overcome with the fumes. He entered young Smith's room and found him without sign of life. Mr. Graham carried the body to the open air and at once called for the pulmotor and physicians.

LIEUT. STUART LAING MEETS DEATH IN ACTION

Son of Mr. Geo. Laing Cedar Street Went Overseas With Queen's Engineers---Was Graduate of University.

An official notification from Ottawa this afternoon gave the news that Lieut. Stuart Laing, son of Mr. Geo. Laing, Cedar street, was killed in action on Nov. 27th.

The sad news was conveyed to Mrs. Laing by Rev. T. H. Mitchell of St. Andrew's Church, where the family worship and where the late Lieut. Laing was an active worker before leaving the city to enter Queen's University, of which institution he was a graduate. He had been employed at the C. G. E. pattern department for some years before going to Queen's.

Lieut. Laing enlisted with the Engineers from Kingston soon after the outbreak of war, and was at Valcartier with the first contingent men. He returned to Kingston and later left again for overseas service. After spending considerable time in France he was transferred to England for duty at a training centre early this past summer. There he was on duty until he again went to France some time ago. His brother, Pte. Norman Laing, is overseas, having enlisted in the 8th C. M. R. Another brother, John Laing, is connected with the National Council of the Y. M. C. A. at Toronto. A sister, Miss May Laing is in training at the General Hospital, Toronto.

The late Lieut. Laing was one of the most active workers at the local Y. M. C. A. before leaving the city. He took part in the gymnasium sports and was a clever basketball player. He served with the intermediate and senior leaders' corps, and was a fine example to the boys and young men with whom he came in contact. He was about 28 years of age.

PETERBOROUGH, THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 30, 1916

PLEADS FOR COALITION.

MR. F. D. KERR has a letter in a Toronto paper pleading for a coalition government in Canada until the war is over. This stand will surprise no one, as Mr. Kerr has been in favor of such a union of forces since the trouble in Europe started over two years ago and Canada so promptly decided to enter the fray.

If a coalition government was ever desirable or feasible in this country, that time has passed. The Opposition themselves have rendered such an amalgamation impossible. Only last week, at the annual meeting of the Ontario Reform Association, Mr. Rowell and other party leaders represented the Borden Cabinet as a bunch of incompetents and grafters. The first charge was unwarranted and the last utterly inexcusable.

How could the highbrows in the Opposition, without stultifying themselves consent to sit in council with such men as compose the present Government, if we accept the estimate of Mr. Rowell and his friends? Coalition now would look like an attempt to bribe the Liberals into silence. Have they all these months been clamoring not for the public good but for a share of the sweets of office without the real responsibilities? And do they assume to hope that out of the abundance of their own political morality they can leaven the entire lump into righteousness?

WOMEN AS MUNITION WORKERS.

MARK H. IRISH, Director of the Department of Labor, has sent out a book of over sixty pages, handsomely illustrated, and describing the work done by women in the munition factories of Canada. An accompanying circular explains that some time ago the Department was formed by the Imperial Munitions Board to assist the Canadian munition manufacturers to cope with a depletion of male help in this country and to prevent any diminution of output arising from such a source.

In the early stages of munition making in England it became apparent that the man power of Great Britain would be inadequate to the demand upon it, in the trenches abroad and in the factories at home. The remedy then adopted was called the "dilution of labor."

Dilution of labor means that under the sharp analysis of necessity, much mechanical work generally reckoned as "skilled," and heretofore reserved for "skilled men," can be sorted out and becomes within the capacity of unskilled, or semi-skilled, workers. By using this "skilled" labor with economy it can be made to go infinitely further, and the untrained labor be brought, under the guiding hand of the "skilled," into work where no one formerly imagined it could be used. The countless duplication of a single operation encountered in munitions making on a vast scale lends itself peculiarly to this treatment.

Human force is divided into men and women. In this crisis a man is hardly giving maximum service to the State if he occupies a position the duties of which can be performed by a woman. This is a time when "A Man's Job for a Man" seems not only desirable but essential. In the realm of munitions this result is the aim, and to couple with it the imperative demand from the Mother Land to hasten projectile production.

Manufacturers of munitions in Peterborough who complain of a shortage of labor have been slow to avail themselves of this remedy. At the recruiting meeting the other night some of the manufacturers complained that woman labor was untrained and therefore unavailable for their purpose.

The fact remains that there are a large number of men in local munition factories earning big wages who brought to the work neither experience nor mechanical skill. They soon picked up their new duties, however, and in a short time were as expert in a particular line as men who had been mechanics from their youth.

Women, as a rule, could do in this regard what the men have accomplished, and there are a number of them ready to enter the ranks of labor in order to release the men for military duty or to supply the places of those who have already enlisted. The book issued by the Department of Labor tells eloquently in every illustration what has been achieved already along these lines.

LOYALTY MINGLED WITH REGRET.

PETER McARTHUR, poet—philosopher—journalist—farmer, and with it all a man whose opinions on public questions are worth hearing, says that a political party will always be loyal and devoted to the source of its campaign funds.

That being the case, how the Liberals of this district must love the Trent Valley Canal, which for so long furnished them with the sinews of war! How their loyalty must be mingled with sorrow as they realise the fact that the canal has been placed out of reach of their prehensile claws!

WHERE'S THE DIFFERENCE?

WHEN THE Utilities Commission decided to install a steam pumping unit at the waterworks, it was found necessary to have the most of the work done in the United States by a firm experienced in that line. Of course, The Examiner never objected by so much as a word. A local institution is always immune from criticism from that source.

But it is safe to slam a government of a different political faith. When the contract was let for the building of the Lindsay arsenal to an American company that understands that business, our contemporary lacks words in which to express its wrath.

The cases are parallel. The only difference is that made by The Examiner, which is devoid of ornament, if consistency is really a jewel.

PETERBOROUGH'S DISTINGUISHED SONS.

PETERBOROUGH'S gallant sons are constantly bringing new honors to their city. Lieut. J. R. Stratton's winning of the Military Cross had scarcely been heard of by his friends, when word came that Lieut.-Col. J. H. Fessenden, son of Mr. Cortez Fessenden, one of the leading educationists in the city, has been decorated by the King of Italy for meritorious conduct in connection with his work in Serbia. Col. Fessenden was not born in Peterborough, but his family has resided so long here that the city can claim him as one of its most distinguished citizens.

THE WOLF IN SHEEP'S CLOTHING.

EVERY MEETING held in any centre of Ontario to consider the high cost of living problem invariably resolves itself into a campaign gathering in the interests of the Liberal party, in which bitter and partisan criticism of the Borden Government becomes the main feature before the audience disperses. The wolf is never able to disguise himself completely by assuming the garments that nature designed for the meek and innocent sheep. His raucous voice alone is sufficient to betray his identity.

The latest of these gatherings with a dual purpose was staged in Toronto the other night. Men and women complained not so much of the cost of living as they did of the alleged misdeeds of the Conservative Administration, the ladies who took the platform being especially vituperative. Our George Street neighbor at its best—or worst—could hardly be more vindictive.

Miss Laura Hughes, of illustrious family connection, laid the whole blame upon the tariff and declared that, while the Government at Ottawa protects the large interests and capitalists, it does not protect the people of Canada.

That is an old argument, but it has not yet lost its flavor of bias, and it still smacks of the creed of the discontented anarchist. Miss Hughes, as a student of labor conditions in this province, should know to the contrary. She has seen her sisters at work and has investigated their condition not only in the factories but in their homes. If she would extend her investigation to European countries, where industry is not protected but where the workers are obliged to compete with the cheap labor of the world, she might possibly be convinced that the interests of employer and employes are identical, and the same Government policy that protects the one safeguards the other. Labor is most prosperous when capital is earning a fair dividend.

The disguised wolf showed his fangs when the redoubtable Ald. McBride ventured to defend the Administration. He spoke of the war burdens the Government is bearing, and hinted that able-bodied men would appear to more advantage in uniform than in taking part in what was really a campaign gathering. Then those whom the cap fitted rose, true to the principles, or lack of principles, of the slacker, and demanded that he be thrust out of their synagogue.

High living expense is the concommitant of every war of long duration. The records of history prove this and also show that the people as a rule bore their inevitable burdens without unseemly complaint. Want and hunger followed in the wake of the bloody years of the Peninsular War. The French populace felt the pangs of starvation in the struggle with Prussia in 1870. During the Civil War in the United States the women of the desolated South sold their jewels and their silks to raise money to feed the men in the armies of the Confederacy, bearing their griefs without a murmur for the sake of the cause they believed to be just.

The political meeting is a new creature born of the present cataclysm and reflects anything but honor upon the misguided who would make partisan profit out of the misfortunes of war.

DOING THE LORD'S WORK.

A METHODIST PASTOR in Hamilton objected because recruiting meetings were held in his church on Sunday evenings, and as a result now finds himself without a charge. He took the stand that there were six evenings in the week for secular duties and that the seventh should be devoted to the Lord's work.

If devising ways and means to stamp out barbarity and vindicate civilization, to stop murder, pilage and rape, such as the Philistines of old never were guilty of, is not doing the Lord's work, then the public will be pleased to yield the floor to the deposed pastor so that he may explain.

NO REDRESS.

A YOUNG PHYSICIAN, a member of a respectable and prominent family in London, Ont., took up the practise of his profession in a Michigan town. He was arrested on suspicion of poisoning a family at the instigation of others who had a financial interest in the removal of the victims. On purely circumstantial evidence the young physician was convicted and sentenced to state's prison for life. His friends never ceased to believe in his innocence.

After four years of prison life he has been liberated, the authorities having at last come to the conclusion that there had been a miscarriage of justice. His life, however, has been ruined. The indelible prison stain has been put upon him, and wherever he goes his record is liable to rise up against him.

He has no remedy. The State appears to believe that it has discharged its full duty by setting him free after effecting his destruction. He can claim no damages for those worse than lost years. All he gets when he leaves the prison is a railway ticket to his home town and a barbarously constructed suit of clothes that shrieks "prison" from its every unsightly seam.

Justice is not only blind, but is often stupid as well. The people are powerless against the authority which they create and delegate to others.

THE SAINT WHOM SCOTCH OF ALL CLASSES DELIGHT TO HONOR

(By Frank Russell.)

On this day—November 30th, is celebrated the festival of Saint Andrew the Patron Saint of Scotland.

This is a favorite occasion for national and social reunion amongst Scotsmen, whether at home or abroad for from time immemorial St. Andrew has been recognized at the patron saint of North Britain.

Who Was St. Andrew?

The name, Andrew, signifies valor and honor, two sterling qualities to be possessed by a man.

St. Andrew was one of the first apostles. He was a fisherman by vocation and was brother of Simon Peter. It was of him that our Saviour said he should become "fisher of men." He is prominent in the miraculous feeding of the five thousand which is related by St. John in his Gospel, chap. 6, v. 8, 9.

Very little appears to have been chronicled about

The Early Life of St. Andrew

His name is rarely mentioned in the Gospels, and in the Acts of the Apostles he is merely mentioned as being "one of the twelve." But, as one of the twelve, he was admitted to very close familiarity with our Lord, during His public life. He was one of those present at the Last Supper; he beheld the risen Lord; he was an eye-witness of the Ascension, he shared in the Pentecostal gifts, and subsequently, amid persecution, he helped to establish Christianity in Palestine.

Early writers maintain that he preached in Bithynia, Cappadocia, Galatia, in the deserts of the Scythian country and eventually at Byzantium—now known as Constantinople.

His Martyrdom

It is generally agreed that he was scourged and crucified, by order of Egeas, the Roman Government. In order that his sufferings should be protracted, instead of being nailed to his cross, he was bound to one made in the shape of the letter X, which form is now generally known as the St. Andrew's Cross. He was put to death as on this day, A.D. 60.

St. Andrew's Remains

Were eventually transferred to Scotland. It was in the City of Patras that he was crucified. Under the auspices of a Christian lady of high rank, the body was embalmed and honorably interred. In the fourth century it was removed by order of the Emperor Constantine to Byzantium, where it was placed in a church, which had, by the Emperor's orders, been dedicated to the Twelve Apostles.

Legendary lore says that some thirty years after, a pious monk, by name Rule, conveyed the remains to Scotland. On the East Coast of Fifeshire he built a church, on the site of which was subsequently erected the Cathedral and University of St. Andrew's.

St. Andrew of Russia

Russia honors this saint equally with Scotland. He is one of the patron saints of that vast Empire, for this Apostle is said to have been the first to preach the Gospel in that country.

The Russian Order of St. Andrew is the highest in that Empire. The renowned Peter the Great founded it in 1698. This honor is confined to members of the Imperial family, princes, and persons of the highest military rank.

The Banner of St. Andrew,

A white cross on a blue ground, the limbs not being rectangular, but crossed like the letter X, known heradlically as the Saltire Cross, is incorporated in the Union Jack, the national flag of the British Empire. When the Union between England and Scotland was effected by King James I. of England, the cross of St. Andrew was laid on the banner of St. George. This was the commencement of the "Union Jack." The glorious flag, as it now exists, was completed when the red cross of St. Patrick, of Ireland, which is also saltire, was made a component part of the flag that waves all over the world.

The position in the week of this saint's day determined the commencement of the Church's season of Advent. Advent Sunday is always the Sunday nearest to St. Andrew's Day. As this year this day falls on a Thursday, the Sunday following will be Advent Sunday. It will thus be seen that St. Andrew's Day may be either the last or the first feast of the Church's year, which begins with Advent.

MOVING PICTURE HOUSE LENDS AID TO REDUCE COST OF LIVING

The attack on high food prices, begun by the Housewives' League and has spread throughout New York state. Encouraged by news of sympathetic efforts in other states, the promoters asserted that the movement promised to become nationwide. The local campaign centres upon eggs and reccommends a two weeks' baycott.

Efforts of the state and city officials were supplemented by Cornelius F. Burns, mayor of Troy and president of the Mayors' association of the state. Mayor Burns anounced that he would send letters to the mayor of every city in New York state, to President Wilson and to the governors of all states, requesting the issuance of proclamations urging people to abstain from using eggs other than for the aged, sick, infirm and children for a period of two weeks.

"Movie" Men to Aid Campaign

The Motion Picture Exhibitors' association has volunteered the use of every moving picture theatre in the city to carry out the campaign. Sides will be shown telling the people what to do to break up the combination of those held responsible for the high prices.

Thousands of Fowl Unsold

Following refusal of buyers in Pittsburgh to purchase turkeys at high prices, many thousands of the fowls are still unsold and quotations may take another tumble. Annually great quantities of the birds are shipped to Pittsburgh from Ohio, West Virginia and other states just before Thanksgiving and the supply this year is even larger than in the past.

Shippers asked 28 to 29 cents a pound for live turkeys and only sold a few at 25 cents a pound. Some dealers here expert the prices for dressed turkeys will quickly drop from 40 cents a pound to about 25 cents.

EDITOR'S MAIL

Editor Review: I happened to pass the South Central School yesterday while the children were enjoying their morning recess. The boys were at play, wading through mud at least six inches deep. The entire playground was one bog from end to end and the children were fairly wallowing in the mire. What must, I thought, be the condition of the various rooms when all those feet carry their quota of mud into the building.

You have frequently expressed admiration for the "Old Guard" who control education affairs in this city. Cannot they be stirred up to do something to make the school grounds proof against wet weather, even if they find it necessary to cover them with cement?

RATEPAYER.

HAD A LOT OF SENSE

There was a young fellow and he had a lot of sense. He started up in business on a dollar eighty cents. The dollar for stock and the eighty for an ad. brought him three lovely dollars in a day, by dad!

Well, he bought more goods, and a little more space, and he played that system with a smile on his face.

The customers flocked to his two-by-four, and soon he had to hustle for a regular store. Up on the square, where the people pass, he gobbled up a corner that was all plate glass. He fixed up the windows with the best that he had and told them all about it in a half-page ad.

He soon had 'em coming, and he never, never quit, and he wouldn't cut down his ads. one jit. And he's kept things humping in the town ever since, and everybody calls him the Merchant Prince.

Some say it's luck, but that's all bunk; why, he was doing business when the times were punk!

People have to purchase, and this man was wise—for he knew the way to get 'em was to advertise.

THOUSANDS WATCH ROYAL CORTEGE

The removal of the body of Emperor Francis Joseph from Schoenbrunn palace to the Hofburg chapel, Vienna, was a most impressive spectacle. Tens of thousands of patient spectators, unmindful of the weather, stood in the cold dampness and filled the windows at every vantage point as the cortege passed through the streets, it way lighted by flickering torches.

The strange procession, patterned after old Spanish examples, left the palace a little after 10 o'clock and reached the chapel, after passing through one of Vienna's busiest thoroughfares, shortly before midnight. It moved between two lines comprising thousands of infantry, preceded by a score of equerries with lanterns, whose flames were kept alive with difficulty in the gusts of wind sweeping over the wet pavements.

All heads in the silent crowd were bared as the procession, its centre the hearse bearing the body and drawn by eight black horses, passed. So silent was the attendant populace that the noise of the wheels was the only sound to be heard.

At the Hofburg the procession entered the main gate and disappeared within the gloomy court of the ancient palace, dissolving as silently as it had passed through the streets, while the coffin was borne into the chapel, where it will be exposed to the public view today prior to burial.

Wit and Wisdom

Thought It What He Wanted.

"This horn you sold me won't make any noise," said the customer, returning.

"Well, I thought you wanted it for your grandson," said the clerk.

"So I did."

"Gracious! But you're a hard man to please."

The Last Analysis.

"In the last analysis," began the old politician.

"But there is no last analysis. As soon as you finish one analysis some duffer comes along and makes another analysis."

A Dead Party's Grave.

One day Mr. Tom Corwin met a political opponent, with whom he promptly fell into a discussion, in the course of which he constantly referred to the Whig party as if it were still in existence.

"Don't you know that the old Whig party is dead?" at last exclaimed his acquaintance, with evident irritation.

"Horace Greeley killed it and it's dead and buried."

"Certainly," said Mr. Corwin, with much solemnity, "and I am one of its graves, sir, and not to be trampled on!"

For His Wife's Sake.

"Well, what do you want?" said the master of the house sternly to Dreary Samuel, the tattered tramp, as he stood outside the door shivering with the most accomplished art.

"I'm looking for work," replied he of the unemployed brigade. "Ain't you got no scrubbin' or washin' or cleanin' or nothink that an honest body could do?"

This earnest appeal for work made the householder think that he had misjudged a real, honest British laborer out of work.

"Ah," he said, "now you speak like a man! I like to hear of anyone willing to make an effort. I never thought you wanted work of that kind."

"No more I do," whined Samuel, shuddering at the bare idea. "It's work for the missus that I'm a-lookin' for!"

PUBLIC OWNERSHIP OF RAILWAYS ON THE WAY

Government ownership of railroads is inevitable, Alfred P. Thom, counsel for the American railway executives' advisory committee, told the congressional committee at Washington, investigating the whole subject of transportation, unless congress takes measures to relieve the roads from dual regulation by states and federal government and to remedy other existing defects.

"Present conditions," Mr. Thom told the senators and representatives, "cannot continue. Unless these things are accomplished, then in my opinion the time is short between private and government ownership."

HOW TO KEEP WELL

BY JOHN W. S. McCULLOUGH, M.D., D.P.H., CHIEF OFFICER OF THE PROVINCIAL BOARD OF HEALTH.

SCHOOL HYGIENE AND SANITATION.

FUMIGATION of school rooms is usually done by means of the fumes of sulphur or formaldehyde. It is doubtful if, done in the hap-hazard way it is usually carried out, it is worth the expense. Lots of children get infection of one kind or another in school, but it is not the atmosphere of an "infected school-room" but the mild and unrecognized cases of communicable disease which spread the disease by contact infection among the children. It is often found that after great pains and expense have been taken to disinfect school-rooms that fresh cases appear, as if no precautions had been taken.

WHAT SHOULD BE DONE

The best safe-guards are cleanliness and the simple use of disinfectants. The objects in the school-room which are frequently handled, such as door-knobs, railings, gymnastic apparatus, toilet fixtures, etc., should be thoroughly cleaned once a week and gone over every morning with a cloth wet in (1-40) formaldehyde solution, creosol solution, or weak carbolic solution. Water-closets should be kept scrupulously clean, and the seats, doorknobs, chains, etc., should be disinfected daily in the manner already described. The toilet facilities for many of the country schools are little short of scandalous. The writer is aware that Women's Institutes are doing a great deal towards the improvement of sanitary conditions in these schools and it is the duty of the Medical Officer of Health to have a sharp eye on school premises and insist that the toilets and surroundings are kept in proper sanitary condition. Dust should be wiped off furniture with a damp cloth. Don't use a feather duster, this merely stirs up the dust, and is worse than useless. The floors should be oiled and oil brushes used in sweeping. Blackboard chalk should be removed as much as possible after school hours by wet cloths instead of by erasers.

Since much of the disease occurring among children is spread from the mouth and throat it is easy to see how the Common Drinking Cup and the Common Towel spread disease. Their use should not be allowed in school or elsewhere. A card with these rules printed in large letters should be hung up in every school-room.

Do not spit if you can help it. Never spit on a slate, floor, or sidewalk.

Do not put the fingers into the mouth.

Do not pick the nose or wipe the nose on the hand or sleeve.

Do not wet the fingers in the mouth when turning the leaves of a book.

Do not put pencils in the mouth or wet them with the lips.

Do not put money into the mouth.

Do not put pins in the mouth.

Do not put anything into the mouth except food and drink.

Do not swap apple-cores, candy, chewing gum, half-eaten food, whistles, toys, or anything that is put into the mouth.

Never cough or sneeze in a person's face, turn your face to one side. Keep your face and hands clean. Wash your hands with soap and water before each meal.

INFANTILE PARALYSIS VS. OTHER COMMUNICABLE DISEASES.

Great catastrophes have great lessons, and the greater the catastrophe the greater the lesson. Immediately after a railroad disaster, a shipwreck, or a sensational fire in which lives are lost the public demand that action be taken to prevent the recurrence of similar accidents in the future. While this is quite proper, it is essentially important that a broad application of the lesson should be learned, but it is seldom done. The suburban railway accident at Queenston last year, the loss of the great vessels the Empress of Ireland and the Titanic, all contributing to greater or lesser loss of life, resulted only in guarding against an identical form of accident in the future.

The same holds true in respect to infantile paralysis which has been the cause of excitement almost approaching panic in some parts of the United States and in portions of this country, though happily we have escaped with about the seasonal average number of cases. Stringent measures were taken by our neighbours to check the outbreak in New York and other cities, and the Provincial Health authorities have been on the alert against any similar epidemic in Ontario. But the incidence of infantile paralysis with its death rate is trifling compared with the results from other diseases in regard to which the public is apathetic. In December of last year there were over 3,000 cases of measles in Toronto alone, and the outbreak spread all over Ontario. Measles causes more deaths annually than does infantile paralysis; so do diphtheria, scarlet fever, and tuberculosis. It is a pity our people do not get a little more panicky about some or all of the last-named diseases; they are always with us, and cut short each year the career of many promising lives.

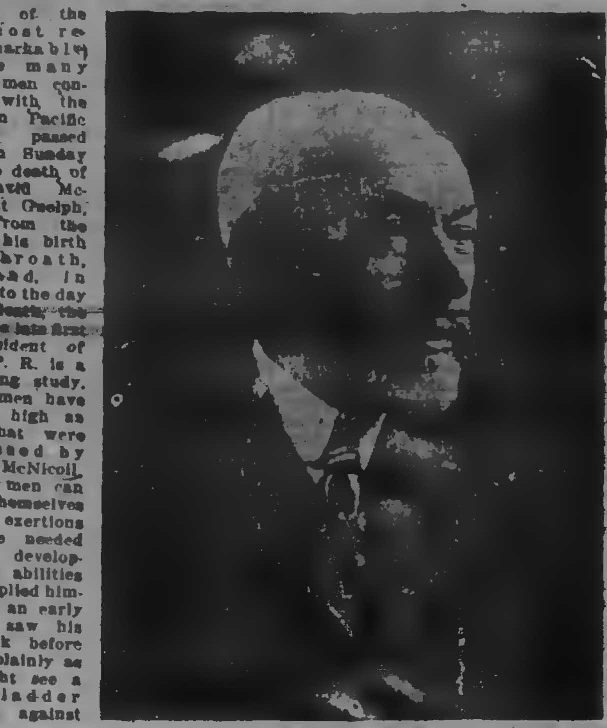
RAILWAY MAGNATE PASSES

Death of Mr. David McNicoll.



ONE of the most remarkable of the many famous men connected with the Canadian Pacific Railway passed away on Sunday with the death of Mr. David McNicoll at Guelph, Ont. From the day of his birth at Arbroath, Scotland, in 1852 up to the day of his death, the life of the late first vice-president of the C. P. R. is a fascinating study.

Many men have abilities high as those that were possessed by David McNicoll, but few men can apply themselves to the exertions that are needed for the development of abilities as he applied himself. At an early age he saw his life work before him as plainly as one might see a great ladder standing against a wall.

Little is known of David McNicoll the child and schoolboy, but in 1866—the year the Fenians invaded Canada from the United States—we are told that the lad, then aged 14 years, took up the post of clerk with the North British Railway Company in Scotland and in 1873 he got a position as clerk with the North Midland Railway Company.

In 1874 the young railway clerk came to Canada, and at twenty two years old young McNicoll was lucky enough to get a humble position on the Northern Railway, which ran from Toronto to Collingwood, in Ontario. At the latter mentioned little town he was billing clerk for a year, and then went to Toronto where he was installed as chief clerk in the office of the general manager of the Toronto, Grey and Bruce Railway. The year 1882 brought him another change for then he became general freight and passenger agent. About this period the C. P. R. was laying steel across the Dominion of Canada and people were beginning to awaken to the wonderful possibilities of the Canadian Pacific. McNicoll was one of those who saw a great future for this railroad, and in 1883 he obtained an appointment in the service of the company as general freight and passenger agent for the Eastern and Ontario Division. Promotion came rapidly for in 1889 he was made General Passenger Agent for all the lines, both railroad and steamship. There was a still further recognition of his worth in 1896 when he took up the duties of Passenger Traffic Manager for the entire system. The height of his advancement was not attained even in 1899 when he was given the important role of Assistant General Manager, for the following year he found himself Second Vice-President and General Manager. The first vice-presidentship was taken up by him in 1903, and in 1906 he was made a director. Owing to ill health in 1914 this distinguished railroad career was brought to a close, and Mr. David McNicoll retired, having left behind him a record that it would be difficult to beat.

Such is the story of the dates of the advancements of the man who is now no more. Looking back on his career we can only see the marks of the bounds he made—the energies that prompted his rapid movements are hidden from us; only those who labored with him and observed his labors can tell of his ambition, and the struggles—the long days of tireless thought, of guiding zealously and of taking guide cheerfully—which were the forces that drove the engine of his ambition. The engine of the ambition of David McNicoll always moved without making an audible puff.

This man, who took a big part in the making of a gigantic enterprise, was the possessor of a strong individuality and a manner none of which was taken from the manner of others. In all that claimed his attention he was most sympathetic; he toiled in quietude and after he had finished arduous work he did not tell his friends that he had been working hard. He endeavored to make his own particular business perfect, and he wanted all who worked in connection with him to have aims similar to his own. To those above him he imparted business ideas and expounded policies that might lead towards new expansions. If he were exacting at times he was always just. It is true that there were occasions on which his demeanor was brusque, but brusqueness is often the cover for a soft heart; with him it was frequently the beginning of kindness.

The office of Mr. McNicoll was one of the most pleasant of offices in Montreal, and there the first vice-president used to sit in a swivel chair which allowed him to change his pose as he changed the thoughts which he presented to those who came to speak with him. There was none of the swell about him; he was a plain man, usually wore dark clothes, and his attitude was always unostentatious. He was able to pack a large bundle of wisdom into a small sheaf of words, and he was as practical in his conversation as in his work. There were few questions with regard to the general details of the C. P. R. which he could not answer extempore.

David McNicoll did not sit brooding over the difficulties that came in his path; he surmounted them; his energy made his memorial, stamped his eulogy on the chart of time.

His remains were interred at Montreal on Tuesday.

FASHION HINTS

"Nothing adds so much to a woman's youth and good looks," says a fashion expert, "as a soft fall of lace below the chin. Women of all ages have recognized it, and men in different periods have not scorned the lace jabot to add to their own charms."

This may be a prejudiced view, but it is true, and it is also certain that there are to be many soft things in nets and laces to be worn, and buyers are ordering them in large quantities for their different houses.

Furs and laces go together, and, with the deep fur collars that are to be worn on all kinds of coats fastened high in the neck when they are closed, but turned well back from the throat when they are open, the lace is almost indispensable. The materials used are many and varied. There are fine mulls and lawns, silk nets and nets of other kinds, fine nets and those with a coarser mesh, nets with small over patterns and nets with lace borders made in single and double frills and falling straight or with drop corners to give the effect of points to agree with the many pointed effects that are seen on gowns and coats and wraps. Georgette crape is also much used.

Silk and satins will be combined with the softer materials. The smart black stock will appear with its fall of cream lace and possibly a little white above to soften the effect near the face. There are a few wires necessary to hold the stock in place, but the general effect is of the softest.

Deep collars of all kinds are among the things the shops are displaying, and they are in many styles with smaller ones for the woman who cannot wear a broad collar. They, like the stocks, are of all the thin, washable materials with fancy edges of different kinds, ruffles or flutings.

White broadcloth is a smart material for wear with wool gowns, and in a deep collar is simple and rich combined with satin, heavy lace and made in simple lines.

Scalloped Cabbage.

Boil the cabbage in water for about five minutes, adding a pinch of soda. Drain thoroughly and place cabbage in clear water again—enough to cover it—and boil until tender. Chop the drained cabbage and place a layer of it in a porcelain dish. Cover with sauce made of a cupful milk, two tablespoonfuls butter, two tablespoonfuls flour and seasoning to taste. Cover the first layer of cabbage with sauce and sprinkle with grated cheese. Repeat until the materials are all used. Sprinkle the top with paprika, grated cheese and breadcrumbs with dabs of butter. Bake the scalloped cabbage until brown. The cheese may be omitted if not liked.

To Keep Suet.

Take out any skin there may be and then put the suet in a saucepan and place on a warm but not hot fire and let it melt gradually. When quite melted pour it into a pan of cold water. When quite hard wipe it dry, wrap it in white paper, and when wanted for use it may be rubbed on a grater.

To Purify Sinks and Drains.

To one pound of common copperas add one gallon of boiling water and use when dissolved. The copperas is deadly poison and should always be carefully labeled. This is one of the best possible cleansers for pipes, closets and drains.

KING ALFONSO EXPLAINS SPAIN'S POSITION REGARDING CONFLICT

KING ALFONSO has come to explain himself again upon the subject of the war, his policies and his reflections, to an interviewer, Senor Adolphe Posada, who is a distinguished professor at the University of Madrid. His statements are always entertaining, and they are not the less so at the present because of the many rumors that Spain has again been approached with a view to her mediation in the war, as well as the definite statement now made outside Spain, and not contradicted within it, that Spain did actually make an attempt at mediation in the early part of this year, when the Marquis de Villalobar, the Spanish Minister at Brussels, paid a visit to London in order to see what could be done. The Marquis was assured of a good reception in the British capital, not only because of his agreeable personality, but because of the great and humane efforts that he made in the case of Nurse Cavell. But he found that there was no peacemaking to be done by neutrals in London then. In this recent interview His Majesty presents himself as the calm observer of European tendencies for many years past, and as one being certain that the great war would come, striving the best for his country in the dangerous circumstances.

"Many people regarded me as exaggerating," he says, "perhaps as a visionary, when I held that it was indispensable for us to be on our guard, judging the war as certain according to all calculations and all foresight. But every year I gathered personal impressions, every year I noticed how, far from being removed, the danger increased, how international relations appeared more delicate, more liable to break, how the attitude of all concerned became colder and more reserved. That is why, in spite of all the optimists, I influenced so far as it was permitted to me to do so, our policy before the war, which was conducted with an extreme prudence in regarding the war as inevitable sooner or later, and in subordinating ultimately to that grave and supreme hypothesis our conjectures, our international relations, and our ententes. Certainly that was an elementary prudence. One course only was presented: to follow a loyal policy with regard to all, a clear definite policy aiming at assistance towards amicable settlement when possible, recognizing the obligations that our geographical situation and our circumstances in Morocco and the Mediterranean impose upon us, but yet a policy of such a kind that if war did burst upon the world Spain would then find herself able freely and openly to select her attitude without failing in any of her engagements and without inspiring the distrust of anyone."

KING ALFONSO.

In the minor mediations, such as the good and successful efforts that King Alfonso makes in searching for prisoners of war in belligerent countries on behalf of their relatives who have not been able to trace them, His Majesty has achieved some notable triumphs lately, and the special bureau that has been established in the royal palace was never busier than now or more indefatigable in its efforts. Very remarkable in their sincerity and their fervor are the hundreds of letters of thanks that the King receives from French, Russian, and the relatives of other nationalities whom he has benefited in this way. The women, particularly, are enthusiastic in their thanks, calling for all manner of blessings to be accorded to the King and his country. These letters, which are preserved, make a unique and bulky collection.

SCHOOL TEACHER RESIGNS

(Special Correspondence.)

NORWOOD, Nov. 30.—On Monday afternoon a prayer service in connection with the W.M.S. of the Methodist Church was held for different departments of missionary work.

Mrs. R. Lawlor, district organizer, presided over the meeting, which was very interesting and instructive. Special prayers were made for King and Empire in this very trying time and trouble; also prayers for the Indians and the native workers and for our missionaries in foreign fields and the different phases of the work. The meeting came to a close when light refreshments were served to the different visiting societies, after which the National Anthem was sung and all went home feeling that they had spent a very profitable time.

Rev. S. Moore of Belleville preached in the Methodist Church Sunday morning and evening in the interests of missionary work.

On Friday evening last the Board of Education met to consider the resignation of Miss Dorothy M. Luke on the High School staff. The resignation was accepted and advertisements were issued for a teacher to take her place.

HAVE BALANCE SUFFICIENT TO BUY ONE TRUCK

FIRE COMMITTEE MAY MAKE RECOMMENDATION TO COUNCIL.

The Fire, Water and light Committee met last night for the purpose of considering motor trucks for the fire department, but owing to there being only a quorum present the meeting was adjourned till this evening at 7.30 o'clock as the members thought all the committee should be present when so important a matter is discussed.

The finances of the department are in good shape and it is possible that a motor hose truck may be purchased at once at a cost of about $3,000. This can be done without the issue of debentures.

BLUE JACKET'S UNIFORM

The three stripes on the "Blue jean collar" of the blue jacket's uniform represent Nelson's three great victories—at Copenhagen, the Nile, and Trafalgar; while the collar itself survives from the time that the pig-tail was general and it was introduced to protect the uniform from hair oil and prespiration dripping from the hair. The black silk handkerchief worn round the neck and passing under the collar is supposed to commerate the death of Nelson when the nation and the navy were plunged into mourning in spite of his great victory at Trafalgar on October 21st, 1805. The "bell mouthed" trouser legs were introduced in about 1813 and while adding to the distinctive features of the naval uniform make it easy for a man to roll them up while scrubbing decks and thus keep them dry.

An application has been received by the Department of Justice from Thomas Kelly of Winnipeg asking for a new trial.

Chances of Marriage for Working Girls

Hello Girl's Chance Is Slimmest—Occupations Are Classified—The Fascinating Nurse

Bread-winning girls may be divided into nine classes with respect to their chance to get husbands. These are nurses, stenographers, servants, shopgirls, factory girls, school teachers, telephone operators, dressmakers and stay-at-home girls, says a statistician, with whose conclusions, however, you may not agree. For chances to marry, the trained nurse heads the list. There is an indefinable charm about the nurse that cannot be gainsaid. She is dressed neatly, with her little white cap and starched apron. She treads softly and her touch is gentle. To a man just coming out of a siege of fever, when he has to lie for days at a time merely gaining his strength, the coming of the nurse to smooth the pillow is something to be looked forward to for hours.

Marries Employer

Second on the list is the stenographer. The stenographer is a girl of some education, refinement and culture. Her dress is neat, she has easy hours, and she holds her age well. In the average office she sees and comes to know many men a week. The employer himself often falls in love with her. The servant comes third on the list. There is an old, old saying that the way to a man's heart is through his stomach. This is verified every day by the number of cooks who tell their employer that they are going to be mistress of a private table for two. Like the nurse the servant has the additional charm of a neat costume.

The salesgirl comes next. She meets a reasonable number of marriageable men. She has many chances to pick up a certain degree of culture. By watching women of refinement, their grammar, pronunciation and mannerisms, she is the gainer. Just these little things put her in a class above girls who seldom come in contact with persons of better education. The factory girl comes next, and as a hard worker, she is seized upon by the single young artisan.

Next the Teacher

Strange as it may seem, the school teacher comes sixth in the list of nine. She has many comforts and privileges that are denied other working girls. She has a better education, has shorter hours, can improve herself in general reading and in culture. She has more time to devote to her dress. She can hold her age better, travel more, but with all that she has fewer opportunities for marriage than many another girl.

The telephone girl has not the easy sailing that she is often said to have. She, too, is separated from the men, few of whom she ever meets face to face. When the telephone was new there was an additional charm to the girl who sent her voice over hundreds of miles, but since they are so common all the romance has gone. There is only one small chance, and that is with the class of men who fall in love with a voice.

HOW TO MAKE STARCH

This is the way to make plain boiled starch: Allow two tablespoonfuls of starch to a gallon of water. Wet the starch with cold water until it is of the consistency of cream. Then pour over it the water, which is bubbling. Stir constantly until smooth, and boil for five minutes. Add an inch of candle—to a gallon—or a tablespoonful of lard to give a very smooth starch. This is the foundation for all starching, excepting that done with uncooked starch.

If a very stiff starch is desired a tablespoonful of gum arabic water to a quart of starch gives good results. To prepare gum arabic water, pour two cups of boiling water over a quarter of a pound of gum arabic. When the gum is dissolved, strain the solution into a bottle, cork, and keep on hand for use in the laundry.

Paint Brushes For Stairs

A radiator brush set with thin bristles in a very flat handle is the only thing that will get at the dust and cobwebs between the radiator tubes. A collection of paint brushes is the joy of one housewife, who finds they are the best things to brush down the stairs with, to clean the corners of furniture, particularly the crosspieces of chairs and other angles where a cloth and clumsy fingers cannot give sufficient purchase.

Use For Old Cotton Gowns

Cut the yokes and sleeves from old nightgowns and make bodies into protectors for your suits and dresses by sewing the tops together, leaving a small hole for the coat hanger hook. Cotton dress shirts could be used in the same way.

Oatmeal Macaroons

One-half cup white sugar, 1 tablespoon butter, 1 egg, 1 heaping cup rolled oats, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 2 teaspoons baking powder. Grease pan well and drop in 1-2 teaspoon dough in the pan, leaving room to spread. Bake in hot oven 15 minutes.

Tomato Jelly Salad

Dissolve one package of gelatine in half a cup of cold boiled and strained tomatoes. Add a teaspoon of vinegar, the seasoning and turn into small moulds. When firm, turn out on lettuce and serve with a boiled dressing.

Bread Crumb Omelette

Mix one cup of bread crumbs with a cup of hot milk, a teaspoon of butter and a little salt. When cold add two beaten eggs and turn into a buttered pan. When brown fold and serve.

Creamed Potatoes

Pare, cut in dice and boil fifteen minutes. Drain, cover with milk, add a tablespoon each of flour and butter, and boil five minutes.

When a box of sardines is opened, it should be drained of its oil at once and the fish turned out.

Says Hot Water Each Day Keeps The Doctor Away

Drink Glass of Hot Water Before Breakfast to Wash Out the Poisons.

Life is not merely to live, but to live well, eat well, digest well, work well, sleep well, look well. What a glorious condition to attain, and yet how very easy it is if one will only adopt the morning inside bath.

Folks who are accustomed to feel dull and heavy when they arise, splitting headache, stuffy from a cold, foul tongue, nasty breath, acid stomach, can, instead, feel as fresh as a daisy by opening the sluices of the system each morning and flushing out the whole of the internal poisonous stagnant matter.

Everyone, whether ailing, sick or well, should, each morning, before breakfast, drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver kidneys and bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and poisonous toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach. The action of hot water and limestone phosphate on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases, waste and acidity and gives one a splendid appetite for breakfast. While you are enjoying your breakfast, the water and phosphate is quietly extracting a large volume of water from the blood and getting ready for a thorough flushing of all the inside organs.

The millions of people who are bothered with constipation, bilious spells, stomach trouble, rheumatism; others who have sallow skins, blood disorders and sickly complexions are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug store, which will cost very little, but is sufficient to make anyone a pronounced crank on the subject of internal sanitation.

HUNS AS PRISONERS

Servile Gratitude in Captivity Tinged With Suspicion

One who nurses him writes: Wounded and in captivity, how does the soul of the Hun appear? The first impression is that of an almost servile gratefulness—the gratefulness of one who expecting the lash, is received with the greatest kindness. It is a gratitude tinged with suspicion. "This kindness is the ambush for—" (Who knows the horrors that the Hun mind can conceive?)

Many of the men are peasants from little northern villages, with little or no idea of why they fought, their greatest anxiety being if they could correspond with their own people. These, when questioned, repeated with blind faith the story of England's aggression, trying meanwhile, one could see, to reconcile the England of which they had heard with the England they were beginning to know.

One finds these peasants the most courageous under the suffering which dressing often entails. One man, a Hanoverian, wounded nigh unto death, lay in a special ward enduring tortures beyond the conception of even the most pitiful. The vibration, although it is deadened by means of blankets spread upon the floor, is agony to him, and the footsteps of his comrades in the corridor without bring forth heart rending moans. This man is quiet and grateful, gazing with weeping eyes into what unknown? A tragedy of loneliness, homesickness, and pain. On the whole, however, one is forcibly reminded that these Huns are of a lower race. They have very little tenderness to one another, and the sight of a comrade's pain finds and leaves them callous. I have known them to call a blind comrade across the ward, putting an obstacle in his path, and yell with delight when he fell over it!

UNDYING OPTIMISM

Dickens' "Mark Tapley" Lives in Wounded Heroes of To-day

A chaplain was asked by one of the nurses to go to a young fellow and break the news that he was to have his foot taken off. Lying in bed on the opposite side of the ward was a man who had had his own foot amputated the day before. He overheard what was said, and called across jocularly, "Why mate, we shall be able to have a pair of boots between us now—you the left and me the right!" Assuredly, had Dickens been alive today he wouldn't have created one Mark Tapley—there are battalions, maimed and otherwise in khaki in Europe and other places. One gallant warrior who was met the other day with one leg, a crutch, and a stick is surely entitled to a commission in one of those battalions of optimists. "Only one trouser leg to put in press now," he grinned.

"Week-end" Leg

The luggage difficulty has been well solved by a London regiment lance-corporal. He had his leg amputated in France, and was fitted with an artificial limb. When able to walk he was leaving town for the week-end and met a friend, who looked in vain for his luggage. "It is unnecessary for me to carry a bag," said the corporal. "I have packed all I want in my artificial leg. It holds a hairbrush, bottle of hair oil, and shaving requisites very well."

Peer as Admiral

The Marquess of Bristol was the son of the late Lord Augustus Harvey. Joining the navy in 1877, he served as lieutenant on H.M.S. Turquoise during the operations at Suakin in 1884-5, and retired with the rank of Rear-Admiral in 1911. In 1906 he was elected Conservative M.P. for Bury St. Edmunds, and the following year, on the death of his uncle, succeeded to the peerage.

"Resolved that rural communities afford better opportunities for the investment of life than urban communities." This subject was very ably debated in connection with the citizenship department of the Epworth League on Monday evening. Those taking part were: Affirmative, Messrs. I. Hatherley, W. Fife and F. Rev. Mr. Clark of Cavan proved a very able and tactful critic. Miss Ella Elson showed a very nice discrimination in singing "Face to Face." BRITISH SUBMARINE AT HUN HARBOR GATE

Supreme Devotion and Cool Skill of British Skipper---Trailed Destroyer Through the Mine Fields.

From a naval correspondent: Her real title was not Z Double-one, though it is a good enough name for our purpose. She was policing a stretch of water wherein dangers hung as thickly as apples on a tree and doing the job in her own particular way. In due course a destroyer appeared and after a brief reconnaissance "turned again home." This was what the skipper had been waiting for. As the destroyer threaded her way back through the mine fields Z Double-one tagged in behind her.

Unless you know something of the craftsmanship of sea war it will be difficult for you to understand fully the daring of this action. That minefield had been laid by cunning hands, it was very wide, and the only safe channel through it had designedly been made so tortuous that only those familiar with its twists and turnings could possibly navigate it in safety—even they had to go warily. By this you will see how indispensable it was to Z Double-one that she should have a pilot.

Feel Mines Scraping

Making that passage was more than ticklish work. As it was she more than once felt the menacing scrape of cables along her side, and she knew not at what moment a mine might rend her to fragments. Safely through the mine field at last, though in a nest of perils, and there lay before the skipper's eyes a prospect that was exceedingly fair to look upon from his point of view. Unsuspicious of danger, though not unprovided against it, enemy ships of various kinds lovingly hugged their buoys inside a great harbor which could only be entered through a "gate." To pass through this would be easy to a submarine, and once through, what glorious diversion she could have rousing into panic-stricken activity those sleeping leviathans inside.

Took Necessary Risks

But the skipper was a workman not a venturesome fool. So he lay and calmly awaited his chance.

An outward-bound ship approached the "gate." Then out shot one of Z Double-one's torpedoes and "swish" went a second in its track. Malediction! Number one torpedo "broke water" just ahead of its target, while the second only caught the ship by the stem. Local currents are things an invading submarine officer may be forgiven for not knowing to a nicety though they do spoil his aim. Z Double-one's skipper had the mortification of seeing the ship turn round terror-stricken and limp back into harbor. Savagely he sent the rest of his "moulders" (torpedoes) amok among the vessels tied up there, for the failure of his "blocking" plan had brought a red streak to his eyes; then down went his boat, seeking safety for herself in the green depths of the estuary.

Guns began to blaze, watching destroyers outside were called up, and the "gate" was hurriedly closed. The enemy did not know whether one submarine or a dozen had crept into his fastness, and he did not know where the adventurous foe had gone, but he did know that there was only one way out for it, and this he hastened to close. And that Z Double-one managed to escape in safety from under the heap of danger she had pulled upon herself was, perhaps, the most astonishing feature of her adventure.

Shrine Made by Soldier

Pimlico has some of the most beautiful shrines in London. They are in the parish of St. Barnabas. "After each shrine is erected the clergy hold a short dedication service in the street," said the sister in charge of the mission house. "Ross street is 'the costers' street,' and their one desire is that the Queen shall see their shrine. It consists of a crucifix on the wall, under a pent house (a small canopy) with a ledge for flowers. A man gave a Union Jack, and now there are other flags. The shrine was made by a soldier boy discharged paralyzed owing to shrapnel in the head."

Scharnsolmidt of the Royal Engineers (Imperial Army) is in Canada for the purpose of securing for service on the rivers, canals and inland water ways of Mesopotamia, Egypt and France, 500 men as master mariners, mates and marine engineers, bargemen, scowmen, seamen and a few rivetters and calkers.

This branch of the service is in connection with the inland water transport section of the Royal Engineers, Imperial Army. The rates of pay are 80c per day and up, according to rank, with the Imperial separation allowance.

Recruits will also participate in the Canadian Patriotic Fund. Period of enlistment is for duration of the war—all expenses and transportation paid to point of enlistment.

JUDGE MUST PAY HIS INCOME TAX

JUDGE MORSON LOSES CASE WITH CITY OF TORONTO.

TORONTO, Nov. 30.—Judgment has been given against Judge Morson by Judge McGillivray, of Whitby, in the case brought by the City of Toronto to collect the 1913-15 income tax.

Judge Morson in 1912 refused to pay his income tax and took the case into the Peel County Court, where he received a judgment in his favor. The city then started suit to recover the 1913 and 1915 taxes in the County of Ontario court. Judge McGillivray, who presided, referred the case to the Appellate Division under the Judicature Act but the Appellate Court said that the judge was technically wrong in doing this, and referred it back to the court at Whitby.

Mr. Irving F. Fairty of the city legal department, said that the city intended to collect every cent that was due from income taxes payable by officials who were employed by the Government and who thought that they were exempt.

BRITISH OPPOSED TO ANY CHECK ON NICKEL EXPORT

If Canada Put Embargo on Ore The Result Would be Injury to the Conduct of the War.

OTTAWA, Nov. 30.—In connection with the suggestion that the export of nickel matte to the United States be prohibited, Sir Robert Borden has received the following cable from the British Government:—

"It is a fact that his Majesty's Government have approved from the first the arrangements made by your Government for refined nickel to American plants. It is recognized by his Majesty's Government that it would be impossible and indeed manifestly injurious to the conduct of the war to prohibit the export of Canadian nickel, and they have concurred in the method of supervision now being adopted, which seems to be the best practical method. Mertons have eliminated the enemy holding in the company with the approval of the Board of Trade. His Majesty's Government therefore utilise the services of this company, which have assisted in securing Government control of metals. Such control, owing to present conditions, could hardly have been secured without their help."

The Mertons alluded to in the cable are the firm of Henry Merton & Son, London, to which company recent reference has been made in public utterance by N. W. Rowell and Hartley Dewart, K.C.

NEEDS OF THE PATRIOTIC FUND ARE EXPLAINED

County Council Hear the Situation Outlined.

The needs of the Canadian Patriotic Fund were thoroughly explained to the County Council this afternoon by Mr. D. O'Connell, who acted as the chief spokesman for a deputation composed of Aldermen Edgar, Stratton, Weir, Langford, Judge Huycke, Rev. R. G. Peever, Adjt. McElhiney, Messrs. Jos. Wearing, W. A. Howard, J. A. Aylmer, R. J. Winch, C. A. G. Spence, E. A. Peck, F. D. Kerr and Rev. J. R. Webb.

It was pointed out to the wardens and councillors that the sum of $100,000 was a necessary contribution from the city and county of Peterborough in order that the promise made to the soldiers now overseas could be carried out. The city of Peterborough had decided to raise $60,000 by 20-year debentures and they now asked the county to raise $40,000. How best for the county to raise this was not suggested, but if it was decided to follow the example of the city, the rate of taxation for this purpose would be 39c on each $1,000 assessment. There might be a way that would appeal to the county as a better one. It was the duty of the citizens of Canada to see the fund through no matter what sacrifice it necessitated to us at home in order that the dependents of the soldiers on the battlefield may be properly cared for. This might not be the last appeal as the end of the war was not in sight. In closing, Mr. O'Connell spoke highly of the great sacrifice of the Canadian soldiers and hoped for continued generous treatment from the County Council.

Mr. J. A. Staples addressed the Council as the representative of Sir Herbert Ames, the secretary of the Fund. He stated that when war broke, he was studying in Dresden, and was allowed to proceed to Canada only after four months' civil imprisonment, that he was paroled, given his passport upon a promise that he would not take up arms against Germany. He was doing the next best thing, giving his assistance in helping the dependents of the soldiers in the trenches. He gave a thorough account of the workings of the executive at Ottawa. There were no highly paid officials, and the cost of handling this vast Fund was only 60 cents on every $100, less than one per cent.

Ontario was required to give $6,000,000 to the Fund, and this represented a rate of $2.30 per head of population. He asked for generous treatment at the hands of Council.

Ald. Edgar spoke on behalf of Mayor Duffus, who was unavoidably absent from the city.

Rev. R. G. Peever, B.D., Rev. J. R. Webbb and Judge Huycke spoke briefly in support of the Patriotic Fund being generously treated.

motor, in charge of Deputy Chief Jamieson of the fire department. After working for some time no sign of life was given and when Coroner Greer, Drs. King and McNulty arrived, they pronounced the boy dead.

The young fellow had been on the late watch last night and must have gone to bed early this morning.

Gas Escaped

The gas came from a connection leading from the next basement and it was found to be stuffed with a red handkerchief and tied with a towel. The connection, which had been removed, was found outside the door of the room with a cap on it. It is thought that this piece of pipe had been taken off by the boy so that his dresser would stand closer to the wall, and, not being acquainted with the danger of gas, he had stuffed the opening with the cloth, without taking pains to be sure that there would be no leakage.

Coroner Greer ordered the body taken to Comstock's undertaking rooms pending his decision as to whether an inquest will be necessary.

Others Escape Fumes

It is surprising that with the quantity of gas in the house when the police arrived that more of the inmates had not suffered seriously from the deadly fumes. Several of the young ladies are sick as a result.

Mrs. Murray, the housekeeper, is quite positive that the gas connection had ben taken off since she cleaned the room yesterday as the dresser was found close to the wall, which would have been impossible with the connection in place.

Too Many "Godmothers"

"War godmothers" appear, like many other blessings, to be open to criticism. Some poilus, it appears, are over-blessed in this respect, and others, just as deserving, escape the blessing altogether. This is at least the state of affairs alleged in a petition signed by French interned soldiers in a certain Swiss resort. The petition requests that henceforth the interned soldiers be no longer authorised to have "war godmothers."

The petition, on the face of it, seems surprising, as every one has heard how "godmothers" supply prisoners and men at the front with clothing and parcels of every kind, write to them and encourage those who suffer from the blues.

An inquiry instituted in Switzerland by the medical authorities, revealed the fact that 90 per cent. of those interned who are actually undergoing disciplinary confinement for unruly behavior, have on an average four to five "godmothers" each, one having even as many as twelve! On the other hand, only ten per cent. of those in the hotels have been "adopted."

It also appears that many "godmothers" shower money presents somewhat too freely on their "godsons," with the result that some of those thus favored go in for wining and dining on too liberal a scale and get themselves into trouble.

CARD CENSUS IS FOR INDUSTRIAL PURPOSES

Canadian Men Will Be Asked 24 Questions.

TORONTO, Nov. 30.— Lieut.-Col. Henry Brock, Director of National Services for this district, last night stated that the Post Office Department would gather as soon as was possible the information sought by the Director-General of National Service, and that the fac-simile of the card to be issued to every male between the ages of eighteen and sixty-five years, with many questions, which appeared in a Montreal paper, was substantially the card which the Director-General had submitted to him for his opinion.

Col. Brock says that the census is purely for industrial purposes, and not to aid recruiting.

Each male will receive a card and be asked to return it to the Post Office Department. If it is not received within ten days the Postmaster will be expected to ascertain the reason why it has not been returned.

The questions are:

1. What is your full name?
2. How old are you?
3. Where do you live? Province?
4. Name of city, town, village, or post office, street, number.
5. In what country were you born?
6. In what country was your father born?
7. In what country was your mother born?
8. Were you born a British subject?
9. If not, are you naturalised?
10. How much time have you lost in the last last twelve months, from sickness?
11. Have you full use of your arms?
12. Of your legs?
13. Of your sight?
14. Of your hearing?
15. Which are you — married, single or a widower?
16. How many persons besides yourself do you support?
17. What are you working at for a living?
18. Whom do you work for?
19. Have you a trade or profession?
20. If so, what?
21. Are you working now?
22. If not, why?
23. Would you be willing to change your present work for other necessary work at the same pay during the war?
24. Are you willing if your railway fare is paid to leave where you now live and go to some other place in Canada to do such work?

How Munitioners Are Protected

Engineering Science Renders Workers "Fool Proof"—Improved Devices For Guarding Life

From a London daily paper: The wonderful adaptability of the munitioniste is not the only revelation of the munition factory, for the marvellous ingenuity of the tool setters and engineers of the country has been an equally amazing discovery. In the production of shells the work is necessarily of the very finest; and on the occasion of a recent visit to a shell filling and munition factory, I was astounded at the marvellous adaptations that have been introduced to simplify the operation of the complicated machinery, and to enable unskilled women and girls to produce work of such high standard and precision as would previously have required the most expert workmanship.

One machine I saw for folding cartridge cases was entirely protected by a strong wire gauze, which rendered any trapping an absolute impossibility. Another for splitting the cartridge charges was fitted with a finger guard, or stop, which entirely prevented the fingers from coming into contact with the press.

Micrometer Superseded

The micrometer, a very delicate instrument requiring the most careful reading, has been almost superseded in most of the works by either simple indicator gauges or skilfully conceived tools known as "go" or "not go" gauges. By this means, which merely requires the passing of the instrument to be tested—say shell cases, for instance—along a tool so contrived as accurately to measure each particular portion, the slightest variation—even the thousandth part of an inch in diameter or height or any defect—is immediately apparent from the fact that it will or will not "go." By this method I saw a young girl testing over 200 eighteen pound shell cases an hour, where the same work done by the micrometer in the hands of a skilled man would take perhaps ten times that amount of time.

The "Danger Zone"

Shields of mica, plate glass, and steel are used extensively, and in almost every instance the work upon explosives is enveloped in steel boxes or tubes. In a great many instances the possibility of an explosion occurring in these tools has been anticipated and the worker safeguarded by running steel pipes directly from the tools into the ground.

Everywhere in the "danger zone" (or "front lines," as the munitioniste terms it—for she is as proud, and rightly, too, of her work in this particular section as are the men of their weeks and months in the trenches) the women's clothes are fireproof, while the walls of the danger buildings are lined with asbestos for safety, the floors are covered with thick felt, and no hurrying is permitted there; even voices are lowered. The atmosphere of peace and general air of stillness that pervade these regions is strangely in contrast with the din and clamor of battle that is the ultimate destination of the productions.

"YOU DESERVED WELL"

Poilus Who Robbed Crown Prince of Victory

This is how France acknowledges the deeds of her heroes: In four hours in a magnificent assault you seized from your powerful enemy at one blow ground bristling with obstacles and fortresses northeast of Verdun which he had spent eight months in taking from you in thin strips at the cost of desperate efforts and considerable sacrifices. You have added dazzling glories to those which cover the flags of the army of Verdun. In the name of this army I thank you. You have deserved well of your country.—General Nivelle, Commander of the 2nd Army, to General Mangin's troops on the occasion of the recapture of Douaumont.

CAMPAIGNERS NOW AT WORK TO GET $10,000

MR. W. G. MORROW IS SEC.-TREAS. OF THE FUND FOR THE Y.M.C.A.

Mr. W. G. Morrow was chairman of the meeting at the Patriotic Fund rooms last night when the organization of the campaign to raise $10,000 for the overseas work of the Y. M.C.A. was completed. Mr. Morrow will act as secretary-treasurer.

The Peterborough club will act as a club and amounts raised by the members will go into the fund as a Peterborough Club donation. All the teams are at work today and hope to realize their objective by Friday night.

The Y.M.C.A. representatives here are highly pleased with the fine spirit of the men who have interested themselves in the campaign.

TRADE WILL BE STIMULATED

The hostility of Germany is welding the British Empire into an indissoluble whole. Wars, though disastrous to individuals often prove a blessings to nations. They unite and toughen men. They prepare them for the struggle of life both in the military and in the economic sphere. Success in trade and industry, as in war, depends after all not so much on the possession of dead resources as on the intelligence, ability, energy, and industry of men. Most men are born idlers. They prefer ease and comfort to physical and mental exertion. Hence they dislike and oppose change and progress. Necessity is the mother not only of ingenuity and of invention but of labor and of thrift, and therefore of economic progress and of wealth. Herein lies the reason that the countries most blessed by Nature are often the poorest and the least progressive. Great Britain's former industrial predominance was founded not in peace but in war. It was created during the period 1775-1815. Of these forty years thirty were spent in colossal wars, the war with the American colonies and their European allies, and the gigantic war with Republican and Napoleonic France. These wars gave to Great Britain her late pre-eminence in commerce and industry. Necessity, especially the enormous increase in taxation, made vastly increased production indispensable. It led to the introduction of the steam engine, of modern industry, of modern commerce, of modern agriculture, of modern transport, and of modern capitalism. It brought about the industrial revolution. Peace and ease have, almost unnoticed, deprived Great Britain of the foremost industrial position which she had obtained during the Great War, and which now is possessed by the United States. The present war should not only unite the British Empire, but should once more give to the British people the foremost position in the economic world, provided they make wise and energetic use of their opportunities. On the other hand, the United States, far from enriching themselves at the cost of the fighting nations, may, through peace and ease, fall a prey to that fatal self-complacency and stagnation from which political and industrial Britain has suffered for decades and from which she has been saved by the war. Before long the Great Republic may begin to stagnate.—J. Ellis Barker in the Nineteenth Century.

PETERBOROUGH MARKETS

Bad weather seriously interfered with the local market this week. There was very little doing in any line of produce. A few loads of hay sold at $11 per ton.

Wheat has taken a drop of eight cents a bushel, and is now quoted at $1.72 for fall and $1.67 for spring. There is little change in the other grain quotations.

Hogs are firmer and are now quoted at $10.65 for this week's delivery with a probability of a slight advance for next week.

There is a splendid local demand for fowl of all kinds, pariticularly turkeys.

The butter market remains firm, while the egg market is stronger. Fifty cents was easily secured last Saturday for guaranteed fresh eggs.

HORSE MARKET.

TORONTO, Nov. 29. — The British Government horse inspectors secured about 100 remounts at their last inspection at the Repository on Wednesday. The French buyers were operating at the Repository on four days of last week and they secured 175 horses. With the British buyers off the market now, prices will be considerably lower, as the French pay about $50 less than the British. Indications are that the army buying this week will not assume as large proportions as it did in the previous week. The local trade is very quiet with only an odd horse being picked up.

There is a fair carlot trade. One carload mostly of blocks and chunks went to Halifax, one to Montreal, a car of big mares for the west, and a mixed load of heavy and livery for Northern Ontario.

HOW TO LIVE ON 40 CENTS A DAY

The health commissioner of Chicago has a squad of men on a diet, the object being to show that even at the present high prices for food it is possible for a man to live on 40 cents a day. The bill-of-fare provided contains substantial but simple articles of diet, and at this stage of the experiment the subjects are showing physical improvement. The following rules have been issued for their guidance:

1—Come to meals with clean hands.

2—Eat your meals with good cheer. Worry and grief retard the digestive processes.

3—Avoid, extremes of temperature in eating. Do not take food and drink too cold or too hot. Ice water, if taken at all, should be drunk before the meal.

4—Eat bread and raw vegetables at the beginning of the meal—these stimulate the flow of gastric juices.

5—Chew your food thoroughly; your stomach has no teeth. Do not wash down unmasticated food with coffee, tea or other drinks.

6—Do not eat to excess. Normally your appetite should be an index of your wants.

7—Appetite and relish are important factors in promoting the flow of gastric juice, hence have the food prepared and served in an appetizing manner.

8—Do not eat meat, eggs and other proteins to excess.

9—If you have a feeling of distress or fullness after a meal, your diet or manner of eating needs regulating. If you suffer from belching or regurgitation you should consult a physician for advice.

10—Do not engage in excessive physical or mental exertion immediately after a full meal.

The diet squad, on the last day of the first week of the test showed a gain in weight of 26¾ pounds. When the test started the weight of the members of the squad averaged 152.05; now the squad averages 154.31.

Earlier Than Zeppelin.

There is nothing new, it seems, even in methods of Frightfulness! A correspondent calls my attention to a caricature dating from 1784, in which the French inventor of the fire-balloon, Montgolfier, is shown blowing bubbles, and, in the usual facile way of inventors, prophesying great things of his project. The legend reads: "O by Gar; dis be de grand invention. Dis will immortalise by king, my country, and myself. We will declare the war against our enemie; we will make des English quake by Gar! We will inspect their camp, we will intercept their fleet, we will set fire to their dockyards, and, by Gar, we will take Gibraltar in de air-balloon. And when we have conquer de English, den we conquer de other countries, and make them all colonie to de Grand Monarque." — Westminster Gazette.

Peel and slice tomatoes thickly, dip each slice in a mixture made of a beaten egg, a cupful of fine bread or cracker crumbs, salt and pepper, brown on both sides in a frying pan containing a little hot butter, drop bits of butter between slices and stand over a low fire to cook very slowly, when tender take up carefully with a pancake turner on to a hot platter, garnish with parsley.

WELSH AND DUNDEE ON EDGE FOR GO TO-NIGHT

Tens Rounds for no Decision at New York.

CHICAGO, Nov. 30. — Freddie Welsh, lightweight champion of the world, and Johnny Dundee, the New York Italian, who are carded to hook up in a ten round, no decision fight at Madison Square Guarden tonight, are reported to be in tiptop condition. Word has come from Long Island, where Welsh finished his course of training, that the champion has been showing more speed than when he conditioned himself for the Colorado Springs fray with Charley White on Labor Day. Dundee also is said to be ready for Fredie's most rapid pace.

Preparing for a Big Crowd

The promoters are looking for a big turkey day crowd, in which will be several young fisticuffers, who will lend to the gayety of the occasion by challenging the winner. Benny Leonard, it is said, will dare the winner to knock a chip off his shoulder in the near future. Leonard is much peeved because Dundee got the call over him for a battle with the champion.

"Benny's record easily entitles him to another crack at the champion," said a member of the Leonard camp, "and Benny is sore because Johnny Dundee was accommodated first by Freddie. Dundee admittedly is entitled to consideration, but we feel that Benny should have been given the first chance in the Garden's revival. Benny will be right there with a challenge that the winner will not be able to cast aside."

Welsh Doing a Lot of Work

Welsh did a lot of boxing in his training process, among those who have been sparring with him being Jimmy Duffy, Eddie Moy, Mel Coogan and Charley Simpson, the Australian, who recently arrived in this country for action in the ring. Duffy and Coogan helped Freddie condition himself for his last battle with Leonard, whom he defeated on points by a wide margin.

It is understood that Jimmy Johnston, acting for Joe Welling, will issue a challenge to the winner of the scrap and that he stands ready to wager a big wad on the chances of his "wonderfully willing" miller with either Dundee or Welsh. Nothing will lessen Johnston's belief that Welling 's destined to rise to the top of the heap of lightweights before another year has passed.

"Kitchener Square."

An interesting suggestion for the utilization of the old courthouse grounds in Vancouver, as a site for a soldiers' monument, is made by Mr. J. W. Weart, member-elect for South Vancouver. Mr. Weart prefaces his proposal with the suggestion that the new Government should, as one of the first acts in office, make a grant of this square to the city of Vancouver, in trust for the people of Greater Vancouver, including North Vancouver and New Westminster, who could erect thereon a suitable monument to the memory of the gallant soldiers who have fallen in this war. "In my opinion," said Mr. Weart, "the name that should be given to the square which will undoubtedly be turned over by the Government to the city, is Kitchener square, as a tribute to the memory of Kitchener, the man and soldier, who will be given by history the credit of organizing that magnificent army of citizen soldiers, which is destined to uphold British institutions and be the means of bringing everlasting peace to the world."

Harold Parker to Be Heard From

The Hamilton Herald says this is expected to be Harold Parker's best year since he jumped into the game. With the experience gained last winter, his first in the intermediate ranks, he should be a real star. His work in 1915-16 was the feature of the Rowing Club's play. Manager Audley Morden, of the Hamilton Hockey Club, looks for great things from the youngster.

AUTOMOBILES ARE POPULAR

FACT IS INDICATED BY RECORD RECEIPTS FOR LICENSES.

The revenue of the Department of Highways in Ontario for automobile licenses for the current year will amount to about $630,000. This is the largest amount received by the Ontario Government from this source in any year, and not much below the total of all years up to 1915. From the time automobile licenses were first issued until the end of 1915 the total revenue was about $750,000. For some years those interested in highway improvement have been urging that the revenue from automobile licenses should go towards road maintenance. But during the same period the Province expended on good roads in old Ontario over $2,000,000, so the account is more than square. It is the intention now to apply to roads each year not only the amount of the automobile revenue but also such other sums as are necessary to carry the work along vigorously. This is the first year that any grant has been made towards maintenance of county road systems under the Highway Improvement Act. It is estimated that counties operating under the Act have spent $230,000 this year, and of this the Government will pay 20 per cent. or $46,000.

To Subscribers

We are adding from twenty to thirty new subscribers to our lists every day, the best of all assurances that the public regard The Review as the local paper that is worth reading. All that we ask for is a fair comparison with our contemporaries in the field.

With the sudden increase in the business of extending our circulation confusion is likely to arise and those just ordering the paper, as well as old subscribers, may not receive their papers promptly or regularly. Any of our readers who have cause for complaint on either score will confer a favor by telephoning the facts to the circulation department, calling phone 180.

Of course men are not vain, but just tell a man of 50 that he doesn't look a day over 30, and watch the effect.

No matter how little we may love our neighbors, we can see no good reason why they shouldn't have a kindly feeling for us.

CANADA'S BIG SPORTS

SPLENDID TRIBUTE PAID TO HOCKEY AND LACROSSE BY OFFICER.

The following tribute to Canadian sport, particularly hockey and lacrosse, the national winter and summer sports of the Dominion, is contained in one of the latest books (The Red Watch) dealing with the great European struggle, written by Colonel J. A. Currie, M.P., and having for its subject the doings of the First Canadian Division in Flanders:

"The work of organizing and equipping the Canadian Imperial battalions for overseas service was taken up with great vigor by the Minister of Militia and the officers of the department. Owing to the influence of the churches the best class of youth in the country came forward in large numbers. The clergy appealed to the athletes that had been trained in the gymnasiums of the Y.M.C.A., and the ranks soon contained a large sprinkling of Canadian lacrosse and hockey players.

"It was afterwards to be shown that the manly and strenuous native Canadian sports, lacrosse and hockey, practised by almost every boy in the country from the time he is able to walk, are of a character admirably suited to produce bold and courageous soldiers. Boys who have been accustomed to handle lacrosse and hockey sticks, develop arm and shoulder muscles that make the carrying and use of the rifle easy. Firing for hours during a hot and sustained engagement does not fatigue or exhaust them as it otherwise would. In the rough work of the bayonet charge, they keep their heads, and have confidence in their ability at close quarters to overcome their antagonist. They do not dread a blow or a bayonet, for they have been accustomed to roughing it all their lives. When it comes to 'cold steel' it is the man who has the courage and confidence in himself that wins, for nineteen times out of twenty the other man is dominated before blades are crossed, and at once either throw up his hands or runs."

Father Out of Names.

Children's names in France can only be chosen from the calender (which contains all the saints) and from ancient history, except by special permission to be obtained from the State Attorney. At Nice the guardian of the cemetery wished to register his latest child, a son, as "Verdun Salonica," but the mayor refused to accept such a name, as being contrary to the law. The father urged patriotic grounds and was able to plead that he had had fifteen children to name, ten being still alive, and so names were somewhat exhausted in the family. The mayor was obdurate and the father determined. He took the case to the Procureur of the Republic (the Public Prosecutor) and obtained a decision in his favor.

Canada's First Farmer.

The first farmer settler in Canada who lived on the produce of the soil was Louis Hebert, an apothecary from Paris, who landed in Quebec in 1617 with his wife and children, and at once started to clear and cultivate the soil on what is now the site of the Cathedral of Quebec, the Seminary, and part of the Upper Town. With a spade as his only tool he worked and re-worked the soil until it was ready to receive seed. He threw in seed from France, planted apple and rose trees, and at last saw waving in the breeze the golden grain, the flowers, and fruits from his motherland. The third centenary of the landing of Louis Hebert will be commemorated in Quebec in 1917, and a citizens' committee has been formed to erect a monument to the first farmer of the Dominion.

A Wonderful Record.

It is stated that the British have not lost a gun in the whole Somme offensive; and it is probable that this is the only offensive in the war that can boast of such a wonderful record.

AFTER YPRES THE SOMME

Two officers—one from Edmonton and the other from Montreal—who were wounded early in the recent advance, too early to speak of the actual event, in the course of conversation with a representative of The Canadian Gazette discussed the difference between life in the Ypres salient and on the Somme front. "Ypres and the Somme are," said one, "the exact opposite of each other." On the Somme front, they explained, they were out in the open, and shell-holes served as trenches. At Ypres there was no seeing the enemy and very little chance of hitting back. On the Somme you saw the enemy and even saw cavalry at work. It was harder work on the Somme, but it was much better sport. There was not the sense of being shut up in a limited area, for there were many miles of front. Both officers spoke of the superiority of the British in the air. The enemy employed no Zeppelins on the Somme, and very seldom was an enemy aeroplane seen. When one was seen it was so high up as to be useless from an observation point of view. The consequence was the German observation was nothing like as efficient as it used to be, and more liberties could be taken than in the Ypres salient. Rations could be brought up in the daylight, and altogether life was very different from that led in the Ypres salient. The "boys" were all glad to be on the Somme front. The German shelling was sometimes severe, but the British artillery sent over quite ten times as many shells as the Germans fired. Our guns stood in rows and did terrible execution. A large number of German prisoners were taken. They were for the most part small men, but were very smart, springing to attention directly on meeting an officer. These prisoners expressed their amazement at our artillery, which had done destruction in their ranks. Both officers spoke with enthusiasm about the "tanks" which were like little battleships on land. The nose of a "tank" could be raised up, and that was how the great machine managed to cross trenches. They were marvellous in what they could do, and they certainly annoyed the Germans very much.

A Mennonite Problem.

A delegation of western Mennonite bishops saw the Prime Minister recently about a curious grievance, and they asked his protection. It appears that under the Mennonite faith they cannot enter into litigation. They can neither prosecute nor defend lawsuits. Recently a member named Heinrich was excommunicated, and he sued the bishop for damages. He was non-suited and he then sued a number of members of the church for conspiracy. The case was undefended and he got $1,600 damages. The Mennonites fear that this sort of thing will become a habit, and it is suggested that the Government should name a counsel for them. It would be a way out. The community is law-abiding and much respected. When the Mennonites came to Canada, in 1873, they were granted freedom from military services. After the war began they waived this right and many of the young men have enlisted.

The Kaiser Talks.

The Kaiser, addressing troops on the Somme front, thanked them for their sacrifices and adjured them to "stand firm against French insolence and British stubborness," concluding: "The Lord will give His blessing in the end."

Mrs. Newcomb — "Good morning. Is this Miss Wise's private academy?"

Mrs. Binks (hotly)—"No, it is not! This is a private house, and these are my own children."

Mrs. Newcomb (hastily)—"Why, I thought it must be a school, because the children looked so educated and scholarly and—and refined, you know."

Mrs. Binks (genially)—"Oh, yes, of course. Come in and sit down. Lucy, call your six brothers and five sisters, and introduce them to the lady, while I just put on my hat to show her where Miss Wise's school is."—Tit-Bits.

CLEVER VIDOCQ IS THE FATHER OF DETECTIVES

VIDOCQ, the great French detective, was the first man to undertake the systematic tracking of criminals, says The Cleveland Leader. He is known as the "Father of Detectives." And Vidocq was a reformed thief. For many years he had been one of the class to whose detection and punishment he afterward devoted his life. It was in 1812 that he was appointed chief of the secret police of Paris. He retained this position until 1826. Curiously enough, he died in poverty in 1857.

It was M. Henry, prefect of the French police, who gave Vidocq his first opportunity to demonstrate skill as a detective. A gang of thieves had been robbing houses in Paris and their operations finally became so offensive that it was deemed necessary to take extraordinary measures to put them out of business. So Vidocq was commissioned to do the work with the understanding that he would be richly rewarded if he met with success.

No one was more familiar with the ways of the underworld than was Vidocq and he determined to continue his association with criminals in order now to obtain the evidence that would be required to convict them. He had once known a famous thief and fugitive galley-slave, Germain, and he resolved to win his way into the good graces of the lawbreakers.

After that he mingled with the thieves of Paris, with whom he became a hail fellow, well met. One of the first to meet and greet him with the hand of fellowship was Constantine, a giant of a man, who was the head and front of the very gang now engaged in robbing the houses of Paris. At the outset Constantine urged Vidocq to join in the cracking of a particularly rich crib. He said that his gang had already come into possession of a key of the house and that it would be an easy job. Six others were to participate and it was urged that there would be more than enough loot to go around.

Vidocq cheerfully agreed to join them in the enterprise and said that he was especially attracted with the idea of getting the best of the "thief turned square." He chuckled at the thought of waylaying himself, and the big thief thought the chuckle merely represented the satisfaction he felt at the notion of assaulting the thief-taker. The plans were carefully laid. Constantine was a man of system and he arranged the part each man was to take in the robbery. A large garden wall surrounded the house to be entered and it was decided that Vidocq, being comparatively new, should take his place upon the wall and give the alarm in the event of the police appearing on the scene. The detective eagerly assented to this agreement. It was just as he wished. On the way to the scene of the robbery he slipped into the hand of a gendarme a note addressed to the prefect of police. It instructed him to send a detail of men to the scene at a specified time, but not to arrest the robbers immediately. Instead it was asked that the police follow the burglars to a room, where Vidocq promised to have them all together.

All of the details were carried out as planned. The thieves went to the house at about midnight and managed to get in without difficulty.

They grabbed the bags containing the loot and hurried to a nearby house, where Vidocq said they would have time to regain their wits. Delighted to get away from danger, they followed him without a murmur. In a few minutes they felt secure and began a division of the spoils. In spite of the old adage about honor among thieves, Constantine wanted the major part of the booty and his demands precipitated a fierce quarrel. It was at this moment that Vidocq quietly gave the signal for the police to enter. They did so with their pistols cocked and primed. Every man in the room was taken into custody—that is every man except Vidocq. He was under the bed where he could not be seen.

On the way to the police station the robbers discussed the strange disappearance of their colleague in crime. Constantine, especially, was angry at his odd escape. He came to the conclusion that the fellow was a coward and tried to dismiss all thoughts of him from his mind. But at the hearing the next morning they were treated to a great surprise. They had determined to proclaim their innocence and lay all the blame on the man who had disappeared. Then, to their dismay, Vidocq appeared in the witness box and gave testimony which sent all of them to jail.

Constantine was furious and tried to attack the detective in the courtroom. He said many things that were not complimentary and added: "What do you call that sort of a trick?"

"I call it 'the mouse trap.' You all walked into it even though you were old rats that should have known better."

Every cent of the proceeds from canteens and of the subscribed funds is used exclusively for the overseas work.

We must man the first line trenches at home while our boys hold the line against the common enemy.

25th Anniversary of Bishop Reeve

TORONTO, Nov. 30.—Bishop W. D. Reeve gave a luncheon at the Prince George Hotel yesterday in celebration of the 25th anniversary of his Bishopric. The guests numbered about 60, and included the city rectors, and officials of the Anglican Church.

Bishop Reeve gave a brief address and other speakers were Bishop Sweeny and Rev. Dr. Cawley.

Bishop Reeve was associated with mission work through the Mackenzie River district for a number of years, being at one time Archdeacon of Chipewyan and first Bishop of Mackenzie River. He was ordained a deacon in 1869, a priest in 1874. In 1891 he received the honorary degree of Doctor of Dovinity from the University of Manitoba, and on the 29th of November on the same year he was made a bishop at Holy Trinity Church, Winnipeg.

In 1907 he came to Toronto as assistant to the late Bishop Sweatman, at that time Bishop of Toronto. He has continued his work with Bishop Sweeny, the present Bishop of Toronto.

RUSSIANS TO RESCUE, MAKE GAINS

RUSSIAN OFFENSIVE SUCCEEDS ALONG WHOLE ROUMANIAN FRONT

South of Kirlibaba in Spite of Counter-Attacks: Range of Heights Has Been Occupied by Russians.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PETROGRAD, Dec. 1. — The Russian offensive has been successful along the whole Roumanian frontier south of Kirlibaba, says an official statement issued today by the Russian war department.

In spite of violent German counter-attacks, the statement adds, the Russians occupied the whole range of heights.

BERLIN STATEMENT.

BERLIN, Dec. 1. — The German army headquarters announces that Russian attacks yesterday over a 200-mile front gained no advantage and resulted merely in the waste of men and ammunition.

In Roumania, in addition to captures reported yesterday, Germans have taken 2,500 prisoners and 21 cannon, and the Roumanians have suffered enormous casualties.

Attacks by the Entente troops on the Macedonian front north of Monastir were futile.

GARBAGE CONTRACTOR DUE TO WALK CARPET

His Employes Ignore Complaints of Non-removal of Ashes and Garbage,

Unless the service is improved immediately the contractor for garbage collection will be asked to appear before the Property Committee and explain why certain of his employees wilfully neglect to remove garbage from residences. In a section of the south ward the residents never know when the garbage wagon will call and there are instances where the men have neglected to take ashes and garbage in spite of the fact that the receptacles were placed at convenient points and could be carried by a ten-year-old lad.

Complaints have been made to the sanitary inspector, who in turn notified the collectors, only to have new complaints made, as the men ignored his instructions.

GERMANS PREVENTED FROM LINKING THEIR FORCES

British Win Conspicuous Success in East Africa, Taking Prisoners and War Material.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

LONDON, Dec. 1.—General Smuts reports conspicuous success in the operations in East Africa, which began October 19, when a strong German force, commanded by General Wahle, driven from Tabora in the central part of the colony, came in contact with the British south of Iringa. The enemy in the Mahenge area took the offensive against the British on the Ruhudje River with the evident intention of assisting the western German force to penetrate the British cordon and form a junction with the main German force. The attempt failed and the British drove the enemy over the river, killing 200 and taking 82 prisoners and booty.

The main body of Germans divided into two parts. One invested the British post at Lupembe and was driven off. The remaining force was isolated in Ilembule mission and forced to surrender, about five hundred strong, on Nov. 26 with a howitzer, several machine guns and ammunition. Remnants of General Wahle's force is making eastward for Mahenge, having suffered a loss of 50 per cent. in casualties, with most of its artillery and machine gun.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1—The commander of the German submarine which sank the British horse ship Marina, with the loss of 19 lives, including six Americans, has reported to his Government that he took the Marina for a transport. Germany has asked the United States for information as to the Marina's status and will offer reparation if it be found she was entitled to immunity,

ARTILLERY FIGHTING

Reported From Austro-Italian Front.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

ROME, Dec. 1. — Heavy artillery fighting is in progress along the Austro-Italian front.

The penitentiary and prison population of the Dominion is now smaller than it has been for years. Prohibition, employment conditions and the enlistment of the "adventurous spirits" are contributory causes.

AT FRONT AGAIN ONLY ONE WEEK WHEN KILLED

LATE LT. LAING PRAISED Y. M. C. A. WORK IN FRANCE.

The parents of the late Stewart Laing received this week a letter written by him on Nov. 7. He returned to France on Oct. 30 after getting his commission as lieutenant and had been on service only a week when killed. He wrote that he was on back line work. It had been raining every day, making the trenches in bad condition, thus giving much work to the Engineers. He had located his brother Norman and hoped to see him soon. The writer also referred in terms of praise to the work being carried on by the Y.M.C.A. in France.

No. 2 Company, to which he was attached, was billeted in a village and the men were fairly comfortable. They had a gramophone and a number of good records, some from the newest plays in London. He had met Lieuts. Angus Richardson and Percq Stock (transferred from the 93rd Battalion).

Lieut. Laing enlisted in August, 1914, went to England in April, 1915, and to France in September. He remained on service in France until July 18, 1916, when he went to England to take out his commission, returning to the front at the end of October.

Capt. Art. Howson, who has been with the medical service at Saloniki for about two years, is ill, according to a cable message received by his parents. His brother, E. H. Howson, has cabled for further information.

In a recent letter to his brother Frank, Pte. Tommy Munden wrote that he had been discharged from hospital after having been wounded at the front and was at a base awaiting orders to return to the trenches. He enlisted with the 74th Battalion at Toronto with Will Hilliard, a former Peterborough boy, who was killed in action.

The following letter was received by Mrs. Geo. Rowe, of Lakefield, on Nov. 30:—

Canadian Red Cross, 16 Cockspur St., London, S.W., Nov. 14.
Information Bureau.

Dear Madam: I beg to inform you that Pte. G. H. Rowe, No. 195425, 22nd Can., is now at King George Hospital, Stamford, Kent, and was admitted there a few days ago.

Our visitor reports that Pte. E. Rowe has been rather seriously wounded in the head, but is going on well. We will write again as soon as we receive another report of him. We will also be glad to send him any little comfort he will require and are forwarding him today the shaving outfit he required.

Hoping he will continue to do well —Yours very truly, B. Camhill.

Pte. Roscoe Kendry, of the original 2nd Batt., is in hospital at Bradford, Yorkshire, England, convalescing after receiving a wound in the leg. He and speakes very highly of the treat- is the only Canadian in the hospital ment accorded the wounded.

In a letter to his parents this week, Lieut. Harold Hill writes that he was coming out of the trenches after a spell of 96 hours. The trenches were in a very muddy condition. Practically no food could be brought in on account of the heavy shell fire, Lieut. Hill having been in one of the hot corners.

Nicoll Kravetsky, a Russian, suddenly deranged, jumped from a train running at forty miles an hour near Bala, but escaped with a few bruises

PREVENT ANOTHER TRAGEDY

Inquiry Into Death of Lauris Smith.

At Comstock's undertaking rooms last night, Coroner Dr. Greer empannelled a jury to inquire into the death of Lauris Smith, the fifteen-year-old bell boy at the Empress Hotel, who met death by asphyxiation at his room during the early hours of yesterday morning. The following jurors were sworn: M. J. Maher, foreman; Jas. Drain, J. Picard, Malcolm McIntyre, Geo. Evans, Norman Andrew, Sam Houlihan, Thos. Detcher, Chris. Wood, Jas. Fitzsimmons, J. P. Bryson.

The jurymen were moved to expressions of regret and pity as they viewed the body as it lay in a white coffin, on which was a floral cross sent by Mr. and Mrs. G. N. Graham and family. There were no marks of disfigurement or evidences that the victim of the lamentable affair had undergone pain.

No evidence was taken, the inquest being adjourned to Tuesday, Dec. 5, at 8 p.m., in the Council Chamber.

There is no suspicion of foul play. The coroner is making the investigation in order that if the evidence submitted shows the gas pipe to be a danger to life, recommendation can be made to have the danger removed.

C.P.R. Conductor Smith, father of the deceased, attended the opening of tht inquest and took the body to Havelock last nigh for burial.

"Y" MEMBERSHIP BOOSTED TO 675; MORE TO COME

INDIVIDUAL WORKERS TO CONTINUE EFFORT IN DECEMBER.

THE WINNING TEAMS.

The Y.M.C.A. membership campaign closed Thursday night as far as the team organization is concerned. This effort proved very successful, although unforeseen circumstances made it impossible to complete the canvass as at first outlined.

The actual result of the campaign was 127 new member and renewals bringing the paid membership of the association up to 675, not including the 242 members overseas.

The association officers are confident that the high record of 705 members attained in 1913 will be exceeded before January 1, 1917.

The winning team in each division:

Business Men: Team No. 1; Ross Dobbin, Capt.

Seniors: Team No. 3. Bruce Hamilton, captain.

Intermediates: Team No. 5; R. Brown, captain.

Boys: Team No. 8; H. Whitcroft, captain.

It is proposed to continue efforts for members during December with a number of individual workers.

A banquet will be served the winning teams on Thursday evening, Dec. 7.

TRAVELLERS SENT WREATH

The guests at the Empress Hotel sent a floral wreath with their sympathy to the parents of the late Laurie Smith, in Havelock. The lad's bright and cheerful disposition had made him a favorite with the guests at the hotel, as well as with the staffs. Mr. G. N. Graham and Mr. C. G. Graham will attend the funeral.

Sir George Foster, in a letter to the Ottawa Equal Suffrage Association, predicted equal suffrage within the Empire within a very few years.

BRITISH ENTER GERMAN LINE SOUTH OF ARMENTIERES IN SEVERAL PLACES

GERMAN SLAVERS WILL TAKE BELGIAN GIRLS AND WOMEN ALSO MALES BETWEEN 17 AND 50

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, Dec. 1.—It is reported from Fauquemont, says a Reuter despatch from Amstermad today, that male inhabitants of Haszlet and Lanaye, in Belgium, between the ages of 17 and 50, and also girls and women possessing sewing machines are to be deported into Germany.

VIOLENT COUNTER AGAINST SERBIANS

All Their Positions Near Grunishte Were Retained Except one Trench.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PARIS, Dec. 1. — A violent counter-attack was made by German and Bulgarian troops yesterday on the Macedonian front near Grunishte, east of the Cerna River bend. The war office announces that the Serbians succeeded in retaining all their positions except one trench.

$3,000 FOR PATRIOTIC FUND FOR FIRST MONTH OF 1917

Reeve McIntosh Deprecates Number of Law Suits Against Townships.

Legal Expenses Are Big Drain on Tax Payer.

Peterborough County Council showed a true patriotic spirit this morning when a resolution was passed by the Finance Committee increasing the allowance to the Canadian Patriotic Fund for next month from $2,000 to $3,000. The 1916 Council can go no further.

When the matter came up for discussion Reeve Squire moved that the county grant for January be half of $40,000, the amount asked by yesterday's deputation. This was seconded by Reeve Bullied.

Reeve Anderson thought that as the deputation had stated that only $7,500 was required for the December allowance, he would give the fund $3,000, which would be two fifths of the amount required.

Reeve McIntosh moved, seconded by Reeve Coben, that the matter be left over for the new council.

Reeve Squire changed his motion to read $3,000 instead of half of $40,000, and upon a vote being taken, this motion carried.

In speaking to his motion, Reeve McIntosh regretted the number of lawsuits against townships and thought they should be laid over until after the war. The legal expenses were an awful drain on the taxpayer and enough to pay several patriotic donations.

The high cost of living will affect the County Council in their printing bills. Messrs. T. P. Lancaster of Havelock and J. G. Keefer of Norwood waited on the County Council this morning and asked an increase of 20per cent. on the fixed rates for county printing.

It was pointed out for the benefit of the Council that paper had increased in price from 100 per cent. to 260 per cent. and the manufacturers would not make any contracts in anticipation of a further necessary rise.

The Council decided to let the new members deal with the request at the January session.

Bear Meat is Eaten With Fatal Result

ONE DEATH AND SEVERAL OTHERS VERY ILL.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

STANSTEAD, Que., Dec. 1. — Eugene Baldwin of Judds Mills, near here, died yesterday after two weeks' illness from eating bear meat. Mrs. Baldwin is seriously ill and their son-in-law and daughter and a servant of the latter couple are all ill from the same cause. Dr. Mackay, of Sherbrooke, who was called in, says he has never heard before of death from eating bear meat, and thinks the bear must have eaten something unwholesome, like diseased pork.

SHOWED WAR VIEWS

Adjutant McElhiney had a good audience in the Baptist Church at Indian River last night, when he showed his war views. Messrs. Hepburn, Barzett and Shurter, of the city, who are building a dairy at Indian River for a Toronto firm, were in the audience.

GREEK GOVERNMENT REFUSES DEMANDS

Desultory Firing in Capital and Some Arrests.

LONDON, Dec. 1. — The Greek Government has sent a reply to Vice-Admiral du Fournet, definitely refusing his demands, according to a Reuter despatch from Athens.

LONDON, Dec. 1. — The Daily News' correspondent at Athens, in a despatch dated Thursday, says:—

This morning firing broke out in Athens at a spot between the German Legation and the Royal Palace. Several arrests have been made. There has been desultory firing since.

The Greek Government has retaken control of the post offices and telegraph lines in Athens, expelling the French control officers.

The Daily Telegraphs' Athens' correspondent says: An allied transport with French troops arrived at Piraeus and moored alongside the quay. The King has signed a decree accepting volunteers for the army. The Greek army has occupied the surrounding hills and villages. Yesterday the King congratulated the officers of the First Army Corps on their "manly attitude," and gave them an order if allied detachments present themselves to occupy any building already in the Greek troops' possession to resist such occupation by force of arms.

German Raid South of Neuve Chapelle Driven off.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, Dec. 1.—Yesterday evening the enemy attempted a raid on our trenches south of Neuve Chapelle, but was driven off, says today's official report from the Franco-Belgian front. South of Armentieres the enemy's line was entered by us in several places during the night.

Beyond the usual artillery activity there is nothing else to report.

French Front Unchanged.

PARIS, Dec. 1. — Today's official report says there was no change during the night in the situation on the front in France.

AGRICULTURE MINISTER TO SPEAK HERE

HON. MARTIN BURRELL TO GIVE MAIN ADDRESS AT THE ARMORIES.

Hon. Martin Burrell, Minister of Agriculture, Ottawa, Major G. Campbell, chief recruiting officer for this district, will be the chief speakers at the Sunday night recruiting meeting at the Armories, it is announced definitely.

Lt.-Col. Ackerman has given every assurance to the young men of the county that there will be no individual appeals made to them. He would simply like them to be present and listen to a plain statement of the facts as Canada is affected.

Capt. O'Flynn of the 247th, Capt. (Rev.) Clark, chaplain of the 235th, and Mr. C. E. Weeks of Lindsay, addressed a recruiting meeting at Millbrook last night. There was a splendid attendance. The addresses will no doubt stimulate recruiting in the village.

The annual meeting of All Saints Choir was held in the Parish Hall last night. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Treasurer, Miss B. Dawson; robe mistress, Miss A. Purseglove; librarian, Mr. Geo. Gladwin; secretary, Mr. T. H. Boddy.

PETERBOROUGH, FRIDAY, DECEMBER 1, 1916

THE NIGHTHAWK BRIGADE.

PROHIBITION has created a new industry, more or less lucrative and attended with risk that makes the running of a blockade tame in comparison. The industry flourishes best on dark nights, and the hours when it is at its height are those that follow midnight.

Large quantities of liquor are being imported into Peterborough by the automobile rout, and generally for illegal purposes. When liquor is intended for lawful use, the express companies are generally the channels through which it is obtained. But when sold in contravention of the Act, secrecy is essential.

Chief Thompson and his men have, ever since prohibition became effective, been active in its enforcement. In the early stages of the new regime, very few, if any, illegal sales were attempted, but now there appears to be a disposition on the part of some to circumvent the new law by every subterfuge that the ingenuity of man can devise.

The Chief of Police finds himself hampered from a somewhat unexpected source. When he brings a transgressor before the Magistrate, very often City Solicitor Gordon, in receipt of a regular salary of $1000 a year to look after the legal interests of the city, appears in the role of defending counsel. It is to the interests of the city to maintain any law upon the statute books; the fines collected for violations of the Ontario Temperance Act go into the city treasury; so that any man who tries to block the work of the police can hardly be said to be working on behalf of the municipality. Every man brought up in court has a right to retain counsel to defend him. That this counsel should be a man in the pay of the city is, to say the least, a somewhat anomalous proceeding. It may be said, too, that it is a precedent only recently established. It is a course which former city solicitors, as a matter of professional ethics alone, refused to follow.

In the Police Court yesterday City Solicitor Gordon charged Chief Thompson and his men with frequent breaches of the law in making arrests and in looking for liquor without search warrants. When the Chief appealed to the Magistrate for protection, the latter reproved the City Solicitor for his statement and upheld the other official in the line of examination of a defendant which he had adopted.

It is to be taken for granted that a lawyer of Mr. Gordon's standing is familiar with the various details of the new prohibitory law. That being the case, he certainly knows that the Act allows officers the widest latitude in searching premises where liquor is reported to be kept for illegal purposes. Chief Thompson knows his duties perhaps quite as well as any other man who by virtue of his expert knowledge draws a salary from the city. One thing is certain—the Chief can be depended upon not to encourage violation of any law in order to make business brisk in his own particular line.

Whatever attainments a man may possess, however versatile his talents, there is a limit to the number of offices he should hold, and to the duties he should be called upon to discharge. Men fitted for public service in the city are not so scarce as to render it necessary to have one man fill two positions. A city solicitor who will act in that capacity alone so far as cases in which the municipality has a direct concern, can be secured. The matter is up to Council, and the time immediately preceding a civic election is opportune, if any occasion is, for aldermanic action.

ELECTIONS BY ACCLAMATION.

A HEALTHY SIGN in any society is a lively campaign for the election of officers. It is when affairs are in a decadent condition that the choice of officers is likely to go by default. Members have little interest in the welfare of their order when they are not aroused by the question of the selection of those in authority.

A Council returned by acclamation is likely to regard the fact as an indication that their services are acceptable in every particular, and that they are no longer under the necessity of attempting to please the people. Too often such elections show nothing but indifference on the part of the voters.

Any alderman should court an investigation of his record and be ready to stand or fall by it. If he downs an opponent in a fair fight, victory should mean to him much more than a return to Council without a struggle.

There is little apparent interest in the approaching municipal election, although the times call for the best talent available for the public service. This can be secured if the voters can only be induced to interest themselves in the preliminaries and turn out to the nominations.

SIR WILFRID'S PROMISES.

SIR WILFRID LAURIER announces that if he is returned to power at the next election he will form a government that will be national in every sense of the term. From this his friends are led to believe that he would call to his cabinet representatives of the people without regard to party lines.

Of course, Sir Wilfrid Laurier would do nothing of the kind. Even if he had any idea of coalition, his followers would not for a moment stand for such a policy. Sir Wilfrid would probably follow the course which he adopted after his election when he levied on the different provincial legislatures for cabinet materiel, and even in taking that step he did not secure a government out of the ordinary. Any cabinet that Sir Wilfrid would form would be national in a geographical sense only. The leader of the Opposition has not yet lost the art of saying one thing while he means something entirely different.

THAT WAIL FROM THE WILDERNESS.

A LOCAL PAPER a few weeks ago backed up Mayor Duffus when, in a speech made before the Cabinet at Ottawa, he asked that the municipalities be given authority to probe the high cost of living. The Government has done this, and now the paper is not satisfied, but sets up a puerile whine, charging that the Government has simply dodged responsibility and shifted it upon the shoulders of the towns, townships and cities.

All of which complaint is pure piffle. The Government has no more evaded responsibility in this case than it does when it gives municipalites the power to mantain police officers and furnishes them with the machinery to punish offenders. If the city of Peterborough can find any merchant, manufacturer or dealer who is conspiring to keep up the price of food contrary to law, the means by which the municipality can bring about his punishment are no more complicated than are the methods that must be employed to secure the conviction of a murderer.

The Examiner for very shame should desist in its pop-gun warfare on the Government. Out of its own mouth, its condemnation can be accomplished. All of its sensations collapse, all of its cases come to nothing. Last night it lent its aid to promulgate the falsehood that Canadian Ministers are in league with the Huns to get nickel from this country into Germany, there to be made into munitions to shoot to death the soldiers from this city and country. It pursued this shameless policy, too, in face of the fact that a cablegram appeared in all the papers, that for partisan reasons did not suppress it, from the British Government to Premier Borden, divesting the Liberal bugaboo of its last vestige of alarm. There is no Canadian nickel going to Germany; the arrangements made with the Canadian Cabinet are satisfactory. There is no German firm in London re-shipping to the Teutons the refined nickel that reaches England by way of the United States. To forbid the exportation of ore from this country now would interfere with the successful prosecution of the war.

Will this cablegram convince The Examiner? We doubt it. While it ingurgitates any story calculated to reflect upon the Government, it nibbles suspiciously at all evidence that has a tendency to place it right with the people.

"The Government has failed to take any effective responsibility in the matter of recruiting," is another of The Examiner's mendacious charges. Then who has perfected the plan now in effect; who has devised the most generous system for the paying of the soldiers, the caring for their dependents, and the pensioning of the heroes who return crippled from the war? A member of the Dominion Cabinet will address a recruiting meeting in this city Sunday night. Cabinet Ministers are heard in all parts of the country to the same purpose, while the Liberal leader remains in his tent, devoting his energies, not to bring about the salvation of his Empire, but to repair the shattered fortunes of his party.

WHERE CONSCRIPTION IS NEEDED.

PORT HOPE, it seems, has its grievances similar to those that exist in more cosmopolitan centres — Peterborough, for example. Every time a young fellow enlists in the town by the lake, a man of a different race comes from another province and takes the place in industrial life thus rendered vacant. An "Observer" sends to the Port Hope Times the following letter of protest:

> Six French-Canadians have recently come to town and been employed at the file factory.
> Now, these French-Canadians are taking the places of brave Port Hope men who are now fighting the battles of France on the continent. It seems remarkable that these French-Canadians would not be the first to rush to defend their homeland, France, while she is invaded by the German hordes. These French-Canadians appear to be contented to stay at home and let Port Hope men with British blood in their veins drive back the invaders of France. These French-Canadians shirk their duty, stay at home, and reap the rich harvest of high wages. I think the man who benefits by this war by staying at home and extorting high wages is no patriot, but only a poltroon, and loyal men will place him where he belongs.

Port Hope's only resource is to join with its neighbors in a demand for conscription.

CANADIAN FARMS BELOW AVERAGE IN PRODUCTION OF CEREALS

One reason for the scarcity of food in Canada and the resultant high prices is that, although the soil in this country is comparatively new, the production is below what it is in Europe, where more intensive tillage is employed. The following table will show the average number of bushels of wheat, oats, barley and potatoes in Canada, Great Britain and Germany. The rate of production in the United States is about the same as that in Canada.

	In bushels
	Wheat	Oats	Barley	Potatoes
Canada	14.1	29.6	25.3	94.2
Germany	30.1	51.9	36.3	194.4
Great Britain	31.7	44.3	34.7	202.8

What the United States produces by present methods:

One-fifth of the world's wheat; four-ninths of the world's corn; one-quarter of the world's oats; one-eighth of the world's cattle; one-third of the world's hogs; one-twelfth of the world's sheep. The population of the United States is only one-seventeenth of that of the world.

Wheat and rye consumed per capita annually:

Canada	295 pounds
England	356 pounds
Spain	49 pounds
Russia	50 pounds
Austria-Hungary	64 pounds
France	80 pounds

Meat consumed per capita annually:

Germany	525 pounds
France	550 pounds
Germany	113 pounds
England	119 pounds
America	172 pounds

It will be noticed that the bigger the daily loaf the smaller the portion of meat. This indicates that the farmers of Canada should raise more cattle and draw less of the fertility from the soil by the cultivation of cereals. The average Canadian eats seventeen pounds of butter yearly, and viewed in the light of consumption elsewhere he uses enough to put it on both sides of his bread.

HENRY FORD'S ASSETS FIXED BY COURT AT FOUR HUNDRED MILLIONS

Attorneys for John F. Dodge and Horace E. Dodge, making final arguments at Detroit in the Circuit Court in the injunction suit brought against Henry Ford, alleged that the Ford Motor Company's capitalisation is much greater than the maximum allowed by Michigan laws.

It was argued that although the company's articles of incorporation show a capitalization of $2,000,000, the assets of the concern are now worth $400,000,000. It was asserted by the Dodge brothers' attorneys that Mr. Ford's plans for greatly increasing the output of his plants might sharply conflict with State incorporation laws. The state law now provides that no concern can incorporate for more than $25,000,000 in Michigan.

Letters written by the Dodges to Ford protesting against the expenditure of large sums of money were discussed. It was charged by the Dodge attorney that Ford spent $30,000,000 after these protests had been mailed to him.

Earlier in the day attorneys for Ford argued against the issuing of a permanent injunction restraining Ford from using the company's profits for development purposes. It was claimed that Ford's methods have been responsible for the growth of the company and the assertion was made that for a long time these methods were approved by the Dodges.

The Dodge Brothers, who are automobile manufacturers, allege that Ford's plans to develop his company's business are "reckless," and ask that the bulk of the profits be paid out in dividends. They own 10 per cent. of the Ford stock and claim that Ford, who holds a controlling interest in the company, has run the business to suit himself. They charge that he has spent millions of dollars of the company's money without the stockholders' formal approval.

FAMOUS IN COMMERCE AND CHURCH

At a time when maritime matters occupy a large part of the public's attention special interest attaches to the death of Sir Charles Cayzer, head of the Clan line of ocean steamers comprising a fleet of some eighty vessels, says the St. John Telegraph. Sir Charles was the father-in-law of Sir John Jellicoe and now, as a result of the late shipping master's death, Lady Jellicoe will inherit a large fortune. Sir Charles was a typical English tar. As a lad he went to sea himself and learned the practical end of the business, then settled in Liverpool and founded the firm of Cayzer, Irving & Company. Later the head office of the company was moved to Glasgow. It is interesting to note that one of the Clan ships, the Clan McTavish, put up a magnificent fight against the German raiding cruiser Moewe. Probably the captain of this boat felt that it would be cowardly to do anything else than fight when the wife of the head of the British navy was the principle owner of the clan line.

Cardinal Desire Mercier, Belgium's famous "war cardinal," whom the great conflict has made a figure of international prominence, was 60 years old a few days ago. The famous prelate is primate of Belgium and archbishop of Malines, where he remains a virtual prisoner in his episcopal palace under the alert surveillance of the German authorities, who fear his fiery patriotic zeal and vast influence over the conquered Belgians. Cardinal Mercier was born near the battlefield of Waterloo in 1851. He was ordained to the priesthood in 1875, and from that time until 1906, when he was elected archbishop of Malines, he was professor of philosophy at the University of Louvain, the noted Belgian institution burned by the Germans at the outset of the war.

In 1907 he was created a cardinal. By remarkable addresses to the people, he has done wonders in keeping up the courage and hope of the Belgians since the German occupation, and become with them an inspiring figure second only to that of their heroic King Albert.

COUNCILLOR H. B. RYE BLAMES HIGH WATER IN RIVER FOR TROUBLE.

City Board of Works and the Monaghan Council to Hold Meeting.

The Board of Works and North Monaghan Council will meet at the De Laval offices on Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock to ascertain if a remedy for the overflowing of the Park Street drain cannot be found.

Councillor Rye did not think it was the fault of the drain, but the high water in the river prevented a flow to the river. City Engineer Parsons did not agree with Mr. Rye in this regard. If the water in the river were to raise 8ft. 6 in. it would not back up to the De Laval.

EDITOR'S MAIL

Editor Review: Life seems to be just one whirlwind campaign after another for some purpose that calls for contributions from the citizens. Unless care is taken the whirlwind is liable to develop into a cyclone and sweep everything before it.

A person these days is almost afraid to hear the door bell ring or to receive a caller fearing that another demand will be made upon his charity. It is hardly possible to walk a block on the street without encountering some canvasser intent on securing financial assistance for some project. Why, at this, of all times, should such things be?

The impression seems general that the workingmen and the merchants are prosperous now as never before. This is simply a delusion. Wages may be high but they are not in proportion to the cost of living and high prices as a general thing mean anything but good times for the dealers.

Let the concerts, the church raffles, and all other schemes with benevolent objects wait until after the war. No religious organization can object if the average citizen insists upon bestowing his first care upon his wife and children. He has it on the highest authority that any man who fails to do this has denied the faith and is worse than a professed infidel.

I decline to eat them boiled.

Any weakening I spurn.
From an omelet I turn.

Till the prices downward slide
I shall scorn to eat them fried.

Till they grow more circumspect
Any scramble I reject.

Though I take my stand alone
I shall not receive them thrown.

But it might be—well—ahem!
I perhaps may weasel them.

WOMEN DESERVE THE FRANCHISE

SIR GEO. FOSTER DECLARES FOR EQUAL SUFFRAGE.

OTTAWA, Dec. 1.— Sir George Foster has declared himself for woman suffrage, and predicts that women throughout the British Empire will have the same voting rights as men within a few years. In a letter to Mr. J. R. Dickson, an official of the Ottawa Equal Suffrage Society Sir George writes that the part women have played in the war and the sacrifices they have made have strengthened his opinion in favor of [illegible]

"There is little doubt," he says, "that a few years will see the inequality in voting between the sexes in most, if not all, British countries done away with, and a new impetus given, especially in question of social and moral reform, to the great body of the democracy of the country."

No man ought to be too busy to be courteous.

FAREWELLS TO REV. G. A. BROWN

GOLD WATCH FOR PASTOR AND IVORY SET FOR MRS. BROWN.

(Campbellford Herald.)

The congregational "At Home" at St. Andrew's Church on Thursday evening, given in honor of Rev. G. A. and Mrs. Brown was well attended, despite the inclement weather.

A programme of music and addresses was given, the chair being occupied by Dr. H. B. Longmore. The proceedings were opened with singing and prayer. Solos were sung by Miss Mary Dickson, Miss [illegible] Hay, Miss Hazel Atkinson, and Mr. McKinley, and a quartette by the Misses Tucker, Miss Meiklejohn and Miss MacDonald, all of which were well rendered and much enjoyed.

Addresses were given by Captain Johnston and Revs. Cross, Hinton, Sanderson and Carpenter, each expressing the deep admiration and high esteem in which Mr. and Mrs. Brown are held by the townspeople generally. They also expressed their appreciation of the good feeling that existed between Mr. Brown and themselves as pastors. They brought greetings from the sister churches, who sincerely hope that Mr. Brown's successor may be blessed of God in his leadership and that the work of the Master may prosper in his hands. Capt. Stewart of the 235th Battalion also spoke of the worth of Mr. Brown as a citizen and his power for good among the people.

During the progress of the programme Dr. Longmore in a short address stated that the congregation wished to express in some other way than words their love and admiration for Rev. and Mrs. Brown and Miss Marjory Ackerman, on behalf of the members and adherents of the church, presented Mr. Brown with a beautiful 18-k gold watch, and Miss Emma Massey presented Mrs. Brown with a magnificent set of ivory.

Mr. Brown made a fitting and feeling reply, and on behalf of himself and Mrs. Brown, expressed his appreciation of the gifts as tokens of remembrance, and for the many kindnesses rendered by his own people and those of other denominations and assured them that they would carry with them from Campbellford many tender and pleasant memories. His earnest wish was that the cause of God may prosper in their midst during the coming years.

While refreshments were being served, which had been provided by the ladies, Mr. Millar Chase and Miss Emma Meiklejohn played a piano duet.

Numerous and dainty were the articles on the fancy work table. Miss M. Webster and Miss Grace Hampton were salesladies. Miss F. McNab managed the candy table. Mrs. O. A. Sawyer, president of the auxiliary, acted as tea hostess, while Miss A. Watson, Miss Etta Ogilvie, Miss L. Smith and Miss V. Mounce served tea.

In the morning he took for his subject "A True Prospective," and for the evening "The Way to Win." Both addresses were very interesting and helpful.

GRAND AUDIENCE APPLAUD PRESENTATION OF GEISHA

Another Success for Peterboro Operatic and Dramatic Co. Under the Direction of Mr. R. J. Devey.

A very pleasing production of Sydney Jones' comic opera, "The Geisha," was provided by the Peterborough Operatic and Dramatic Society last night in the Grand Opera House under the direction of Mr. Richard J. Devey, whose versatility in musical productions in this city during the last ten years has proved to be remarkable. Well staged, well taught, the production won the plaudits of the large audience at the end of the opening chorus. The first act was a triumph, the second act was marred by stage waits which would, by their absence, sadly disappoint those of the audience who go prepared to enjoy unrehearsed effects on amateur first nights. The whole-hearted applause that greeted the finale demonstrated that the efforts of our own citizens to produce a work of such calibre were thoroughly appreciated. Two of the musical numbers in Act 1 were alone sufficient to stamp the production as one of no ordinary merit. These were the song, "A Geisha's Life" and the farewell scene in the finale. Miss Clara Horne in the first of these two numbers electrified the audience, and in the second, when associated with Mr. Harold Lee, the audience rose to an enthusiasm, greatly enhanced by the magnificent singing of a "sotto voce" accompaniment to both singers (seldom heard out of grand opera), provided by the chorus. These numbers alone amply repaid last night's visit to the Grand. Miss Clara Horne is possessed of a lovely soprano voice, and all of her numbers were admirably sung. Signor Carboni, of the Hambourg Conservatory of Music in Toronto, may well be proud of such a promising grand opera pupil, to whom the thanks of Peterborough singers are extended for kindly coming to our city to help along a play given in aid of our Progressive Club's patriotic work. Mr. Harold Lee is always welcomed on the stage or in the choir, and he is to be heartily congratulated on his work last night. The Geisha does not suffer, like so many later musical plays, from the defect of being written for one star. We had a whole constellation of them last night, and herein lies the tremendous value of these operatic productions by local talent. There can be no comparison between singers who sing directly from the copy and singers who, after studying from the score, apply suitable action in addition to memorizing the music. Many weeks have been spent in earnest study to produce last night's varied effects which so captivated the audience, that, had all their demands been complied with, the opera would have lasted all night. The whole of the ladies in the cast were happily selected; Miss Lila Waterman and Miss Annie Bickersteth were as dainty as could be, both well deserving of the "little brackets" prescribed by Mr. Alf Marshall as Lieut. Grimston. Miss Leila-Smith, who registered a first appearance in comic opera as Lady Constance Wynne, was a distinct success and must be congratulated, in company with the ladies of the English yachting party she so ably chaperoned. The four Geisha girls, Misses Sheppard, Rathbone, Melton and Pollard, in their strikingly distinctive dresses, scored in both their numbers, the rendition of "In Splendour Auspicious" coming in a good second to the finale in Act 1, both in balance of tone and vocalization. Miss Agnes Horsfield proved a faithful attendant to both Mimosa and Molly, wearing a pretty costume decorated some time ago by Mr. Geo. Chandler for a former production. Mr. Fred. Hartshorn, only partly recovered from an accident of two weeks ago, was again delightful both in singing and acting, and although not accepted for service at the war with the rest of his family, saved the play from being postponed, although far from well enough for exertion of any kind. Mr. Vernon Dredge as Wun Hi, the sly Chinese proprietor of the tea house, was divertingly funny from start to finish, the duet and dance with "Julliette" being deservedly encored. Mr. W. H. Barry, the pompous "Marquis Imari," gave a fine exposition of the part, and in his gorgeous gold and silk, did his best, not only to lord it over his own people, but to emerge one better than the "foreign devils" of both sexes. Mr. C. A. G. Spence at "Takamini," the henchman of the marquis, appeared in a new role, actually auctioneering two girls for no less a sum that $10,100, and appeared to be quite pleased with the transaction. Mr. James Liddell (Dick Cunningham), the "pretty gentleman with the wicked eye," according to the fortune teller, was a great success, especially in the quaint duet with "Blossom," who, according to his version, hadn't grown much since she was a bud. Rousing cheers were given to the song "Jack's the Boy," the officers' number, who also included Mr. Cyril Devey (Arthur Cuddy) and Master Dick [illegible] ([illegible]), and to Sergeant Victor, in charge of the guards, all returned soldiers, still doing their bit. All kinds of thanks are due to Mrs. Devey and Mr. R. G. Sturgeon, who kindly carried out the arduous duties of stage management, and to "Teddy" and "Curly" of the Opera House staff, who placed two such pretty scenes. No small praise is due to the effective and skilful work of the orchestra, Mrs. Foster, Mr. Seymour (violin), Mr. Minnicola (cornet), Mr. W. Cunningham (bass), Mr. R. Beach (drums), and Mr. R. J. Devey (pianist and conductor).

Mr. Richard J. Devey conducted with the consummate skill long associated with all his productions, and added another laurel to a lengthy collection.

The chorus work was good, and such productions are only possible by faithful work, such as must have been done by the members of "The Geisha" chorus of this series.

All who can possibly do so should attend tonight's performance, and not only enjoy a thoroughly good evening but help along the funds of the Peterborough Progressive Club, to which the proceeds of "The Geisha" are to be dedicated.

BRIGHT YOUNG LIFE IS CLOSED BY DEATH

A bright young life was closed at Nicholls Hospital last night, when James Ball, aged 17 years 6 months, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Ball, 102 Stewart Street, passed away after an illness of three weeks in the hospital. He was an employe of the Bell Telephone Co. and was highly esteemed by his employers and the several staffs of the company. The parents will have the sympathy of many friends in their hour of bereavement.

The funeral will be held on Monday afternoon at 3.45 from the family residence. Interment at Little Lake Cemetery.

Wear Those Comfortable Old Shoes This Winter

And Show Your Patriotism and Thrift—Inexpensive Rubbers or Overshoes Will Protect Your Feet

The spectacular rise in leather prices has a significance far beyond its painful effect on our personal expenses—it is becoming a serious matter for the Government and our soldiers at the Front.

The war is using up leather much faster than it is being produced. The reserve, particularly of high-grade leather, is steadily diminishing. If the soldiers are to have plenty for shoes and equipment, and if the Government is to be able to procure it at prices within reason, civilians must economize on it to the limit.

This is the reason well-worn shoes are no longer a discredit, but an honor—an evidence that the wearer puts patriotism before pride, thrift before vanity.

Fortunately the prevailing low prices of rubbers and overshoes make this practicable. In most cases they cost little more than before the war, and a very small expenditure for either will protect the old shoes perfectly through the winter, keep the feet dry and comfortable, and guard the wearer's health. Many are following the sensible course of getting a pair of rubbers or overshoes to exactly fit each pair of shoes, for rubbers that conform closely to the shoes they cover wear much longer as well as look neater.

This is one of the rare cases where virtue brings its own reward, for in addition to the very considerable money saving, what is there that affords such solid comfort as a well-worn pair of shoes?

Saving Shoe-Leather Is a Public Service as Well as a Private Economy

At the annual meeting of the Guelph Patriotic Society reports showed that Guelph had continued to pay into the fund more than had been drawn out for the relief of Guelph families.

CAPT. THOMSON SENDS LETTER

MOST OF NORWOOD BOYS ARE IN FRANCE.

Reeve Squire of Norwood, who is attending the County Council here, has received the following letter from Capt. Walter Thomson of the Canadian Command Depot, Shoreham-by-Sea, England, formerly of the 93rd Battalion:—

On behalf of the boys of the Norwood platoon and myself, I wish through you to thank the people of the village of Norwood for their kindness to us in giving us the box of good things that we have already received.

I wish to ask the pardon of the village people for seeming neglect in not acknowledging the receipt of the box before this. My only explanation is that since the box arrived I have been stationed in three different camps. Owing to the fact that some of the boys were in France and others in England, I took it upon myself to open the large boxes and re-wrap some parcels and send some of them to France and the others to West Sandling, where the remainder of the boys were stationed. I sent every box separate by mail but I am sorry to state that two or three were over the limit weight of seven pounds and therefore could not be sent by post; these I sent through special arrangements with Miss Plummer of the Home Comforts Commission, Shorncliffe.

The boys are mostly in France at present. James O'Brien, previously supposed to be killed owing to a mistake being made between 409149 J. M. O'Brien and 038128 J. H. O'Brien is now returning to England for an operation on the knee cap and is apparently in good health.

I might state that I am sincerely sorry that I have been unable to accompany the boys to the front, although even while in Norwood I knew I could not accompany them to the front my great ambition was to beat them to it, but as we, fortunately or unfortunately, as the case may be, are bound to obey orders. I am at present working at the Canadian Depot at Shoreham-by-Sea, with the expectation of going over soon.

Thanking the people of Norwood again for their kindness and confidence in me, I remain—Sincerely their friend.

Walter C. Thomson, Capt.

D. W. DUMBLE WOULD DEED CITY THE LAND

TO MAKE HAZLETT STREET THE REGULATION WIDTH.

DEAL WITH QUAKER OATS.

The closing of Mill Street was again before the Committee of the Whole Council last night. City Engineer Parsons had prepared a rough draft of the land the city would get in exchange for Mill Street. It also showed the proposed bridge but no estimate as to the cost of the struiture was given owing to the uncertainty of the steel market.

Several of the aldermen were opposed to giving the Quaker Oats Co. a permanent right to Mill Street unless they got an unconditional permanent right of way in exchange.

City Engineer Parsons will interview Mr. Denham and show him the plan, and the committee's wishes regarding an equal unconditional exchange of rights will be explained.

If the plans of the city are carried out Mr. D. W. Dumble offers to deed to the city enough land off his property to make Hazlett Street 66 ft. wide instead of 46 ft. as it is at present and the committee accepted the conditional offer. The Quaker Oats Co. will be asked to make the same width of street to the bridge approach.

The Trades and Labor Council had objected to the closing of Mill St. but as no reasons were given the letter was marked "received."

BUILDING PERMITS

Building permits were issued in Peterborough last month to the value of [illegible], as compared with [illegible] last month and $5,005 in November, 1915.

FINANCE COMMITTEE

The city Finance Committee will meet tonight at eight o'clock.

FATAL BURNS

SUSTAINED BY A FORMER RESIDENT OF DUMMER.

The Cadillac Evening News, of Cadillac, Mich., contains an account of the death of a pioneer citizen of that city, Mr. Ed. Campbell, who was a former Dummer resident. Mr. Campbell died on Nov. 17th as the result of burns he received by falling into a pan of acetate at the Cummer-Diggins Chemical Co.'s plant. The News says:—"With his entire left side and the right leg from his knee down burned, Mr Campbell suffered frightfully and death came as a welcome relief from extreme pain. Mr. Campbell was a carpenter by trade and has held a number of important positions during the 25 years that he has made Cadillac his home. He started work at the chemical plant about two months ago. On Tuesday morning he was sent to the acetate floor to putty a window. While mounting the ladder to reach the window he slipped and fell into the acetate pan, which contained less than ten inches of acetate. There was but one in the room at the time was but one in the rom at the of the deadly liquid without aid. With considerably more than two-thirds of the skin from his body burned little hope for his life was given by his physicians. Mr. Campbell was at one time foreman at the handle factory and he was employed by the Cummer-Diggins firm for over 12 years in various capacities.

The deceased was 62 years of age. A widow, one son and one daughter survive him.

The deceased's wife is a sister of Mrs. Hugh Drain of Norwood.

SEND CHRISTMAS BOXES

MONAGHAN RATEPAYERS TO EXPRESS THEMSELVES

New Scheme for Disposal Plant and Fair Grounds Makes Good Impression.

Peterborough will have a new exhibition ground and incidentally the city will have removed all objections to the location of the disposal plant in North Monaghan if the plans submitted to the joint committee of North Monaghan and Peterborough meet with the approval of the ratepayers of the township.

Reeve McIntosh, Councillors Bell and Rye of North Monaghan and Deputy-Reeve F. Eason of Otonabee met with the committee of the whole of the City Council last night and looked over the plans that had been prepared by City Engineer Parsons.

The drawing, as Reeve McIntosh admitted, looked well on paper. It provided for a half mile track one side of which would be on Park St. and the grounds run up to King George Street and east as far as the Holmes property. In order to accomplish this it would be necessary first to get control of the property and for the township of North Monaghan to consent to the closing of McKellar and Chester Streets, and in this was the "sticker."

Ald. Duncan, on behalf of the special committee appointed to get a price on the property required, stated that he found none of the owners hard to get along with. They all were willing to fix a price for their property and would not hold up the city when it came to determining values. Prices had been secured on the Newhall, Kidd, Hamilton Syndicate and Saunders property, which he felt sure would be satisfactory.

Mayor Duffus then asked Reeve McIntosh if he thought the city and township could get together on the scheme as outlined.

Reeve McIntosh thought they could but knew that there would be some objection to closing of streets, but he agreed with the Mayor in that no matter what is done there will be objections found.

G. A. Gillespie, M.L.A., president of the Peterborough Exhibition Co., thought the plan was a good solution of the problem. The site was an ideal one for exhibition purposes. He did not know what the other directors would think, but that was his own opinion. He hoped that an agreement would be reached as, like Reeve McIntosh, he thought the scheme looked good on paper.

Reeve McIntosh asked if the completion of the work was not going to involve a considerable outlay, as compared with $30,000 for the present exhibition grounds.

Mayor Duffus was very anxious on behalf of the city and also for the residents to the south to see Aylmer and George Streets cut through the present exhibition grounds.

Councillor Rye thought that this would necessitate changing the plans of some of the sub-divisions to the south of the presents grounds if the street line was to be followed.

In reply to Ald. Edgar Reeve McIntosh stated that he could not or would not give any statement as to the closing of the streets until the people he represented were consulted.

Ald. Stratton was strongly of the opinion that it would be a shame to give up the present grounds. It was the best suited for exhibition purposes and he would go ahead and build the disposal plant where the Provincial Board of Health had approved of.

Every angle of argument was brought out during the discussion. Ald. Langford thought that a solution would be to have Reeve McIntosh consent to the city annexing all that part of the township lying east of Park Street to the river, to which Mr. Rye made strenuous objection, as they did not want to pay city taxes and get nothing for it.

Reeve McIntosh had heard a report that they were thinking of going over the river.

Ald. Stratton: "What does Mr. Armstrong say about that?" and the Reeve of Otonabee replied that Otonabee had once approved of plans for a site there and Ald. Stratton remarked, "and we changed our plans." The chairman of the City Finance Committee suggested that Reeve McIntosh and Coun. Rye take a trip to Milwaukee and inspect the plant there but as the weather was not warm enough to suit Mr. Rye the subject was dropped. Mr. Rye claimed that there would be no odor in cold weather.

Ald. Stratton got in bad with Mr. Rye again when he expresed regret that the township would not co-operate with the city. The township councillor thought it war the city that was not co-operating.

Ald. Edgar wondered if the County Council would do anything to assist a fair ground.

Ald. Duncan had been assured if a proper ground were secured and good buildings erected Peterborough could have a week's fair every year.

It was the decision of the joint committee to submit the plan to the township council at its next meeting and a committee of ratepayers will be present to see what they think of the new idea.

GIVEN POWER TO BUY TRUCK FOR FIRE DEPT.

CHAIRMAN EVANS AND CHIEF TO SPEND NOT MORE THAN $2000.

Peterborough's up-to-date fire department will have a motor hose truck and it will not be necessary for the city to issue debentures for it. By careful management the Fire, Water and Light Committee find that after allowing for all contingencies they will have at the end of December a credit balance of $2,500 and at a meeting last night it was decided to recommend to the City Council that the chairman and the Chief be instructed to purchase a truck similar to the one used by the Peterborough Utilities Commission, at a cost not to exceed $2,000.

Six Cylinders

Ald. Edgar, in moving the resolution, asked that the specifications call for a six-cylinder car, and this was the idea of Ald. Duncan, who seconded the motion.

Chief Howard will draw up the specifications and submit them to the committee before asking for tenders.

It is proposed that the new truck have a capacity of 1,500 feet of hose, to carry six men, besides two chemical engines and other necessary appliances.

LABOR PROBLEM IN THIS CITY

OFFICIAL PAPER DISCUSSES LOCAL SITUATION.

The Labor Gazette, in its issue for November, sums up industrial conditions in Peterborough as follows:

Peterborough reported the labor market active in most lines, although building remained quiet; unskilled labor was specially in demand. The Canadian General Electric Company was very busy and moulders and machine hands were active; some metal factories were working overtime. Oatmeal and cereal mills were active, also meat packing houses. Wollen mills were working overtime and the tent and awning factory and the carpet factory were active. Sash and door factories were quiet in regular departments, but busy making boxes. Harness and leather manufacturers were active. Lumbering was quiet; the Peterborough Lumber Co.'s mill shut down for want of logs and it was expected that owing to the high labor cost this firm would not put in any camps this winter. There was very little building work on dwelling houses, but some additions and alterations were being made to commercial buildings. The city was constructing an outfall sewer as well as some small sewers, but was not doing as much civic work as in other years.

The glory of the nineteenth century lies largely in its success in abolishing humany slavery.

Can it be that the twentieth century will undo, even partially, the good work of its predecessor?

Such a query two years ago would have seemed absurd.

To Subscribers

We are adding from twenty to thirty new subscribers to our lists every day, the best of all assurances that the public regard The Review as the local paper that is worth reading. All that we ask for is a fair comparison with our contemporaries in the field.

With the sudden increase in the business of extending our circulation confusion is likely to arise and those just ordering the paper, as well as old subscribers, may not receive their papers promptly or regularly. Any of our readers who have cause for complaint on either score will confer a favor by telephoning the facts to the circulation department, calling phone 189.

MISS COLSON IS NOW IN CHARGE

MANAGEMENT COMMITTEE BUY FURNITURE FOR THE SHELTER.

The Children's Shelter is under the supervision of Miss Colson, who assumed charge of the institution this morning. Yesterday Mr. and Mrs. Henry moved out and as soon as their effects were gone the managing committee had the new beds, furniture, etc., ready to move in.

Everything in the shelter is new from top to bottom, the committee spending several hundreds of dollars for necessary supplies and the ladies of the executive committee are spending the day with the new superintendent getting everything in shipshape.

Two women have been engaged to give the shelter a thorough housecleaning.

At present there are eight children housed there under the protective wing of the society.

ANNOTATED GUIDE C. P. R. PUBLICATION OF GREAT INTEREST

No publication issued by the Canadian Pacific Railway is better known all over the world than the "Annotated Guide," describing every station, along the line. Issued originally at the suggestion of Sir William Van Horne, it has passed through many editions and is now a fair-sized book owing to the great increase in the extent of the railway system. It is interesting to look over the early issues to see how Canada has progressed. In 1888, for instance, Winnipeg had a population of only 25,000, Fort William 1,400, Regina 800, Calgary 2,400, Lake Louise had not been discovered, and Vancouver was proud of its 5,200. Indian Head was famous for the Bell Farm, of which the "Annotated Guide" remarks: "The furrows on this farm are usually ploughed four miles long, and to plough one furrow outward and another returning is a half day's work for a man and team. The work is done with an almost military organization, plowing by brigades and reaping by divisions." Toronto is described as "distinctly Western in its activity and energy."

T. Mackenzie, a C.P.R. sleeping car conductor, was sent to jail for three months at Montreal for retaining money he collected for a berth.

McCallum Grant, of Halifax, may become Lieut.-Goernor of Nova Scotia.

Hill Overlooking City of Athens Seized by Marines.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

ATHENS, Dec. 2. — The King of Greece has agreed to give up the artillery demanded by Admiral Du Fournet. Allied troops are withdrawing from Piraeus.

On the intervention of Spanish and Dutch ministers, the entire cabinet and Entente diplomats met at the French legation last evening to discuss the possibility of an agreement. An armistice was finally arranged and the firing ceased. Many civilians are known to have been killed.

At an early hour on Friday Admiral Du Fournet landed 400 marines and marched towards Athens, seizing Philopappos Hill overlooking the city. Greek guards on all roads leading to the capital refused to permit a second marine detachment to advance further. All trams between Athens and Piraeus were stopped and no carriages permitted to enter the city. There was intense excitement in Athens, where bullets were flying in the streets which were thronged with women.

An Entente diplomat states that Admiral Du Fournet ordered the withdrawal of his troops after King Constantine agreed to surrender six batteries of mounted artillery to the Allies.

PETERBORO'S RESOURCES NOT FULLY DEVELOPED

Improvements Possible in Opening of New Streets, Tapping Lake Chemong---Artesian Wells for Water Supply---A Railway to Lakefield.

The people who have the good fortune to be alive in Peterborough three decades hence, may be engaged in the strenuous task of paying off a huge war debt, but the chances are that they will be living under better social and civic conditions than those that are enjoyed by the present generation. They will certainly do so if half the improvements now contemplated by public-spirited citizens are ever implemented.

When anyone suggests a change in the interests of progress there is always some suspicious individual to raise the cry of "wolf." It is possible, however, for a man or a firm to make a suggestion for the general good and not with any ulterior or selfish object in view. Anyway, what benefits an individual cannot help but work to the advantage of a large percentage of the community.

Where Streets Are Needed

When the city of Peterborough was laid out mathematical precision appears to have been the aim, rather than convenience or mere outward show. The old style of squares was rigidly adhere to. When a street ran into a steep hill it was continued up the incline regardless of the difficulties of climbing it, instead of being carried around the base of the elevation. In the cities in America designed according to modern ideas, the streets are not necessarily straight and the old system of square is not observed.

Between George and Aylmer Streets there is room for at least two more thoroughfares, to extend, anyway, from Central Park to the C.P.R. tracks. It was the creek that induced the town planners to leave this wide stretch of unopened territory. This creek should be regarded as a blessing rather than a drawback. Streets could be built across it and the crossings made beauty spots. Even the advantage offered by the creek in the way of drainage has not been utilized by the men who made the designs in the early days. If new streets were opened it would not be necessary to make them absolutely straight. They could be jagged so as to avoid valuable buildings that it would otherwise be necessary to remove. There has for some time been a proposition before the city to open a new street from Hunter to Charlotte, beginning immediately west of the Oriental Hotel. Some of the largest property owners are willing to donate the right of way for the benefits such an improvement would mean to them. Others cannot see it in that way and so the matter hangs fire.

If new streets were opened there is room in the territory now unimprov-

FILL UP THE RANKS

Private David Darrah struck the right note in a letter to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Isadore Darrah, here, when he wrote:

"I suppose the men and boys that are fit for service are all picked up. If not, I think they would feel it their duty to come along and fill up the ranks, as they certainly are needed. Everything is going our way, but the losses are very heavy, and I think if it don't end pretty soon they'll all be needed. I don't think they realise what a sacrifice we are making for them, and I don't think they are any better than the rest of us to fight for our King and country. I read a piece in a paper where they are waiting for England to put their men there first. England is doing her duty turning out men, and women taking their places, so if there are any left who are fit for service tell them to come along as they will all be needed."

OMEMEE LOSES SOLDIER SON

VILLAGE IN GLOOM OVER DEATH OF SERGT. FRED. MILLS.

OMEMEE, Dec. 2.—Our little village was cast into deepest gloom on Thursday morning when a message from Ottawa stating that Sergt. Fred Mills had died of wounds on the 20th was received. Fred was one of Omemee's brightest and best young men. He was employed by the Bank of Toronto at the time of enlisting. He, with Walter Scott of Lindsay, who was a clerk in Mr. C. Ivory's store for over a year, left Omemee together, signing up with the 77th Batt. Before going overseas, both young men had qualified as sergeants. They were only in England about two weeks when they were drafted to the 38th Batt. Friends followed their movements with keen interest, their letters being always bright and cheery. Both young men fell in the same battle.

The villagers mourn as one family with Mr. and Mrs. Gills and Miss Greta, and also extend sincere sympathy to the parents of Mr. Scott.

Pte. Cecil Mills, the only other son of Mrs. Mills, is in training with the 109th Battalion at Witley Camp, England.

PETERBOROUGH, SATURDAY, DECEMBER 2, 1916

THE MEETING AT THE ARMORIES.

LIEUT.-COL. ACKERMAN of the 247th Battalion realizes the importance of getting eligible young men to attend the recruiting meeting at the Armories tomorrow night. He assures them that no personal appeals will be made to them and that there will be no call issued for men to go up to the front and enlist.

No matter how many hundreds turn out to the recruiting meetings, such gatherings will fail to achieve the object in view if the audience that packs the spacious building to the doors is composed entirely of women and men who have passed the military age. The slacker is unmoved by the finest oratory in the world so long as he cannot hear it. He, as a rule, takes part in a Sunday night dress parade on George street, consuming cigarettes and indulging in other forms of amusement while the performance staged for his special benefit is being held at military headquarters. An orator at these gatherings is in much the same position as a minister who has none but the elect for an audience, while the byways are teeming with sinners who stand most in need of the message of grace.

The Review has said on former occasions, and repeats it now, that the young women of the city can do an important work in this regard. They can insist that the young men escort them to the Armories. If they fail to lead the slackers to the fold, they can at least refuse to be seen on the streets in company with some husky young slacker whose appearance would be improved in the eyes of all his friends if by any means he could be induced to change his civilian garb for the uniform of his King.

The man who refuses to defend his country, who will not make sacrifices to champion the cause of women, children or the aged, may generally be regarded as a shady proposition for a matrimonial venture.

THE MISSING.

NO MORE heartrending tidings can come to those who have a son, a brother or a husband at the front than the report that he is missing. There is the agony of suspense in such intelligence, the long weeks of waiting in the hope that word will come that he is in a hospital or is a prisoner in the hands of the enemy. Sometimes the thought that he is dead, that his mangled remains have been found among the slain on the battlefield, is officially confirmed. To have our worst fears turned into certainty is often easier to bear than the agony that comes with hope long deferred.

Private George Read, who went to the front with the Princess Pats and who is a son of Mr. and Mrs. William C. Read, King street, was reported missing three months ago. His friends still cling to the slim hope that he may yet be alive, in German camp or hospital. Whatever the fate of the young man, he met it bravely. His sacrifice is another of the many that have brought new lustre to this city, another example of the heroism that never quails, even when death is on every hand.

Private Read volunteered to carry despatches from one part of the Somme fighting line to an officer stationed at another point, a perilous task which meant almost certain death. He reached the officer and delivered the despatches. Then the enemy began a terrific bombardment of the British position. The officer refused to permit the young man to return while the cannonade lasted, and Private Read spent the night there.

Next morning during a lull in the artillery fire he started for his own platoon. He had not gone far before the cannonading was resumed, and he was never heard of again.

There is no hope that he is either a prisoner or in a hospital. If he were, some word would have reached his friends to that effect. The probability is that he was blown to atoms or buried in one of the shell pits in which so many find a tomb.

Whatever may have been the manner of his end, his was the death of a hero.

THE CARD CENSUS.

THE CARD CENSUS which the National Service Commission proposes to take of the Dominion will furnish the Government with a vast amount of useful information, provided the public generally take the trouble to fill out and mail the cards, and that the answers to all the questions are truthfully made. The point is emphasized, probably with the object of quieting the suspicions of the slacker, that the census is being taken for industrial and not for military purposes.

The Government appears to be intent on avoiding even the appearance of compulsion in this matter. In taking the regular census every decade the authorities are not so considerate. The people are compelled to make full and veracious statements or take the consequences. A census, the real object of which is to find soldiers for service, is certainly of more moment than one designed for the compilation of commercial and industrial statistics.

Industrial conditions will take care of themselves even without a census. Men will naturally go to the places where their services are most required and where wages are higher. Leave the slacker to his own devices in filling out the census cards and he will probably feel no compunction in the matter of prevaricating when it comes to stating his age and in furnishing other particulars with regard to himself.

Moral suasion has so far failed with the slacker. His honor has been appealed to, all to no purpose. Endless appeals have not sufficed to arouse him to a realization of his duty. What then but conscription can be employed as a last resort?

Important as the industrial interests of the country may be, the winning of the struggle in which the Empire is engaged should receive first consideration.

COALITION BY COERCION.

THE LIBERAL PARTY one year ago, before consenting to an extension of the parliamentary term, tested the sentiments f the Administration with regard to the forming of a coalition government. Receiving little encouragement, they finally consented to spare the country the expense and exctement of a general election at a tmie when all national resources were being strained to the limit to win the war.

The Liberals now offer the Government their choice of two alternatives. They must take a number of the foremost men of the party into the Cabinet or face an election. The Opposition puts itself in the position of a landlord who threatens his tenant with the expense and annoyance of defending an ejectment suit unless he agrees to make the owner a member of his household, boarding and lodging him free of charge.

In eight of the nine provinces of the Dominion the people would never stand for Sir Wilfrid Laurier as a member of a coalition government. His record since the war began, the influence he has exerted over his compatriots and which in a large measure accounts for their indifference in respect of their duty as British subjects in this crisis, his recent refusal to co-operate in the work of recruiting, have put the Liberal leader out of the reckoning. There is only one prominent man in the ranks of the Opposition who has shown himself broad enough in his views for a place in the councils of the nation, and that man is Michael Clark of Red Deer.

INSURING THE SOLDIERS.

THE EXECUTIVE of the Canadian Patriotic Fund have issued a circular which deals with the insuring of the lives of soldiers. It says that in the department of insurance the Montreal branch last month saved for twenty-two families policies which would otherwise have lapsed and been lost to the beneficiaries. These policies represented insurance to the value of about $30,000, the annual premiums being over $800. In all, this branch is looking after insurance representing not less than $60,000. In other words, htrough carelessness or fancied inability to pay premiums, this amount of protection to soldiers' dependents would have been lost if the organization had not financially assisted in keeping the policies alive. In addition to what the organization is directly financing, the total amount of insurance saved to dependents wthin two years by the committee's advice and counsel is in excess of $200,000.

The experiences of the committee in these matters is a revelation in human nature. One woman preferred to buy a new skirt rather than renew a policy on the life of her husband who was battling in a Flanders trench. Another woman, whose husband is daily facing German bullets, would have allowed her policy to lapse rather than take the amount of the premiums out of the savings bank. Another instance worth recording is, unfortunately, typical. The woman had an idea that insurance was all right for the rich, but that in her straitened circumstances she should not be expected to make any sacrifice to maintain her husband's insurance, in this case amounting to $1000. After an hour's argument with her on behalf of herself and baby boy, she reluctantly consented to accept a loan of $50 from the Fund to cover the premium, this amount to be repaid in monthly instalments. The husband was subsequently killed in action, and the wife received the full face value of the policy. It was a grateful mother who called a few days later and tearfully thanked the committee for their advice and assistance.

Since this branch of the work was organized, practically every woman interviewed has acted on the committee's advice. In many cases the committee has had to act quickly and without consulting the woman, and here again there was little friction, matters being afterwards satisfactorily explained to the dependents.

In this connection it is gratifying to note that the insurance companies have generally dealt liberally and sympathetically with relief committees.

THE CRITICS AND THE FACTS.

(Toronto News.)

DESPERATE POLITICIANS and their newspaper try to persuade the public that the Borden Government has displayed nothing but weakness, inefficiency and a hopeless lack of leadership ever since the war began. The British Chancellor of the Exchequer thinks otherwise. Addressing a London audience the other day, he pointed out (1) that as a maker of munitions Canada now exceeds the pre-war record of any other nation except Germany; (2) that the Canadian Administration is sending more troops overseas than Great Britain despatched to South Africa in three years; and (3) that under Sir Thomas White's management of the Treasury, Canada has become a lender instead of a borrower. It should be added that largely as a result of Sir Robert Borden's pressure upon the Allied Governments, the war orders placed in this country approximate to, if they do not exceed, $1,000,000,000. Without the astonishing increase in our export trade which has thus marked the last year and a half, the Government could not have financed the country's splendid contributions to the Allied cause.

NOTES AND COMMENT.

TORONTO has an alderman who will resign his seat to go to the front. Probably preferring real war to the vocal variety.

• • • •

MONTREAL aldermen declare they will save the public money, but what good will that do unless the amount so salvaged goes to the original owners?

• • • •

PROBABLY Germany feels that it would be no more humiliating to sue for peace now than a year or two hence.

• • • •

THERE IS MANY a husky staff clerk who could render his country more valuable service in the trenches than at a desk.

• • • •

THE WISE MAN will not look up the essence of ginger especially when it is added to temperance beer to give punch to that liquid.

• • • •

AFTER ALL, the Liberal papers had no knowledge of what constituted the cargo of the Deutschland on her voyage for home except such information as was contained in an American paper that specializes in Canadian war sensations.

IN MOVIES! NIX SAYS REV. BILLY

LATEST TRAIL HITTERS ARE CHORUS GIRLS.

BOSTON, Mass., Dec. 2. — Up-to-date religious evangelism and musical comedy united forces yesterday at Billy Sunday's tabernacle, when the entire Winter Garden Company of Robinson Crusoe, Jr., attended. Five members of the troupe, including two of the feminine leads, hit the trail.

The chorus girls sang several numbers which they have been rehearsing for a week, following their acceptance of Sunday's invitation to attend the service.

Sunday said that he had refused a $1,000,000 offer from the movies, but said that he'd turn down an offer of $1,000,000 a minute from the film people, who, he claims, would commercialize Christianity.

THE WEATHER

TEMPERATURE IN NOVEMBER HIGHER THAN USUAL.

Although November on several occasions bore a wintry aspect, the average temperature of the month as a whole was somewhat higher than usual. The warmest day was the 8th, with 65 degrees. The lowest temperature was on the 26th, 6 degrees. The first snowfall was on the 4th, which, however, soon disappeared. The other fall of snow on the 15th gave a few days' sleighing. The total rainfall amounted to 2.91, of which .90 was in the form of snow. Last December winter set in on the 9th, and good sleighing was had from the 13th onward.—W. P.

"AT THE WAR."

Messrs. Hodder and Stoughton announce that the first great edition of Lord Northcliffe's book, "At the War," which they are publishing for the British Red Cross, will be ready very shortly. Owing to the scarcity of paper and the difficulties of production, they fear that readers who delay placing their orders may be disappointed, for only a limited number of copies can be avalaible before Christmas. "At the War" is a handsome volume of nearly 300 pages and will be issued at the popular price of $1.25 net.

All profits from its sale go to the British Red Cross, so that every purchaser will not only possess a volume of fascinating reading and of historic interest, but will make a substantial contribution towards the work of healing and comforting our wounded, suffering heroes.

PETERBORO'S RESOURCES

ed for a business centre larger than the city can now boast of. Three rows of business blocks instead of one would be the result.

Source of Water Supply

Chemong Lake, only six miles from Peterborough, is 180 feet above the level of this city. Water could be piped from it by tunnelling through a hill for a distance of half a mile or less and laying the pipe on the surface of the ground for the remainder of the distance. By establishing a filtration plant the purity of the city's drinking water could be assured and the expense of pumping done away with. Electricity sufficient to supply all the factories with power and the city with light could be generated.

Artesian Wells Possible

Some of the leading cities on this continent have concluded that the only source from which a supply of pure drinking water can be obtained is the artesian well. On the hills which surround this city such wells could be sunk and the drinking water not only obtained cheaply but removed from all danger of contamination by summer residences, gasoline launches and the like. Every summer during the camping season the local health officers find it necessary to issue a warning to the public to boil the water before drinking. The artesian well is the hope for the future.

The Railway to Lakefield

Ex Mayor Butler, Mayor Duffus and other leading citizens have long been champions of a radial railway system as the best means of developing this city as the greatest business centre in Eastern Ontario. An electric road to Lakefield is one of the features of the project. Why should the city lend itself to a plan to establish a business competitor to the Grand Trund branch, which already links the metropolis to the town? It would appear as better business to lease the Lakefield branch, electrify it, and operate it as part of the city railway system when the Utilities Commission take over the latter. The Grand Trunk Company some time ago offered to give a thirty-year lease of the road to Lakefield for $5,000 a year. Since the sawmill and cement factories have been closed at Lakefield the road is no longer regarded as a paying proposition by the owners.

City Could Do Shunting

The railways that enter Peterborough have long, in common with the citizens, been worried with the shunting problem. They would be willing to turn this work over to the city and pay any reasonable rate for it. Peterborough could have the work done by installing electric locomotives, not only with less noise and smoke annoyance than caused by the engines driven by steam, but could place the freight cars in front of the business places of the leading shippers.

Men who suggest such improvements are not idle dreamers. They speak from experience gained by first-hand knowledge acquired by what they have seen in other cities on the American continent.

FIRST CANADIAN TO FALL IN WAR

A most interesting ceremony took place in the parish hall of St. George's Anglican Church, Montreal, a short time ago, when the officers and scouts of the 12th Troop, St. George's Canadian Boy Scouts, presented to the rector a portrait of a former member of the troop, Gordon Betts, who was the first member of the Canadian forces to die in the pursuance of his duties after the outbreak of the war. The inscription reads:—

"Scout Gordon Betts, of the 12th Troop, St. Georges', who, as Private Betts of the 5th Highlanders, was the first Canadian to give his life for King and country. Accidentally shot on sentry duty at Soulanges Canal, August 27th, 1914."

The rector received the portrait on behalf of the church and has had it hung among the other portraits on the walls of the parish rooms.

EDITOR'S MAIL

Editor Review: The "Old Guard," so called, are really not responsible for the condition of the playgrounds at the South Central School, as "Ratepayer," in a letter in The Review the other day intimates. The care of the school grounds every where devolves upon the Property Committee. Mr. G. N. Gordon, who promised so many reforms two years ago, is a member of that committee.

If he is the live wire he claimed to be when elected, let him get busy.

INCREASE 50cts

IN GRANT TO PROTESTANT HOME.

Some time ago the board of management of the Peterborough Protestant Home wrote to the City Council asking that the rate of board for city inmates at the institution be raised, but they neglected to state how much and the city Finance Committee wrote for information.

At last night's meeting of the committee the secretary replied stating that the 50c per week increase per inmate would be acceptable and the members were unanimous in granting the request. A new by-law and agreement will be prepared.

Sir Douglas Haig in his report upon The Battle of the Somme, writes:

"First let me thank the munitions workers. This magnificent victory could not have been won without the self-sacrifice and devotion of those women and men who have so faithfully laboured to provide us with the munitions necessary to carry out our plans."

When the history of this war is written, the part played by the munitions workers will rank in importance second only to that of the soldiers and sailors.

To-day the cry is for more and yet more munitions.

COUNTY DADS OF SAME MIND AS ALDERMAN

TO MEMORIALIZE GOVERNMENT FOR APPOINTMENT OF A SENATOR.

At yesterday's meeting of the County Council Reeve Squire of Norwood drew the attention of the members to the fact that a great many vacancies existed in the Senate of Canada, and he fathered a resolution that the Warden and clerk memorialize the Dominion Government asking that Peterborough County be not overlooked when the appointments were to be made.

Reeve Coben seconded the resolution, which carried unanimously.

PLACING OF FINANCES IS DISCUSSED BY COMMITTEE

How to Deal With the City's Money to Best Advantage.

Secrets of finance were delved into last night by the City Finance Committee when the chairman, Ald. Stratton, introduced the subject of banking accommodation for the city for next year. At a previous meeting Ald. Stratton was requested to interview the managers of the local banks and find out the best arrangement that could be made for the handling of the city business.

During the past two years the Bank of Montreal has had the city account and they have charged the city 6 per cent. interest on loans and allowed the city 3 1-2 per cent. on daily credit balance. It was thought by several members of the committee and the chairman that the city ought to be able to get as good if not better rates than the county, who were only paying 5 1-2 per cent. on overdraft.

As a result of intevlews with the different monetary institutions, Chairman Stratton reported that the terms offered were as follows:—

Bank of Montreal made a verbal agreement to furnish the city accommodation on two plans, one to charge 5 1-2 per cent. on loans and to allow 3 1-2 per cent. on credit balance, or 5 per cent. on loans and 3 per cent. on credit balance.

The Canadian Bank of Commerce declined to enter into competition on monetary accommodation except on a direct request from the Council.

The Bank of Toronto offered a credit to the city of $250,000 at 5 1-2 per cent. on overdraft and allow 3 1-2 per cent. on credit balance. In addition, they agreed to cash city cheques at all branches of the bank in the Dominion at par and at places where no branches existed to charge one-eighth of one per cent. exchange. They further offered to make all debentures and coupons of the city payable at par in New York, Montreal and Toronto.

The Union Bank of Canada offered to carry the city's account on a 2 per cent. basis, charging 5 1-2 per cent. on loans and allowing 3 1-2 per cent. on credits.

Ald. Stratton presented a number of letters from different brokers showing that debentures made payable in New York, Montreal and Toronto sold to much better advantage than when made payable at Peterborough, as at present is the case. The advantage on the sale of such debentures was one-half to one per cent. in favor of the city.

City Treasurer Adams pointed out that the Bank of Montreal had agreed to a similar arrangement some time ago, but it held the city account up to one bank for the term of the debenture. It would be all right if the bank that handled the city account at the time the debentures were issued would agree to take care of them until maturity whether they had the city's account or not.

Ald. McIntyre asked the chairman if he thought the Bank of Toronto had made the best offer.

Ald. Stratton: I certainly do.

Ald. Saunders: I do, too.

Ald. McIntyre made a motion that the Bank of Toronto get the city's account, and Ald. Saunders seconded it.

Ald. Stratton asked that the proviso be put in that the bank agree to cash the city debentures at par up to maturity whether they have the city's account or not, and that if this is no consented to, the Bank of Montreal's offer at 5 per cent. and 3 per cent. be accepted. The mover agreed to the change.

Mayor Duffus thought that the matter should be considered more fully. Changing of a bank account is bad business. "I would know where I was at," said the mayor. The offers made were not tenders.

Ald. Evans moved in amendment that further investigation be made into the matter.

Ald. McIntyre thought that it would be unfair when the offer was before the public. It was not good business.

Mayor Duffus seconded the amendment, which was lost on a vote being taken.

Those voting for the change were Ald. McIntyre, Saunders and Weir.

Chairman Stratton and the Mayor will interview the Bank of Toronto and report to the Council on Monday night.

Instalment Debentures

Mayor Duffus asked the chairman to find out the advantage of issuing instalment debentures and pointed out where Toronto and Montreal were issuing them and were saving the municipalities money. He had been told that on an issue of $50,000 or 5 per cent. 30-year debentures, with a 4 per cent. sinking fund, as compared with an instalment debenture, the saving would be yearly $138.13, or a total of $4,167.90.

The request met with the approval of the other members, who all seemed anxious to go further into financial dealings.

The suggestion was made that it might be a good idea to engage a financial expert, like Toronto had.

Chairman Stratton gave the following as the figures and examples showing the desirability of haing debentures payable in New York and Canada.

A Broker's Letter

The figures showing the benefit that will come to the city by reason of the debentures being payable in New York are best explained in the following letter:—

Dear Sir: Referring to our letter of yesterday, we understand that the and receive on credits $672.87. If bonds. If the interest rate is, say, 5 per cent., the prices would be as follows:—

	Payable in Canada only	Payable in Canada & N.Y.
Toronto	98.75	100
Peterboro	98.14	98.75 to 99.37
Brandon	93.98	95.44 to 96.33

We are presuming that the bonds are repayable at the end of the term with interest coupons attached. —(Signed).

In the first instance the saving in favor of Canada and New York par payment is $500; in the second $610; in the third $1,230, a total of $2,340, or, on an issue of $100,000 the city saves $780.

The saving for future years should be considered in view of this arrangement having been suggested and offered.

City Bank Account

Peterborough's bank account this year was as follows, showing balance whether debit or credit. It will be seen that in only four of the eleven months were the balances to the credit of the city.

On these amounts the city paid for interest at 6 per cent. $4,315.50. bonds you have in mind are 20-year the rate had been 5 1-2 per cent. the interest paid would have been $3,954.04, with the same allowance for credits, and if at 5 per cent., $3,594.58, and 3 per cent. on credits would amount to $576.74. When totalled up and compared the figures show that the 5 per cent. and 3 per cent. basis would have saved the city $378, to say nothing of the saving to the School Board, Utilities and City Trust.

SAUSAGES STARTED NEW EXPERIENCE FOR GR. COPP

He Lost His Sea-Legs When Ship Rolled in Heavy Sea.

Gunner Leo Copp, who crossed to England with the 74th Battery, has written several letters to friends in this city. He gives a laughable explanation of how one feels when seasick, an experience he underwent on the trip across the Atlantic. His brother Howard is with the Canadian artillery service in France.

He writes in part:

Three days aboard ship seemed like three weeks, because I was what they call "off my sea legs." The boat had been tossing in the water like a cork, and when I went below to my berth, I found two fat sausages rolled in paper. Well, I just had time to get on deck again and get to the railing, when I lost my supper. But I wasn't the only one; the rail was simply lined with fellows. I was sick, but saved time at breakfast by not getting out of my berth. At noon I felt better and was able to keep down my dinner. I decided that when I leave to return to Canada I will either take the train or an iceboat and go around by Ireland. When I explain how one feels when seasick you will not wonder. First you feel as though you were taking sick in a swing and the thing wouldn't stop. Then you have a sensation as if some person was pulling a chunk of fat pork up and down your throat with a string. When you lie down in your berth you are bumped from one side to the other, and it is fortunate for you that the berth has sides. Generally the deck is covered with fellows who care not whether they live or die.

GOT REPLY TO ADDRESS WITH PAIR OF SOCKS

MRS. BERT BOHN RECEIVES CHRISTMAS GREETINGS FROM A SOLDIER.

With a pair of socks which she contributed for soldiers at the front, Mrs. Bert Bohn, 413 London street, enclosed a note giving her address. She has just received a pretty greeting card of best wishes for Christmas and the following letter from Pte. James Wilson, with the Canadians at Folkestone, England:

Dear Madam: I was so thankful to receive a pair of socks from you as one of the members of the Wives' and Mothers' Club, who think of us, although we are far away. I am sure it is very kind of you to think of us boys as you do, and really it is a comfort to know that we are so respected by our own people. We are doing only our duty to our country and to protect our rights.

Thanking you one and all for your kindness, I remain,

Yours obediently,

ASKS STRONGER NAVAL POLICY

GERMAN SUBS ON ALL THE TRADE ROUTES, INCLUDING PACIFIC.

LONDON, Dec. 2.—"We are in a position of unparalleled gravity," said Admiral Baron Beresford, in an address yesterday at a meeting to support a stronger naval policy.

"The crisis of the war is now. Since enemy submarines have transferred their activities from the headlands and shallow waters to the blue sea, the menace requires new strategy and new tactics to deal with it, but so far no definite and systematic methods have been taken for suppressing the menace.

Subs for the Pacific

"The Germans are now going to send submarines to the Pacific and to wherever British trade routes are."

Baron Beresford advocated continual aerial attacks on the German base at Zeebrugge and the arming of merchantmen, and continued:

"It is a most unsatisfactory state of affairs. Thousands of tons of food which were waiting to come to England have been diverted to Germany."

More Effective Blockade

The meeting adopted a resolution calling for a more effective blockade and for more efficient measures to deal with the submarine question.

GRANTS HELD BACK; UNQUALIFIED TEACHERS RECEIVE APPOINTMENTS

Inspector Lees Tells Reeve Anderson That Trustees of Sections No. 14 and 15 Erred.

County School Inspector Lees paid a visit to the County Council yesterday afternoon. When asked by the Warden if he had any report to make on the schools of the county, Mr. Lees stated that he always made his annual report to the Council at the January session.

Reeve Anderson of Otonabee inquired of Mr. Lees as to his reason for holding up the township grants to the school trustees of sections 14 and 15 and was informed by the inspector that the trustees of the two schools had engaged unqualified teachers when there were plenty of applicants for the position with certificates that could have been got. He told of how the trustees of No. 14 had advertised for a teacher and got a qualified one for the position but she only stayed for a short period. The trustees engaged another who had not got a certificate and he had notified the township clerk that he could not legally pay the grant to the trustees.

In answer to a further question of Reeve Anderson as to whether the trustees were justified in paying the unqualified teacher, Inspector Lees said, "I would not like to be in the trustee's position." They would be responsible to any ratepayer who questioned the payment. In reference to Section 15 the trustees had been notified by the deputy-minister and they had advertised for a teacher to take charge in January.

Plenty of Teachers

Reeve Anderson queried of the inspector if he had not frequently given permission to a teacher to take charge of a school when she did not have a certificate, and Mr. Lees stated that he had only done so when it was impossible to get a qualified one, but at present there were plenty of teachers to be had.

Warden Darling took a hand in the debate and referred to No. 5 Dummer, where the township clerk had also received a notification forbidding the payment of the grant.

Inspector Lees denied that he had forbid it, but had notified the Council through the clerk that the grant could not be legally paid to a school where the teacher was not qualified, as in No. 5

Mr. Sherin of Lakefield had asked him to get a certificate for Miss Sherin and he had agreed to do so. A short time after No. 5 trustees notified him that Miss Sherin had been appointed to the school and on investigation he found that the appointment had been made with plenty of certificated teachers applying.

Good Teacher at Warsaw

Warden Darling: How about Warsaw?

Inspector Lees: The teacher there is a good one and has had plenty of training. There are some teachers in Chandos and Burleigh who have only temporary certificates issued by the department. This is allowed in districts where the schools are small and not wealthy.

Reeve Anderson then asked if an acceptable change was made in January, would it be all right to pay the trustees in the meantime.

Inspector Lees: It is not legal. The school is practically closed when they employ unqualified teachers.

He had put himself out to assist the trustees in question but it seemed that they wanted to appoint a favorite and did so.

Reeve McIntosh: On whose recommendation does a teacher get a permit extended?

Inspector Lees: The trustees make the application and the department acts. No. 14 school section in Otonabee can easily afford to pay a qualified teacher. If the school was a larger one they would be quite willing to pay the salary. The department had asked him why the trustees of certain schools in the county had advertised for a teacher at $50 less salary than the former one received.

This ended the discussion.

Committee on Finance

Chairman Harry Fitzgerald read the following report of the standing committee on finance:—

Your committee recommend as follows: That the poultry association be granted $25; that accounts marked schedule B be ratified; that accounts marked Schedule A be paid; that the matter referred to by the representatives of the printing offices be laid over until the January session; that no action be taken re claim for extra by Norwood Register. That the clerk be authorized to prepare a by-law to be passed by this council at this session, empowering the warden and treasurer to borrow $3,000 from the bank and sign an agreement to that effect consistent with such by-law, said money to be paid to the Canadian Patriotic Fund in the month of January, 1917. That this committee would recommend the representatives of the Children's Aid Society to make their request to the Council of 1917 in January next.

A COMMITTEE ON NEW BRIDGE IS APPOINTED TO CROSS THE OTONABEE BELOW PRESENT STRUCTURE.

"KEEP IT ALIVE."

Warden Darling and Chairman Walsh of the County Roads and Bridges Committee were yesterday appointed a committee, with power to add to their numbers, to consult with the government and municipalities interested as to the advisability of constructing a bridge across the Otonabee River from the end of the street railway to the Otonabee.

The County Council have already signified their willingness to pay 40 per cent. of the cost.

Reeve Coben introduced the motion in order to keep the project alive.

"Could I only have music on my own terms, . . . whenever I wished."
—EMERSON

If Emerson Lived Today

IF Emerson lived today he could sit in his study at Concord and realize his wish to have music on his own terms whenever the spirit moved him.

One cannot imagine Emerson sitting in his study listening to a talking machine, but one can readily believe that Emerson would have listened with delight to Edison's new invention, which the New York Globe refers to as "the phonograph with a soul."

The NEW EDISON
"The Phonograph with a Soul"

THIS new invention marks the achievement by Thomas A. Edison of his ambition to produce an instrument which would Re-create all forms of music so perfectly that the Re-Creation could not be detected from the living artist's voice—or instrumental performance.

Great artists have appeared in public and have sung—or played—in direct comparison with Edison's Re-Creation of their work.

More than 200,000 music lovers and the music critics of more than 200 of America's leading newspapers have heard and seen these astounding tests, and one and all concede without reservation that the New Edison's Re-Creation of an artist's work positively cannot be detected from the artist's actual performance.

Will there be real music in your home at Christmas?

A TALKING machine cannot give you real music. It gives you only a hollow imitation.

The New Edison is not a talking machine. The New York Tribune says of it that "Edison has snared the soul of music."

It will bring into your home at Christmas and every other day of the year the literally Re-created art of the world's greatest artists.

We want you to hear this wonderful new invention in our store at your earliest opportunity.

There is no obligation to buy. We merely want you to hear "the phonograph with a soul."

MARKET PRICES

The market this morning was very large in every section. Butter was plentiful, so was poultry but eggs were very scarce, particularly the strictly fresh kind, and at the last part of the market 55c a doz. would have been willingly paid for some eggs of quality.

The chickens offered this morning were not the best and prices ranged from 50c each to 85c. Butter sold at 45c, while the few turkeys offered sold at 25c per lb. Good geese brought $1.50 to $2.25 each. Ducks were not so numerous and sold at 85c to $1 each.

There was plenty of dressed beef on the market and prices were generally the same as last week.

Hogs are quoted at $10.90 for next week's delivery.

Wine Over Strength Hotelman Fined $200

INSPECTOR HAD TO MAKE HIS WAY THROUGH COBWEBS.

TORONTO, Dec. 2.—John E. Bosworth, proprietor of the Queen's Hotel, Aurora, was fined $200 and costs by County Magistrate Brunton yesterday for having liquor on his premises illegally. Dan McKenzie, license inspector for York, visited the premises on Nov. 8 and some wine taken then showed over 20 per cent. of alcohol. Bosworth said that when local option came in force, he had all liquor removed from his cellar and this must have been overlooked. Several cases found on the premises were seized and will be confiscated. The evidence showed that, when the inspector visted the premises, the door of the room in which the wine was found was blocked up with cobwebs and had evidently not been visited for some considerable time.

If you are suffering from dyspepsia, indigestion or sour stomach you should try a mixture of Salon Pepsin and Iridin.

This is said to be the formula of Dr. Banta's famous prescription which gave him a world-wide reputation.

These powders are sold in Peterborough at Lynch's Drug Store, 163 Hunter Street.

BANQUET OF A.S.K. CLUB AT KNOX CHURCH

THIRTY-FIVE MEMBERS ENLISTED SINCE LAST BANQUET.

The members of the young men's A.S.K. Bible Class of Knox Church met last evening and elected the following officers for the coming year:

Hon. president, Rev. J. A. MacKensie; president, C. H. Thurber; vice-president, S. Byers. teacher, A. McKensie; secretary, Jas. McLeod; treasurer, F. Moore; convener social committee, E. Williamson; convenor sick and visiting committee, A. McLeish; convener athletic committee, W. Jackson, and the following members were apointed to assist him, Messrs. G. Clarke, G. Cunningham and H. Martin.

After many compliments and good wishes were passed among the fellow-members, they were invited to the basement, were a grand spread was laid for them by the ever-willing ladies of the Volunteer Bible Class.

Mr. C. H. Thurber acted as chairman for the evening. After everybody had done ample justice to the sumptious repast a few appropriate remarks were made by the chairman on the success of the class since its charter on Jan. 26, 1911, up to the present time. He mentioned the fact that since their last banquet, some 35 members of the A.S.K. class have donned the khaki and are now on active service or in the training camps but in spite of this handicap, in regard to numbers, the class had a membership of about forty. The organization is classed as second to none in the city. He also mentioned that one of their chartered members, in the person of Mr. Robert Thompson, was recently killed in action somewhere in France, and on behalf of the class, Mr. Thurber expressed their sympathy to his many intimate friends present.

Reports were then heard from Messrs. Jackson and Wells, who were delegates at the annual Boys' Conference, held in Toronto recently, and the boys made a fine impression on all those present.

Each officer in turn was called upon and made his resolution for the coming year, after which Mr. Clarke, Rev. J. A. MacKenzie and Mr. A. McKenzie gave excellent speeches.

A hearty vote of thanks to the ladies for their great help in the past year and for the spread they laid before their guests was moved by Mr. Stanley Byers and seconded by Mr. D. Cordern and the boys showed their appreciation to the ladies by a hearty clap of the hands.

After singing the National Anthem Rev. Mr. MacKensie dismissed with prayer.

FINANCEERS CLEAN SLATE OF COMMITTEE

PETERBORO' CLUB IS REFUNDED AMOUNT OF BUSINESS TAX.

Here are a few things that the rulers of the city's Finance Department did last night. All the members were present, including the Mayor.

The Peterborough Club was refunded the business tax which was paid under protest. The City Solicitor reported that the Ontario Temperance Act exempted the club's business assessment for this year.

The expenses of Messrs. Rogers and Dobbin to the "Bon Entente" conference at Quebec were recommended for payment.

The C.P.R. sent bill to the city for part of the expenses of a gate keeper at the George Street crossing. The city denies any liability. The members think that it may be for the Hydro Electric Commission under an agreement made with the Peterborough Radial Railway Co.

Tax Collector Green reported that the amount of taxes on the roll was $379,677.96 and he had collected $335,471.50, leaving a balance to be paid of $44,206.46.

The request of the Peterborough Utilities Commission for the sale of the debentures issued for their account was granted and will be put on the market at once.

The committee decided to pass up an advertisement in the Canadian Manufacturers' Journal.

G. W. Hatton, Crown Attorney, notified the city that the jury selectors had fulfilled their duties and were entitled to their salary. They were ordered to be paid.

The Standard Paving Co. asked the city to pay them 6 months' interest at 6 per cent. on the paving debentures owing to delay in issuing them. As they had not acknowledged the city's offer to pay three months' interest at 5 per cent. the offer was renewed to them without prejudice.

A strip of land one foot wide lying on the south side of Victoria avenue, on which taxes of $90 had accumulated, was deeded by the original owner, J. Dixon, to the city, and the taxes written off. The strip will now become part of Victoria Avenue.

Amendments to the Manitoba Dry Act

WINNIPEG, Dec. 2. — There will be amendments to the Manitoba Temperance Act made at the next session of the Legislature, but the nature of such amendments will not be decided upon until the return of John Allan, deputy attorney-general, from a conference to be held in Ottawa on Dec. 14th, at which representatives of the legal departments of all the provinces in the Dominion where it has been in operation will be present.

OFFER REWARD AS INCENTIVE

PLACE CLARENCE SAMPSON BEHIND IRON BARS.

The question of offering a reward for the apprehension of Clarence Sampson, who is wanted by the authorities on warrants charging cattle stealing, came up in the County Council yesterday.

Reeve Squire thought that if a reward of $50 was offered, the accused would soon be placed behind the bars.

London electors will probably vote in January on the question of establishing a municipal coal yard.

WE wish to thank our customers for so promptly adopting our suggestion, in ordering coal in small quantities during the present temporary falling off in shipments, and suggest the same course be followed for the next two weeks, particularly in the smaller sizes of coal.

With continued consideration and co-operation on the part of our customers, we expect our stock to carry us over until shipments are again normal.

To those who have become alarmed at the situation, we would say: We hope to have a fair supply of coal at about present prices.

In this connection, some of the coal companies, who sell at circular prices, have advanced their prices. Should the other companies follow, in order to hold their labor from going on munitions, it will tend to increase the production, and the increased cost of coal to the consumer (if any) would be very small.

We are hopeful that Peterborough will not be disturbed by prices beyond the present, with a reasonable supply.

From the time we receive increased shipment we strongly advise our customers not to fill their cellars, as the situation is largely in the hands of the consumers.

If their demand on the dealer is excessive, and the dealer is forced to buy outside his regular source of supply, or from those who hold coal for speculative purposes, an unnecessary condition would be forced on the public, and only the independent or speculative dealer would profit by such condition.

It would seem to us good judgment, when the supply is normal, to buy only a month's supply, and not allow the bin to get too low, as storms or freight congestion may delay shipments for a few days at any time.

It would seem to us unwise and unfair for the person who has money at hand, and who usually buys coal as required, to store coal in December they will not require until March, as this shortens the dealer's supply, and during the interval it could be supplied to someone less fortunate.

From a general viewo f the situation, we feel there is no cause for alarm.

WEDDING BELLS

GRAY—CLARKE.

At the residence of the bride's parents, at Cobourg, Ont., on Wednesday, Nov. 29th, a pretty marriage took place when Mary Evelyn, daughter of Mr. Samuel Clarke, M.P.P., and Mrs. Clarke, was married to Mr. Arthur C. Gray, of Guelph, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Gray, of Peterborough. Rev. S. Sellery, M.A., B.D., of Cobourg, conducted the ceremony. The bride was unattended and wore a lovely gown of ivory charmeuse and georgette crepe, and carried white roses and lily-of-the-valley. Mr. and Mrs. Gray left for a short trip, and later will make their home at Guelph.

PERSONAL

The gentlemen principals of The Geisha entertained the lady principals to an after-theatre supper at the Boston Cafe last night. The returned soldiers in the cast also were present.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Gray and Miss Gray, city, attended the Gray-Clarke nuptials at Cobourg on Wednesday.

"A grand night" was the general expression of the guests at the close of the Canadian Kitchener League's dance in the Conservatory of Music Hall last night. Nearly one hundred couples were present, and the dance program was carried out to the accompaniment of piano music played by Miss Gladman.

A patriotic scheme was carried out in the hall decorations. Supper was served by the Kitchener League.

The patronesses were Mrs. D. C. King, Mrs. E. Laurence, Mrs. J. Knox and Mrs. Hartley.

Mr. G .A. Broderick, inspector of schools for Victoria and Haliburton is in the city today.

Mrs. L. S. Clarry and Miss Clarry of Millbrook spent yesterday in the city.

Rev. Alex. Edmison, B.A., Keene, who will preach in Trinity Church on Sunday, is the son of the late Rev. T. J. Edmison, B.A., so well known in this city and surroundings districts. Rev. Mr. Edmison is one of the strong young ministers of the Methodist Church and he should be greeted by large congregations. The pastor will be at Keene preaching anniversary services.

Jas. B. Hargrave, coal merchant and railway contractor, Winnipeg, is dead. He went west from Preston, Ont., in 1873.

IT'S A SHAME

To see so many people in the city of Peterborough suffering from backache, kidney trouble and rheumatism when they can be relieved by using a medicine of undoubted value. Instead of describing your ailments and having a sorrowful story to tell to your friends, just as soon as you can, after reading this notice, send or telephone to Lynch's Drug Store for a bottle of Dr Banta's Kidney and Rheumatic Pills. You will be surprised how quickly you will receive good results from them.

A WRONG STORY MADE RIGHT

The Founder of the Heintzman & Co. Piano Firm Left Germany in 1849 as a Protest Against Militarism. His Son and Relatives Now in France.

It has come to the knowledge of Mr. B. H. Britton, the local district manager for Ye Olde firm of Heintzman and Co., piano manufacturers of Toronto, that a wrong impression has been formed relative to the war sympathies of this old firm. It has been reported to Mr. Britton that parties with whom he has been doing business have told him that they have heard that the members of his firm are pro German. Nothing could be further from the truth. It is interesting to know that the late Mr. T. A. Heintzman, father of Mr Geo. C. Heintzman, President, and Mr. Herman Heintzman, Vice-President of Ye Olde Firm of Heintzman and Co., Ltd, left Germany in 1849 as a protest against militarism which was rampant at that time. This same militarism resulted in a revolution a few years later. Mr. Heintzman founded, 65 years ago, the Piano business of which his sons are now the principals.

It will also be interesting to know that one of the sons of Mr. Geo. C. Heintzman, President of the firm, is now fighting the cause of the Allies, in France and that letters have been received from Mr. Charles Heintzman, nephew of Mr. Geo. C. Heintzman, president, and Mr. Herman Heintzman, vice-president of Ye Olde Firm of Heintzman and Co., Ltd., telling of life at Salisbury and following that of experiences at the front. Mr. Heintzman went off with the first contingent as a private in the Queen's Own. He had intended taking out a commission, but was so anxious to lose no time in getting near the firing line that he went at once with the first contingent. His brother had intended going with him, but unfortunately met with an accident that debarred him for physical reasons.

The Heintzman family, including Mr. Geo. G. Heintzman, Mr. Herman Heintzman and the brothers, are all Canadian-born and have spent their lifetime in Canada. In a very practical way Heintzman and Co. are today showing their patriotism by keeping their large staff of workmen at their factory at Toronto Junction steadily at work. Recent shipments include those to Australia, where this "Made-in-Canada" piano is today taking a first place and supplanting pianos hitherto imported from Germany.

These facts are only given with the view of correcting any erroneous impressions that may be in circulation regarding Ye Olde firm of Heintzman and Co.

THE LADIES OF LAKEFIELD HAD FINE SUCCESS

BAZAAR HELD LAST NIGHT IN TOWN HALL WELL PATRONIZED.

(Special to The Review.)

LAKEFIELD, Dec. 2.—The Presbyterian Church bazaar held in the town hall last night under the management of the ladies of the church was a splendid success. People took advantage of the agreeable weather and all roads led to the town hall, many visitors coming from the surrounding districts. The booths were numerous and pretty. One of particular interest was the Flower Fund booth, the color scheme being green and white. On sale were a stock of miscellaneous donations of flowers, the proceeds from which will be used to buy flowers for the church and for the sick of the parish. The sales ladies were Mrs. (Rev.) Robinson, Mrs. Morrison and Miss Nelson. The fish pond of evergreen construction was especially interesting to children and was presided over by the Misses Fairbairn, Preston and Thompson.

The fancy work booth was decorated with flags and bunting and was under the charge of Misses Adams and Preston. The work was both useful and pleasing to the eye.

One long booth divided into stalls and decorated in red and white consisted of children's clothing, on sale by Mrs. McKibbon; home sewing, Miss Miller and Miss Beavis; candy, Mrs. (Dr.) Smith and Miss Sutton; home cooking, one of the first booths to be sold out, Miss Preston and Mrs. Baptie; vegetables and flowers, Mrs. Braden and Miss Morrison; tea room, Misses L. Burgess, E. Braden and B. Moore, hostesses; tea served from 3 to 5 o'clock.

Two long tables where tea was served from 5 to 7 were very inviting, being managed by Mrs. Bailey, Miss Chant and Mrs. Hunter.

After tea, a patriotic quilt made by the ladies of the church was auctioned by Mr. R. Duff and realized six dollars.

The ladies were congratulated on all sides for the success of the bazaar.

Bethany Tabernacle

STARTLING REVELATION OF COMING EVENTS AND WORLD CRISES.

Rev. Archibald Gormley Doner, new pastor of Bethany Tabernacle, will begin a series of special illustrated lectures on the Great Dispensational and Governmental Plan of God.

These lectures are intended to demonstrate convincingly that we are living in terminal days, and that a new dispensation is about to be ushered in. The relation of the Jew o the great world war and the place of both in the midst of these marvellous transitional events will be clearly shown by the use of a large illustrated map.

In extending a very cordial invitation to the public to attend these lectures, Pastor Doner sincerely urges upon the Christians of this city, a speedy return to the fundamental truths of the Scriptures and to a humble heart search after the "old paths."

"When the judgments of the Lord are in the earth, the inhabitants of the world will learn righteousness." —Isa., 26:9.

Surely the days are dark enough to be dominated mid-night and while thrones and empires totter and fall, we should help to prepare the way of the glorious Coming King of Kings.

INVADERS OCCUPY VILLAGE 12 MILES SOUTH OF BUCHAREST

Capital to be Evacuated and Surrendered in Short Notice to Spare City Horrors of Bombardment.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, Dec. 4. — A Chronicle despatch from Petrograd says their correspondent has been informed that Bucharest will be evacuated and surrendered at very short notice to spare the city from the horrors of bombardment.

PETROGRAD, Dec. 4. — The war office announces Teutonic forces have occupied the village of Gradishtea, south of Bucharest. Obstinate fighting is proceeding between Alexandria and Bucharest.

Gradishtea is 12 miles south of Bucharest.

HEIGHT WON IN CARPATHIANS.

PETROGRAD, Dec. 4. — Except for firing in some places on the battle line in the Caucasus, says today's official statement, this front generally was calm. Fighting between Russian troops and Austro-German forces in the wooded Carpathians continues, the Russian official statement adds. One height to the southwest of Jablonitza was captured yesterday by the Russian forces.

GREATER SACRIFICES UPON PART OF ALL

Rev. R. Pogue Points to Duty of the Moment.

At St. Paul's Church Sunday evening, the minister took as his text "There is no discharge in war" (Eccles. 8:8). He said in part: "We have been requested by our military leaders to preach today on the great war, in the hope that our people may be strengthened in their purpose not to sheath the sword until victory has been won, and strengthened also to bear whatever sacrifices may be necessary in men and money to bring this struggle to a triumphant finish. We should recall here some of the reasons which justified us in taking up the sword when war was first declared. A knowledge of these reasons should furnish the strongest motives in inducing young men to enlist. First, we drew the sword because of the imperious demands of duty. If a child is in a burning building we do not ask why we should attempt to rescue her. Reason, feeling, instinct, love, will, all cry, 'Go.' And without waiting to count the cost we rush in through flame and smoke in the hope of saving her. This was the motive which prompted Britain to enter the war. And it was our motive. In the presence of what we felt to be our duty we said,

"'Ours not to reason why,
Ours but to do and die.'

"Then, Belgian appealed to us. She was a child among the nations. The big Goliath, Germany, went stalking through her land, killing women and little children, and aged men, as he went, piling barbarity on barbarity, crime on crime, savagery on savagery and surpassing the devilry of the devil. Our sons sprang to arms, saying as they did so, that that Goliath must be laid low.

Honor and Plighted Word

Then further, our men heard the call of honor and plighted word. They felt that it might not be necessary for them to live, but it was necessary for truth and honor to live; that better far that Canada's sons should die than that truth should li bleeding on the field. They went, too, to perpetuate and defend the noble traditions of the British Empire, to fight for freedom as against Kaiserism, for Democracy as against Autocracy, for the enthronement of reason and conscience as against the reign of brute force, and hence for Christ as against Anti-Christ. And many, too, took up the sword to break and destroy the sword. It is a beautiful ideal, and is worth fighting for.

"War for the end of war,
Fighting that fight may cease;
Why do our canons roar?
For a thousand years of peace."

In view of the righteous character of this war, and of the necessity of our continuing in the struggle until victory has crowned our sacrifices, what is our duty in the present moment? Surely, first, it is the duty of prayer. The walls of old London are covered with posters callen upon the people to pray. And this call comes not so much from ministers of religion as from the Christian Generals and Admirals of Britain's army and navy. A second duty is the duty of faith, of optimism, of hope. Because "Omnipotence is not with sin," and "the cause of right is charged to win," we must wear a "waiting, confident face," and lift up our eyes to heaven. And lastly, the duty of the hour is greater sacrifices upon the part of all. Some have done all that can reasonably be expected of them. Still there are many on whose ears and hearts the call of God in this war has fallen in vain. One does not know how to appeal to them. If the appeal of patriotism is in vain; if the appeal of outraged Belgium, of oppressed and suffering Serbia, is in vain; if the appeal of heroism is in vain; if the appeal of fallen heroes who went gladly to their death for the land and cause they loved, is in vain, then there remains nothing but compulsion. For some time I have felt that we must resort to this. And the sooner now, the better.

The Higher Motive

The higher motive still makes its appeal to us, to two classes specially concerned, wives and husbands, mothers and sons. Here are two letters, one from a mother, a Russian mother to her son. The other from a British officer who was killed at the Somme. Their appeal is stronger than the feeble words of the preacher. The first letter was found on the dead body of this Russian mother's son. It reads: "Your father was killed very far from us at home, and I send you out now for the sacred duty of defending our dear country from a vile and terrible enemy. Remember that you are the son of a hero. My heart is oppressed, and I weep when I ask you to be worthy of him; but when you are sent to perform a great deed, remember not my tears, but only my blessing."

The letter from the young British officer reads: "I am about to take part in the biggest battle that has ever been fought in France, and one which ought to help end the war very quickly. I never felt more confident or more cheerful in my life before; I would not miss the attack for anything on earth. The men are in splendid form, and every officer and man is more cheerful than I have even seen them.

"My idea in writing this letter is in case that I am one of 'the costs' and get killed; I do not expect to be, but such things have happened. It is impossible to fear death out here, where one is no longer an individual, but a member of a regiment and of an army. To be killed means nothing to me and it is only you who suffer, for you really pay the cost. 'I have been looking at the stars. What an insignificant thing the loss of, say, forty years of life is, compared to them. It seems scarcely worth talking about. Good-bye you darlings. Mind not to worry about it, and remember we shall meet again quite soon. Your loving son, Carl."

There can be no appeal to the young men of our land who have not enlisted finer than that. And that the sacrifice of such a life may not be in vain, and that the sacrifice of millions of others who have given their lives may not be in vain, we must see that when such men as they fall others shall take up the standard and carry it forward to victory.

POLICE BROKE UP CELESTIALS' GAMBLING GAME

FOUR PLAYERS CONTRIBUTE $84 INTO CITY'S COFFERS.

For some time the police have had their eyes on several of the local Chinese laundries, where it was suspected than fan-tan, bungaloo and other favorite gambling games of the Celestials were played.

Yesterday morning Sergt. Reid and. Constables Blade and Deannard made a descent on the Star Laundry on Hunter street, and when they had gained an entrance they found four Chinamen hidden in different parts of the place, from attic to basement. The game which the Celestials were playing was one in which large sized blocks like dominoes, dice and cards were used, some of which were found in the stove, where they had been thrown before the officers of the law got in.

At the police court this morning, Wong-Wing, Pop Lin, Lee Tip and Yu Yne appeared before the Magistrate and pleaded guilty to the charge. Crown Attorney Hatton asked the court to be lenient, so the fine was fixed at $15 and $6 costs in each case.

PREMIER'S CRITICS CONFIDENT.

LONDON, Dec. 4. — The decision of Premier Asquith, on the advice of Lloyd George, supported by other members of the Ministry, to reconstruct the Cabinet, is believed to have saved the coalition government again and ensured a more vigorous prosecution of the war. Severest newspaper critics of the Premier express the conviction that he will be able to announce in a few hours an agreement with his colleagues on the vital question concerning the war council.

Lloyd George Out?

Earlier reports stated that Lloyd George had handed to Premier Asquith his resignation as Secretary for War.

The chief factor which has brought about the present situation is the general dissatisfaction which has been expressed by both ministerialist and opposition newspapers, with the recent methors of the coalition in conducting Great Britain's share of the war. Although the country has not departed in the slightest degree from its intention to fight the war to a final victory, no matter at what cost, it is an undisputed fact that a wave of depression has swept over Great Britain. It has been felt she was putting forth only half her available effort. To remedy this condition is the desire of Lloyd George and his supporters.

JUNIOR MEMBER OF LEGAL FIRM ATTESTED FOR 247TH

V. J. McElderry of Peck, Kerr and McElderry Enlists---Fred Holden and Alfred Arthur Also Join---Pte. C. Lemay Wounded.

Another Peterborough legal firm has contributed one of their members, who has heard the urgent call of King and country and has enlisted with the 247th. In the attestation papers that have gone through today is the name of Vincent Joseph McElderry of the firm of Peck, Kerr and McElderry.

Two other local men have signed up with the local unit in the persons of Fred Holden, 606 Bethune St., and Alfred Arthur Armstrong, 193 Wescott Street.

Another 93rd soldier has been put out of action. The casualty lists announce the wounding of Pte. Cephus Lemay, whose home is in Lakefield. Four members of the Lemay family joined the 93rd Battalion here.

The following letter has been received by Mrs. John Hull of Lakefield from Pte. Jos. Hill, who is now in the Canadian Convalescent Camp, Woodcote Park, Epsom, Surrey, England:—

Noember 14, 1916,

Dear Mrs. Hull—I received your letter of August 29 today, and was very glad go hear from you. Your letter has had a very busy time chasing me all over Belgium, France and through a couple of hospitals in England. I was wounded on Sept. 25 at Coucelette on the Somme, and have had an awful time of it ever since, but am now in a good home and will probably be in England all winter. They don't know yet if I will ever be fit for active service again. I was very sorry when I heard about Wilfred for he and I were the best of pals and would hunt each other up when we were in billets and often talked of Lakefield and the good times we had at school and elsewhere together. I last saw Wilfred about June 26, and we had a long talk about the "Third Battle of Ypres," in which his battalion played such a very important part. He told me of many exciting incidents that happened in the charge at Sanctuary Wood, and was telling me he would be on pass in a few days. It appears that the 13th Battalion was called on to go to the relief of another battalion and Wilfred, being a signaller, was in a dug-out in the front line looking after a telephone when a major belonging to a Canadian battery came in and was giving orders over the phone to his battery. Suddenly the German guns, which had been shelling the British reserve trenches, shortened the range and very large shells came close to the dug-out. Wilfred stuck to his post to help keep up the communication when a shell dropped in the dug-out, severely wounding two men outside and were carried out at night and buried There wasn't a scratch on either of them, it being the concussion of the shell that killed them almost instantly. Wilfred and the major were caried out at night and buried near Zellebeke, in the rear. I received a pass when our battalion was relieved and went up to Zellebeke, where the 13th were stationed, and learned all I could concerning Wilfred from his chums, but we were not allowed up the line so it was impossible to see his grave. As I told mother when I wrote home, Wilfred had grown much taller and was looking fine; he was in a Black Watch kilt and wore a full Scottish dress.

All the Lakefield boys and his chums out in France mourn his loss, and extend to the family their deepest sympathy.—Your truly,

Joe Hill.

PETERBOROUGH, MONDAY, DECEMBER 4, 1916

SUNDAY NIGHT AT THE ARMORIES.

WHILE THERE WAS NOT a suspicion of politics in his eloquent appeal at the Armories Sunday night, Hon. Martin Burrell, a distinguished member of the Dominion Cabinet, quietly but not the less emphatically, rebuked two classes in the community—the carping critic and the man the burden of whose life is not the catastrophe in which the Empire is involved but the high cost of living. It was not the shirker alone whose derelictions were held up to the light.

◆ ◆ ◆ ◆

When the war broke out a Government of a certain political complexion happened to be in power. That Government, as every reasonable man must concede, has bent every energy, has employed every resource, at its command for the past two years to the problem which has never before confronted an administration in this country. Canada has sent over three hundred thousand men to the front, and has altogether under arms more men than Britain sent into the South African war. This, too, in a country where militarism in its modern sense was an unknown quantity. The country has done its part, too, in providing munitions for the Allies. Canada's status has been raised from that of a colony comparatively unknown, to one of the most important of the lesser nations of the earth, and the national finances have been so developed that this country is able to extend credit to the European nations whose lot has been cast with the British.

◆ ◆ ◆ ◆

Why, then, breed discontent among the people by carping and senseless criticism of an Administration which has risen to the occasion and accomplished all this in the face of difficulties never before encountered? Criticism avails nothing, accomplishes no purpose, and in no sense helps in the gigantic task now on hand.

◆ ◆ ◆ ◆

Mr. Burrell last night spoke of the tremendous exports from Canada to feed the fighting forces in Europe. Is it any wonder, then, that the cost of living in Canada and other countries has increased above the normal? Then why complain? Canadian soldiers are making sacrifices as few men have ever been called upon to endure. Danger and death hover above them constantly. While one class of the community is undergoing the hardships of trench warfare without a murmur of discontent, is it seemly on the part of those left at home to complain about the price of butter and eggs? The present high cost of living may call for sacrifices, but these sacrifices are nothing when compared to those which the men at the front are every day enduring. The true patriott will consent without a whine of dissatisfaction to subsist upon potatoes and salt, or even upon the one without the condiment,, rather than see the nation come to grief.

◆ ◆ ◆ ◆

To complain of conditions which are the inevitable result of the war is bad enough; to attempt to fix the responsibility upon the Government is infinitely worse. Those who grumble would divert the energies of the Administration from the supreme duty of the hour and have them dissipate the national energy in dealing with a situation over which they have no control. "Give us cheap bread and meat, enable us to live cheaply at our ease, and we care not how the soldiers suffer and what fate overtakes our Empire," is practically the creed of the malcontents.

◆ ◆ ◆ ◆

Last night's meeting was a standing rebuke to those politicians and newspapers that mendaciously declare that the Government has shirked responsibility in the work of recruiting. Does the appearance of a member of the Cabinet on a public platform, making a passionate appeal for recruits, mean anything? Is not Major Campbell, too, a representative of that same Government who are responsible for his every word and action? The Government has no more evaded responsibility in this matter than it has in other national affairs when it delegates to others the active management of the postoffice, the Trent Canal, the Customs or the Inland Revenue Departments in this city.

◆ ◆ ◆ ◆

Eligible men were not in evidence in the large audience last night. There were probably not a corporal's guard of men of military age in the building. All such [illegible] fruit. The manufacturers and the women were shown their duty and told of the influence that they can exert to induce the young men to enlist.

◆ ◆ ◆ ◆

All the addresses were to the point, each along its own particular line. Chairman R. R. Hall eloquently and forcibly drew a rather pessimistic but nevertheless all too true a picture of the situation, to show the need for men and yet more men. Lieut.-Col. Ackerman, Major Campbell and Captain O'Flynn made appeals that cannot fail in effect. The war is not yet won; it never will be won unless the men of Canada do their duty.

PETERBOROUGH NO DEFAULTER.

RENFREW IS ANXIOUS to establish a Carnegie library, and the mayor of that town recently went to New York for the purpose of securing a grant from the philanthropic millionaire. Mr. Carnegie's secretary told the applicant that a great many towns in Canada had defaulted in their agreement and that they were not raising the ten per cent of the grant to maintain their library, as the conditions of the grant called for. Renfrew would be required to give a cast-iron promise before any assistance was rendered.

The defaulting of which Mr. Carnegie complains does not apply to Peterborough. Three thousand dollars a year is the amount which this city is pledged to raise to maintain the library, or ten per cent. of the grant. This sum has always been exceeded, the grant from the city last year being over $4000.

Under the provincial law, Peterborough could levy a half mill tax for the support of the library, or over $6000 a year. Thanks to careful and efficient management, however, it has never been necessary to take advantage of this enactment, and with the lesser grant Peterborough has one of the best libraries in the country.

IS IT MALICE OR WHAT?

> "When fuses were wanted for shells contracted for by the British Government, the Canadian Government not only refused to give Canadian contractors a chance to manufacture them, but sent the orders to the United States." — The Examiner.

THE ABOVE is a late specimen of the misleading statements—not to put too fine a point upon it—with which our contemporary regales its readers. We often wonder whether The Examiner errs so often through sheer stupidity or whether its prevarications are simply inspired by a malicious spirit. Any newspaper that makes such an assertion as that, an assertion that is devoid of even a suggestion of the truth, is an element of danger in the community. How can young men be expected to enlist, how can the public be asked to bear the burdens which the war has imposed upon them, while they live under a government that is giving its own people all the worst of it while working hand in glove with the Americans?

There is scarcely a student in the upper grades at school who does not know, even if The Examiner does not, that the Canadian manufacturers hesitated about taking up the work of manufacturing munitions. The new industry called for heavy investments in installing hte necessary plant, the work was new to the manufacturers, and they had no assurance as to how long the war would last. In any event, months of preparation were required, and in the meantime the Allies were halted through lack of munitions. They placed orders in Canada and in the United States where munition plants were already in operation. That is the reason why American manufacturers were called on to help out the Canadians. If the advice of our prejudiced and ill-informed contemporary had been followed, the orders would have been held up for a year until Canadians were ready to do the work, and the delay would have militated against the cause of the Allies.

England could not manufacture all the munitions required, so that orders had to be placed outside, the United States included. The making of munitions in Canada, under governmental encouragement, has been in progress a little over a year, and now the business done in this line in Canada exceeds the ante-war record of any country in the world except Germany. The war orders placed in this country, thanks to the exertions of Sir Robert Borden with the Allied powers, have already exceeded one billion dollars and have placed Canada in the position of a creditor instead of a borrowing nation. Then, with such a record before it, what matters it if the heathen rage and The Examiner imagines vain and gives utterance to worse than foolish things?

It is seldom our contemporary ventures on an argument, contenting itself as a rule with making broad assertions. It says that no Canadian wheat should be permitted to leave the country until it is ground into flour. At the same time it would deprive the millers of all encouragement by having American flour admitted to this country free of duty. It would have nothing exported except the finished products. What a change of faith! Only five years ago it was all for a free interchange of natural commodities between this country and the Americans, a fallacy that cost its party dear.

There is nothing of Liberalism in the creed preached the other night by our contemporary. The whole discourse is tainted with the blue-gilled Toryism of the Georgian period in British history, a Toryism that crippled the Empire and robbed it of its most valuable colonial possession.

"We should know where our refined nickel goes," says our contemporary. If it really does not know that much now, the British Government is well aware of what becomes of the Canadian nickel which reaches England by way of the United States, and that is really all that is necessary. Any lack of knowledge to which our neighbor may confess is after all peculiarly its own misfortune.

SIR WILFRID LAURIER'S WORK.

"LET LAURIER finish his work," say his supporters, who would have him returned to power at the next election. Sir Wilfrid, it must be allowed, has his projects in the event of future success at the polls. One of his mottoes is, "Peace on earth at any price, and, when the war is over, good-will to men, especially to the Germans." He would treat that race as though they had never sinned against humanity. He would accord them all the commercial privileges which they have ever enjoyed, opening the markets of Canada to the products of Teutonic industries that are subsidized by the Government to enable them to undersell all competitors in the trading places of the world.

In other words, Sir Wilfrid Laurier would receive into his household the people who had ruthlessly murdered his sons and ravished his daughters. That is one work he has in mind and for which he asks the support and sanction of the Canadian people.

A man with such a plan in view has certainly forfeited his last claim to the confidence of the public. It is fortunate for the country that his work is already finished.

FISH-BARREL POLITICS.

ANY NEWSPAPER, whether published in Peterborough or even in Toronto, that asserts that reciprocity as advocated by the Liberals to their own disaster in 1911, would have meant the loss of political independence for Canada simply places itself in the same class with the man who learns his precepts at the feet of the sage who holds forth from the fish-barrel in the corner grocery. What Canada would have lost by reciprocity would have been her commercial autonomy. The fiscal policy of this country would no longer have been formed at Ottawa, but would have been dictated from Washington. That was sufficient reason for the voters of Canada to smite the party that would barter away her material interests. "No truck or trade with the Yankees" was never the slogan of the intelligent element of the party now in power.

The Americans are really not worrying over the question of getting possession of this country, as so many jingistic orators and newspapers imagine. They would be satisfied to gain absolute control of Canadian markets, a danger which the present Government has always recognized and guarded against.

COMPARE PRICES IN THIS CITY WITH THOSE PAID IN NEW YORK

The following article taken from the New York Sun will enable the people of Peterborough to compare their living expenses with those which prevail in the big American metropolis. It will be seen, too, how idle is the agitation for a removal of the Canadian duty on foodstuffs. In the United States, with the Underwood tariff in force, prices as a rule are higher than here, so that there is no surplus in the United States to make up a deficiency here. The Sun's article, written two days before the American Thanksgiving Day, last Thursday, is as follows:

Only the standpat attitude of the humble string bean prevents the sweeping statement that every ingredient of the Thanksgiving dinner has gone up in price since this time last year, when people were indignantly discussing the high cost of living and when there was a bumper crop of food price investigations.

The string bean has stood firm. A reporter who wandered around Washington Market yesterday could get no dealer to admit that string beans were sold for more than 20 cents a quart, and that was the price last year. Probably this oversight will be remedied shortly, however.

The turkey carried the banner yesterday in the matter of high cost. The best of turkeys were sold last year at Washington Market at 30 cents a pound, while this year the cost is 40 cents.

The subjoined table shows the comparative cost of commodities two days before Thanksgiving this year and last year in Washington Market. It must be remembered that last year there was a sharp jump throughout the city in the price of fruits and vegetables, while this year prices have gone up recently only slightly. Retail prices quoted are for the best quality:

	1915	1916
Cranberries, qt.	.15	.16-.20
String beans, qt.	.20	.20
Cauliflower, head	[illegible]	.20-.25
Celery, bunch	[illegible]	[illegible]
Oranges, dozen	.50-.70	.70
California grapes, bkt.		.50
Tokays, basket	.40	.15 lb.
Pale Malaga, basket	.40	.25 lb.
Onions, white, qt.	.12	.15
Potatoes, Irish, 4 qts.	.15	.10 qt.
Potatoes, sweet, 3 qts.	.10	.10 qt
Egg plant, apiece	.20-.30	.20-.50
Hothouse tomatoes, lb.	.20	.30
Pumpkins, each	.20-.30	.20-.50
Nuts, lb.		.25
Butter, lb.	.35	.45
Apples, dozen		.40
Eggs, storage, frozen	.35	.45
Eggs, fresh, dozen	.42	.52

Cake and bread, of course, have also shot up in price as a result of the rise of flour. Milk, too, has risen from 9 cents a quart to 10 or 11 cents. Even ice cream has been affected, for although it could be purchased last year at 35 cents a quart at small confectionery stores, it now costs 40 cents.

Despite the high prices, however, buying was very brisk in the city yesterday, and dealers said they had done more business than is usual two days before the holiday.

How to be Happy Though Married and Forced to Live on $15 a Week

If your income is limited but you aspire to join the ranks of the benedicts, read and ponder the following, sent in by a man who has been through the mill. He says:

It is my advice to young people to save enough before marriage to furnish a home. It is much easier to save before you are married than it is afterward. Expenses appear daily and weekly that have not been anticipated.

A couple, if they do get married, should live in a furnished apartment for a while, and that will give them an idea of what they can do on $15 a week.

I would not say not to get married on $15 a week, but would advise young people to have a financial start before taking such responsibilities upon themselves. At the present time, when the necessities of life are going skyward and rents are high, it will take some good management to make ends meet at that weekly rate, not figuring on layoffs, strikes, sickness or clothing.

I ventured on to the sea of matrimony two years ago and am happy and still alive. My salary at that time was $15 a week. I worked steadily and, being very ambitious, I succeeded in getting into the union. I now make $25 a week. It has been two years of struggle and grind to make ends meet. We had a baby the first year, and other sickness which takes time to get over. I practiced much at home and took an interest in my homea nd work, which I never did before I got married.

UNHAPPY VERDUN

Here are one or two interesting facts about Verdun. It was taken from France by the Prussians and held for six weeks in 1792, and French Commandant committing suicide before surrendering, and when a body of ladies—fourteen in number—went to the King of Prussia to solicit clemency for the town, they were all shot. In the last Franco-Prussian War, Verdun surrentered to the Germans on Nov. 8, 1870, and was the last place held by them.

A HORSE ON THE CONSTABLE

He was a county contable and had an exalted opinion of his ability as a detectie. He also read everything he could find on the career of Sherlock Holmes, until he imagined that he had thereby acquired wonderful deductive abilities.

"Now, gentlemen," said he on one occasion to the men who were assisting him to run down a thief, "we have traced these clues—the footprints of the horse and the footprints of the man, right up here to this stump; from the stump on there's only the footprints of the become of the man?"

An Alternative Evil.

"It is true that Miss Richley has money," said the engaged man's best friend, "but she is very exacting. If you marry her you will have to give up smoking and drinking."

"Possibly," said the engaged man, "but if I don't marry her I shall have to give up eating also."

CROWDED HOUSE FOR THE SECOND PERFORMANCE

BRILLIANT SUCCESS FOR PETERBORO'S CL[illegible] AMATEURS.

$200 FOR PROGRESSIVES.

A crowded house greeted the last performance of The Geisha at the Grand, and a truly brilliant show was given by Mr. R. J. Devey and his clever amateurs. "A breath of Daly's, Leicester Square," quoth a patron after the show, stepping down to congratulate the conductor on the production, which went through without a hitch. From start to finish, the merriest applause was unstintingly bestowed upon the slightest opportunity and the audience caught the humor of the play much quicker than on Thursday night. Bouquets were presented to Miss Clara Horne (Mimosa) and Miss Lilla Waterman (Molly), and the "boys" rigged up a choice one for Mr. Fred Hartshorn (Regy Fairfax) of the kitchen garden variety. On the stage at the end of the show Mr. Devey thanked the company and orchestra for their splendid exhibition, who promptly responded with three hearty cheers and a tiger for Mr. and Mrs. Devey. A change was then made of the scene from Act 2 to Act 1, and Mr. Fred Roy took a flashlight picture of the stage and orchestra. The second production of the Peterborough Operatic and Dramatic Society has proved a brilliant success in every way, thanks to the talented energetic work of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Devey. The sum of $200 for the Progressive Club was aimed at, but this sum will probably be exceeded when the affair is settled.

GERMANY THE CRIMINAL OF THE UNIVERSE

EVERY MAN'S DUTY TO BRING NATION TO JUSTICE, NOT TO TERMS.

At the Sunday morning service at Gilmour Memorial Baptist Church the pastor preached from Deut. 25. 17: Remember what Amelek did. . . [illegible] the hindmost, even all that were feeble . . . thou shalt blot out his remembrance . . . thou shalt not forget it.

After showing that the children were fortunate to have the direct command of God to justify them in the terrible work they had to do, the preacher claimed that Britain was fortunate in being placed in such a position that there was only one right course to take, namely, to keep her word to stand with the weak against the strong, to risk everything except her honor for right and justice. Germany professes to be willing to come to terms, but we discovered that we are engaged in bringing to justice the most criminal state the world has yet seen. To make terms with a criminal is to share in his crime and to come to terms with the enemy before he is placed where he can do no more harm would be to betray a sacred trust.

Germany Self-accused

Germany is a self-accused perjurer in the court of nations; a thief on the most gigantic scale the world has yet seen; a pirate who combines the murder of women and children of their friends as well as of their foes, with the robbery which is the essence of this lowest of crimes: murder of civilians regardless of age, sex or condition: slavery on a colossal scale, and that, too, of free-born men their peers in every way; violation of women who should have been able to look to them for protection of their honor; as well as the judicial murder of a nurse who had tended their own wounded. A nation with such a record offers insult in seeking to come to terms. When a dangerous and lawless criminal is at large it is every man's duty to bring him to justice and those who seek to be excused are tacitly confessing that they have no claim to a place of safety in this world. It is ours to bring the criminal state to justice, not to terms.

SORRY TO LOSE TWO FRIENDS

MR AND MRS. F. DRISCOL, OTONABEE, RECEIVE PARTING GIFTS.

Friends and neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. F. Driscol gathered at their home in Otonabee on Friday night to read a farewell address and make the presentation of two large chairs and a set of dishes. Mr. and Mrs. Driscol are moving to the city to take up residence on Concession street.

The address was read by David F. Thompson and the presentation made by Messrs. Dan Hayes and John Lancashire. Speeches were made in which regret was expressed that the removal of Mr. and Mrs. Driscol, who are very highly held by their friends of Otonabee. Mr. Driscol acknowledged the kind words and the gifts in a few remarks.

The company spent several hours in dancing, with Mr. J. Lancashire as floor manager, and supper was served.

The Address.

To Mr. and Mrs. Driscol:

We, your friends, meet with you tonight to bid you farewell as a neighbor, and to try to show you in some measure how we have appreciated you.

People take kindness from their neighbors without a thought till the time of parting comes. You, Mr. and Mrs. Driscol, have endeared yourselves to us, young and old. Your hand was ever ready to help us, and we had come to depend upon your cheer and kindness to be with us in trouble.

We, your neighbors, whom you have lived among all your lives, only realize at this late hour the good neighbor we are losing.

We have come to your old home this evening with regret that you are leaving us, but glad to think you will not be so far removed that we may not keep you as a friend. Others may take your places, but none will fill them.

We ask you to accept our best wishes and our sincere hope that happiness may be yours in your new home, and as a remembrance this token, which we feel is all too small to express our feelings toward you.

WISE MAN—WEAR RUBBERS

Low Rubber Prices Make Possible Saving of Expensive Shoes—Many Will Wear Rubber Footgear Whenever Occasion Permits

The thrifty man or woman—those who are getting the most out of every dollar in these days of high prices—will find gratification in the fact that this year rubber footwear solves the question of how to remain well shod in spite of high shoe prices. The wise buyer will purchase rubbers and overshoes this year to save the expensive shoes that he or she paid a dollar or so more for this season than last.

While everything else has advanced in price, rubber footwear has remained the same. In fact, rubber footwear would be cheaper this year than ever before were it not for the cost of all chemicals and the fabrics that are used in the manufacture. Even with these advances, rubber is the footwear for this winter and the wise ones will wear rubbers for economy. 23

Call to Prayer and Duty From Pulpit and Platform

ENTENTE ALLIES FAR FROM THE GOAL; MORE CANADIANS NEEDED IN RANKS

Facts of the War Situation Reviewed by Speakers at First of Series of Recruiting Meetings and Strong Appeals for More Men Are Made.

Canadian men in general and Peterborough men in particular were appealed to last night at the first recruiting meeting held in the Armories in the interest of the 247th Batt. under the command of Lieut.-Col. C. H. Ackerman. There was not a point of appeal untouched and every angle of the call to the needs of the hour was forcibly brought home to the immense gathering at the local military headquarters.

The meeting was held under the auspices of the Speakers' Patriotic League, with Mr. R. R. Hall, chairman, and on the platform were Hon. Martin Burrell, Minister of Agriculture, Lieut.-Col. Ackerman, Major Campbell, Capt. O'Flynn, Rev. R. G. Peever, D.D., Messrs. James Kendry, G. A. Gillespie, M.L.A., J. A. Aylmer, W. H. Dunsford, A. E. Coulthard, Alex. McGregor and Ald. A. H. Stratton.

Long before the hour appointed for the opening of the meeting people began to arrive in order to get seats near the front. Some of the ladies brought their knitting with them and passed the time in knitting socks for soldiers at the front, and the 57th Batt. band gave several selections before the meeting was called to order.

Facts of the Situation

Mr. R. R. Hall, in opening the meeting, gave a brief survey of what the allied armies had done during the 2 years and 122 days of the greatest war in history. The results so far obtained were not satisfactory, but were disappointing and it all went to show that there is much to be done before the war is over and now was the time to look tht facts straight in the fact. The capture of Belgium with her 7,000,000 of people by the Germans was referred to. It still remained in the bands of the foe except for eighteen square miles. Russian Poland and five other Russian Provinces with 33,000,000 population were still under German control; the whole of Montenegro, nearly all of Serbia, and two provinces of France were still in the hands of the enemy, despite the efforts of the Allied armies.

Here in Canada the people must look to the future, and our future existence depends upon the success of Great Britain and her allies. It was not for us to say that, because we are prosperous and the seat of war thousands of miles away, that we should do no more. It was our duty to do more than in the past, greater sacrifices in men and money were necessary in order to win the war. Canadians must be brought to appreciate the facts as they exist and take a noble part in seeing the war won. The barbarous treatment of the enslaved Belgians, which put the treatment of the African slaves two hundred years ago to shame was referred to. He urged the citizens to support Col. Ackerman and his officers in furnishing the reinforcements necessary to fill the gaps of our country men who are either wounded or dead.

Campaign for Recruits

Lieut.-Col. Ackerman made his first appearance in public as the commanding officer of the 247th and he was greeted with great applause, and he made a brief statement of his new campaign for recruits. The city and country had been canvassed and a list prepared of the men who could go and they would be appealed to personally in order to prevent conscription. In accepting the command of the local battalion he had done so with the assurance of the representative citizens that they would assist and he would do all in his power to have the 247th as good a unit as the 93rd or any that had left Peterborough. (Applause.) He had been fortunate in securing experienced officers, four out of five of them having seen more than one year's service on the battlefields of France. Some of them had been wounded and sent home, but were going back again because there were many men who had not yet realized their responsibility. Their conscience compelled them to go back. The O.C. made reference to his associations with Capt. O'Flynn (whose name indicates a fighting man), Capt. Belton, Lieut. Quinn and Capt. Hetherington of Fenelon Falls, who had just been appointed to the new unit, and he was striving to obtain the services of all returned officers in order to get as efficient a battalion as ever left Canada. The support of the citizens was asked as the needs were greater than ever before.

Chief Recruiting Officer

Major Campbell, chief recruiting officer for Military District No. 3, pointed out that the birth of a new battalion after two and a third years of war was significant and showed the seriousness of the situation. People should know the truth and not believe that the flag of victory was always waving on our side. Canadians were still struggling with the foe and no serious thinking man or woman could get away from the thought of personal relationship to the new unit.

Canadian Women

There was a tendency on the part of the Canadian woman to take a bigger part than they have in the past. Many of them made great personal sacrifices and it would seem impossible that they could do more, but they were anxious to find out, "what can we do that we have not done." They were all waiting for the business men and manufacturers to say the word and give them an opportunity to replace the men.

Business Men.

Business men—how can we get you? The speaker was prepared to discuss this with them at any time. There are eligible men at work who are doing women's work and the women are waiting for the chance as they wanted the men to do their duty. The farmers were complaining that there were no man to work the farms. It was pointed out that the country was in good shape. Last season's crop was a good one, the ground in good shape for next year's crop, and the women can sow the grain, reap the crop, take the milk to factory and do the banking of the money. There were plenty of young men in Peterborough who could enlist if they would.

A Personal Count

Major Campbell told of how on Saturday night he went into a Greek shoe shining parlor on George Street and between 11 and 11.30 he had counted one full platoon of men passing out from the billiard parlor in the rear. He appealed to these men to come forward and take their places in khaki before their employers told them to go. In closing, he expressed the regret of General Hemming at not being able to be present to make a personal appeal to the men to rally round the 247th. To those who preferred the other branches of the service, the local officers would enlist men for the artillery, cavalry, navy or flying squadrons.

Fill the Gaps

Capt. O'Flynn congratulated the city on its previous battalions and the important part they had taken in the war. He appealed for increased laurels and asked that every available man join the colors. It was a duty owing to the men at the front. They had served in the trenches without complaint for months. Canadians never complain, and it was the duty of mothers to send their sons to fill the gaps of the men who were wounded or dead. Canada was no longer a child in the eyes of the British people. They appreciated what this colony had accomplishtd and our posterity must be protected from a repetition of another war like this. What will be the position of the man who did not go when the boys come home?

Mr. Douglas Carlisle sang a patriotic song during the interval and his splendid voice could be clearly heard to the far corners of the drill hall.

The Minister Speaks

Hon. Martin Burrell, Minister of Agriculture, Ottawa, received a warm welcome when introduced by the chairman. He said in part that it must be borne to the hearts of everyone that the men who are doing the great things for Canada are not the men who make speeches only but those who are doing something to assist the Empire in a life and death struggle, which is convulsing the whole world. It had brought grief to the homes of many. It had changed the phase of life and cast new duties and sacrifices on all in Canada. "We as a Government have a terrible load of responsibility fighting for government of the people, for the people and by the people," said the speaker. He was not delivering a political speech, but he hoped that the people would realize the frightful weight of responsibility carried by the Government under Sir Robert Borden, and if the people gave them the necessary support they would be carried safely across. They were trying to do their duty. Some people had said that Canada had gone far enough in this war, but to them he would reply that they would rather go out of power tomorrow than go on feeling that they had not done their duty to the men who had gone overseas. It was the supreme duty of the people to give and to sacrifice in order to get what Canada wants.

The speaker referred briefly to what the Empire was fighting for and he spoke of a visit to his birthplace in Berkshire, England, some three years ago and how he had looked down over the peaceful Berkshire downs, where Alfred the Great, Cromwell and others had fought for and secured us the liberties that the Union Jack stood for the world over; and it was for these ideals that the men were fighting now and if they fail Canada would have to yield allegiance to a power where might constituted right and the bludgeon and the bayonet point used to drive us into the army. Men cannot resist the appeal made to them to take their places on the blood-stained fields of France and to fight to see that the smaller nations were not crushed out. Serbian people, wounded and sore-footed, dying by the thousands, left their country because they would not go back on their honor and England was always ready to stand up for the nation who kept good their plighted word, not treat it like scraps of paper and make the civil arm supreme over the military one.

Think It Over.

Mr Burrell asked the men to look these things over and see whether they were worth fighting for. People had said that there never was a good war or a bad peace. This was half lie and half truth. England had given her word that not until Serbian, Belgian, Montenegrin, Russian and French people had been returned to their lands and homes would there be peace. The oppressors must be driven out of these countries.

It had been thought that England would not step into the war, but, as Lord Rosebery had stated to a body of Canadian press men at a banquet in England years ago, "Go back to your country and tell them that England is prepared to defend your liberty, your homes and your land."

Imperial Defence Commission

The speaker told of his visit to England where he had the honor to sit on the Imperial Defence Commission with Asquith, Kitchener and Jellicoe, and to each he gave all honor for the part they had taken in the defence of the realm. Great tribute was paid to the navy, without which Canadian people could not sleep soundly. Canada was secure. It was a memorable occasion to him. England did not realize at first the immensity of the war, but she had risen to the occasion, stood [illegible] and with great determination and heroism had raised an army of over 4,000,000 men by voluntary methods. There wer 800,000 women doing men's work and the little island was showing the value she placed on liberty, justice and law. She would do and die for them.

The happiness, the thriftiness and the law-loving characteristics of the Belgian people were dealt with and the shock that went through the members of the Belgian bar when the butchery-loving German governor, von Bissing, had turned the historic Hall of Justice into a military court. It was this same governor who had been responsible for the murder of Edith Cavell. It was therefore our duty as long as a man was left in Canada fit to fight. He felt proud of them for the way they had responded when the clock had struck; they had gone in hundreds of thousands. In his province 36,000 men had joined, or 11 per cent. of the population. Up to date 275,000 Canadian had been sent and more will havt to be sent to take the places of the men as they fall.

Mr. Burrell, after giving the seriousness of the situation, gave due prominence to the help that Catnada was giving in the war, furnishing supplies, such as hay, oats, flour, horses, etc. Since the war broke out Canada had sent 330,000 tons of hay, 41,000,000 bushels of oats and 320,000 tons of flour.

The minister had no sympathy or

PRAYER

In carying out the resolution passed at the last meeting of the Ministerial Association, the city ministers last evening discussed the war situation from their pulpits and endeavored to inspire a greater effort by the people to bring about a successful prosecution of the war and ultimate victory for the Allied arms and all that their cause represents.

The main point brought out by the preachers was the need for prayer. The words of the great leaders of the British sea and land forces were referred to, as was also the action taken throughout England to call the people to prayer.

WOMEN'S PART IN THIS WAR

UP TO THE MEN TO DO AS WELL SAYS PARK ST. CHURCH PASTOR.

"The victory is sure, but the obligation is heavy," said Rev. Dongald Brown at Park St. Baptist Church Sunday evening, discussing the present war. "It is a loud call from God for us to correct our lives. It is also a loud call to duty. It is every man's duty as well as a privilege to to do his bit. When we think of the noble part women are playing in this struggle, it is up to the men to do as well. The women are saying to the men, 'we cannot go to the trenches, but we can make munitions.'

"We need to fight and pray. If our cause be just, then we with confidence can ask God's help. Prayer is largely an unused power. Today Great Britain is placarding the streets asking the people to pray."

DR. GRANT FOR KNOX CHURCH

TORONTO DIVINE WILL DELIVER ANNIVERSARY SERMONS.

Knox Church congregation will celebrate another anniversary next Sunday, when Rev. Dr. Grant of Toronto will preach morning and evening.

At the services yesterday, the minister referred to the death in action of Gunner Bob Thompson, who was killed on Nov. 13. His sermon was based on the hymn, "I gave my life for Thee." The preacher pointed out that we should recognise the sacrifice made by Christ and the sacrifice being made by our soldiers who are falling in battle. Mr. John Anderson contributed a solo in good voice.

LIVE AT PEACE IF POSSIBLE

"If it be possible, as much as lieth in you, live peaceably with all men."
—Romans xii. 18.

That was the text chosen by Rev. T. H. Mitchell of St. Andrew's Church last night for his discourse on the subject, "Did Christ Repudiate the Weapon of Force?" There are members of the congregation who have sons at the front; many of them are mourning for boys who will never return; but all of those who listened to Mr. Mitchell's sermon last night realized the assurance that their relatives in arms are in very truth doing the work of the Lord.

Christ in all His ministry never said one word in condemnation of the profession of the soldier. He did not counsel a revolt against Roman domination probably because He recognized the fact that the Jews were helplessly in the minority and that anything like an attempt to drive out the foreign invader would result in the extermination of His people.

There is something more important than peace, and that is righteousness. The Canadians in Flanders are not fighting because they hate the Germans and are anxious to kill them, but are striving to set right the affairs of the earth.

A memorial service will be held at an early date in St. Andrew's Church for the young men of the congregation who have made the supreme sacrifice.

TWO RUNS FOR FIREMEN

The fire department had two runs out yesterday, one to 266 McDonnel St., where an auto was on fire, and the other to a chimney fire at Dublin and George Streets. No damage was done in either case.

CANON URGES INDIVIDUAL INFLUENCE

IN SWELLING NUMBERS OF CANADIAN FORCES.

OUR DUTY TO DEFEND.

Rev. Canon Cornish, speaking from the pulpit of St. John's Church last evening, said in part: Sunday is the day for recruiting for God's kingdom, and recruiting for the present emergency could be taken up jointly. The town from which I came in the West, I am proud to say, has not an eligible man left. The recruiting taken up by me was all from the pulpit, and consisted in pointing out the plain duty of the hour, leaving the decision to each man. Each of you should try to influence young men with whom you come in contact, not by calling them names, but in the most kindly way. The willing ones have gone, and those who have not at any rate think they have a reason for not going. We can surely try to show that both duty and reason point clearly to enlist in the great struggle for freedom now in the final stage. The question is asked, "Why don't the German people rise?" The answer is that the terrible organization of Germany is such that the whisper of a citizen of disaffection is promptuly silenced by a bullet. We surely are not willing that such a monstrous system shall rule the whole world, and not only the Allies and Germany are aware of the mighty obstacles in the path, but the United States and other neutral nations are convinced that nothing but the mighty British fleet will prevent such a catastrophe. The heritage of freedom for which our forefathers made such sacrifices is threatened; our duty is to defend that heritage, though to many it may bring the supreme sacrifice. "Greater love hath no man than this, that he lay down his life for his friends."

use for the man who endeavored to make a fortune out of the necessary war supplies. In passing he referred to the high cost of living but thought it a sacrifice the people were called on to make. It was the test to give up something.

After the war Canada would rise to a high civilization, a new life, bigger and better and ready to do her part in the world. He asked support for Lieut.-Col. Ackerman and his officers.

The National Anthem by the band brought the meeting to a close.

OBITUARY

MRS. ED. LA JOIE

A very sad and sudden death occurred at an early hour on Sunday, when Mrs. Ed. La Joie passed away. She leaves to mourn her loss her husband, one son, Frederick, of this city; three daughters, Mrs. M. Kelleher, 261 Romaine St., Mrs. S. McGuire, of Hastings, and Carrie of Rochester; also three brothers, John of Hastings, Fred of Rochester, N.Y., and Joe of Saginaw, Mich.

The funeral will take place from her late residence, 112 Gladstone Ave., at 9.15 Tuesday morning to the Church of the Sacred Heart, thence to St. Peter's Cemetery for interment.

Mrs. LaJoie took ill while attending mass at the Church of the Sacred Heart on Sunday morning and died before medical aid could be summoned.

MRS. A. MILLER

The many friends of Mrs. A. Miller of 256 Aylmer Street will regret to hear of her demise at 7.30 Sunday evening, after having undergone a serious operation at Nicholl's Hospital on Thursday last. Mrs. Miller had rallied considerably from the operation and much hope was held out for her recovery until Sunday, when deceased took a turn for the worse.

Besides her husband, who is a member of the fire department, Mrs. Miller leaves to mourn their loss one son, Mr. H. B. Miller, of the C.G.E.; three daughters, Mrs. J. Cruickshank, Mrs. P. Blade and Mrs. C. S. Elliott, all of Peterborough; three brothers, Wm. Edmunds of Peterborough, Richard Edmund of Port Hope, and John Edmund of Washington; and two sisters, Mrs. L. Hallett of Charlevioux, Mich., and Mrs. Pitman, of Weymouth, Eng.

The funeral service will be conducted at her home by Rev. J. R. Webb of Murray Street Church, of which church Mrs. Miller was a member. After a short service at the house at 11 o'clock Wednesday morning, the remains will be conveyed to Port Hope for interment.

Shoe Dealers are Entitled to Higher Prices for Some Brands of Rubbers

On a great many of our lines of Rubber Footwear there have, of necessity, been small advances in prices, for these reasons:—

Since the war the price of crude rubber has fluctuated, registering as much as 40% advance and then sagging back almost to 1914 figures. But ocean and freight rates on it have doubled—marine insurance is away up—and then there is the War Tax. Moreover, cottons used in rubber footwear are up 25% to 100%, chemicals 25% to 300%, dyes a good deal more than that, and labor is scarce and higher paid. All these items must be included in our costs.

Our policy has been, and will continue to be:—

To maintain fully the quality of each and every brand of our rubber footwear, regardless of expense.

To maintain, as long as we can, stability of prices to dealers, advancing just as little as possible considering the higher manufacturing cost.

If your shoe dealer asks you a little more for our rubbers, he is quite entitled to it. To his increased cost he must also get added profit to make up for his increased expense of doing business.

The public will find any increases we make on our brands of Rubber Footwear insignificant compared with the saving that the consistent use of Rubber Footwear accomplishes. The additional cost of our brands of Rubbers is, however, fully justified, because they are backed by the same reliable quality that has won popularity for these well-known marks:—

ILLUSTRATION WORK IN PRODUCTION OF CROPS

Department Furnishes Seed for First Season.

The Department of Agriculture of the Dominion Government is carrying on illustration work in crop production and cultural methods with farmers in the provinces of Quebec, Alberta and Saskatchewan.

Farmers owning or operating land favorably situated for the carrying on of such work co-operate with the Department.

The farmer puts under the direction of an officer of the Dominian Experimental Farms System, a part of his farm having a good wide frontage on a well travelled highway, each field having the same frontage along the same highway, so that the crops and cultivation are unavoidably in evidence to the casual traveller and easily inspected by the interested visitor.

The Department, for the first year at least, furnishes the seed necessary to sow as much of the fields as it is decided to put under crop that year. In subsequent years the farmer saves enough of the best of the crop grown on these fields to do the necessary seeding. This, of course, provided the grain produced is satisfactory as to purity and germinative power.

Worked by Farmer

All cultural and harvesting operations in connection with these fields, i.e., the ploughing, harrowing, etc., of the fields, and the sowing, harvesting and threshing of the grain therefrom are done by the farmer. All work indicated above is done in exactly such ways and at exactly such times as directed by the Illustration Division of the Dominion Experimental Farms System. The farmer keeps a record of the amount of time taken to perform the different operations on each field and threshes the grain harvested separately so that it will be known how much is harvested from each field.

Records Are Entered

The records just mentioned of the work and crops resulting, together with brief notes made each week, are duly entered on blank forms provided for that purpose. The work of making such notes and entering up the work done on each field does not entail more than one hour's work each month. Each week the farmer mails to the Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa, a form filled out with full particulars as to the work done, general weather conditions and crop progress on the different fields. The farmer permits to be placed in front of each field a sign stating briefly the method of preparing the land for the crop growing thereon, or the treatment given the plot that year.

On all these farms, whether located in the Province of Quebec, or in Saskatchewan or Alberta, systematic rotations of crops suitable to the district served as well as the best cultural methods and most suitable varieties of crops are being demonstrated.

HIGH COST OF LIVING UNDER DISCUSSION

LEGAL COMMITTEE ASK COUNCIL TO PASS RESOLUTION.

The high cost of living and how the City Council can take steps to remedy local conditions was a subject of discussion before the Legal Committee on Saturday night.

Chairman Dobbin read the following extract from the amended Dominion order-in-council showing the power of the municipal councils, as follows:

Whenever the council of any municipality shall declare by way of resolution that in its opinion excessive prices are being charged and demanded within the limits of such municipality for any necessary of life, such council may by notice in writing under the hand of its clerk or other authorized officer, require any person dealing within the municipality in such necessary of life, and locally situate therein, to make and render unto such council precisely as required by it, a written statement under oath or affirmation, showing in detail:

(a) The amount of such necessary of life held by such person for sale or disposition within such municipality at any time, including any time previous to the making of these regulations.

(b) The time when any or all of such necessary of life was acquired, produced or brought within or into such municipality.

(c) The cost of such necessary of life, including all charges of an overhead or other nature affecting such cost.

(d) The price at which such necessary of life is held for sale or at which any sales of part of the same or of a similar nature have been made by such person within such municipality at any indicated time or times, including any time preceding the making of these regulations.

(e) If, after the receipt of such return, such council shall consider that any of the circumstances justify reference of the return and a statement of the conditions to the Minister of Labor for further investigation at his hands, or if no return or what the council shall consider an untrue or misleading return is made, such council may by way of resolution in writing expressing the facts and the council's conclusion therefrom, report to such Minister.

Get List of High Prices.

As the matter is one of vital interest to the citizens of Peterborough the committee decided to ask the City Council on Monday night to pass a resolution [illegible] the committee to prepare a list of such necessaries of life that are extraordinarily highly priced in Peterborough.

Several of the members referred to the cost of potatoes in Montreal, where they are selling at 25 cents a peck.

Ald. Dobbin also suggested the advisability of having the Trades and Labor Council represented at the next meeting with information as to local conditions.

That Might Work Once.

"I don't see how you got that boy to take the castor oil."

"Easy enough. I told him to try some first and see how he liked it, and if he didn't like it he needn't take it."

HIGH SCORING AT THE ALLEYS

GROCERS AND BUSINESS MEN MEET TUESDAY NIGHT.

At the Water street alleys Saturday afternoon F. C. Webster's score of 597 for three consecutive games for a box of cigars was beaten by Wm. Henderson, who ran up a total of 598.

Alf. Fielder's high score of 244 for bowling ball, which was high for the last two weeks, was also beaten by Wm. Henderson by a 255 count, which is a record for the alleys.

The Grocers and Business Men meet for the first time in the Peterborough League on Tuesday night, and a great game is expected, as both teams are out to win. These two teams have won five games and lost one and are leaders in the league.

A Definition

"Pa, what is diplomacy?"

"Diplomacy, my boy, is the art of being disagreeable pleasantly."

PROMOTION IN BOWLING.

Bowling comes to him who sticks
Unto the game, and never kicks;
Who watches neither clock or sun
To tell him when his task is done;
Who toils not for the strike or spare,
Nor shooting any fine hot-air;
But gladly does a little more
Than he's remunerated for.
The man in factory or shop
Who rises quickly to the top
Is he who gives what can't be bought,
Intelligent and careful thought.

Bowling comes to him who tries
Not solely for a selfish prize,
But day by day and year by year
Plays the game with hearty cheer;
Who cares not what games he earns
Nor the total pins he returns;
Nor counts his day of bowling through
Till he has done all he can do.
His strength is not of muscle bred,
But of the heart and of the head.
The man who would the top attain
Must always play a steady game.

CITY'S OUTLAY IN COURTS COSTS AND DAMAGES

AVERAGE OF $671 FOR TEN YEARS, REPORT OF TREASURER.

City Treasurer Frank Adams has sent to the Legal Committee a statement showing that the city has paid $6712.00 in the past ten years as damages and costs of action against the city resulting from accidents, an average of $671 per year.

The heaviest loss in any one of the ten years was 1916, and last year was the lowest, as not a single dollar was paid out.

This information was required in order to find out whether it would be advisable to insure the city against accidents in a liability insurance company who offered to protect the city against loss for $900 per year.

The Legal Committee on Saturday night decided to let the 1917 committee make a decision in the matter.

HORSE BLIND IN ONE OPTIC

COLLIDED WITH GAS TANK AND LATER SHOT.

About two weeks ago a horse belonging to Allan Preston, of North Monaghan ran away and collided with a gas tank near the foot of Simcoe street, injuring one of the horses so badly that it had to be shot. Mr. Preston, through his solicitor, notified the city that damages would be claimed, and the city solicitor got busy and found out witnesses to the accident from the police department and other sources.

Evidence now in the possession of Mr. Gordon shows that the horse was blind, and, as one man stated to the solicitor's question, "Do you mean he was blind after the accident?" and the reply was made, "The horse was blind before and after."

Flight Lieut. Ernest Potter, Port Arthur, and formerly of the Molsons Bank, Winnipeg, has been decorated by General Joffre with the White Whistle Cord, in recognition of his services as an airman.

To Subscribers

We are adding from twenty to thirty new subscribers to our lists every day, the best of all assurances that the public regard The Review as the local paper that is worth reading. All that we ask for is a fair comparison with our contemporaries in the field.

With the sudden increase in the business of extending our circulation confusion is likely to arise and those just ordering the paper, as well as old subscribers, may not receive their papers promptly or regularly. Any of our readers who have cause for complaint on either score will confer a favor by telephoning the facts to the circulation department, calling phone 189.

Mick's Share Doubtful

Two Irishmen were one day going over a bridge and saw the following notice:

"Any person saving a life will get $5, and for a dead body $2.50."

Said Mick to Pat: "We ought to make some money out of this."

"Thrue for ye," said Pat. "You fall in the water and I'll pull you out."

"All right," said Mick, and he dropped over the bridge.

Pat, after trying some three or four times to get Mick out, was arrested by a voice from the water, calling out:

"Bedad, if you don't look sharp, we shall only get $2.50."

A man may pocket his pride, but a woman always has to conceal it elsewhere.

JONES sometimes wakes up feeling cross and in consequence the family know it without his telling them in so many words.

Mrs. Jones attributes it to biliousness and if it doesn't wear off during the day she gives him a dose of liver medicine at night. The next morning he feels better and she gives him tea or coffee for breakfast,—and the next morning,—and the next morning. And in a few days Jones has another spell.

Dear Mrs. Jones means all right, but she doesn't seem to realize that if she didn't give Jones his morning tea or coffee she wouldn't have to give him the liver medicine and Jones would feel all right without both.

Housewives everywhere have found out that Instant Postum takes the place of tea and coffee perfectly. And that is only one of the reasons why Instant Postum has wholly supplanted the use of tea and coffee on thousands upon thousands of Canadian breakfast tables.

CAME TO AID OF SOLDIERS' NEEDY ONES

CITIZENS DONATE HOUSEHOLD ARTICLES TO BRIGHTEN HOME.

In this city there is a mine—a reservoir of things that have been used. It leads off into several veins and seams that have only to be tapped to yield heaps of things—things quite useful but out of hand, but available for use by someone else. The appeal for articles of furniture to fit out a family in hard circumstances has been met in a most helpful way; cheerfully and quickly in the greatest readiness. The articles will be sent for, and placed in the house by the end of the week. It is due that acknowledgment be made to the friends who have been helpful:

Mrs. Munroe, 459 Reid street, a small table and three chairs.

Mrs. Chalmers, 581 Homewood avenue, carpets and several chairs.

Mrs. Hall, 17 Fleming Place, one square carpet.

Mrs. Walter Hooper, 504 Rubidge street, cupboard.

Mrs. J. Johnston, 9 Park street north, double bedstead.

Mrs. Brooks, 199 Dalhousie street, sideboard and kitchen table.

Mrs. Emmérson, 297 Park street, washstand, rocking chair and another chair.

Mrs. Dean, 308 Charlotte street, bureau and matting.

Mrs. Thorndyke, 578 Stewart St., a box stove.

M. J. Maher, of Oak Hall, double bedstead and springs, single springs.

The things will be called for just as soon as a benevolent man with a horse and wagon can be pressed into service.

DAVIS HILL GETS TERM OF 5 YEARS

Wm. Hill is Sentenced to Kingston for Two Years.

"Guilty of cattle stealing on four charges" was the finding of Judge Huycke against Davis Hill this morning at a special session of the County Court. His Honor remanded the prisoner for sentence until after a charge of cattle stealing against his brother William Hill is disposed of.

Judge Huycke found that the stealing of the Matthews cattle had been proven beyond any doubt, and he had come to the conclusion that the defendant intended to apply them to his own use, and was therefore guilty. On the other three charges, in which the Carveth, Clydesdale and Davis cattle figured, the court found that in effecting the sale of them the prisoner had used a stool pigeon by the name of Brown, who had sold the cattle to Mr. McKelvie, a drover, and the tracing of the cattle by natural and artificial marks from the time they arrived at the Toronto stock yards till the hides of the animals were found at a London tannery, proved beyond reasonable doubt a conclusive chain of evidence that the hides of the animals in court were those sold by Brown for Hill to McKelvie. A finding of "guilty" was

Wm. Hill on Trial

William Hill was then placed on trial on the charge of stealing one steer, the property of William Davis of the township of Dummer. The evidence was the same as was given before County Magistrate Langley a week ago, when Hill was committed for trial, and it was more conclusive today than at that time. Judge Huycke found him guilty.

The prisoner was defended by Mr. G. N. Gordon, while Crown Attorney Hatton prosecuted.

Judge Huycke at the conclusion of the case had both brothers arraigned before him for sentence and after giving them a very severe lecture passed a five-year sentence in the Kingston Penitentiary on Davis Hill on each of four charges, the sentences to run concurrently, while William Hill got off with a sentence of two years in the same institution.

Judge Huycke remarked on the necessity of farmers being able to pasture cattle where thieves were not allowed at large and referred to the punishment meted out without trial in the olden days.

LLOYD GEORGE IS AGAINST PREMIER HEADING COUNCIL

On Learning That Asquith Could Not Agree to Give up Leadership, Secretary of State Decided to Resign.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, Dec. 5.—The Exchange Telegraph Co. says Lloyd George has decided to resign.

LONDON, Dec. 5.—Lloyd George's resignation was drafted after he received the intimation that Premier Asquith could not agree to the suggestion that the war council should be formed without the Premier at its head.

NO RESIGNATIONS, SAYS EVENING STAR.

LONDON, Dec. 5.—The Evening Star says the political crisis is over, so far as it is a trial of strength between Asquith and Lloyd George. Asquith has won. There will be no resignations and the reconstruction of the Government will not take place. The failure of the cabal was due to a refusal of the Labor party to support it in the Commons. George Wardle, chairman of the Labor party in the Commons confirmed the assertion that the Labor party was standing by Asquith. The party is prepared to see the speeding up of the war and also prepared to accept a smaller war council, "but I do not think it should be arrived at by the means adopted," added Mr. Wardle.

FATALLY HURT ON FIRST DAY OF VISIT HERE

MRS. F. FIRTH, OF GARDEN HILL, SUSTAINS INJURIES AT BROTHER'S HOME.

SKULL FRACTURED.

Mrs. F. Firth, of Garden Hill, while visiting her brother, Mr. Harry Zealand, 300 Maitland avenue, yesterday, fell down the cellar steps, fracturing her skull and causing her death.

Mrs. Firth had arrived in Peterborough yesterday at noon on the Port Hope train and went at once to her brother's home, where she intended visiting for some months. Some letters were awaiting her arrival, and after receiving the welcome of her relatives she proceeded to look at her mail. She discovered that her eyeglasses were in her handbag in the hallway and went to get it. By mistake she opened the door leading to the basemnt and fell headlong down the steep steps, sustaining the injuries mentioned.

Mrs. Firth was born at Garden Hill nearly 51 years ago. Her maiden name was Rosanna Zealand. She is survived by two sisters, Mrs. A. Doughty, Detroit, and Mrs J. W. White, of Grand Rapids, Mich., and seven brothers, John, of Garden Hill, Brown of Lindsay, James of Sarnia, Harry of Peterborough, Mitchell of Newtonville, Hallis of Port Hope.

LOCAL GREEKS MAY EXPECT NO QUARTER IF WAR GOES ON

Constantine's Reservists in This City Will Not be Allowed to Leave to Join Compatriot's Army --- No More Pool Room Licensesis Suggested.

"Timeo Donaos et dona ferentes," which, being freely translated into English, reads, "I distrust the Greek even when he is making me a present," or "I fear the Greek bearing gifts."

When the ancient Greeks had spent ten years in a vain attempt to batter down the gates of Trony they had resort to strategem. They constructed a figure of a gigantic horse and sent it inside the city with their compliments as a present to the Trojan King. The gigantic image was packed to capacity with Greek soldiers equipped for war and the purpose of the strategists was achieved. Troy was laid in ruins. According to a a poet of the classical age the Trojan king when he realized how he had been hoaxed, gave utterance to the above sentiment, which is recorded in the original and somewhat liberally rendered into the mother tongue.

Characteristics Unchanged

The characteristics of the ancient Greeks remain as a distinguishing feature of his descendants down to the present day. They are noted for their strategy. All is fair in love, war and maters of less moment in the business of life. The other day, relying upon the representation of the military leaders in Athens an army of 3,000 Allies walked into an ambush of 25,000 Greek troops and were forced to fight until their ammunition gave out. "Even when making a present," etc., as Virgil puts it.

Greeks in Peterborough

There are a number of Greeks in this city. Every man of them is a reservist ready to return to his native land when the call comes, and that is daily looked for now, as war between Greece and the Allies appears inevitable. The local colony of Constantine's subjects have not yet learned the discretion of silence, but are outspoken in their devotion to the cause of their nation. Yesterday one of them almost forced a combat with an officer of the 247th Battalion who was having his shoes shined in a Greek establishment.

Can be Interned

Chief Thompson since the war broke out has been acting as a Dominion police officer, under Col. Sherwood of Ottawa, in addition to his regular duties. All the aliens in this district are under his supervision. In the event of war with Greece he will receive special instructions, but in the meantime he has the required authority to act. Any Greek going about his business, and, above all, keeping quiet, will not be molested provided he reports regularly to the chief. Any one of the race who essays to discuss the situation does so at his own risk. If a Greek reservist makes preparations to leave the city, or in any way shows a disposition to do so, he can be interned forthwith.

No Pool Room Licenses

The military officers at every recruiting meeting speak of the pool rooms of the city where the slackers congregate for amusement, and to meet congenial company. It has been suggested that the aldermen can render the Empire efficient service by refusing to issue any more permits for pool rooms, when the present licenses expire. It is argued that this is just as necessary as a war measure as was the closing of the bars in Ontario by legislative enactment.

T.H.G. DENNE FOR THE MAYORALTY?

ASKED TO RUN IN EVENT OF A CONTEST.

The municipal pot is starting to boil as nomination day draws near. On the street this morning a rumor was current that Mr. T. H. G. Denne was being urged to run for the mayoralty in the event of there being a contest. The same parties were reported to have interviewed Messrs. George Morrow and W. H. Bradburn with the intention of getting them to contest for civic honors.

PETERBOROUGH, TUESDAY, DECEMBER 5, 1916

A DEATHBED REPENTANCE.

THE CITY COUNCIL for 1916 is now on its deathbed, and perhaps it was fitting that some of the aldermen with the great change staring them in the face should suddenly develop tender consciences and repent of what they now regard as their civic trangressions. Aldermen Duncan, Evans and Langford are the three who go back on their former records on the salary reduction question. At the beginning of the year they were all for economy. Alderman Evans was the father of the compromise by which all civic salaries in excess of $750 a year were to be subjected to a ten per cent. cut.

Last night it was decided by a vote of six to three to not only restore the salaries to their original figures, but to allow all those whose compensation had been pruned the amount of the reduction. By way of a Christmas present, the civic employes will thus receive in a lump sum what was withheld from them month by month. The bonus system is becoming popular not only among captains of industry but with the outstanding figures in civic statesmanship.

Aldermen Dobbin and Edgar never favored the cut and had no change of front to make last night when the former brought in the resolution to restore the salary schedule. It was the three above mentioned who acknowledged their transgression and threw themselves upon the mercy of that most stern of all tribunals—public opinion.

The prospect of death often gives the sinner pause and induces him to confess that all these years he has been following the wrong trail. An election in sight, too, has been known to work wonders amng the men most directly concerned, and has led many a public man to desert his guns and take to the cover of the woods.

CONSCRIPTION IN THE BACKGROUND.

IT WILL BE NOTED that at the meeting in the Armories Sunday night Hon. Martin Burrell did not commit himself or the Government on the conscription issue. If he did not advocate it, he at least did not condemn the system or place it beyond the range of possibility. The Government favors the voluntary plan, as he clearly stated, but the inference was made plain that if that fails, some other means must be employed.

The slacker should know by this time what is impending. He will be given every possible chance to volunteer, but if the response to the call for recruits is not more general, some form of conscriptin must be used.

The man forced into the service will never have the same standing either during or after the war as the man who recognized his duty and did not require coercion before he could be induced to perform it.

WHERE HOSPITALS WERE LIKE HOMES.

WHEN IT WAS DECIDED to segregate the wounded Canadian soldiers, keeping them by themselves in the hospitals in Europe, the Liberal press criticized the policy as parochial. It was narrow and all but sectarian in their estimation, and would tend to widen the distinction between the British soldiers and the men from the colonies, depriving the latter of the benefit of intercourse with a class who had seen more of the world than they had. The idea of such papers seemed to be that a military hospital was a college where mental attainments are developed rather than an institution where the main business is the righting of physical ills.

That the order was popular with the men must directly concerned is evidenced in letter after letter sent by the wounded to friends in Canada. Roy Bartlett, a brother of E. H. Bartlett, of this city, and who went to the front with the University Corps of the Princess Pats, was wounded in one of the engagements in the Somme fighting line and was sent to an English hospital. The treatment that he received was all that any man could ask for, but he was among perfect strangers and could neither meet a former comrade in arms or see any one from his native land.

When the new order went into effect Mr. Bartlett was transferred to a Canadian hospital, and the new surroundings were at once apparent. The first day he was there he found among his fellow-patients forty or fifty men from Canada whom he had previously met either in the training camps or on actual duty. Besides that there were over a dozen men from Brampton, his home town, under treatment for wounds, former schoolmates who hadeenlisted in different units. The place immediately began to look like home, and the effect upon the patients was naturally to hasten their recovery. Sick men are more fortunate under such surroundings than when they see no faces but those of perfect strangers.

Roy Bartlett is one Canadian hero who will carry with him to his grave the marks of his gallantry. He will be a cripple for life, having practically lost the use of one leg. His has been a stirring military experience.

Bartlett had completed a theological course and had preached two years as a Baptist pastor. When the war broke out he was studying medicine in order to qualify as a medical missionary. He believed that he could do better work for his country as a private in the ranks than as a preacher in the pulpit, and he accordingly enlisted. In one of the engagements on the Somme he and sixty comrades were pinned into a shell pit which contained layer upon layer of the dead bodies of German soldiers, and they were forced to stay for four days and nights amid these ghastly surroundings. Airplanes were flying overhead in an effort to locate them, and scouting parties of the enemy were looking for them on all sides. They had no water, and all the food they had was meat that had become putrid. The stench from the corpses was horrible, and when starvation forced them to eat the meat they became sick.

When they were finally relieved they were passing through a hail of artillery when a shell burst near Bartlett, blowing him high into the air. That finished his active service, and now he is on the list of those who are to be sent home as soon as transprtation can be secured.

The hospitals are becoming so crowded that just as soon as a Canadian patient is able to stand the strain of the trip he is sent home in order to make room for those who are arriving daily from the front.

ONE REMEDY OVERLOOKED.

THOSE WHO COMPLAIN so loudly of the high cost of living have overlooked one remedy which might be resorted to in order to relieve them of the burden which sits so heavily on their shoulders. The Canadian Government could prohibit the exportation of foodstuffs to Europe so as to keep up the supply at home. The Allied armies fighting for the civilization of the world could be allowed to starve. This would be one way to hasten the conclusion of the war.

What matters the fate of the phalanxed heroes so long as the wants of the grumblers are provided for at a modicum of cost?

A HOME FOR THE EXHIBITION.

AT THE MUNICIPAL ELECTION one year ago the voters were asked to pass on a proposition to expend $30,000 for the present site of the Exposition. They rejected the plan by a considerable majority.

It is now proposed to spend an amount which at the lowest estimate and by the most careful management will exceed $30,000 in order to get a new home for the Exhibition in connection with the sewage disposal plant. No alderman should feel justified in favoring such an outlay with the verdict of the people before him and only a year ago delivered.

The law calls for the establishing of a sewage disposal plant. To build it on the eleven-acre site upon which the city holds an option would comply with all the requirements of the provincial regulations. That is all that the city can reasonably be expected to do.

If it is decided later to help out the Exhibition directors, the present site can be secured at less cost than the new one proposed, and the present site is the more desirable from every point of view.

COMMERCIALIZING CHRISTIANITY.

"BILLY" SUNDAY, the noted evangelist, says that he has been offered a cool million dollars to appear in the movies, but has turned down the proposal because he has no desire to identify himself with a scheme to commercialize Christianity.

Some genius with a turn for statistics has figured that Mr. Sunday's converts, at the rate he is paid for his services, cost something over $2000 each. That certainly looks something like commercialism. The evangelist, in his refusal to face the camera, has simply made a distinction without a difference, and has objected not so much as a matter of principle as with regard to methods.

NOTES AND COMMENT.

A GUILTY CONSCIENCE is its own accuser, and the slacker in Peterborough puts his own label upon himself.

ANY PETERBOROUGH GIRL who falls in love with a slacker at least demonstrates the truth of the maxim that love is blind.

SOME WAY OR OTHER it seems that the little nations, whether they are friends or enemies of the Allies, get the worst of it.

• • • •

IT IS EASY TO TALK about how the war should be conducted, so long as there is no responsibility in the matter of meeting the bills.

SOME NEW DANCES are to be introduced this season. Well, one comfort is they cannot be worse than several of the old ones that might be mentioned.

BUT EVEN the student of European geography is perhaps not more perplexed than is the Canadian who essays to follow the line of argument pursued in the average Grit newspaper.

CORRECT USE OF LANGUAGE IS THE HALLMARK OF REFINEMENT

Two girls attending the Public School were discussing school problems the other day, and one of them remarked to the other, "Well, I don't see the good one bit of us having to learn grammar!" The other, not noticing the grammatical blunder right there, rejoined, "Nor me."

Neither of those girls, though at school for years, could see the errors which a lack of grammar had led them into. Probably 95 per cent. of us are like them; we never perceive the good of grammar, and we go on all through life making the plainest grammatical blunders through ignorance.

Perhaps if a more interesting method of teaching grammar was adopted it would not seem such a hopeless task for either teacher or children. Perhaps if more frequently a "grammar bee" was held the results would be to create greater interest amongst the children, who could in that way be taught the errors to avoid and what is right to say in ordinary language.

"Little as children can see of value in grammar," remarked a prominent educationist. "I should like to impress upon them that it means much to them in after life to be able to use proper language, and know that they are using it. Such a knowledge not only makes them pleasant and attractive speakers, but the use of our mother tongue is an index to our bringing up and often our social position. Not always the latter, of course, for persons occupying good social positions are sometimes the worst offenders, their blunders arising either from carelessness or that want of knowledge of grammar that our children should be guarded against. Of one gentleman it is recorded that when he was elected to the chairmanship of an influential body he nearly scandalized every one of his colleagues at the close of each meeting by asking, 'Are there any more business?'

"There is, of course, no excuse except lack of knowing better for anyone making such a break. There are, however, many phrases in general use that the teachers should guard the children against, such as the use of "It is me," "between you and I," etc., which, however they have attained general use, are not likely to attain literary-standing. The children must be made to understand that there are certain words and phrases which are touchstones indicative of a person's breeding. It is true that the standard is somewhat nebulous; that even "the best usage" is transitory and conventional; our language, like our morals, being still in the process of evolution. Nevertheless, the use of certain phrases stands as evidence of social training.

"The children need to be impressed with the fact that the individual is more instinctively placed by his language than by his clothes. Some take decided objection even to the person who, in response to an introduction, says, "Pleased to meet you.' Even more objectionable, in the eyes—or to the ears—of the well bred, it the use of the term lady-friend or gentleman-friend. 'Pants' instead of trousers, is reckoned a vulgarism. To preface a remark with 'say,' by way of attracting attention is as bad as the universal use of 'Hello' as a salution. 'Ain't' is a word belonging to children and the uneducated.

"These, it is true, are the expressions used by the uneducated; others there are, though, who forget themselves and use either such expressions or others equally as offensive to good taste or good grammar. Let the children appreciate the value of their grammar lessons, and they may avoid at least the worst of these blunders, and, in time, possibly use only the choicest and most correct figures of speech."

Embezzled Funds of Employers and Kept Stolen Money in Company's Safe

Adolph J. Loeffler, a young clerk in the employ of a New York firm of wholesale grocers, explained how he managed to buy $35,000 worth of furniture, keep three automobiles and one liveried chauffeur, pay $2,000 a year rent for his seven room apartment, run a cigar business and spent $5,000 a month keeping up appearances—all on his salary of $25 a week. He said he had embezzled between $100,000 and $125,000 from the grocery concern that paid him the twenty-five per.

George W. Morgan, attorney for the defrauded firm, said that $75,000 might cover the firm's losses, but auditors are still at work on Loeffler's private books and on the office accounts, and the amount of the thefts will not be ascertained until later.

An Eye for Economy

Until a few months ago Loeffler kept the money he had stolen from the firm in a safe in the company's offices. He had a head for business and didn't want to pay out anything for a private safety deposit box when he could use the safe without charge. He also bought from the defrauded firm the cigars he used in his business and obtained favorable prices from his employers.

Not only did the cigar stands make money for him, but they proved to be convenient when anyone began to wonder where all his money was coming from. His friends knew he wasn't paying his chauffeur $25 a week out of his salary as a clerk, and they figured that the tiger skin rugs and other luxuries in his apartment represented the profits on the cigar business.

His good-looking wife of 25, who was a stenographer in the company's offices until he married her two years ago, likewise attributed their prosperity to the tobacco venture. She also had been surprised when they moved from their $35 a month apartment at 916 Southern Boulevard, The Bronx, to their pretentious home in West Eighty-sixth street, but accepted his explanation.

Leoffler is a Bohemian, 30 years of age. The executives of the firm and the freight brokers who had dealings with him regarded him as a steady young man without any great possibilities as a financier. He dressed without ostentation even when he was making $1,000 a week by means of his forgeries.

EDITOR'S MAIL

Editor Review: Figures recently published show that the population of Monaghan township is something like 2,000. Whence the recent increase?

This is easily explained: The high rate of taxation in the city is driving the people out of Peterborough into the suburbs. Note, for example, the little town that has sprung up in the vicinity where it is now proposed to erect the sewage disposal plant. There is no inducement any longer for a poor man to attempt to build or buy a home of his own in Peterborough. The taxes are too high. If the rate keeps on increasing there will be a general exodus of our people across the city limits into the surrounding townships where land is fairly cheap and taxation is reasonable.

PREPARING TO FIGHT WITH THE TEUTONS

GREEK KING IS SAID TO BE MOBILIZING FOR MOVE AGAINST ALLIES.

LONDON, Dec. 5.—According to some special despatches of the Athens correspondents, filed on Sunday at Piraeus, where the Allies control the telegraph lines, the situation in Greece is one justifying Lord Robert Cecil's statement that it was of "extreme gravity" for the Allies.

These despatches represent that last week's fighting in Athens was the result of a "deliberate trap, treacherously prepared by the king and government," 25,000 troops being disposed around the positions which Vice-Admiral du Fournet had previously notified the Greek Government he would occupy. These troops then attacked the Allies, who numbered 3,000. The latter fought until their ammunition was exhausted and then yielded, except a detachment of 100, who tried to cut their way through. Only thirty of these escaped.

According to the same accounts, King Constantine is quietly mobilizing and preparing for war against the Allies, intending to co-operate with a section of Field Marshal von Mackensen's forces, which it is expected at the Monastir front by attacking Gen. Sarrail's flank.

It is also stated that the Greeks are advancing on Piraeus.

THAT'S DIFFERENT.

Dr. Bigdome had told his breathless audience that a drop of water on the point of a needle contains 8,399,465.04 microbes, 5,446,570 bacilli and 9,676,888 germs, that a ffumpagen ray of light travels eighty billion miles a second and that the spordiforous shad contains 90,865 bones, and now he was ready to impart the real climax of his revelations.

Slipping into his vest pocket the olive he had been sucking, he said, "And now, ladies and gentlemen, I want to tell you something about the famous seven seas. If, ladies and gentlemen, the water was to be pumped from the oceans of the world at the stupendous rate of 600,000.03 gallons a second, it would take 12,000,000 years to empty them!"

A gasp of astonishment rose toward the ceiling, and Dr. Bigdome paused to drink in the effect. It was then that a pale worried looking man rose from his place in the back of the room.

"May I ask a question?" he quavered.

"Certainly, certainly, I trust —I am broadminded," smiled the eminent lecturer.

"Well, where would they pump the water to?" asked the pale one.

By cleverly simulating a fainting fit, Dr. Bigdome avoided answering.

A certain politician has the happy knack of being able to pary inconvenient interruptions with some smart retort that immediately quashes the opposition. He was speaking at a rather noisy meting not long ago and after a short time a big lump of wood was thrown at him. Fortunately, the aim was bad, and it fell harmlessly on the platform.

The speaker picked it up and showed it to the audience.

"Good heavens " he exclaimed in tones of mock anxiety; "one of our opponents has lost his head!"

The Third Degree Again

A famous captain who was stupid, but brave, ignorant, but willing to learn, once had a suspect in the "third degree" room and was endeavoring to find out who were his accomplices.

"Vere ver you last night?" asked the captain.

"In the back of Blank's saloon."

"Vas vas you doing?"

"I was playing solitaire," answered the suspect.

"Ach! Now I have you,' shouted the officer, "Who vas you playing solitaire with?"

WHAT HON. MR. BURRELL IS DOING FOR THE EMPIRE

Cabinet Member Who Spoke in Armouries Sunday Night is Purchasing Agent For the Allied Nations.

Hon. Martin Burrell, Minister of Agriculture in the Borden Cabinet, who addressed a meeting in the Armories Sunday night, was referred to by Chairman R. R. Hall, Col. Ackerman and other speakers, as a busy man who at great personal sacrifice came from Ottawa to help the 247th Battalion. The war has doubled the duties of Mr. Burrell. Since the war started his department has purchased for the British authorities hay, oats and flour to the value of nearly fifty-two million dollars. Without agents or commissions, quietly and unostentatiously, the department, under the direction of Hon. Martin Burrell, has made these enormous purchases and has saved hundreds of thousands of dollars for Great Britain and put millions in the pockets of the farmers of Canada.

In Oct., 1914, the Minister of Agriculture was asked if his department would undertake the purchase of hay for Great Britain. Mr. Burrell at once complied and an organisation for the purpose was perfected. A plant with government compressors was established in Montreal which at the height of the season handles six thousand tons a week, employing five hundred men. There are also government compressors in New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island.

A Plant in Alberta

The compressing plant in Montreal has been in operation almost continuously since it was first started, the only exception being for a short time when the crop of 1915 had been exhausted and before that of 1916 was available. In 1915 when there was a shortage of hay in the east two compressors were sent to Alberta, where there was a good crop of timothy hay, and were located at Calgary. An extremely low freight rate was secured and between fifteen and sixteen thousand tons, a few hundred tons of which were upland prairie hay, were secured in that province. This was the first hay which was ever shipped out of Alberta.

At the same time the Department undertook the purchase of hay Mr. Burrell was asked to look after the purchase of oats for the British War Office. This also has grown to be an enormous business. The supply of oats is secured chiefly in the West, and shipped from Fort William and Port Arthur by lake steamers to Georgian Bay ports, Port Colborne, Kingston and Montreal. Owing to the high water rates during 1916 it has been possible to ship all rail to Montreal or West St. John at practically the same cost as by water.

The War Office was so pleased with the manner in which the Department of Agriculture had handled the purchases of hay and oats that a year ago Mr. Burrell was requested to undertake the purchases of flour. A flour expert was sent out from London to assist in the matter. The plan followed in purchasing flour was as follows: A standard specification for a straight grade flour to contain not more than 18 per cent. of moisture was sent out generally and all mills were invited to deposit a five pound type sample on this specication. If the sample was satisfactory it was registered and put aside as the basis of any future offers that might be made by the mill submitting it. Qualified inspectors are located at the different seaboard points to draw samples from every car, compare these with the type sample and also forward a sample to the Dominion chemist at the Experimental Farm for moisture determination. Any excessive moisture over the amount allowed in the specification is debited to the contractor.

Summary of Purchases

The following is a summary of the purchases of hay, oats and flour to October, 1916: Hay, 370,891 tons; oats, 692,789 tons, 40,752,320 bush., 17,310,736 bags; flour, 202,374 tons, [illegible] bush., 5,611,472 bags.

In sending these huge supplies overseas 39 transports were fully or partially loaded up to October 1st. For the inland movement of the baled hay, oats and flour it has required about 60,000 railway cars, or equal to 1,500 trains of 40 cars each.

In the purchase of thes supplies there has been expended to Oct. 1, the sum of $51,362,282.06.

The organization and general management of this business is in the hands of Mr. J. A. Ruddick, Dominion Dairy Commissioner. He is assisted in the operations by Mr. W. W. Moore, chief of the markets division of the dairy branch, and Mr. J. L. Grant of London, England, assists in the purchase of flour.

The Installing Master

After the closing of the lodge the brethren adjourned to the dining hall, where a banquet had been prepared by Bro. T. H. Hooper, to which ample justice was done.

The following toast list was then presented:—

"The King and the Craft."

"The Grand Lodge of Canada in the Province of Ontario," replied to by Rt. Wor. Bro. Duncan Walker.

"The Visiting Brethren," proposed by Bro. E. B Fowler, coupled with the name of Bro. (Rev.) R. G. Peever.

"Our brethren Overseas," proposed by Bro. Ryerson Ritchie

Right Wor. Bro. Kenner made reference to the members of the lodge overseas and presented the Wor. Master with a roll of honor of the enlisted members, suitably framed, as a gift to the lodge, on which was inscribed the names of Bros. Major Keith G. Lech, Lieut. John A. McNabb, Lieut. Angus A. Richardson, Lieut. Walter G. Worth, Sergt. Jas. Abraham, Sergt. Arthur L. Kent, Sergt. Robert J. Matchett, Sergt. David G. Melton, Pte. Ernest P. Clark.

"Our Absent Brother."

The chairman paid a fitting tribute to the memory of the late Wor. Bro. W. R. G. Higgins, and that well known hymn, "Nearer my God to Thee" was sung.

"Our Sister Lodges," proposed by Wor. Bro. W. A. Logan, was replied to by Bro. W. R. Morris and Bro. G. Macdonald, of Corinthian and Peterborough Lodges respectively.

"The Newly Installed Master and his Assistant Officers," proposed by Bro. G. O. Cameron, and replied to by Wor. Bro. J. E. L. Goodwill.

"The Installing Master" was next proposed by Right Wor. Bro. W. H. Walkery.

Rt. Wor. Bro. Kenner made a most suitable reply and his address was a treat to the brethren.

The last on the list was the Junior Warden's toast.

"Happy to meet, sorry to part,
Happy to meet again."

Songs were contributed during the evening by Wor. Bro. H. Morphet, Bro. C. B. Adair, Bro. V. Roland Henry and the Royal Arthur Lodge choir.

For a Greater Canada.

There is a movement on foot in Canada having for its objective the inclusion of the Bermudas and the British West Indies in the Dominion. The inspirers of the movement include a number of prominent Canadians, who have banded themselves together as the Canadian West Indian League. The proposition has not as yet passed beyond the embryotic stage, but it is believed that the people of the islands would generally welcome the change. If the proposed union should be effected, British Honduras and British Guiana—and possibly the far away Falkland Islands—might also be included in the consolidation. Newfoundland, which has hitherto persistently refused to become a part of the Dominion, would probably relent and thus complete the unification of British America, if the rest of Britain's colonies in the Western Hemisphere should get together.

Newfoundland has a population of about 250,000, and the other British American colonies have altogether rather more than two million people. The white inhabitants of the Bermudas constitute about two-fifths of their population, but the whites in the British colonies to the southward hardly exceed two per cent. of the inhabitants. The proposed annexations would prove a drain upon the Dominion treasury, but would result in a profitable trade between Canada and its tropical friends. The great prosperity which has come to Porto Rico since the Stars and Stripes were raised over it would, although in a lesser measure, be experienced by the British American tropics under a free interchange of products with Canada. The Canadian market itself is a great one and Canada can consume all the sugar, tobacco, and other products that the British American tropics have to sell.

No man ever does as much today as he is going to do tomorrow.

THE SYLPH.

NEW JEWELRY.

The Fad For Jade Green and Oriental Beads Is On.

Mandarin necklaces and oriental jewels are in popular favor with society. Mandarin chains always contain 108 beads, no matter whether those beads be of carved wood, filigree ornaments or nuts or cherry seed, colored glass, semi-precious stones and precious stones. A mandarin chain is also known by the flat and carved stone pendants strung upon a flat silk tape in the middle and the two chains dangling, one short and one long, on either side of this piece. Each dangle possesses its own meaning, as do the pendants and the colors. The warm colors and exotic shapes of oriental jewels have caught fashion's fancy. The necklaces match the jade bracelets and the jade hair ornaments.

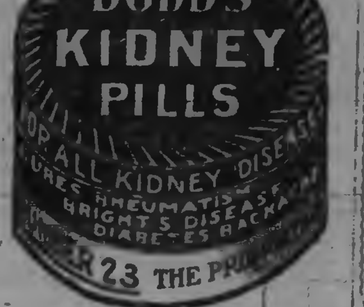
Not the King.

When the King was in Scotland recently he promised to review a boys' brigade.

At the last minute, however, his Majesty was forced to cancel the engagement, and a local personage was hastily substituted; but the managers of the affair thought it only right to notify ticket purchasers that royalty would not be present.

Presently a small boy who was to take part in the parade came along with a request for two tickets for his parents. He was told of the disappointment in store for them.

"Oh," said the lad, "they'll nae be disappointed! It's no the King that faither and mither are comin to see—it's me!"



CUT FLOWERS

Tips About Their Arrangement In Different Shaped Bowls.

Flowers to be cut for use in vases must have long stems. Dahlias are especially fine for vase use. Do not crowd into a vase flowers enough to supply half a dozen vases. When grouping cut flowers remember that quality and not quantity is what should govern. Have stalks long enough to lift them well above the vase in which they are placed. Before cutting blossoms, study the general appearance of the plant from all sides. Let the plant itself tell you how its blossoms should be clustered.

Short stemmed flowers should be placed in low, flat bowls. They are especially attractive for table decoration. Pansies and nasturtiums are in this class. Nasturtiums are particularly effective in bowls of old blue or delicate green china or in glass bowls with the delicate green stems showing through the glass. These flowers may be used in thick clusters. Use with the blossoms a few of the leaves, but never combine other foliage with these flowers. Peonies are beautiful when placed in a wide mouthed vase that permits them to arrange themselves naturally.

Sweet peas should be cut with the longest possible stems and no attempt made to arrange them before they are put into vases. Use only white, pink, pale yellow and lavender together. The deep colored do not harmonize well with the delicately colored. Drop a handful into a vase, give it a shake and each flower will seem to settle into the place where it belongs.

A Printer's Problem.

Marie hit upon a problem the other day more perplexing than George it's apple dumpling. She peered between the uncut leaves of a magazine and said:

"Mother, how did they ever get the printing in there?"

OPPOSITION TO GASOLINE PUMP

BUT COUNCIL GIVES PERMISSION TO A. BROWN.

LESS CONGESTION.

Frank White and sixteen other property owners on Water Street between Simcoe and Hunter, petitioned the City Council last night to disallow the request of A. Brown & Co. to instal a gasoline pump and tank in front of 385 Water Street. They feared traffic congestion.

Messrs. A. Brown, B. Manning and C. McClelland were heard in support of the application. All of them pointed out that quicker service to auto owners meant less congestion on Water Street and if the signers of the petition against the gasoline pump would have courage enough to tell the owners of cars who left them standing in front of their offices too long, to move along, the difficulty of congestion would be remedied. Water Street was too important a thoroughfare to be a resting place for autos.

Permission to instal the pump was granted by the adoption of the report of the Committee of the Whole Council.

BACK TO THE COMMITTEE

No Headway Made in Negotiations With Quaker Oats Co.

The closing of Mill and Murray Streets was before the City Council again last night, when the Committee of the Whole Council in their report made the following recommendation:—

"That the City Engineer submit a plan for the opening of a street from London Street to the river and the extension of Hazlett Street to the river and also the location of the proposed bridge across the river, to Mr. Denham, and that in submitting it, the proposal be made that the Quaker Oats Co. make an exchange of the land for the streets from London Street and Hazlett Street to the river for Mill Street and the ends of Murray and London Streets without any conditions.

Not Playing Fair

Ald. Stratton strenuously objected to this claim as it was not playing fair with the Quaker Oats Co. The Council had practically agreed on a proposition which was satisfactory to the company and protected the city and he could not see why the city should go back on it.

Mayor Duffus thought it had been settled. The Quaker Oats Co. were deserving of every consideration. He thought that the clause should go back to the Committee of the Whole.

Ald. Edgar was of the opinion that the Quaker Oats Co. wanted Murray and Mill Streets more than Peterborough wants the other land. He was prepared to do anything for the company and would support the original agreement if the time restrictions in which to build the bridge were eliminated. He thought an unconditional exchange was the right one.

Ald. Langford agreed with Ald. Edgar. If the Quaker Oats Co. were not willing to extend the time, they should pay a considerable portion of the cost of the bridge.

Ald. Weir was not in accord with the views of Ald. Edgar and Langford. It was no right to go back on the agreement arranged with Mr. Denham for the company.

Ald. Duncan seconded the resolution and it was referred back.

Ald. Edgar: What good will 66 ft roadway do you with a time limit.?

Mayor Duffus: The company no doubt wanted to expedite the building of the bridge by putting in the time limit.

It is understood that the Quaker Oats Co. had agreed to the city's request for a 66 ft. roadway on Hazlett Street.

The amendment to refer the clause back to the committee carried.

REBATE ON LICENSE.

Council Give Consideration to W. J. Spence's Case.

W. J. Spence, owner of the Arcade barber shop and pool room, asked the Council last night to grant him a pool room license for three months as his lease expired in February. Mr. Spence was informed that he would have to take the license out for a year and the Council passed a resolution granting him a rebate for the unexpired term.

DEBENTURES FOR $10,000

By-laws were passed by the City Council last night authorizing the issuing of $10,000 debentures for the benefit of the Peterborough Utilities Commission and one ratifying an agreement with the Peterborough Protestant Home whereby the city will pay $2.50 per week for indigent patients instead of $8 per month as formerly.

Review Want Ads. Bring Results.

INSTALMENT DEBENTURES SUGGESTED

FOR $60,000 REQUIRED FOR THE PATRIOTIC FUND.

BYLAW HELD UP.

Canadian Patriotic Fund debentures for $60,000 caused no little discussion at the City Council last night when Ald. Stratton introduced the by-law authorizing the issue.

All kinds of suggestions were offered as to the best way to issue them.

Ald. Langford wanted them issued in blocks of $5,000 a month to save interest.

Ald. Edgar, Duncan and Saunders knew of many citizens who would prefer to pay the money at once and be done with it.

Ald. Stratton pointed out that to do this meant 5 mills on the dollar.

Mayor Duffus would like to see the instalment debenture tried on this issue.

The decision was finally made to lay the by-law over.

GREAT PICTURE AT THE STRAND

McCUTCHEON'S FASCINATING STORY "NEDRA" IS PRODUCED.

The Pathe Film Co. in their dramatization of Geo. Barr McCutcheon's novel "Nedra," have produced a very entertaining screen story. The elopement at the opening of the play is humorously treated, while the wreck scene is very thrilling. The finish, when the hero comes back after all his adventures, and finds his prospective bride just getting married to a rival, is very well handled. The scenes in the South Seas are particularly fine. Geo. Probert, as hero, supported by Fania Marinoff and Margaret Greene, are shown to good advantage in this splended Gold Rooster production. The policy of the Strand is to give its patrons the best in films, well put on the screen, not raced through the machines in order to give quantity at the expense of the eyes of patrons and the naturalness of the pictures. "Nedra" is on tonight and tomorrow at the Strand.

MOTOR TRUCK PURCHASE IS REFERRED BACK

COMMITTEE INSTRUCTED TO GET PRICES AND MAKE REPORT.

NOT BUY THIS YEAR.

The Fire, Water and Light Committee's report recommending that a motor truck be purchased for the fire department was referred back to the committee last night, with instructions to get prices as per the specifications drawn up under the direction of Chairman Evans. The report had recommended a hose truck at a cost not to exceed $2,000.

Ald. Langford, while he had opposed the $8,500 combination truck and engine, fell in line with the committee. It was his idea exactly.

Ald. Stratton thought that it would be impossible for the committee to get the truck delivered this year, so that there would be no chance of paying for it out of the surplus appropriation of the committee this year.

Ald. Evans: Cannot we order it and pay for it now.

Ald Stratton: It would not be good business. You cannot do it.

Ald. Edgar, while in favor of the motor truck, thought it had been brought up too late in the year.

Mayor Duffus and Ald. Dobbin were both in favor of the truck but questioned getting one equipped as per the specifications submitted by Chairman Evans for $2,000.

Chairman Evans thought he could but the Council thought otherwise, and sent the question back with instructions to the committee to get prices and report.

The Peterborough Manufacturers' Association wrote the Council asking that the fire department be motorized.

OFFICIALS' SALARIES RESTORED MAKE GOOD AMOUNT OF THE CUT

Aldermen Lean on Prop of "Changed Conditions" as Support for their Action---Took Ald. Langford Nearly One Year to Realize His Mistake.

Peterborough city employees whose salaries were cut at the time the Council struck the rate for 1916 will have the amount of their cut given them as per resolution of the City Council last night. This will apply to those officials who did not benefit by increases made by private or other sources.

Ald. Dobbin moved, seconded by Ald. Edgar that in view of the changed conditions and the high cost of living, etc., at the present time, and which were not taken into consideration at the time the reduction was made, that the City Council restore the salaries to the old figure and the employees affected be paid the amount of cut made during the year.

Ald. Stratton Opposed

Ald. Stratton: How much money will this involve? We started out to be economical this year and fixed our estimates on that basis. The city was short in some departments but because the Fire, Water and Light Committee had a surplus it was intended to upset the work and give away the people's money. He was opposed to it.

Ald. Langford, who was the introducer of the salary cut motion, upon being informed by the mayor that there was a possibility of the city getting paid the taxes on the Hydro Commission property, stated that whether the city got it or not he had not anticipated the changed conditions. He realized his mistake and would support Ald. Dobbin's motion.

Ald. McIntyre: How much money will this involve?

Ald. Dobbin did not know, but thought about $1,200.

Ald. Stratton: What about the fellows who got theirs from other sources?

Ald. Dobbin: It will not apply to them.

[illegible] Ald. Langford that a mistake had been made

Ald. Dobbin: It was not a mistake. It was a change in conditions.

Ald. Duncan said the mistake was made in not getting rid of the officials who were not earning their salary. He had said early in the season that if there was a surplus he would vote to give the officials their back salaries.

Ald. Saunders had voted for the cut but would not have done so if he knew that conditions would be so changed.

Ald. Evans was in line with Ald. Dobbin's motion but thought that what the manufacturers did should not be considered. Treat all alike.

Not the Firemen

Ald. Dobbin would not include the firemen.

Ald. Weir, while he would not vote for a reduction next year, was not in favor of changing this year's plans and good work. If you give it to one, give it to all.

Ald. Stratton thought it a very funny procedure to pass a salary reduction and then as election day draws near, try to make big fellows of themselves. As watchdog of the city treasury, he objected to having the matter brought up at the last moment, three weeks before election. He would leave the salaries as they stand.

Ald McIntyre on a matter of principle would oppose the motion.

Ald. Edgar pointed out that the officials concerned in the reduction had given good service all year, despite the lowered salaries and as conditions had changed he thought they were entitled to recognition.

Mayor Duffus: Are you going to pay this out of overdraft?

Ald. Dobbin: We have over $20,000 to run us for a month.

Mayor Duffus was informed that the men working on the sewer and the firemen had all had their salar- [illegible] question was passed.

The motion restoring salaries passed, the vote standing 6 to 3.

AGREEMENT WITH FIRM INTERESTED IN PLACING REFUSE BOXES.

The agreement with the Canadian National Advertising Co. for the placing of twenty refuse boxes on the streets was not ratified by the Council last night as the aldermen wanted more information on the liability of the firm to protect the city from damage suits.

Ald. Stratton, Duncan and the Mayor were opposed to the boxes on the streets, but the chairman of the Board of Works looked with eager eyes to the $900 revenue the city would receive from the privilege.

TIE VOTE ON BANK ACCOMMODATION

Bank of Montreal Will Hold Account Till New Council is Installed When Problem Will be Re-opened.

The Bank of Montreal will hold the city's bank account until after the installation of the Council of 1917 as the City Council last night, after discussing banking accommodation for some time, got hopelessly deadlocked on Ald. McIntyre's motion to transfer the account to the Bank of Toronto.

Ald. Stratton presented the report of the Finance Committee, which contained this recommendation:

"That the offer of the Bank of Toronto to furnish accommodation for the city up to $250,000 in 1917 with interest on overdrafts at 5 1-2 per cent. and allowing 3 1-2 per cent. on credits and with provision to take up the loan at current interest which the City Trust made to invest in the war loan bonds, and also to pay city debenture and coupons thereon at par in New York, Toronto and Montreal, and to take all cheques drawn on places where they have branches, at par, and where they have not branches at one eighth of one per cent. be accepted, provided their offer means that they will pay all debentures and coupons thereon at par at New York, Montreal and Toronto, issued during the time they have the city account, whether they still have the account or not, when they are due and until the expiration of the term of the debnetures and if their offer does not mean that, then that the offer of the Bank of Montreal to charge 5 per cent. on debit balances and allow 3 per cent. on credit balances, be accepted."

Ald. Stratton stated that he and Mayor Duffus had visited the Bank of Toronto and they refused to accept the conditions attached, and the Bank of Montreal had withdrawn their offer of 5 per cent. and 3 per cent. and he had the matter referred to general business.

Ald. Edgar Opposed

When the subject came up in due course Ald. Edgar moved that the bank account of the city be not changed. The Bank of Montreal had come to the city's aid when the Bank of Toronto would not grant the accommodation required to put the Hydro deal through. The Bank of Montreal would give fair rate of interest.

Ald. Stratton wanted Ald. Edgar's remarks corrected. The Bank of Toronto did not refuse to give the city the accommodation required but had urged the city against the Hydro purchase. It should not be placed in an unfair light. The committee went to Montreal and got the money from the Bank of Montreal at an exorbitant rate of interest, paying one per cent. more for interest and getting one-quarter per cent. less for credit balance. He thought that the Bank of Montreal had been paid handsomely by the city for the loan.

Ald. Saunders: In other words, they did not give any favors.

Ald. Langford: This idea originated with the Chairman of the Finance Committee and I would like to know the reason.

Ald. Stratton: The Finance Committee thought that the city was paying too much interest, particularly when the city was charged 6 per cent. by the Bank of Montreal and the county only 5 1-2 by the Bank of Commerce.

Ald. Langford thought in view of the fact that the Bank of Montreal had the city account it would have been better to ask them for better terms and if it failed, then ask the other banks.

Ald. Stratton had done his duty to his committee and to the people. The investigation was bound to save the city money, but so far as the offers of the two banks were concerned now, they stood equal.

Ald. McIntyre thought the Bank of Toronto was entitled to the account. They had given the best offer in the first place and the Bank of Montreal when they found they were low refused to abide by their offer. It was not a square deal.

Ald. Stratton: The Bank of Toronto dug up the information about the advantage of having the debentures payable in New York.

The vote was taken and the Mayor voted with the Bank of Montreal supporters and tied up the vote, so the matter will stand.

BEFORE GIVING FIXED ASSESSMENT AND LOAN.

The City Manufacturers Committee met last night and considered the application of James Ellis, who has bought the old paint mill in East City, for a fixed assessment and a loan of $500, to be repaid in five yearly instalments.

Some of the members were favorably disposed towards the request, but owing to lack of detailed information it was left over for future consideration.

Several other industries wrote to the city for information as to sites, electric power, water, etc., and the City Clerk informed the Aldermen that he had sent the information required.

SHELL KILLED ONE, WOUNDED TWO OTHERS

GR. ARMSTRONG NEAR HIS CHUM BOB THOMPSON, WHO MET DEATH.

In a letter received today by the parents of Gunner Sydney Armstrong who was reported admitted to No. 2 General Hospital, Havre, France, on Nov. 15, with a gunshot wound in the right leg, and whose chum, Gunner Robert Thompson, was killed in action on Nov. 13, he says that the same shell killed Gunner Thompson and wounded Gunners Armstrong and Warnick, the latter seriously and the former about four inches below the right knee.

Gunner Armstrong wrote from hospital on Nov. 15, the day he was admitted, and tells his friends to write to the same old address as he expects to be back on the firing line before letters get over there. He explained that with his two chums on the 13th he was working in their dug-out. A high explosive shell dropped, killing Gunner Thompson instantly and wounding the others as explained above. Letters received from Guner Thompson last Tuesday, the day his friends here were acquainted with the sad news of his death, told about the new dug-out the three fellows were preparing for themselves, and they expected to be fairly comfortable. The letters were written on Sunday, Nov. 12, and they expected to move on the following day, which was the day Gunner Thompson was killed. They had also seen Gunner Harry Carr on Sunday, the 12th.

Gunner Armstrong says that a person could not imagine his feelings to see his chum instantly killed beside him.

Fine Program at S.A. Temple, Brownton

BANQUET AND PROGRAM DREW LARGE AUDIENCE.

Standing room was at a premium at the Brownton Salvation Army Temple last night. The banquet was so well patronized that every bit of the eatables was disposed of. A few minutes past 8 o'clock the program was started and was much enjoyed by all. The Temple Band helped much, but special mention must be made of Mrs. T. Lang and her company, who did so well with the presentation of the "Prince of Peace." Other numbers were real good. Mr. R. C. Braund gave some interesting statistics and a statement of the finances. About forty dollars was realized last night. Adjutant McElhiney was chairman of the meeting and thanked all most heartily for their hard work.

Dear Sir:

I have the honor to report the receipt on the 29th inst. of a specimen consisting of portions of the lung and kidneys forwarded to the laboratory by Thomas Johnston, V.S., Peterborough, Ont.

Microscopic examination of the material in question reveals the tumor to be a benign growth technically known as "fibroma."

If the carcass is emaciated it should be condemned as unfit for human consumption.

RECEPTION COMMITTEE TO TAKE UP QUESTION.

ALSO THE QUEBECKERS.

Will Peterborough entertain the "Bon Enteate" delegation from Quebec? Ald. Dobbin introduced the matter to the aldermen last night and it was left with the reception committee to deal with. Acceptance of the invitation to the party has not been received.

Permits were given for patriotic and recruiting banners across the streets.

The reception committee will consider how best to entertain the wives and children of overseas soldiers on Christmas Day. Captain Burnham, M.P., has sent through Mayor Duffus $50 for such a purpose and others may like to help.

The city decided to purchase a flag from All Saints hurch bazaar at a cost of $4.

The Mayor and City Clerk were authorized to sign an agreement with the C.P.R. regarding a crossing at Hunter Street to the Quaker Oats property.

A special meeting of the club members will be held on Monday evening to ballot for sixteen new applications for membership.

BOOMING FRANK CHANCE TO SUCCEED J. TINKER

CHICAGO, Dec. 5. —Admirers of Frank Chance, former Cub manager, apparently would like to see him return to Chicago to replace Joe Tinker. Reports with little substance to them are again circulated that he has been negotiating with President Weeghman and has submitted his terms for a period of two years. What the terms amount to has not been disclosed from the end from which the story emanates.

President Weeghman is not at liberty to reveal his part of the negotiations or else there is nothing to it for he denies that he has been in communication with Chance and that he has made no effort to procure him. He contends that the story has been started by some of Chance's friends on the coast.

The story is given a little tinge of truth by the statement by Johnny Powers, president of the Los Angeles Club. He was in Chicago last week and held several conferences with Weeghman. Whether it was concerning Chance or ball players is not known. Powers says in his interview that he is to lose Chance, who is going to Chicago to manage the Cubs. He adds that the terms have been submitted and will be accepted by Weeghman.

Chance strengthens the rumor a bit more by asserting on the coast that he has received communications from the Chicago club asking him to submit his terms. He was a bit reticent, but said the salary he expected would exceed that given him by the club before.

President Ebbets of the Brooklyn team, while he does not favor the 21 player limit, is not strong for a big increase, as he suggests the limit be raised to only 22 men. His suggestion may not reach very far when the National League convenes in New York Dec. 12.

Club owners of the America association will hold their annual meeting Dec. 8 at Indianapolis. The official notice was sent out by President Chivington, who will probably be reelected, despite the reports of a month ago that he was to be deposed. The league will also take up the question of playing a post-season series with the International league.

Dave Fultz, president of the Baseball Players' fraternity, is not idle these days. He is advising his members not to sign contracts for the coming season until he gives them the word. "Irish" Meusel of the Birmingham club, who was drafted by the Cubs, received a notice in Los Angeles, where he lives, not to sign until the fraternity receives its demands from organized baseball.

FOOTBALL IN U.S. TAKES 15 LIVES

ONLY ONE OF THE VICTIMS WAS COLLEGE PLAYER.

CHICAGO, Dec. 5.—Football claimed fifteen lives in the 1916 season just closed. Last year the total was sixteen; in 1914 there were fifteen deaths.

Officials identified with the sport declare that not a death occurred in any game in which the players were known to be physically as well as mentally trained for the test. Not a life was lost, they point out, in a game where a physician's examination was demanded before the contest was permitted to go on the gridiron.

In most cases those who lost their lives were members of high school, semi-pro and prairie elevens. Only one of the victims was a college player.

She Did Not Buy.

Mrs. Jenkins had a passion for the old and curious. One day when rummaging about in a bric-a-brac shop she noticed a quaint figure, the head and shoulders of which appeared above the counter.

"What is that Japanese idol over there worth?" she asked.

The salesman replied in a subdued tone:

"About half a million. That is the proprietor."

ROUND TABLE MEETING OF LOCAL COUNCIL OF WOMEN

The round table conference of the Council of Women held last Friday afternoon in the green room of the Y.W.C.A. was a splendid success.

While the knitting needles plied busily, the workers turned their thoughts to the various matters under discussion.

The President, Mrs. F. C. Neal, occupied the chair and gave an interesting account of the national executive recently held in Kingston. She reported a good attendance and an intense interest among the members in the matters under discussion. Many of the members, however, showed by their dress that the great war had bereaved them of some dear one, but they still kept faithfully on in their work of planing and thinking for the good of others.

Lady Aberdeen was present at every session and proved a great help by her sympathetic and comprehensive understanding of the work of the Council.

The members of the executive were entertained by Lady Aberdeen one evening at the Y.W.C.A. and the ladies of Kingston kindly arranged several very enjoyable functions for the visitors.

Mrs. Neal reported her success in having the resolution sent in by the Mothers' Clubs, put through at the national executive. The first part, regarding the price of wheat, had already been considered, but the executive endorsed the recommendation that a substitute for butter be allowed to be made, that cheese be made from skim-milk, and that skimmed milk be sold as a beverage.

The matter was referred back to the Mothers' Clubs for further information and a report will be made later.

Canadian-made Toys

At the local meeting on Friday the matter of Canadian-made toys was brought before the council by a letter from the Federal Government, asking women throughout Canada to patronize makers of Canadian toys. The ladies expressed their willingness to comply with this request.

The matter of setting aside each week a definite time for public prayer was discussed and a resolution passed asking the Ministerial Association to arrange for such meetings. The members requested also that an invitation be extended to the National Executive to meet in Peterborough at their next meeting.

St. John's choristers will hold the first choral practice for their recital in the church tonight at 8 o'clock. Those having copies of the "Messiah," "Come, Let Us Sing" and "Daughters of Jairus" are asked to bring them to the rehearsal tonight.

THERE IS NOTHING TO EAT

Some people have an idea that it is absolutely necessary to provide a lunch of some kind to get a crowd together, but the Red Cross are confident that the announcement that Miss Mignon Telgmann will play in a direct tone test with the New Edison in some of Albert Spaulding's beautiful violin selections, and that Miss Dorothy Allan will also sing will fill the Collegiate Audiorium on Friday evening next. Silver collection for Red Cross work.

MORE KNITTERS NEEDED

The Canadian Kitchener League are pleased to report six new members added to their roll. There is still room for more. Knitters are also needed. The league has the yarn and asks everyone who can knit not to forget the boys in the trenches. Yarn may be obtained at 481 Gilmour Street, 576 Aylmer Street, and at the Peterborough Creamery.

RARE TREAT FOR MUSIC LOVERS

MISS DORA DE LA LOWE, NOTED OPERATIC ARTIST, TO APPEAR IN PETERBOROUGH.

Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Devey attended an invitation recital of grand opera numbers given under the direction of Maestro J. A. Carboni in Toronto yesterday afternoon at the Hambourg Conservatory of Music. The artists were Miss Dora de la Lowe and Mr. Bernard.

Miss Lowe is a Canadian singer engaged at the Paris Conservatory of Music, but the war broke up the work of that institution, and before appearing in New York after Christmas Miss Lowe is spending a holiday at home in Toronto.

At the reception, on being introduced, Mrs. Devey promptly asked Miss Lowe if she would come down to Peterborough to sing, a request which was most kindly acceded to, and it was at once arranged for Miss Lowe to sing several oratorio numbers at the St. John's choir choral recital next Thursday week, Dec. 14, in St. John's Church.

The numbers as follows will likely be selected: "Rejoice Greatly" and "Come Unto Him," Messiah; "With Verdure Clad," Creation; "Hear Ye, Israel," Elijah. Miss Lowe has a wonderful range, notes B, C and D in alt being easily sung with clear soprano tones.

Sincerity and consistency are both cardinal virtues.

Look and Feel Clean, Sweet and Fresh Every Day

Drink a glass of real hot water before breakfast to wash out poisons.

Life is not merely to live, but to live well, eat well, digest well, work well, sleep well, look well. What a glorious condition to attain, and yet how very easy it is if one will only adopt the morning inside bath.

Folks who are accustomed to feel dull and heavy when they arise, splitting headache, stuffy from a cold, foul tongue, nasty breath, acid stomach, can, instead, feel as fresh as a daisy by opening the sluices of the system each morning and flushing out the whole of the internal poisonous stagnant matter.

Everyone, whether ailing, sick or well, should, each morning, before breakfast, drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver kidneys and bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and poisonous toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach. The action of hot water and limestone phosphate on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases, waste and acidity and gives one a splendid appetite for breakfast. While you are enjoying your breakfast, the water and phosphate is quietly extracting a large volume of water from the blood and getting ready for a thorough flushing of all the inside organs.

The millions of people who are bothered with constipation, bilious spells, stomach trouble, rheumatism; others who have sallow skins, blood disorders and sickly complexions are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug store, which will cost very little, but is sufficient to make anyone a pronounced crank on the subject of internal sanitation.

CAPT. JONES SPOKE

The Canadian Kitchener League and those who attended their meeting last night certainly enjoyed a rare treat. Capt. T. W. Jones, who is a splendid speaker, gave a most interesting and inspiring address on the Y.M.C.A. work among the soldiers from the time they leave home until they return home again.

P. C. 2814

Certified copy of a report of the Committee of the Privy Council, approved by His Excellency the Governor-General, of the 24th November, 1916. 651-17-22

The Committee of the Privy Council have had before them a report, dated the 8th November, 1916, from the Minister of Militia & Defence, representing that many soldiers of the Canadian Overseas Expeditionary Force are absent from their units, without leave. It is probable that the larger number of them did not, when leaving, appreciate the seriousness of their offence, and that they are now desirous of coming back, but, fearing severe punishment, hesitate to do so.

Further, soldiers of the Overseas Force, now undergoing imprisonment for "Desertion" or "Absence Without Leave" are available for service with the Force if pardoned and released from imprisonement.

The Minister therefore recommends that Your Excellency, as an act of grace on assuming the Government of the Dominion, be pleased to grant the Royal Clemency to such persons, by issuing a proclamation to the effect that these soldiers of the Expeditionary Force who are now absent without leave be pardoned for such offence, provided they surrender themselves to the Officer Commanding the unit to which they belonged, where that unit is still in Canada or if it be not, to the District Officer Commanding any Military District in Canada, not later than the 15th day of December, 1916, for the purpose of completing their engagements; and that those soldiers of the said Force who are now under sentence of imprisonment or detention for desertion or absence without leave be pardoned for such offences, be released from imprisonment or detention, and be handed over to the Officer Commanding the unit to which they belong, or to the Officer Commanding the Military District in which they are for the purpose of being returned to some other units of the Expeditionary Force in order to complete their engagements.

The Committee concur in the foregoing recommendation and submit the same for approval.

(Signed) RODOLPHE BOUDREAU
Clerk of the Privy Council

REACH GERMAN SECOND LINE POSITIONS IN TROTUS VALLEY

Berlin Admits Russ. Attack Was Successful.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

BERLIN, Dec. 6.—Russian troops again attacked yesterday in the Carpathian Woods north of Tartar Pass and on Ludova. The War Office report today says the new assaults of the Russians brought them no success. The Russians made a strong attack in Trotus Valley and succeeded in reaching the German second positions.

North of Oitus a Russian point of support was captured.

On the Western front there was again a temporary increase in the intensity of the artillery duel in the Somme sector, otherwise nothing important occurred.

Only artillery operations at one point of the Russian front are reported.

PETROGRAD, Dec. 6.—The War Office announced today: South of Pomerzany, west of Tarnopol, in Galicia, near the village of Koniukha, our scouts attacked an enemy post and captured some prisoners. Two successful reconnaissances have been made by our scouting parties on the River Bystritza in the region of Stary-Lisetz.

In the wooded Carpathians we occupied a height three versts west of Jablonitza, but in consequence of the enemy's violent artillery fire were compelled to leave. Nothing important occurred on the Caucasus front.

BONAR LAW,

The remains of the late Mrs. Miller were taken to Port Hope today for interment.

MAYOR DUFFUS WILL BE MAYORALTY CANDIDATE

Gave That Impression When Speaking at the Meeting in Labor Hall.

MAYOR DUFFUS will be a candidate for re-election beyond a doubt. He practically stated as much last night when he presided at the meeting in Labor Hall at which Mr. James Simpson of Toronto was the speaker. The Mayor made no special bid for the labor vote but solicited the support of every class in the community upon his record as chief executive of the city for the past year. This announcement is the first positive statement made by the Mayor with regard to his intentions.

He explained his position clearly. His private business is steadily increasing and demands so much of his attention that he lacks the time required for his civic duties unless he sacrifices his own interests. He is, however, working on a plan by which he hopes to so arrange his business affairs and increase the efficiency of his staff of assistants as to be left free to devote all the time and attention necessary to the affairs of the mayoralty for the coming year. If he can perfect the plan now in his mind—and he has little doubt that he can do so—he will be a candidate for re-election.

The Mayor stated clearly that he did not profess to be a business man's, a professional man's or a labor candidate. His aim was to represent every class and to safeguard every interest in the city.

There was, he said, some talk of an election by acclamation. If that courtesy is extended to him he will appreciate it as an endorsation of his administration. He thanked the public heartily for the support they have given him in every civic election in which he has been a candidate during the past seven years.

The Mayor's announcement was greeted with hearty applause by the audience. At the close of the meeting he stated he would at any time be pleased to attend meetings of the workingmen of the city to discuss public questions with the wage-earners and to give an account of his stewardship.

SECRETARY OF STATE SUMMONED BY KING

It is Presumed That Lloyd George Will be Offered the Premiership---Bonar Law, Balfour, Henderson and Asquith Also Attend Conference at the Palace.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, Dec. 6. — The Westminster Gazette says Bonar Law has declined the invitation of King George to form a cabinet, and that presumably Lloyd-George will be called on.

The Exchange Telegraph Co. says it has authority for the statement that Bonar Law has declined to form a new government.

LONDON, Dec. 6.—The King has sent for Lloyd-George.

LONDON, Dec. 6.—After receiving Lloyd-George, to whom presumably he offered the Premiership, King George summoned to the palace several members of the recent Cabinet in the hope of solving the crisis. Among those who attended were Bonar Law, Lloyd George, Balfour and Henderson. Later Mr. Asquith was summoned to the conference.

GAS PIPE WAS CAPPED BUT STOP COCK AT MAIN HAD NOT BEEN LOCKED

Coroner's Jury Recommends That Stop Cock Be Locked When Meter is Removed From Residence---Investigation Into Lauris Smith's Death.

HON. DAVID LLOYD GEORGE

Who, it is presumed, will lead the British Cabinet.

The tragic circumstances attending the death of Lauris Smith of Havelock, who was a bell boy at the Empress Hotel, were fully investigated by Coroner Dr. Greer and a jury at the Council chamber last night. In addressing the jury Coroner Greer said that all the evidence tended to indicate gas poisoning as the cause of death. The evidence of the doctors made this clear. There was no evidence to prove who disconnected the gas pipe. It was for the jury to find whether or not there was culpable negligence on the part of any person that led up to the lad's death, and whether or not the Gas Company was responsible for not disconnecting the gas at the street line.

The jury brought in the following verdict:

"We, the jurors empanelled to inquire into the death of Lorus Smith, find that deceased came to his death on Nov. 30, 1916, at 330 Water street, Peterborough, from suffocation caused by illuminating gas escaping from a disconnected gas pipe.

"We believe more safety would be afforded the public if the gas was shut off from the street line or stop cocks locked when a meter is removed from a residence, and recommend for future protection of the public that such be done. We believe that if such had been done by the company, no accident would have occurred in this case.

Alex. Ferguson, a brother-in-law of the deceased, made statements that bore evidence of suspicion held that the lad had met with foul play, but these statements were probably due to the natural feelings of the young man. He testified that after he had taken Lauris Smith's belongings to Havelock he discovered on one of the boots a small piece of a bill. He exhibited it to the coroner. "There must have been somebody in the room with him that night," said witness. "Money changed hands there that night." The boy, he said, was in the habit of sending some of his earnings home, and "he must have had more money than the amount found in his clothes on the morning of his death."

"Who told you?" asked the coroner.

"I couldn't swear who told me," witness replied.

"You don't know of his having had enemies," remarked the Crown Attorney.

"Not a one," replied the witness.

He had found the lad's boots at the head of the bed. "I don't see why he would go down there at 2 o'clock in the morning and disconnect the gas; and, if the gas was escaping for two or three hours, why others were not affected. If the boy found a leak he would be more apt to go out of the rom. I do not think it is reasonable that he would disconnect the pipe at 2 o'clock in the morning.

Mr. G. N. Graham, who had given his evidence, asked permission to make a statement. He stated that it was he who showed Ferguson the boots. "He never found money on the boots no more than I did, and he tells a falsehood when he says he found that on the boot," said witness. "He's trying to make out foul play on a child that the whole house doted on."

"Pardon me," broke in Ferguson, "but I found the money on the boot."

Farmer Gets $1006.85 for Red Clover and Alsac Seed.

John Young of Ennismore sold to George Mather today 58 bushels of red clover seed and a previous order of alsac seed, for which he received a cheque for $1006.85. This is quite a showing of seed from one farm.

REV. J.R. WEBB EXTENDED CALL TO OTTAWA CHURCH

High Honor Accorded Murray St. Church Pastor.

Rev. J. R. Webb, the esteemed pastor of Murray St. Baptist Church, who last year declined a call to Broadway Church, Winnipeg, has received an invitation to the pastorate of First Baptist Church, Ottawa, whose membership is over six hundred and the stipend to the minister $2,800. When asked for a statement today Mr. Webb said he had no idea of what he would do. The present illness of Mrs. Webb made it difficult for him to make decisions for the future.

Certainly, the congregation of Murray Street will not want to part with their pastor and the members of the Ministerial Association, while honored in the fact of one of their number being called to the First Baptist Church in Ottawa, would be sorry to see Mr. Webb leave the city.

The Ottawa Citizen says: The congregation of First Baptist Church of Ottawa last night decided to extend a call to Rev. J. R. Webb of Peterborough. The congregation has been without a pastor for almost a year, when Rev. Benjamin Goodfellow resigned. Rev. Mr. Webb is about 45 years of age and has had two charges, being five years at Point St. Charles and nine years in Peterborough. He preached here last summer. There was a large meeting when the call was extended. Ex-Ald. W. R. Stroud presided. Mr. H. P. Ross was chairman of the committee and Mr. R. A. Sproule chairman of the board of deacons.

First Baptist Church at Ottawa is a splendid edifice, being constructed of stone and situated on Metcalfe St. in the central part of the down-town section of the city. It was renovated and improved three years ago. Sir George Foster, Minister of Trade and Commerce, worships at the church.

OF SCHOOL BOARD WOMEN WANT MEMBERS

Members of the local organizations of women, including the various Mothers' Clubs and the Local Council, will renew their agitation for representation on the Board of Education. There are certainly a large number of local ladies who possess the required qualifications for the responsible position. The municipal franchise is of little avail unless it is used to some practical purpose.

The women of the city have always taken an active interest in school affairs and the teachers have found no more devoted or efficient allies. The ladies who organized and carried to success the Playgrounds Association have certainly justified any claim that they may now put forward for recognition.

SIR ROBERT OPENS TOUR

SPEAKS ON NATIONAL SERVICE AT MONTREAL TONIGHT.

OTTAWA, Dec. 6.— Sir Robert Borden opens his national service tour at Montreal tonight. He takes in Quebec Friday, going thence to the Pacific Coast and returning to Toronto December 22.

The Railway Commission has been asked to deal with railway companies and shippers in regard to the much-complained-of holding up of potato shipments.

President Creelman of the Ontario Agricultural College strongly urged elimination of waste on farms, in an address at the Winter Fair directors' luncheon.

THE CIVIC REVENUE FROM POOLROOM TABLES, $1080

Fee is $40 a Year for Every Table and 27 Are Now Under License---The Refuge of the Slacker.

The license fee charged by the city for operating pool rooms is $40 a year for each table. Last year there were 38 tables licensed and the revenue to the city from this source was $1,520. This year the number has been reduced to 27 and the amount taken in was $1,080. Even when the loss of civic revenue is considered, a majority of the ratepayers in the city would beyond a question vote for the closing of these resorts of idlers. Chief Thompson is one man who would favor a suspension of licenses.

"The Review has taken the right stand on this question," said an officer of the 247th Battalion today. "Any alderman who will take up the matter in Council and father a resolution for no more poolroom licenses will certainly strike a popular chord."

As stated yesterday, the recruiting officers find the pool rooms a hindrance to their work. They are patronized by young men who should be in uniform and the amusement even lacks the benefits that come from the physical training incident to other pastimes that are indulged in in the city.

Major Campbell, chief recruiting officer for this district, in his address at the Armories Sunday night stated that he had on the previous evening counted 47 husky young men coming out of a pool room on George St. in twenty minutes.

The bars in the province have been closed as a war measure. The City Council should not encourage slackers by licensing places in which they can congregate no matter what financial return to the city is involved.

PRIZES WON AT GUELPH

Peterboro Birds Are to the Front in Prize Lists.

Mr. Geo. McClelland's birds have been winning laurels at the poultry show of the Guelph Winter Fair. His entries won eleven prizes in Buff Orpingtons, a cockerel took first for best shape and color and Mr. McClelland captured a prize of $50 for best cockerel and pullet. In this latter contest 38 cockerels, 35 pullets, 19 cocks and 18 hens were entered, which speaks very highly of the local entries.

It will be remembered that Mr. McClelland was a big prize-winner at the Ottawa Central Exhibition this past fall.

Booming the Show

At a meeting of the Poultry Association last night Mr. Archie Brault stepped from the office of presidency to take up the duties of secretary as Mr. Arthur Ash, who was elected to the position, is out of the city. A new president will be elected next Wednesday night at a meeting in the Labor Hall.

The directors are booming the annual show in January and indications point to a successful exhibition. Entries are coming in every day. Mr. Geo. Robinson, recognized as one of the best judges of the Department, will judge the show and Miss Yates will give lectures and demonstrations.

TEACHING CHILDREN THE LAW.

SPEAKING TO the Calebites at St. Andrew's Church last night, Chief Thompson suggested that the rising generation be given a special course in school in order that they may be taught not only what the law expects of them, but to respect the officers who are charged with its enforcement. The Chief, who has every opportunity for studying human nature, seldom offers a suggestion that is not entitled to consideration.

Some cynic has said that children learn almost everything at school except what will be of practical value to them in every-day life, but every cynic is notoriously given to exaggeration. However, it must be admitted that not only the youth but the adult of the present day has but a hazy knowledge of any ordinance in force in the city and of the duties of the officers who are sworn to see that such civic enactments are not violated. Probably nine individuals in ten regard the policeman as an enemy of mankind rather than as a guardian of the public peace and the custodian to a large extent of the material interests of the people.

A child cries or disobeys some parental mandate and the mother freezes it into silence by threatening to call in the police. Is it any wonder that such a child flees for the other side of the street or darts up an alley at the sight of a man in a blue uniform or that the child grows up with the impression fixed in his mind that the constable is little better than a monster going about seeking whom he may lug off to a cell in the station-house?

The business man in Peterborough goes to bed every night, satisfied that not only his home but his factory or store will be guarded from burglars by the men who patrol the streets during the hours when the rest of the world slumbers. If fire breaks out during the night, the policeman is the man who is expected to call out the brigade. Compare life in the modern city with that in a community where every man is a law unto himself and the value of an efficient police force will be more thoroughly appreciated.

The soldier on duty is worshipped by the multitude never slow to admire bravery. The policeman is constantly in danger of his life. Then why not accord him some of the respect that is lavished upon the other man who wears the distinguishing garb?

If ignorance of the law excused those who fall foul of it, convictions would be rare. Seeing that it does not, the only remedy is instruction that will render excuses unnecessary, and, as Chief Thompson suggests, the proper time for imparting such instruction is in the days of youth when the human mind is receptive.

PREMIER ASQUITH RESIGNS.

EVER SINCE the European war started, and for months previous, Lloyd George has been the popular idol in England. He was the man upon whom the hopes of the masses have been fixed. He has been the outstanding figure in the Cabinet for the last two years of stress, the one man whose foresight and tireless energy have been unstintingly devoted to the solution of the problem that confronts the Empire. There was always an element at work to secure for Lloyd-George the place of authority where his peculiar talents could have full away.

There is ever a feeling of unrest and dissatisfaction developed in a nation—in England especially—when a war is in progress and progress is slow, no matter how efficient those directly charged with responsibility may be. No British Premier has ever during a war of long duration been permitted to finish his work. The Government may survive, but the leader is changed. It was this feeling of unrest, this perhaps unreasonable demand for greater exertions and progress, that prompted a change in the generalship in the army in order to appease the popular clamor. The public have long felt that there was ineffectiveness in dealing with the submarine problem, and a shift in the Admiralty was the result.

Premier Asquith's resignation does not necessarily mean that the people of England are discouraged by the present situation or that they doubt for a moment the final triumph of the Allies' cause. The change has been made in response to the demand for new methods, for more aggressive action. The man in whom the people repose their confidence has been chosen for leader, and a new hope has been born in the Empire.

MR. SIMPSON'S MESSAGE.

MR. JAMES SIMPSON'S message to the consumers of Peterborough, whom he addressed last night in the Labor Hall, contained two outstanding features, one political and the other economic. He would, in order to reduce the high cost of living, develop the principle of co-operation and remove the duty on foodstuffs.

Mr. Simpson recognizes the difficulties that beset the first method, due to the opposition of the regular dealers and the trouble any co-operative store has in securing supplies from the wholesalers. Yet he would keep "nibbling away" until victory was achieved.

On the tariff issue the speaker did not state from what source, in the event of the removal of the duty, any supplies would come in a time when the stock on hand appears inadequate and prices are high not only in Canada but in every country in the world. The old specious assertion sufficed him, the argument that appeals mainly to the unthinking, was all-sufficient for his purpose.

On the question of production Mr. Simpson is certainly at sea. He says that there is not a scarcity of labor on the farms, modern machinery having supplanted man-power to such an extent that men were forced from the land to earn a living in the cities. Agricultural production has been maintained at as high a standard as was ever reached, and the urban population could live in the height of luxury if the available supplies of food were properly regulated.

In this particular Mr. Simpson's case is built upon a misconception. His knowledge of bucolic topics is evidently at fault. All the modern farm machinery in the world would avail nothing unless there are men to operate them, and such men have been lacking not only in the County of Peterborough but throughout the entire Dominion. A rotary plow that turns over twenty-five acres of land a day will not work of itself.

The rate of production per acre in Canada is less that half of that of the same grains and vegetables in European countries, where intensive cultivation is practised. The farms of this country, if properly manned, could be easily made to produce twice the quantity that is now raised. Present conditions as to the proportion of population in the cities and on the farms have, after all, more to do with the cost of living than Mr. Simpson appears ready to admit.

Like every agitator, or reformer if the term is preferred, the speaker last evening relies considerably upon criticism of the Government and thrusting upon them responsibility for high prices. It is the fashion to charge the Administration with being in league with the interests. That argument is as old as agitation itself. Still, some of the statements of the lecturer will hardly survive close scrutiny. For example, he quoted the versatile Mayor Martin of Montreal to the effect that a firm of milk dealers in Quebec are shipping thousands of gallons of milk to the United States while there is a famine at home, and there disposing of it at a lower price than that which prevails in Canada.

Such a firm, if it really exists, should be made the subject of immediate government regulation. The form that this should take would be an investigation into the sanity of the individual members of a corporation that would engage in such a business enterprise as the one they are charged with pursuing.

THAT ULTERIOR PURPOSE.

AN EXCHANGE that loves the glitter and security of generalities, ventures the broad assertion that Sir Wilfrid Laurier has made more recruiting speeches than any one or even three members of the Government, and adds with a glow of triumph that he is listed to speak at several recruiting gatherings in Quebec.

Even if this statement is true—which we are by no means ready to concede—Sir Wilfrid is deserving of no special thanks. His opportunities for field work have been greater, seeing that he is not bound down by the cares of office in these trying times that tax the energies of every cabinet minister to the limit.

What may be professedly a recruiting address may really prove a broadside directed against the Government, an appeal for party rather than on behalf of the Empire. Sir Wilfrid Laurier has during the past six months made more political than recruiting addresses. It is no difficult matter to discern where his interests lie. He is listed, it is true, to deliver a number of speeches in Quebec, but the true nature of these orations will not be apparent until they are in the possession of the public.

POLITICIANS IN THE WAR.

ANY POLITICIAN who declares that there are more Liberals than Conservatives fighting in the present war is talking simply for effect that is far from effective, from a sheer lack of information, or is speaking from the depth of a malicious nature. A man's loyalty is not determined by his party affiliations. Such a theory as that went out with the passing of the nineteenth century. It probably died years before, but the obsequies were not completed until the date referred to.

If there are more Conservatives than Liberals fighting today it is simply because there are more of the former than the latter in the country. There is, however, very fortunately, no means of ascertaining the proportion of each under arms. Those in authority have wisely refrained from any attempt to take a political census of the men who enlist.

It is to the credit of the Government that no patronage has been shown in the matter of appointing commissioned officers for the various battalions. There are as many Liberals as Conservatives among these. It is a fact, however, that in one particular province the percentage of the Liberals under arms is so slight as to reduce the total. Even in that place the reason is not political, but can be traced to other sources. And the pity of it is that the slackers in that province are influenced to an abnormal degree by the examples and the precepts set before them by their leaders.

NOTES AND COMMENT.

THERE IS an official diet squad in Chicago and many in the different homes in Peterborough.

EVEN $1200 judiciously distributed should warm up at least a percentage of the city voters.

EVEN WRAPPING-PAPER has gone up in price. That is hard to explain as less is needed, there not being as much to wrap up.

THE OLD-FASHIONED MAN who finds a $300 pearl in his oyster stew has not, so far this season been heard from, but he is coming as surely as the morning after Christmas.

THE GLOBE dies hard. It still sticks to that old fallacy and argues that if reciprocity had been adopted in 1911 there would have been no high cost of living problem today.

SANTA SHIFTS TOY FACTORIES FROM BAVARIA TO CANADA

Santa Claus has moved his workshop from the forest fastnesses of Bavaria to a permanent location in Canada. At least local dealers who are in close touch with good old St. Nick of the reindeer and pack say that after two years of experimentation and improvement since the war cut off the European supply, the Canadian toy has come into its own for all time.

There is no shortage of playthings apparent in the gay confusion of heavily packed shelves and counters of the toy sections in the Peterborough stores. And the "Made in Canada" mark runs triumphantly through the list, from dolls to miniature battle ships. The foreign built toys on display this year are principally imported from Japan or are stocks which the buyers bought two years ago.

"Europe can't touch us now," declared a buyer for one big store. "Canadian manufacturers have had two years in which to work up the art and the old country will never get the trade back. Of course there are some things in which the makers here, where goods are turned out in huge quantities, can never hope to equal the toymakers of the old world, and dealers will be glad to get the European wares, but they will use them only as 'sweeteners' for the home made stock. Canadian toymakers increased their business by millions this year."

The "big thing" this season in the toy line comes under the classification of constructive toys.

"It is an era of educational toys," declared one buyer.

Host of Constructive Toys

"Constructive outfits of elaborate and extensive character both of wood and metal are attracting much attention in the stores. Bridges and trestles, windmills, skyscrapers, models of machinery—even aeroplanes and gunboats—all fashioned from these sets of metal or wood materials are on display. Along this same line one may see implements for the manufacture of miniature cement blocks with plans for the erection of exact reproductions on a small scale of modern buildings.

The influence of the war on the child imagination is seen in vast arrays of lead soldiers and the appurtenances of the battle field. These toys are almost entirely of Canadian output and are said to excel the previous European brands. Electrically propelled submarines and destroyers are offerings in the naval department.

Automobiles of the foot power type have this year, besides gear shifts, foot brakes, etc., pneumatic tires. There are a number of new departures in the velocipede line, vehicles for the youngster of two years and all ages thereafter.

Doll Department Rallying

The doll departments were hardest hit by the stoppage of European markets. The beautiful bisque dolls of former years are scarce, but the domestic substitute, styled "novelty stuff," makes a very attractive display and is said to be well liked by the shoppers and youngsters.

WORK OF WOMEN IN BERLIN

In Berlin today a group of women are slowly turning the windlass which is pulling heavy laden telephone cable from under the Unter den Linden pavement. They are strong, these women, and are doing the heaviest work.

Women dig the new underground, women are excavating for the new Berlin harbor. Women drive the great yellow express wagons so often seen on Berlin streets. A woman takes tickets at the underground station. A woman delivers mail and telegrams. A woman drives the street car, a woman collects fares.

The great revolution has come without firing a shot, without storming a barricade, and in the land which seemed the hardest for women to win their economic freedom. The public accepted the first woman employes uncomplainingly as signs of war, and as the women have entered into every form of economic life the public has more and more become used to the idea. The woman is accepted a a matter of course.

The old arguments about the fitness of women for many branches of men's work are sure to be raised after the war, and women themselves hope that in certain employments now open to them they will not be needed. The heavy digging, the heavy carrying, are not permanently women's work.

But the old arguments also used to be that women were incompetent to do certain kinds of work which required masculine coolness, mechanical knowledge and presence of mind.

But the experience of the Berlin street railways has been that women make as good employes as the men. Many a car is run by women, and no line is without the "Schaffnerin" and "Fahrerin."

"We have found that there is no difference in correctness and honesty between the accounts of men and women employes," says the directors.

"So far as motormen are concerned we learned that a final judgment on the men could not be passed until they had been in service several years. That will be true also of women, who have now been in service only a short time. Up to the present the prospects are not at all bad. There has been no increase of accidents since the employment of motorwomen."

It is impossible to foretell what effect the employment of so many women will havt on their status after the war. Certainly the men at the front will get gack their positions. But that the men are anxious about the new developments is shown by the votes in many of the trade unions against the employment of women, and the linotype union so far has held out successfully against female competition. It may be expected that women who have done men's work successfully will not be so ready to grant masculine supremacy and the ranks of suffrage advocates will undoubtedly have many recruits after the war who base their demands, not on theory, but on actual practice. If the radicals believe they are entitled to more political rights in reward for their war service, the women can present their case in the same light and as impressively.

Music of Old Coffee Grinder Sounds Dirge of the High Cost of Living

These are the days of adaptation and the rejuvenation of old institutions.

The old mill with the moss covered overshot wheel and the jovial dusty miller with his mild scale of tolls have long since faded into the nebulous past. But many a family still cherishes in its possession the ancient coffee mill. And many a housewife has lately taken down and dusted that once honored utensil and cramming it full of corn and beans and wheat, has ground out a symphony to health that sounded like a dirge to the high cost of living.

Whole Wheat Bread in Favor

Whole wheat bread, the product of the home ground cereal, is daily growing in favor, it is declared, and the cornmeal mush and corn cakes which mother turns out of the creaking coffee grinder are bringing about an epidemic of rosy cheeks, but have caused the flour bill at the corner grocery store to wither and languish.

"The children tell us about their mothers' experiments at home milling," said Mrs. Guy Shields, in charge of the penny health lunch at the University avenue school, Chicago, where the boys grind the grain and whole cereal foods abound. "Many of them are using their coffee mills to grind wheat and flour. Of course they have to grind the grain several times—three times, they say usually—but they claim that the result is most satisfactory.

Some Purchase Small Mills

"And then some of them have bought small mills such as the one we have at the school. They can get the smaller kinds for $3 or $4. The conversion of families to the whole grain product habit is largely due to the children, who seem positively entranced with the corn bread, mush, wheat cakes, etc., that they get at school. We tried some wheat cookies the other day and a little girl came to me and said, 'This isn't made of wheat, is it, Mrs. Shield?' When I assured her that it was she exclaimed, 'I thought you must have got them at the candy store.' It doesn't take children long when they get that attitude to convince their parents."

EDITOR'S MAIL

Editor Review: Kindly allow me a few lines to give some facts that may be of interest to the ratepayers of the city of Pettrborough.

Your Council of 1915 secured from the Provincial Health Board sanction of a site for a sewerage disposal plant, which site consisted of 35 acres, and should have been obtained. There were no objections to this site. The City Engineer estimated the cost to be $43,000 to $45,000, this price to include the purchase of the land, cost of pumping station and also the pipe line to the site.

Now this year's Council are about to buy a site that will cost for land alone $68,000 to $70,000, and where there are most decided objections. The reason given for this change of affairs was that they did not require so much land for the "new system," and so could locate in North Monaghan on the Scott & Rutherford property, cost of which for 8 acres was to be about $16,000.

Now they intend to buy, without the ratepayers' consent, 25 to 30 acres at about $70,000, using a small part of this for disposal plant, say, five acres, hand the balance over to the Agricultural Society, and this in defiance of the peoples' mandate of a year ago. They most decidedly said that they would not at present time and under present conditions buy land for exhibition purposes.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for your courtesy.

Rather Hero's Widow Than Coward's Wife

"It is a hard blow, but I must try my best to bear it, and when these little ones grow up they will have the satisfaction of remembering that their father fell fighting for his country. I am better satisfied with a dead husband that was brave and manly than I would have been with a living one who was cowardly," said Mrs. Pecor of Kingston, as she gathered her family of ten around her and discussed the cable which reached her announcing the death in action of her husband, who enlisted last summer.

Mrs. Pecor is aged thirty-four years, her eldest child is barely fifteen, and the youngest was on her lap as she uttered the above patriotic sentiment.

"This story will be a big boost for recruiting," said Ald. H. C. Nickle, Chairman of the Patriotic Committee.

OLDER THAN ROME

London is a mich older city than Rome, for it was founded by Brutus before Rome was founded by Romulus and Remus. Whence it is that they still have the same laws in common. London is divided into wards, has senatorial and lower magistrates, sewers and aqueducts, its proper places and separate courts for cases of each kind, deliberate, demonstrative and judicial; has assemblies on appointed days. I do not think there is a city with more commendable customs of church attendance, almsgiving, hospitality, betrothals, marriages, nuptials, feasts and also in care for funerals and the interment of the dead. The only pests of London are the immoderate drinking of fools and the frequency of fires.

On the north side are pastures and a pleasant meadow land. Very near lies a great forest, with woodland pastures, coverts of wild animals, stags, fallow deer, boars and wild bulls. In the time of King Stephen, of those going out to a muster twenty thousand horsemen and sixty thousand men on foot were estimated to be fit for war.

For the third time in one afternoon the lady found her new maid fast asleep in the kitchen easy chair.

Moon Superstitions

(London Chronicle.)

One of the quaintest of moon superstitions, referred to by Vitruvius and Pliny, was that timber could only be cut to advantage at certain phases of the moon. In the royal ordinances of France to the conservators of forests it was directed that oaks should be felled only "in the wane of the moon," or "when the wind is at north." There are still countryfolk who hold (in spite of lack of evidence) that a Saturday new moon or full moon brings twenty days of wind or rain. The rhyme is still current:

If the moon on a Saturday be new or full
There always was rain and there always will.

Most of the old weather observers seem only to have taken note of what supported a theory; no record was kept when it went wrong.

Anna Case

The miracle girl of the Metropolitan proving by direct comparison of her living voice with Edison's Re-Creation of it that the one is absolutely indistinguishable from the other.

There Are Only Two Ways

There are only two ways in which you can become fully familiar with and truly appreciative of a great artist's voice—or instrumental performance.

The first way is to hear him sing—or play.

The second way is to hear the Re-Creation of his voice—or instrumental performance—on the New Edison.

No talking machine is sufficiently realistic in its reproduction of an artist's performance to give you a true conception.

The NEW EDISON

is not a Talking Machine

It differs from any and all talking machines in that talking machines give but a hollow imitation of an artist while the New Edison literally Re-creates the artist's performance.

Great artists have stood beside the new Edison and have sung—or played—in direct comparison with it.

More than 200,000 music lovers have seen and heard these comparisons and have been utterly unable to distinguish the living artist's performance from Edison's Re-Creation of that performance.

More than two hundred of America's leading newspapers concede freely in their own columns that the New Edison Re-creates music so perfectly that the Re-Creation cannot be distinguished from the original.

The New York Globe refers to the New Edison as "the phonograph with a soul." The New York Tribune says, "Edison has snared the soul of music."

You do not need Imagination

With the New Edison in your home you do not have to imagine what an artist's voice sounds like. When you play an Edison Re-Creation of that artist's voice you know exactly how the artist's voice would sound if you heard it in real life.

This Christmas Your Opportunity

What a gift the New Edison makes! The joy of real music. The Re-created voice of Anna Case and a hundred other famous opera stars—all these are available to you—at your command—when and where you will. Here is one gift that, without the shadow of a doubt your whole family would welcome with enthusiasm.

We want you to hear the Re-Creation of every kind of musical instrument.

There is no obligation to buy. We merely want you to come and hear and be convinced that "Edison has snared the soul of music," just as the New York Tribune says.

PTE. F. G. McNEELY SENDS LETTER FOR Y.M.C.A. STAFF

Tells of Meeting for Soldiers in Y.M.C.A. Hut and of Finding Many Peterboro Boys.

The following letter was received by the general secretary of the local Y.M.C.A. from Pte. F. G. McNeely, a former member of the association staff:—

South Dibgate, Nov. 19, 1916.

Dear Mr. Meserve: By this token you will know that I have not forgotten the old staff of the Peterborough Y and I hope to keep in close touch with them no matter where I go. I am following the Y in camp and in town pretty closely and they certainly do a great deal for the boys; much more than was ever attempted in Canada. When ever you again go out for funds to support the overseas Y.M.C.A. you may rest assured that I and the rest of the boys now receiving the benefits hope that you may be successful and the good work kept up.

I had the pleasure last night of listening to an address by Rev. Geo. Adam, of London (speaker at the Cleveland convention) in the Y. M. C. A. hut. The program was much after the style I have imagined was used at Cleveland, that is, built from one stage to another till the climax was reached. The song leader started us off singing Sweet Adeline, then Kentucky Home, and then, I Wonder how the old Folks Are at Home? Here the leader said, "I think that down in the heart of every man present here tonight there is being asked that same question "I wonder how the old folks are at home, and boys. I don't wonder but that they at home are thinking of their boys, so what do you if we sing what they are no doubt singing each Sunday in the old church, 'Where is my wandering boy tonight.' After that we sang "Tell Mother I'll be There," and the time was considered ripe to introduce the speaker.

"Greater Love"

Mr. Adam took for his theme that old text which I think is so applicable to the present time, "Greater love hath no man than this, that he lay down his life for his friend." In opening the speaker said, "I met my friend Gypsy Smith the evangelist in London yesterday and I asked him what I should speak to the Canadians at South Dibgate about, and he suggested the text I have given you. I must confess that I was a trifle doubtful about saying anything to soldiers along that line, for in the course of my preaching I have several times visited the workhouses of London and there, clothed in corduroy and moleskins, I have found several veterans of former wars, maimed and broken for their country's safe and left to live on what is only public charity. Why these men should have to live on charity after having given more than their life is more than I have ever been able to make out, therefore to you who are going forth to face the same dangers, it seems mockery to put that future before you. But, men, the people of Britain are approaching Parliament to ensure that such shall not be your lot."

Here the speaker called for a show of hands of all those who would protest against such treatment of an old soldier, and a very general display followed. "Then," said Mr. Adams, "Why do you treat old soldiers so? One old soldier in particular." Continuing, the speaker said, "I see away off in an Eastern country long, long ago, a soldier who fought for just such ideals as you have left your far away Canadian homes and come over here to defend. He fought for his fellow-men who were down-trodden and stood for the rights of women and He died for his ideals. Now, instead of revering the name of this great and loving soldier we use it to hurl filthy and foul oaths at our fellow-men and in this manner we put Him in the workhouse just as much as we have the old defenders of our country."

Continuing, Mr. Adams told the story of a parting between a soldier and his sweetheart that he had witnessed in a quiet country lane near Montreal. Though he was too far away to hear what was actually passing between the couple, it was not very difficult to imagine the promises that were being made and all such things that pass between lovers. Now that soldier is far from his sweetheart and home, but Folkestone and Shorncliffe with their hosts of temptations are very near and it is under these circumstances that the future of Canada is going to be mortgaged to some extent unless the men show themselves as true men and pray to God that he may carry them through the dangers that beset them apart from those in France.

In conclusion, Mr. Adam led in prayer for mothers, sweethearts, and all those at home and for the boys in training for the great struggle.

Met 93rd Men

Last Sunday I was up to West Sandling Camp, about four miles from here, and met a great bunch of the old 93rd boys. The are now merged into the 39th Batt., but the band and signallers are still intact except for hose who have ransferred and gone to France. I met Palmer Wiley and John James of the old Peterborough bunch and Sid Martin, Bob Woods, Morris, Layfield, Payton and a good many more of the old battalion who frequented the Y.

I am now in the orderly room of the C.A.M.C. training school as stenographer, so I am in a measure just keeping in training while away. Most of the boys of our unit are now scattered far and wide throughout the country, but I guess I will be here till spring at least. Jock Smythe and Voaden are at Shoreham-by-Sea working in a new hospital and the remainder, with the exception of perhaps a dozen or so, are on a water deal learning all about the sanitary supplying of water to a battalion and it is expected that in a very short time they will be transferred and go across he Channel.

Jack Jones is, I understand, in a convalescent home somewhere in the district and I am going to make an effort some of these days to hunt him up.

Well, Mr. Meserve, I guess I have told you all for now, so I will draw to a close. Hoping to hear from you soon and with best regards to the rest of the staff,— I am, Yours sincerely, Fred.

P.S.: This is meant in a way for the rest of the staff as I can only find time to write now and then, but for all that I think of them.

Munitions or Lives?

There is a splendid way in which YOU can help to save Canadian soldiers' lives.

Give them enough munitions to smash the enemy's trenches so thoroughly that when the "advance" is ordered our boys may go forward with minimum loss of life.

More and more munitions are needed as the enemy is beaten back to his lair.

OWEN SOUND PUTS GARBAGE TO GOOD USE

MARSH LAND CONVERTED INTO SITES FOR FACTORIES.

An Owen Sound exchange says:

The rapidity in which marsh land is being converted into good serviceable industrial sites by the deposit of garbage is a surprise to many who have watched the disposal of the town's refuse on lots between 13th and 14th streets on either side of 2nd avenue east. Already several lots have been filled so that it is possible to drive teams over and the danger of contamination through stagnant water is removed. The deposits of garbage which in 1915 were not properly treated and threatened to involve the town in litigation is removed and while the town has been accommodated in having a convenient place in which to deposit the refuse the value of the land has been trebled. The filling of the lots south of the linseed oil factory and the evaporator on the west side of 2nd avenue is now progressing and when filled the owners will have splendid factory sites abutting the Canadian Pacific Railway tracks with its sidings. The deposit of refuse in this section will reclaim fully six acres of land equal to one of the town blocks. The pity is that the municipality had not acquired some of this land title for the greater portion of which was secured at tax sales. Then there would have been inducement worth while to hold out to the locators of industries. But what might have been is little concern now and the fact that someone is getting the advantage for the town's convenience is satisfactory.

MR. SIMPSON PRESCRIBES FOR ALL ECONOMIC ILLS

Toronto Labor Leader Maintains Co-Operation is Only Remedy for Present High Cost of Living---Says Tariff Should be Lowered.

James Simpson, the well known labor leader in Toronto and ex-member of the Board of Control in that city, lectured in the Labor Hall last night on the all-absorbing problem of the day—the high cost of living. Mr. Simpson has one prescription for economic ills— co-operative buying by the consumers is the one great remedy which he suggests. A matter of only secondary importance in his estimation is the removal of the duty on foodstuffs. It is a well-known fact that Mr. Simpson cannot preserve his public addresses from at least a suspicion of politics. Slamming the government is invariably part of his program.

Mr. Simpson gave a brief history of the efforts made by labor to secure governmental action and an account of the municipal delegations which visited Ottawa some weeks ago when Mayor Duffus addressed members of the Cabinet, asking that special authority be conferred upon municipalities to investigate local conditions and which resulted in the recent order-in-council under which Toronto and other cities have already taken action.

The Shrinking Dollar

Mr. Simpson stated that in the past two years the purchasing value of the dollar has shrunk to 67 cents, so as to offset any advantage that may have been gained by an increase in wages. The true remedy for the high cost of living is the co-opertive store, which can be firmly established only by hard work as such stores find trouble in purchasing their supplies from the wholesaler. The tariff, in his estimation, should be removed from foodstuffs.

Why He Was Defeated

Mr. Simpson related some personal history when he explained his defeat a year ago for re-election to the Board of Control in Toronto. All the interests that he had fought combined against him and he went down before this force.

The Soldier's Plight

Even the soldiers who enlisted two years ago at $1.10 a day have not escaped the high cost of living. His daily pay and the separation allowance granted his family have dwindled in regard to purchasing power just as earnings have in every other line.

Mr. Ball's Theory

At the conclusion of his address, Mr. Simpson invited discussion and Mr. George Ball was the first to respond. Mr. Ball believes that underproduction is the key to the whole situation. In the good old times when citizens were allowed to keep cows, pigs and chickens as they willed, hard times were unknown. Then municipal authority slipped in and put a ban on these side lines so far as city residents are concerned. Mr. Ball said that if the young men of the city, instead of herding in pool rooms—they cannot, thank God, congregate in bars any longer—would devote their leisure time to the cultivation of gardens, and to raising cows, pigs and chickens, the cost of living would be stripped of all its terrors.

Mr. Simpson Objects

Mr. Simpson declared that modern machinery was supplanting men on the farms and driving them to the cities. Production at present is sufficient under proper regulations to maintain the people in luxury.

Mr. Peever Asks a Question

"If you remove the tariff how are you to provide a revenue?" asked Rev. R. G. Peever, who was one of the audience.

This started Mr. Simpson on a long and technical discussion of a tariff for revenue, a duty to develop infant industries, which was so frequently taken advantage of to the financial loss of the consumer.

President Murray of the local co-operative company, and others in the audience including Mayor Duffus who presided, made short addresses, after which the meeting adjourned, the speakers of the evening receiving a cordial vote of thanks.

Proclamation to Deserters

P. C. 2814.--- Certified copy of a report of the Committee of the Privy Council, approved by His Excellendy the Governor-General, of the 24th November, 1916. --- 652-17-22.

The Committee of the Privy Council have had before them a report, dated the 9th November, 1916, from the Minister of Militia and Defence, representing that many soldiers of the Canadian Expeditionary Force are absent from their units without leave. It is probable that the larger number of them did not, when leaving, appreciate the seriousness of their offence, and that they are now desirous of coming back, but fearing severe punishment hesitate to do so.

Further, soldiers of the Overseas Force, now undergoing imprisonment for "Desertion" or "Absence Without Leave" are available for service with the Force, if pardoned and released from imprisonment.

The Minister, Therefore, recommends, that your Excellency, as an act of grace, on assuming the government of the Dominion, be pleased to

to such persons, by issuing a proclamation to the effect that those soldiers of the Expeditionary Force who are now absent without leave

Be Pardoned for Such Offence

provided they surrender themselves to the Office Commanding the unit to which they belonged, where that unit is still in Canada, or if it be not, to the District Officer Commanding any Military District in Canada.

Not later than the 15th Day of December, 1916

for the purpose of completing their engagements; and that those soldiers of the said Force who are now under sentence of imprisonment or detention for desertion or absence without leave be pardoned for such offences be released from imprisonment or detention, and be handed over to the Officer Commanding the unit to which they belong or to the Officer Commanding the Military District in which they are, for the purpose of being returned to some other units of the Expeditionary Force, in order to complete their engagements.

The Committee Concur in the foregoing recommendation and submit the same for approval.

(Signed) RODOLPHE BOUDREAU,
Clerk of the Privy Council.

PROGRESSIVE AUSTRALIA

PLANS FOR MORE TECHNICAL EDUCATION IN THE COMMONWEALTH.

The war's influence upon trade, and above all upon the development of home industries, again shows itself in the technical education movement in Australia. Brunswick, in Victoria, has recently established fine premises for the purpose of giving instruction in the technicalities of special industries, handicrafts, and so on. Approximately £10,000 has been expended upon the erection of the school and workshops, the cost to be defrayed by the education department. Pupils under 14 years of age will receive free tuition, but a nominal charge is made for those above that age. Three hundred and fifty scholars have now been enrolled, 200 of whom attend the junior classes in the day time.

The establishment of this school is part of the Government's greater development scheme. This scheme comprehends the building of technical schools in all the provincial centres, as well as in the cities and the improvement of all existing institutions of the kind. The question of compulsory attendance is also under consideration and the charge on the rates for the establishment and equipment of the schools. Australia is, of course, as yet, far behind America, Germany, or Switzerland in technical education. As stated above, the present prominence of the question is largely due to the impetus given by the war to independent home industries.

An interesting lecture was recently delivered in Australia by the chairman of the Australian Native Association on the great question involved in the Government's scheme, and on the allied question of apprenticeship. The proposal was made that after two years' instruction, an apprentice should be tested by examination to see whether he was fitted for his trade, and later by a final examination for a certificate of competency. Further proposals were made from the comparison of the vocational committee in America, which makes a special study of a boy's individual bent, and of the French, Swiss, and Russian systems for the practical and theoretical training from start to finish of boys in any particular industry. The lecturer thought that local schools should confine their attention mainly to the instruction of students in the technicalities of the particular industry which existed in that locality. He advocated free education for the student to be provided by the Government and the municipal councils.

And some people are too good to be interesting.

GAS PIPE WAS CAPPED

"If you did, you put it there," Mr. Graham replied in some heat.

Everybody Liked Him.

Miss Agnes Forrest, Miss Margaret Spence, employes of the Empress Hotel, Mrs. Janet Murray, who takes care of the rooming house and also works ta the hotel, Mr. Chris G. Graham, manager of the hotel, testified as to the finding of the body and told of the steps taken in an effort to save life. Miss Forrest bore testimony to the young lad in the statement that "he was a lovely boy and everybody liked him." Mrs. Murray told of how the lad's dresser had been moved near to the wall, but she did not know by whom.

Mr. Graham testified that Lauris' sister, when on a visit to her brother, had asked him what the pipe in his room was for, and the boy had replied that he did not know. Mr. Graham described the condition of the gas piping, one piece about five or six feet in length having been taken off from the main gas pipe and the latter plugged with a handkerchief and covered with a towel.

Robert Sutherland, who has done plumbing work in the house mentioned in the investigation, said the tap on the main to shut off the flow of gas was in the cellar of Mrs. Fowler's house, and it was turned on. Smith could have taken off the piece of pipe in his room. Witness judged it was all right to run connections from one house to another. His brother, James Sutherland, corroborated all the statements made and he had nothing to add.

Pipe Had Been Capped.

Mr. Harry Beal, formerly employed by the Peterborough Gas Company and now under the Hydro-Electric Commission, said he had not been allowed to enter the room where the lad met his death. When a meter was moved from a house the pipe was always capped or plugged, and he presumed that this action had been taken when the meter had been moved from the room in question on September 4th, 1913. Later, when the piece of pipe was exhibited, witness examined it and said it had been capped. It was not the practice to inspect houses after a pipe had been plugged or capped.

There never had been a meter in Mrs. Fowler's house, although provision had been made for one. Witness explained that the fact of the cock being turned on at the street line did not constitute a danger, as the plugging or capping served the same purpose.

Mr. G. N. Graham identified a red handkerchief as being the same as Lauris Smith had used.

Another employe of the Empress Hotel testified that he retired at the rooming house at 11:15 on the night previous to Smith's death and awoke at 5:30. His bed-fellow also got up and detected the odor of gas. No attention was paid to the incident as they thought the gas was from a stove. Nothing unusual occurred during the night.

James Ward, who assisted in the use of the pulmotor, testified to the efforts put forth to resuscitate the boy. Sergt. Kidd told of his efforts at artificial resuscitation, and Dr. D. C. King who, with Dr. McClelland, performed the post-mortem at Havelock on December 4th, 87 hours after death, read the report and gave it as his opinion that death was due to gas poisoning. In this he was supported by Dr. McClelland.

— SPORT PARAGRAPHS —

Young ball players are being signed by the Cubs for trials in the spring. The latest novice to be taken is Frank George Murphy of Joliet. He is a shortstop. He is a ten second man in sprinting and among the semi-pros batted for a .400 average.

If Risberg, the speedy fielding infielder from the Pacific Coast League, headed toward the White Sox, comes through on the glowing advance notices he may be played at short-stop on the 1917 team representing the south side of the American league. Comiskey and Rowland are agreed the Sox need more speed. As Risberg has acknowledged fielding ability, his speed may boost the Sox immensely. Buck Weaver would play third base permanently should Risberg come through at short.

Hughie Jennings thinks George Sisler would be as great a ball player as Ty Cobb if he had the aggressiveness and confidence of the Georgian.

Manager Stallings of the Braves had the weakest batting team in the National league, yet he kept his club in the pennant race all the way up to the last few days of play in 1916. Fred Mitchell, coach of the club, who had much to do with keeping some of the star pitchers of the Braves in condition, helped Stallings to a great extent.

At the national commission meeting in Chicago the baseball players' strike may be averted. Then again fuel may be added to the flames and Dave Fultz may be goaded to take some action, against organized baseball. Just what the new form of contract will be remains a mystery.

Eddie Collins thinks Lefty Williams is one of the best southpaws wh has broken into the American league in years. "With the exception of Eddie Plank, no lefthander in the American league makes as close a study of the batters or pitches more intelligently to them than Williams," says Collins.

Nearly doubling the previous year

is the estimated production for this year, and with it REDUCED PRICES all over Canada, to correspond with the increased output. You can draw conclusions. While most products are going up in price, this Canadian industry, by careful management and close buying of large quantities of materials, is able to slice a portion off its selling prices, thus:—

PURCHASING COMMITTEE'S REPORT WAS ADOPTED

$529.36 Expended for New Furniture and Equipment at the Children's Shelter.

The Children's Aid Society held their regular monthly meeting in the Bank of Montreal Chambers yesterday afternoon. The president, Mr. E. A. Peck, presided and the following members were present: Mesdames Gibbs, Stocker and Hopwood; Rev. Fr. Phelan, W. A. Howard, D. Thompson, Adjt. McElhiney and Jos. Wearing. Children's Aid Agent Spence was also in attendance.

The purchasing committee through Chairman W. A. Howard gave a verbal report of the refurnishing of the shelter. New beds, chairs, bedding, linoleum, linen, kitchen utensils and dishes had all been purchased. The committee had thought it better for sanitary reasons that the society own all the equipment at the shelter and also because there would be no disorganization in future in case a change of management was found necessary. It was explained that some wooden beds found in use at the home were set aside and iron cots substituted. The members were well satisfied that Miss Colson, the superintendent would capably handle the wards of the society intrusted to her care.

Mrs. Gibbs, on behalf of the ladies in charge of equipping the shelter, stated that they had purchased everything that was absolutely necessary and had been given wholesale prices on all goods and in addition several private donations of new chairs for the reception room had been received. Mrs. Gibbs also told how pleased the people who visited the institution yesterday afternoon were with the new arrangement and seemed perfectly satisfied that under the new management conditions would be much improved.

LOCAL GREEK SAYS COMPATRIOTS ARE LOYAL CANADIAN CITIZENS

Editor Review: I would like to say something about an article in last night's Review under a big heading, "Local Greeks will get no Quarter," which I think is most unfair to the number of Greeks in Peterborough.

It is not an uncommon thing to hear young Canadians who should be away fighting say they are not going to fight, and even say, "To the devil with England; let them fight it out," and even worse expressions. Canadians as a whole would not want to be judged by these men, then why should all us Greek citizens be judged by one who may have made an unwise statement?

People should understand that the vast majority of Greeks in the United States and Canada are not in sympathy with King Constantine but have been supporters of ex-Premier Venizelos. They should know that 50,000 Greeks are fighting for the Allies since Venizelos' provisional government declared war on Bulgaria. Only today they can read of the Mayor of Athens being bayoneted because he was friendly to the Allies.

Our own Greeks here are loyal to Canada, and are almost to a man Venizelos supporters. Our business interests and our homes are here. Some of us have married Canadian girls—myself, Mr. Pappas and others. Mr. Pappas' brother-in-law is a prisoner in Germany. We have subscribed to the various funds for patriotic purposes. I myself have been a member of one of the Patriotic Fund teams in two campaigns. Mr. Pappas has given his theatre a number of times for the benefit of patriotic purposes. We are nearly all naturalized Canadians. Why should we be abused?

The Review speaks of us as Constantine's reservists. As a matter of fact there are only two reservists in Peterborough. The most of the Greeks here left Greece before they were old enough to serve in the army. We have learned to love and appreciate the liberty that Canada offers us and we have tried to be good citizens of a country that has done much for us. Why should a paper denounce us all as pro-Germans. In justice to use, please publish this.

JAMES HAGGIS.

SCHOOL GRANTS

Sums Allotted to the Schools of East Peterboro.

Annually the legislature provides a certain sum for the payment of grants to rural schools on the basis of the value of the equipment and the character of the accommodations. The money is divided among the counties in proportion to the number of schools, and the county council is required to provide a sum equivalent to the amount. United States Government Statistics Reveal:

That Only 358,000 out of their 100,000,000 population report incomes in excess of $2,500 per year.
That Nineteen out of every twenty fail to provide either for their families or old age.
That Every second man of the population at age twenty-five will be dependent upon someone else at sixty-five. Which class will you be in?
That Nine out of ten men leave no estate.
That Life Insurance Companies are distributing more than $2,000,000 per day.
That Life Insurance has decreased pauperism more than thirty-three and one-third per cent. in thirty-five years.
That Less than seven per cent. of the value of American lives is covered by Life Insurance.
That Life Insurance saves the nation more than $30,000,000 per year in maintaining the poor.

Under such conditions, what is your plain duty, aye, and privilege? Clearly to insure your life while you can. You say where and how can this best be done?

We answer — A monthly Income Policy for your family or an Endowment for yourself in the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada.

With its $75,000,000 of assets, there is no Company represented in Canada, can offer you better, if any can offer you as good.

"Here's Where I Protect My Nine Dollar Investment."

Shoes are up 80% to 100% in price—and going higher. Rubbers cost practically the same as before the war. A good pair of shoes runs away with as much money as five to ten pairs of equally good rubbers.

Yet one of these pairs of rubbers, worn when needed, will make a pair of shoes last half as long again—perhaps twice as long—for nothing destroys shoe-leather like getting wet.

So the money spent in rubbers is returned several times over in the saving of shoes alone, and again in the prevention of colds and worse, with the attendant expense and danger.

Beyond these personal advantages, wearing rubbers is a patriotic duty. Leather is growing scarcer, while its need for the soldiers is as great or greater than ever. Every pair of shoes we save, by releasing that much leather, helps a bit toward winning the war.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Mrs. Geo. Wareham has returned from the West after an extended visit with her daughter, Mrs. E. A. Wilson, Lethbridge. She also visited Calgary, Okotoks and Fort William.

The W. A. K. Club will hold their weekly meeting at the home of the Misses Outram, 198 Edinburgh St. All members are requested to attend this meeting.

Mr. G. L. Galley, boys' work secretary at the Y. M. C. A., who has been ill at his home, is improving, and expects to be out again in a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon B. Fraser of Hamilton were visitors to the city yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Vermilyea of Belleville are visiting friends in the city.

At a meeting of the Nurses' Supervision Committee of the Peterborough Health Association held yesterday it was decided to accept Mr. Graham's offer of the Empress Hotel for Friday, Dec. 29th. The ladies will hold a reception on the afternoon and evening of that day, to which they cordially invite the people of the city. Every citizen should feel interested in the object sought by the ladies in holding this reception, which is to retain the present efficient nurses of the Association who have ministered during the past four years to the sick in many homes in this city under the direction of the local physicians, who can testify to the valuable service rendered by them. The funds of the Association have suffered owing to the many calls of the war, and immediate necessities demand that some effort should be made at once to raise funds. Watch the daily papers for additional information.

NEW WORKER ON REVIEW STAFF

MR. JAS. S. BYRNE, TORONTO, BECOMES CIRCULATION MANAGER.

Mr. James S. Byrne, for the past five years circulation manager of the Toronto News, has accepted a similar position with The Review, and under his administration this paper will be made the most widely circulated and the best advertising medium in this district. Mr. Byrne has already met with a number of former friends and college chums who are located in this city, and is receiving from all sources every encouragement in the work which he has undertaken. There is no reason, as a prominent business man said the other day, why The Review should not be made the leading journal in Eastern Ontario. That is the aim of the present management, and in the work of extending the influence of the paper, Mr. Byrne, who is well equipped for his duties, will take an important part.

ENLARGED PHOTOS OF HEROES PLACED ON COLLEGIATE WALLS

Principal H. R. H. Kenner of the Collegiate Institute asked the Board of Education last night to acknowledge the gift by Mr. B. F. Ackerman and Mr. T. F. Matthews of enlarged photos of their sons who had paid the supreme sacrifice while fighting for King and country. The pictures have been hung on the walls of the institution

The gift was acknowledged by the Board on motion of Mr. Crane, who also suggested that enlarged photos of other Institute pupils who died while doing duty at the front be secured.

W. H. Hill thought the idea a splendid one, and felt sure that, in years to come they would be looked up to with pride.

If the Board can secure the photos they will have enlargements made.

LAUGH EVERY SECOND BY MINSTRELS AT KNOX HALL

First Presentation Was Heard by Large Audience.

The young men of Knox Church who provided the minstrel entertainment in the lecture hall of the church last night scored a big hit. Their minstrelsy was of a high order, and the whole performance was highly creditable to Messrs. J. Liddell and V. Morphet, who arranged the entertainment and directed the rehearsals. The program will be repeated tonight and the company will no doubt receive, as they are so well deserving of, another capacity house.

The local jokes put over by the end men caused no end of merriment. They told a good one on Al Parker, who lost his brains; another one had to do with a motor trip in which the minister and H. J. Mac came to a stop nad couldn't replenish the gas tank because of the prohibition law; the Ford came in for some new digs; what animal in the Ark had the most money was debated, and under the magic spell of R. Hillier a two-dollar bill paid more debts in five minutes than some women could pay with $100 in a week. The end men were amply rewarded by being the recipients of prize-winning specimens of the garden and farm, and Vernon Morphet might wel have sung:

Through the air the cabbage flew,
There were beets and cabbage, too, etc.

The end men were — Tambos: Messrs. J Liddell, J. Smith and A. Parker. Bones—V. Morphet, M. Peters, S. Leith.

Chorus: Messrs. W. Yale, W. Payton, A. McLeish, W. Smith, D. Carter, W. Petrie, W. Wright, J. Turnbull.

MILITARY SHOWER

At Home of Mrs. E. MacPherson at Omemee.

OMEMEE, Dec. 6.—The home of Mrs. Ernest MacPherson was a veritable bower of beauty when a military shower was given in honor of Mrs. Jack Coulter (nee Miss Elva Thompson). The house was gay with flags everywhere. The shower was given in a unique manner, each lady drawing a favor attached to a string from behind a sliding door, Mrs. Coulter being the last, and drew into the room a cart laden with gifts and decorated with dozens of small Union Jacks. With the assistance of girl friends the gifts were untied, the cards read and presents duly admired after which Mrs. Coulter in a neat speech thanked her friends.

The guests numbered about 30. Mrs Arthur Rutherford presided at the tea table, which was centred with an Irish lace tea cover and cut glass vase with large white 'mums. Miss Morden and the Misses Parsons served lunch. The gifts were numerous varied and costly, showing the high esteem in which the bride is held.

TEUTONS CAPTURE CAMPINO AND TAKE 9000 PRISONERS

Petrograd Announces Retirement by Roumanians.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

BERLIN, Dec. 7. — (Official): The defeated Roumanians are retreating along the whole front. Teutonic troops have captured Campino on the railroad between Kronstadt and Ploechti. In yesterday's fighting more than 9,000 Roumanians were captured.

On the west bank of the Meuse yesterday, after artillery preparations, a detachment of West Phalian infantry entered the French trenches on Hill 304, south-west of Malancourt, and captured the summit of the hill. Five officers and 190 men were taken prisoner. An advance into hostile lines on Dead Man Hill by raiding parties brought in eleven prisoners.

West of Lutsk German and Austrian detachments entered a Russian outpost position, where the garrison of 40 surrendered. During the night the position was maintained against five attacks.

West of Zalosce and Tarnopol, Galicia, our troops were able to deliver 90 prisoners from one part of a captured Russian line, and 28 from another on their return.

PETROGRAD, Dec. 7.—A Russian official statement says Bucharest has been evacuated and Roumanian troops south of the capital have also retired. The Roumanians are retreating eastward from Wallachia and holding the Teutons by rearguard actions.

SECOND BATTALION'S PART IN OFFENSIVE ON SOMME

Canadians "Carry on" in Spirit Shown by Original Regiment in Whihc Peterboro's Gallant Sons Served--- Capt. Hetehring-to of 247th Wounded in the Scrap.

A thrilling story of the part taken by the Second Battalion of Canadians in the opening of the Somme offensive has just reached Ottawa. In this fighting the battalion officers and men won twenty-eight medals and crosses. It was in this scrap that Lieut., now Capt., Hetherington of the 247th Batt., received wounds that put him out of action and in which Major A. E. McLaughlin of Bowmanville, and well known here, received mortal wounds. It was in the original Second Battalion that Lieut.-Col. Ackerman and Capt. O'Flynn served at the front.

Describing how the Iron Second went over the parapet to the duty that lay beyond, the narrator writes in part:—

"With eyes intent upon his watch the second in command counts the seconds as they tick slowly on to the lifting of the barrage. From the right and the left officers look for the signal to send them over. Ten seconds—five—four, and they go. As steadily as if on parade, with the interval between each man marked with mathematical precision, and with the easy swing of conquerors, the 'Iron Second' cleared their parapet and swept toward the enemy. At that same moment the German parapet became lined with rifles, and above the shrieking of the shells and the deafening bursts of shrapnel arose the vicious, crackling sound of rifle fire.

"The first wave sweeps on; the men fall on all sides. Thirty yards from that line of blazing hostile rifles they drop into shell holes, and themselves open fire to silence that against them. On the left a machine gun comes into action, and from the front the German bombers throw one incessant stream of vicious explosives at the advancing line.

Lieut. Pringle's Heroic Sacrifice

"Close behind the first wave comes the second, which had moved into the 'jumping-off trench' almost immediately. In the centre the enemy pours a steady fire into the Canadians; and here was enacted one of the bravest, one of the most self-sacrificing incidents of the whole of Canada's war history. The situation for a moment was critical: a German machine-gun was being mounted on the parapet, and its position was such as to command the whole line. Without a moment's hesitation, Lieut Pringle, a platoon commander of No. Company, dashed forward. Running through an inferno of bombs and bullets, he made straight for the gun.

"His body was found later lying across the muzzle of the gun with the crew, dead, all around it. On the right all went well; No. 3 Company advanced steadily over the open. In front of the Boche parapet Major Chrysler and Lieut. Hetherington received the wounds which put them out of action; but the company charged brilliantly into the enemy trench and proceeded to bomb toward the centre and right.

"It is not too much to say that the success of the great advance made by the British and Canadians on the 14th and 15th September owed a great deal to the action of the 2nd Canadians, and perhaps it was on this account—who knows?—that the generous praise was directed upon the battalion that had carried the attack to such a successful end."

Peterborough bandsmen overseas will have a trip to Paris this week-end when the massed Canadian bands will be the guests of the French Government. Two concerts will be given in the French capital for the French Red Cross. Afterwards the bands will visit Canadian headquarters.

Pte. Wm. Munn, a returned soldier who has been in Peterborough for some time, is now at his home in Oakwood, having walked from Peterborough to Lindsay. Pte. Muun was discharged from the service because of being over age.

Ptes. Henry Morrow and Bruce Greenly of town have been wounded at the front, according to telegrams received by their parents. Pte. Morhow is a son of Mr. Thos. Morrow of Town, and enlisted early in the war. He has been admitted to the 2nd Western Hospital, Manchester, Eng., and is suffering from a compound fracture of his hand caused by a gunshot wound. Pte. Greenly is a son of Mrs. Jas. H. Johnston of Old Havelock. He, too, enlisted early in the war, and he is just reported as wounded on Nov. 16, the particulars of which will be sent when received.—Havelock Standard.

Sir David Beatty's Quotation

Westminster Gazette: In the album presented to the Kitchener Memorial Fund by Mrs. Ian Malcolm, the quotation contributed above his "boldly-written signature" by Sir David Beatty, is as follows:—

Grant that with zeal and skill this day I do
What me to do behoves, what Thou commandest me to do.
Grant that I do it sharp, at point of moment fit
And when I do it, grant me good success in it.

Sir David Beatty has done many brave things in his time, but I doubt if he has ever done a bolder than in adopting this quotation. For the four lines are a translation of a part of a hymn written by a German—Johann Heermann—the writer of a long row of hymns, who has been in his grave in Poland for nearly three hundred years.

The Review correspondent at Millbrook writes:—

Sergts. Leach and Cole of the 247th are meeting with good success at recruiting. Watch the honor roll grow. They have many prospective names on their lists and they are on the go every day. The officers of the 235th are also busy and expect many to sign up in the next few weeks. Each officer is a gentleman and takes the right course in the work of recruiting.

Mr. Finch Miller received a letter from his son, Sergt. Walter Miller, yesterday. Water is up in the front line of the Canadians. Sergt. Doug. Loomis, who had been in the dugout with him for some time, has gone to another point.

Mrs. W. T. Rowe of Lakefield wishes to thank the people of Peterborough and Lakefield for their kindness in her recent bereavement in the loss of her husband, and also to thank the following for their beautiful bouquets of flowers that they gave to her while in Nicholl's Hospital: Col. Ackerman, 247th Batt.; Soldiers' Wives and Mothers Club. 57th Chapt. IO.D.E.; Mrs. Williams, Patterson St.

Eleven recruits have been secured for the 247th Batt. since the first of the week, and more are in prospect. W. H. Musgrave, 337 Rogers Street, enlisted today.

Two Seats in the Cabinet, One Representative on War Council and Three Under-secretaryships.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, Dec. 7.—Lloyd George has opened negotiations with the Labor party with a view to securing its support and co-operation. A meeting of the party was held this morning, at whirh regret aws expressed at the resignation of Mr. Asquith. It was decided, however, to support any government pledged vigorously to presecute the war and in which labor would be adequately reprerented. The opinion is expressed that not less than three Labor dembers will be indluded in the Cabinet. Labor members have been invited to meet Lloyd George at the War Office to discuss the matter.

LIBERALS WILL HOLD MEETING.

BARNES AND HENDERSON FOR CABINET.

LONDON, Dec. 7.—It is regarded this afternoon as virtually certain that Lloyd George will succeed in organizing a ministry which will have the support of a majority in the Commons, the Labor party having decided to participate in the making up of the new Cabinet. It is said that George N. Barnes, Labor member of Parliament, and Arthur Henderson, president of the board of education in the Coalition Ministry, will be members of the Cabinet, and one of them will sit in the War Council.

FLOUR PRICES DECLINE; CHEAPER BREAD UNLIKELY

Hamilton Bakers Reduce the Price of Bread From Nine to Seven Cents---No Change Here.

A Canadian Press despatch to The Review this afternoon announces that the bakers of Hamilton dropped the price of bread today from nine to seven cents.

The local bakers have not decided on any change from their present price of eight cents per loaf, as they claim that at the present price of flour, $9.60 per barrel, they cannot do so.

Mr. T. Hooper, of T. Hooper & Sons, when asked what he thought about the action of the Hamilton bakers, could not understand how so large a reduction could be made. He suggested that a fight between the Hamilton and Toronto bakers might be the reason. He could not see that Peterborough bakers could lower their present price when flour was $9.50 per barrel.

The local millers, when asked about the price of flour, quoted $9.60 per barrel wholesale, with the market reported uncertain.

There have been two reductions of 20 cents each in the past week.

FRENCH ATTACK TO EAST OF METZERAL.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PARIS, Dec. 7.—"We carried out a surprise attack on the trenches of the enemy east of Metzeral, Alsace, and brought back prisoners," says today's announcement. "There is nothing important to report from the remainder of the front."

GREEK REGULAR TROOPS CAUSE STATE OF TERROR

Imitating Prussians in Effort to Strike Terror Into Hearts of Allies' Sympathizers.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—A Herald cable from Athens says that, encouraged and applauded by Princess Ypsilanti and other women royalists, the regular troops have thrown Athens into a state of terror. Officers, under the direction of a certain general, are imitating the Prussians in an effort to strike terror into the hearts of Venizelos sympathizers. All sorts of barbarities are being committed. This state of terror has been worked up by Prussian agents, and the masses of the people are of the opinion that they will yet rue their work.

V. J. M'ELDERRY, a member of one of the leading law firms in the city, a young man just at the threshold of a promising career, with a bright professional future before him, with family ties and social connections, gives up all to enlist in the service of his King and Empire. He enlists as a private in the 247th Battalion. There was no waiting, no wire-pulling for a commission. He heard the call, he realized his duty and responded. No young man in Peterborough could give up more or make a greater sacrifice. His example should, more than reams of oratory, encourage Peterborough's citizens of military age to go and do likewise.

Mr. McElderry's friends, who feel most keenly the parting from him, are the very ones who will rejoice most at his going, and who will be prouder than ever to reckon such a man among their acquaintances. Greater love than this for his country hath no man, in very truth.

MR. HAGGIS AND HIS COMPATRIOTS.

THE REVIEW was most happy yesterday to make room for the manly and straightforward statement of Mr. James Haggis with reference to the Greek residents in this city. We cannot help wondering, however, that a Canadian as loyal as Mr. Haggis professes to be should hear any man consign England to perdition without doing something to bring about the punishment that is reserved for such gentry. If he has heard those of British ancestry give utterance to such statements—and we are ready to accept his word—it is only additional proof that it is a difficult matter in these days of stress to know whom to trust. There are so many ready to render lip service to the Empire while their real sympathy is withheld.

Mr. Haggis probably knows what the "unwise statement" made by a compatriot was and the peculiar circumstances under which it was made. This was not an isolated case, however. Mr. Haggis can render his adopted country valuable service at this time and help to preserve harmony in the community if he will act as guide and counsellor to those who may be less discreet than himself.

The Review is pleased to be assured that there are in the city men who have renounced all allegiance to a sovereign who has violated every code that kings are supposed to observe, who has wounded the hand that upheld him, his people and his allies, who has borrowed money from the powers now arrayed against the Hun, money that was designed for the temporal salvation of his stricken subjects, and expended it for the purchase of munitions which the Germans used against his benefactor.

A King, who after all is the puppet of another, who rules only by proxy, is certainly no fit object for the admiration or allegiance of Mr. Haggis or anyone else who has once tasted the sweets of British liberty.

CRITICISING OFFICERS.

ANY NEWSPAPER or individual that insinuates that The Review sympathizes with offenders and condones transgressions of the law is simply proving in its own person that the art of Ananias did not pass away with his tragic end. The record of this journal speaks for itself.

We have, however, never held with the sycophantic and the anaemic that officers of the law are above fair criticism. British citizens have rights and every Britisher's home is still his castle. Officers, either provincial, county or city, do not as a rule conduct a search for criminals to the accompaniment of a brass band. Neither do they make a practice of rushing into print every day or two with a thrilling story of their superman exertions they are putting forth to capture a fugitive, recitals in which the burnishing of their own official records is the object. The careful officer works as quietly as the interest on the farm mortgage. Nothing is heard until the day of foreclosure.

It is right and proper that farmers be protected, both as to person and possessions. It is not fair, however, to tax them in order to provide ballast for a newspaper. Our lachrymose contemporary simply spills the beans again when it essays to set us right. Its assumptions of virtue never phase us. We have never regarded it as a shining example in political or other forms of righteousness. To sweep clean its own doorstep will require all its energies. It has certainly never occurred to us to model our editorial policy upon any plans it may be pleased to adopt.

LLOYD GEORGE AS PREMIER.

IT SOUNDS like a paradox, but it is nevertheless true, that Lloyd George, recognized on al sidets as the leading democratic spirit, the very supremacy of the cult, in England today, believes in applying the principles of autocracy to the conduct of the war. Under his regime, for it is now apparently assured that not only will his counsel prevail but that he will be Premier, the campaign in future will be carried on with a new aggression and with a disregard for costs, such as Germany has from the first adopted. Ex-Premier Asquith was the embodiment of caution. The care with which he proceeded, his hesitation about accepting chances, was his one great handicap under the tremendous load he has carried for the past two years. A rupture between men of such opposite temperaments as Asquith and Lloyd George was inevitable. The latter carries his point because the people of England have faith in the man and his methods.

Coalition Government in England has been considerable of a failure. Instead of bringing about the harmony that was expected of it, it has engendered strife. The British War Council proved so cumbersome and unwieldy that from the first it seemed doomed to failure. Bitter experience has shown that a war can be most energetically and successfully conducted, that there is infinitely less vexatious, dangerous and costly delay when one man, or at least a comparatively small body of men, are vested with autocratic powers. History proves that democracies in which all the people insisted upon having a voice in affairs have most disastrously bungled military matters when active hostilities were begun against other powers.

The upheaval in the British Cabinet is no indication that the people are discouraged. They are simply willing to trust the destiny of the Empire to the man who has been their idol for years, whose tremendous energy is recognized and whose unfaltering patriotism is admitted.

Great things will be expected of Lloyd George. If he justifies the estimation in which the British people hold him the Empire is safe.

OUR LAGGARD BRIGADE.

HEALTH OFFICER AMYS says that one of the afflictions under which the community labors is a class of residents who regard themselves as invalids and accordingly set up the plea that they are unable to work. All in the world, he says, that ails these people is unadulterated laziness, an ailment for which medical science has so far been unable to provide a remedy. These self-styled invalids produce nothing themselves and are a constant drain upon the resources of those who labor.

Dr. Amys suggests drastic measures in dealing with this class. He would establish an industrial farm where they could be kept at work, profitable to the public, and where they would be paid for their services, their wages above the amount required for their own needs to be turned over to their dependents.

A disinclination for exertion of any kind when the victim is physically and mentally fit, has long been regarded as a disease, and the means suggested by Dr. Amys for dealing with it will certainly appeal to all of a practical turn of mind. Some lazy people are honest about it. The man who pleads sickness as an excuse for remaining in idleness when there is nothing wrong with him that the modern X-rays can detect certainly deserves no mercy.

SIR WILFRID AND THE HUNS.

> "A vote for Laurier," says The Peterborough Review, "means a vote for unrestricted German trade with Canada after the war is over." Does The Peterborough Review know that Laurier's Government carried on a trade war with Germany that lasted for years because the German Government penalized Canadian imports in an effort to prevent the Laurier Government from putting the British preferential tariff on the statute books? That trade war Canada won.—The Globe.

WE WERE ALREADY in possession of the information with which The Globe so generously volunteers to supply us. We are also cognizant of the fact that Sir Wilfrid, in his recent address at London, said that after the war the German should be forgiven his trespass against humanity and that the erring nation should not be made the victim of a commercial conspiracy entered into by the other powers to cripple her industries.

All of which justifies us in repeating that "a vote for Laurier means a vote for unrestricted German trade with Canada after the war is over."

LET THERE BE PEACE.

THE WOODSTOCK Sentinel-Review truly says that the people at this of all times do not desire the discussion of political topics in the newspapers. There are other matters of vastly more moment to engage their attention than the fortunes or misfortunes of one or other of the political parties.

Editors at war with each other are a sorry spectacle compared to the exploits of armed heroes in France. But in every discussion or combat there is an aggressor. Two years ago the parties agreed upon a truce. This was observed for a few months by the Liberals, and then treated with the same disdain as that with which the Hun regards an international treaty when it is in the nation's interest to reject it. If Government organs have transgressed in this regard they have done so in self-defence only. The white flag affords no protection so long as the enemy are riddling it with bullets.

Under all the criticism with which they have been assailed, the members of the Government from the Premier down have maintained a dignified silence. The present is not the time to speak. When the proper time comes there will be no mistaking the words which will be uttered in defence of the policy of the Administration both as regards the conduct of the war and in any other particular. The cause that is just never dreads the searchlight.

If the Woodstock Sentinel-Review can prevail upon its Liberal contemporaries to observe the truce, the Government organs will respect their forbearance. But even if the former persevere in their headlong course, no harm will result to any, provided their own readers escape unhurt.

D. W. DUMBLE SAYS MAYOR DUFFUS IS ENTITLED TO SECOND TERM

Editor Review: I have read in the city papers of the probability of certain persons seeking the office of Mayor of Peterborough for 1917. Last January Mr. Duffus amongst a field of three was elected to the office and during the year he performed the duties of his office to the satisfaction of the people.

Is there any good reason why Mr. Duffus should not be accorded the office of Mayor for a second term, as has been the custom for many years where there was no justifiable reason for turning him down?

All our Mayors have belonged to some church, and of what church is nobody's business. This is a free country; we are all Christians and we are all at liberty to select our own creed and none may make us afraid. We take our choice and no one has a right to discipline us because we selected the church on this hill instead of the church on the other or one of the many on the flat. To our shame there are too many churches, too many creeds.

Now let us do the decent thing and do with Mayor Duffus as we did with so many of our mayors in the past. Give him a second term and don't let anyone say that he was debarred the courtesy of a second term because of the church he entered when he went to worship our one common Lord.

D. W. DUMBLE.

NO BETTER FIGHTERS ON EARTH

Hon. W. H. Hearst, Premier of Ontario, at Niagara Falls.

"There may be heard criticism of Britain's failure to prepare for this war in time, but we cannot use that as an excuse for not doing our own duty today. Laxity on the part of some in the past will not help us in Canada today. And I know full well what Ontario's answer will be to the appeal of Lloyd-George. It will be that we will send every available man and give every dollar we have to defeat this mighty monster which will crush us if we don't crush it. I saw our Canadian boys at the front going into the trenches and coming out, muddy and weary, but every man hopeful, some cheerful even, and all animated with one idea, to complete the task which they voluntarily set their hands to. And we at home must support those gallant fellows who are bleeding and dying for a cause they love. I never saw such a fine lot of men as those Canadians as I watched them on their weary march from Ypres to the Somme. There are no better fighters in the world. Lloyd-George and others high in the Empire asid as much to me."

Corn is King in the Kitchen and Can be Used to Solve High Cost of Living

(New York Sun.)

Speaker Clark advises more use of corn as a food. "Mush is good," he says. Indeed it is. Corn meal mush makes a healthful and satisfying breakfast; the left over portion fried, sweetened with molasses, makes a good dish for lunch or for next day's breakfast.

The housekeeper who goes out to market may not realise it, but she depends upon corn for the best beef, fresh pork, sausages, ham, bacon, poultry, eggs, butter, cheese. "Where there is plenty of corn there is plenty of other good food," they say in the corn belt. It is a luxury for cattle, hogs and chickens.

It was well thought of in this country as human food fifty, forty, perhaps thirty years ago. But in an unfortunate day even poor folk began to neglect corn. Dressed up as hominy it still had a certain popularity, parents were willing that their children should eat it thus. Treated with baking powder, salt, plenty of rich cream and butter, it was still made into a hot bread some were not ashamed to eat.

But corn was gradually disappearing from the American table. Folks had not yet begun to demand corn fattened beef, pork, chicken and the yellow grain was so fallen into disesteem and consequent disuse that one hard winter it was burned in the corn belt as domestic fuel; it was cheaper than coal or cordwood.

Corn came into its own forever when "feeders" began to buy range steers and fatten them on corn for the table of beef eating America.

The price of any food which sells at more than a fair profit for producer and marketman can be lowered by taking your choice roasts, your strictly fresh eggs, cream, butter, bacon and ham in the original form of these delectable foods, corn. Cakes, puddings, breads in a hundred shapes, forms and flavors can be made out of corn. A hundred million more bushels a year will be grown when the humble food becomes fashionable again, and a hundred million bushels more each year until we are all supplied.

Here is so simple, so direct, so efficacious a cure of our present ills it is quite certain not to be adopted.

IN SPITE OF WAR, HIGH PRICES AND POLITICS, WORLD IS BETTER

In these grim days of a great war, with horrors surpassing those of the dark ages, the tendency is strong to take a gloomy view of humanity and the universe.

Plausibly it can be argued that Christianity and civilization have been proved failures, that the world is worse, not better than it was in the long ago. An indictment on many counts can easily be brought against mankind.

But could such an indictment actually be sustained? If it be true—as it undeniably is—that the world has not yet progressed to the abolition of war, is it not equally true that it has steadily progressed in innumerable other ways?

In earlier days war's victims would have been left to perish miserably. The peoples not at war would have gone about their business, indifferent to the misery, the agony, the suffering of the war stricken.

Today it is otherwise. From the war free countries—notably from the United States—relief workers have hurried to the lands where desolation reigns.

Colossal sums of money have been contributed for relief work. Relief ships have carried cargo after cargo of food for the starving. Hospital supplies incalculable have been forwarded.

The friendless poor, the sick, the insane, the wronged one—do you appreciate how great the contrast is between the treatment they receive today and the treatment given them in earlier times?

Today we have benevolent associations innumerable, hospitals of marvellous equipment, refuges, asylums, dispensaries, clinics of many kinds. Do you appreciate how modern most of these humane institutions are?

Little more than a century ago the insane were left to rot in filthy dungeons, chained like wild beasts, naked or clothed in rags.

Less than a century ago savage and inhuman punishments were inflicted on persons guilty even of minor offences against society. Today there is ever increasing recognition that criminals are in most cases sick people in need of expert care.

If we still have prisons for criminals we also have clinics for criminals—a tremendous forward step.

And think of the twentieth century status of women and children, in contrast with their condition one hundred, fifty, even twenty-five years ago.

Decidedly, if the world is not perfect yet—and it never will be perfect—it is a far better world to live in than the world of our forefathers was.

ODDS AND ENDS FROM THE AMERICAN PRESS

A Thrifty Missouri Town

(Cass County Leader.)

Senator Reed was expected to arrive in Holden Friday. When the train pulled in the crowd cheered its best, and the band played, but Senator Reed did not come. The efforts were not in vain, however. The new superintendent of the Missouri Pacific Railroad was in a special car on the train. The demonstrators sent word to him that the demonstration was in his honor, and if he appreciated the honor he might see that Holden had a new station.

Letting the Bridegroom Down Easy

Their marriage will surprise many of the bride's friends, who are legion, as she was loved by all who knew her; and, of course, Mr. Warren cannot be blamed for the attitude taken by himself, but we regret his taking her from our midst.

A LABOR PARTY

(Weekly Sun.)

The Toronto Star wonders why labor does not elect more representatives in the legislature and parliament. The explanation is probably that labor does not feel the wrong which the Star discovers. In all great maters, such as the tariff and the public expenditure, its interests are identical with those of its employers, who have the capital and the leisure to sit in Parliament. In minor matters, such as factory legislation, compensation for injuries, strikes, wages, hours and the like, it is best served by the bidding for its favor by the rival parties. Were it to follow the Star's advice and form a labor party, it might fare worse than it does now. Powerful forces which are now divided might rally against it.

Wit and Wisdom

A Sudden Stop

A lady entered a railroad car and took a seat in front of a newly married couple. She was hardly seated before they began making remarks about her.

Her last year's bonnet and coat were fully criticized with more or less giggling on the bride's part and there is no telling what might have come next if the lady had not put a sudden stop to the conversation by a bit of strategy.

She turned her head, noticed that the bride was considerably older than the groom and in the smoothest of tones said:

"Madam, will you please ask your son to close the window?"

The "son" closed his mouth and the bride no longer giggled.

What Would Happen

Young Harry Biggs, the miller's son, who had been apprenticed to Farmer Grubbins, had not proved what might be described as a conspicuous success.

And so, when old Biggs came along one day to ask what progress the lad was making, there came a certain dubious expression into the old farmer's eye.

"Well," he drawled, "'tain't that I wish to discourage you nor your son neither. 'tisnt that I wish to be grumblin at him one bit. He don't do nothin' wrong—nor nothin' at all if he can help it. But I will say, Miller Biggs, that it's my opinion that if your son Harry had another hand' he'd want another pocket to put it in!"

THE EFFECT OF THE WAR UPON RELIGION

IN the early days of the war no speculation aroused greater interest than that which concerned itself with the effect of the conflict upon religion. There were those who professed to see in the struggle absolute proof that the universe is not ruled by a Divine Power. If there were a God, they said, would He permit this war? On the contrary, there [illegible] evidences that in their sore [illegible] the people turned to a Supreme Being for help, other comfort being denied them. Those who argued, rather than felt, that God was still in His heaven, said that this war was evidence neither for nor against their belief. This war was merely sin on a grand scale. If its existence proved that there was no God, then the first crime, the murder of Abel, proved it. To say that if there were a God He never would have permitted the war was to say that if there were a God He never would have permitted crime, nor suffering nor injustice nor any unkindness.

Presently this debate died down, and a new phase of the controversy was aroused, with a speech, in so far as Canada is concerned, made by General Alderson, in which he seemed to express the belief that men whose past lives had not been such as to give them a clear title to everlasting joy, yet paid their debt to sin when they died fighting for their country, and that for this supreme sacrifice "God would take them to Himself." This, of course, aroused the combative instincts of the strictly orthodox, and the question has not been settled to this day.

The direct effect of war on the belligerent nations is reviewed in "Current History," by Rev. Sidney M. Berry, pastor of Carr's Lane Church, Birmingham, one of the largest in England. He says that at the beginning of the war there was observed in all countries directly involved a marked tendency to turn to their church for consolation and guidance. The more desperate the plight of the nation the more passionately it turned to religion. In Germany where the life of the people before the war had been more notably alienated from religion than in any other European country, the turn to religion was different from that of other nations. In Germany the people went back to church to sing their songs of victory, to follow the example of their Kaiser, who on one memorable occasion publicly thanked God for having so "magnificently supported" one of his sons in battle. The German people called upon Odin rather than upon Christ. They saluted the God of War.

It was in a different spirit that the other countries returned to their altars. With them all other help had failed, as it seemed. They called upon God because human succor seemed vain, and Mr. Berry says that those countries which have borne the brunt of war have been more devout in their supplications than the others which have been less directly affected. France has turned back to the church, and three years ago there used to be international wails over the failure of France to pay attention to religion. This movement in France has been helped by the noble example set by the French priests, thousands of whom have already given their lives in battle. Their church has become again a living thing for the French people. To millions of them it has seemed that their escape from destruction could hardly have been wrought by purely natural means. Even the British have the imperishable legend of the Angel at Mons.

Mr. Berry has been to the front and has talked with many soldiers. He says that upon the surface there is little indication of a religious revival among the fighting men. They will not talk about what they feel most, and we have much testimony to the fact that the average British soldier who dies singing dies with a music hall refrain rather than a hymn upon his lips. But under the surface the writer believes that the war is refining the character of the men who are accepting its most dreadful chances. Those who have not made up their minds as to the future have at least come to this determination, that the old ways must never again be followed, and they will seek, those of them who return, for a new way of life. He says: "In that new order they will demand that there shall be a place for the individual within the fellowship of society, and for the rights of even the weaker nations among the comity of the peoples."

People Must Save.

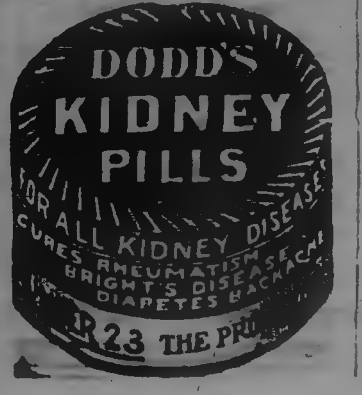
"There is need of men and munitions, and there is need of keeping the nation strong financially and economically, and in this last everyone can help. This will only be won by exertion, by patience and by sacrifice; and these are faculties in which the men of our race have never been found wanting in a time of national crisis."

[illegible] Sir Thomas White, Minister of Finance, summed up an address on "The Business Affairs of the Nation," at the quarterly meeting of the Montreal Board of Trade.

"What is the important question from a financial standpoint with relation to the war?" asked the Minister of Finance. And he replied by pointing out that with the Dominion Government spending $730,000, and the Imperial Munitions Board spending over $1,000,000 a day in this country the important point is how is this huge expenditure to be financed? The Imperial Government cannot pay for munitions made in Canada by drawing cheques on the Bank of England. It can do so only by establishing dollar credits in Canada. And that can be accomplished only by the people of this country placing large sums to the credit of the Imperial Government.

"If we can give them the money we can get all the orders we want and more," said Sir Thomas, "but we must save."

Death may lose some of its sting for a woman if she knows that there will be music and a big floral display at her funeral.



DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS

PATIENT BELGIANS

SOME OF THE SUFFERINGS ENDURED UNDER THE GERMAN YOKE.

Now that the pinch is becoming more severe in Germany, living in Belgium is more difficult, says The London News. The Belgians are suffering because Germany is making a heavy levy on the food produced in that country.

The French and Belgian women [illegible] Paris tell terrible stories of misery since the German occupation. Though the people have to exist on small quantities of food for which they have to pay very high prices, they are bearing their hardships cheerfully. They are, in fact, fighting their German oppressors with a weapon against which the Governor-General of Brussels and the host of German officials in the country can do nothing. Without wilfully disobeying the German orders—scarcely a week elapses without a number of edicts in which the term "il est defendu" ("verboten") occurs—they have adopted an attitude which is more galling to the Germans than actual disobedience. They mock their masters. And the Germans, unable to take action for "Amtsbeleidigung," can only fume and threaten.

Mme. Bonot, who has arrived in London with her family of eight children, gave to a representative of The Daily News some particulars of life in Brussels under the German yoke. "Ah, monsieur," she said, "we have suffered much, but the Germans have not been able to break our spirit, though God knows how they have tried. And we await the day with perfect tranquillity and confidence when they will be hunted out of our country. Our faith in an allied victory has never been shaken, though we have been kept in ignorance of the real course of the military operations.

"For example, we never knew of the British and French advance on the Somme until the news was conveyed to us by British and French aviators. How we cheered! How we shouted: 'Vive la France! Vive l'Angleterre!' The Germans were alarmed. Something had to be done. And what do you think the Governor-General did by way of punishing us? He issued a decree ordering us to go to bed at 7 o'clock!"

We hear of high food prices in Germany, but they cannot be higher than those which the Belgians have in the past had to pay for ordinary articles of food. Mme. Bonot gave the following prices per kilo, which is a little over 2 lbs.: Beef, 10s; pork, 7s 6d; bacon, 7s 6d; ham, 12s 6d; and butter, 8s 4d.

Two kilos of bread at 7d a kilo were allowed to a family of 10 persons per day.

Butter, meat, and potatoes cannot be had now. Germany has to be served first from the Belgian supplies. What is left is distributed by the Food Committee among the people. It is "misere la-bas," said Mme. Bonot.

"Are the Germans treating us harshly? Well, no. We think their minds are occupied with serious thoughts just now. They know they are beaten. There are very few soldiers in Brussels. The Belgian garrisons have been denuded in order to make good the losses on the Somme. There are no German wounded to be seen in Brussels, but it is known that all the hotels at Spa are full of wounded men."

Matrimonial Maxims.

I hold fast to the private maxim that hardly anything is unendurable if one sets up that all mankind could not give one a quite worthy mate. But there is another alleviation: understanding not only that one is married to somebody else, but also that somebody else is married to one's self, and that it is quite as hard for the other party. There are many excellent things to be done; here are a few:

(1) Do not open each other's letters. (For one reason you might not like the contents.) And try not to look liberal if you don't even glance at the address or the postmark.

(2) Vary your pursuits, your conversation, and your clothes. If required vary your hair.

An Interesting Smelter.

An interesting and extensive aluminum smelter is being organized at Hoyanfjord, Norway, where there is a waterfall which may provide 60,000 horse-power. It is proposed to develop 20,000 horse-power at once to provide for the production of 4,000 tons of aluminum a year. A number of bauxite beds have been obtained in southern France where the ore will be worked into oxides and shipped in this concentrated form to Norway for the final conversion into metal by electrical furnaces.

Sweeping Carpets.

Wet your brooms with boiling suds once a week and they will become tough and last much longer. When sweeping, sprinkle a handful of salt on the carpet to carry the dust along; it will make the carpet brighter. Wet newspapers, wrung nearly dry and torn into bits are also good dust collectors when sweeping. Tea leaves are good to sprinkle on all but very delicate carpets.

FASHION HINTS

What Ten-year-olds Need Just to Romp In.

With a navy blue chinchilla coat well tailored goes this navy velvet poke, a tall crown and brim rolled up in the back. All the trimming is three rows of narrow black grosgrain ribbon and three tomato red, fruity pieces on the left side.

DOROTHY E COMFORT.

A Fringed Centerpiece.

A rather novel idea for a large centerpiece is to use instead of scallops a narrow lace insertion on the edge, and finish this with a plain fringe instead of the usual lace edging. It is much prettier than one would expect.

The centerpiece should be larger than twenty-eight inches, for if smaller a number of little plaits would have to be made on the inner edge of the insertion to make it fit around the centerpiece. The lace should be a coarse cluny, not necessarily expensive, for many of the imitations that are machine made are quite pretty.

A narrow fringe as plain as possible is best to use. Frequently where the lace joins the materials and also where the lace and fringe meet a line of colored stitching is used.

Sleepy Time Story That Is Instructive and Entertaining.

FISH THAT BUILDS A NEST.

Remarkable Little Creature That Displays Great Ingenuity In Constructing a Home For Its Children — Eats Neighbors' Babies—A Cornfield Lady.

Tonight, said Uncle Ben, I am going to tell you about

FATHER STICKLEBACK.

"What do you think of a fish that builds a nest?" asked Uncle Ben.

"A nest down in the water?" echoed little Ned and Polly Ann.

"Yes," replied Ben, "a nest that looks very much like the nests the birds build in the treetops.

"The fish is named the stickleback. The father fish builds the nest and takes care of the little ones.

"The fish do not live in the nest, but the wife lays the eggs from which the young fish hatch inside of it.

"The nest has two doors, and they open in such directions that the ocean current passes through them instead of beating against the frail walls of the nest and battering them down, as it might do in time.

"The gum with which the fish glues together the parts of the nest is spun out of its body, just as the spider spins out the silk for its web.

"Mrs. Stickleback is a great gadder. After she leaves the eggs in the nest she goes swimming off and never bothers about the little fishes.

"Father Stickleback, who has built the nest, watches over it till the little ones come out of the eggs. Then he guards them until they are old enough to take care of themselves.

"It must be a fine thing to see him swimming about with his little ones flocking about him. If any strange fish tries to bother them Father Stickleback flies at him in a fine rage, and it is apt to go hard with the one who makes the trouble, for sticklebacks are fine fighters. They have a row of sharp spines on their backs, and with these they can rip and tear their enemies severely.

"Although so kind to their own young ones, the sticklebacks are not so good to the young of other fishes. Indeed, it is said that it is their weakness for making a meal of their neighbors' babies that has made them so disliked by the other dwellers in the water.

"There is one family of sticklebacks that live in the ocean, and they make their nests of seaweeds gummed together with a sticky thread which the fish supplies.

"There are other sticklebacks that live in fresh water, and their nests are made of small sticks and twigs which they can gather together on the river bottom and are glued together by means of the sticky liquid which the fish provides.

"The openings in the nest are always turned the same way that the water runs, so that it may sweep through instead of against the sides of the nest."

In the Cornfield.

All summer long the little girl in the picture has been watching the corn grow. Now that it is taller than herself and about ripe she likes to hide away in the golden forest. Soon the harvesters will come and cut the yellowing stalks and the field will be bare. Probably she will regret to see her playground thus despoiled, but there will come another year, and again the corn will grow green and then yellow, and finally once more the harvesters will gather the grain.

Busy Little Mothers.

We're kept busy, goodness knows,
Washing careless dollies' clo'es!

We're kept busy when we're through
Mending them as good as new.

And even then they will wear out,
No matter how we twist about.

Indeed, we fear quite soon 'tis so
Shopping we will have to go.

A Barberless Land.

There are no barbers in Spitzbergen, says Alfred C. B. Fletcher in the November Wide World Magazine. Seated on a stool in the stern of the ship I allowed Superintendent Gilson to trim my locks with a pair of clippers provided by the company. I didn't realise how intensely cold it was until the sharp currents of the arctic began to circulate around my ears in the paths made by the moving band of the superintendent. One complete run of the clippers up the back of my head was all I could stand at a time, and then I would run to warm myself by the stove in the mess-room. In a minute I would return to let the work continue, only to speed back to the stove again. Dinner was on the table and the little mess-room could not be turned into a barber's shop. After half an hour the job was finished. It was Gilson's first attempt at anything in the tonsorial line. On gazing into the mirror to inspect the work I concluded that he should have been a maker of winding stairs. The most skilled mechanic could not have made a more perfect set of steps!

The wealthy lawbreaker usually gets less justice for his money than the poor one.

Fashiongrams.

A frock launched forth for fall is made of beige cloth and velvet. Even the tiny ruffles on the skirt and sleeves are of velvet.

One couldn't help calling a hat military when it is made of khaki silk and trimmed with red ribbon in cartridge plaiting.

Two toned underwear is something of a novelty. The two shades, which are very pale, are interwoven in pink and blue, white and pale gray or primrose with powder blue.

On hats of felt are narrow hat bands of engraved leather.

A black satin skirt is part of a stunning afternoon costume. The other part is a white broadcloth coat having pockets, collar and cuffs of the satin. A white felt hat trimmed with black satin gives the finishing touch.

SAYS BODY IS A POISON FACTORY

Urges Everyone to Drink Glass of Hot Water Before Breakfast.

Just as coal, when it burns, leaves behind a certain amount of incombustible material in the form of ashes, so the food and drink taken day after day leaves in the alimentary canal a certain amount of indigestible material, which if not completely eliminated from the system each day, becomes food for the millions of bacteria which infest the bowels. From this mass of left-over waste, toxins and ptomainelike poisons are formed and sucked into the blood.

Men and women who can't get feeling right must begin to take inside baths. Before eating breakfast each morning drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash out of the thirty feet of bowels the previous day's accumulation of poisons and toxins and to keep the entire alimentary canal clean, pure and fresh.

Those who are subject to sick headache, colds, billousness, constipations, others who wake up with bad taste, foul breath, backache, rheumatic stiffness, or have a sour, gassy stomach after meals, are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug store, and begin practicing internal sanitation. This will cost very little, but is sufficient to make everyone an enthusiast on the subject.

Remember inside bathing is more important that outside bathing, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, causing poor health, while the bowel pores do. Just as soap and hot water cleanses, sweetens and freshens the skin, so hot water and limestone phosphate act on the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels.

WARSAW, Dec. 6. —An oyster supper under the auspices of the Baptist Church will be held in the Town Hall on Thursday, Dec. 7. After the supper a good program will be given in the church. Capt. Warren of the Canadian Army Service Corps, will address the audience.

The annual convention of the Methodist Sunday Schools of this district was held at Bethel Church on Monday. Both afternoon and evening sessions were exceptionally well attended. The speakers were Rev. Mr. Barrett of Lakefield, Rev. Mr. Whattam of Mark Street Church, Peterborough, Rev. Mr. Wickett, of Fraserville, and Rev. Mr. Clare of Warsaw. Mr. McKee, the district secretary, gave a report of the year's progress. Miss Edna Payne of Lakefield and Miss Clara Payne of Bethel Church delivered interesting and instructing addresses. Music was furnished by the choirs of the churches represented, and an excellent tea provided by the ladies of Bethel Church.

Mr. Wm. Dewart is spending a few days on business in Toronto.

A shooting match for geese was held here on Tuesday. There are still some crack shots left in Warsaw.

Capt. Warren and Lieut. Dunsford were in the village on Monday recruiting for the Canadian Army Service Corps and for the 247th Batt.

His Lordship the Bishop of Toronto will be at St. Mark's Church on Sunday, Dec. 10.

The regular meeting of the Warsaw Women's Institute will be held on Thursday, Dec. 14, instead of Dec. 7, as announced on the program. Mrs. Edwards will give a report of the convention recently held in Toronto and a full report of the Red Cross work done by this branch during the past six months will be read by the secretary, Mrs. George Taylor. A full attendance is requested on the second Thursday of the month, Dec. 14. The winter series meeting will be held in January, the date to be announced later.

MAYOR DUFFUS EXPLAINS CITY COUNCIL'S STAND RE DISPOSAL PLANT

When Aldermen Come to Decision as to What Should be Done Ratepayers Will be Advised and Given Full Information.

Editor Review: In the papers last evening there were published letters from Mr. H. B. Rye and Mr. John Carlisle that require correction.

Mr. Rye stated that the Council "intended to buy, without the ratepayers' consent; 25 to 30 acres at about $70,000, using a small part of this for disposal plant, say about five acres, and hand the balance over to the Agricultural Society." The Council had not expressed an intention of taking the action Mr. Rye states they had.

The site selected for the sewage disposal works and approved of by the Provincial Board of Health is on McKellar Street between Lock and Park Streets. The Council and a number of residents of North Monaghan opposed the use of this site and, as you are aware, called a meeting and later waited upon the City Council and asked them to consider their objection.

The City Council earnestly desires to live in a neighborly way with the adjoining townships, and it appointed a committee to meet a committee from the township to ascertain, if, in any way, the objections could be met. These committees have had a number of meetings and one suggestion made by the Provincial Board of Health as well as by others, was that more land should be taken in, in order to overcome objections from residents near the proposed site. The Council Committee stated they were quite ready to consider taking in more land, to ascertain what the expense would be, and after obtaining all the facts to consider whether the proposal was a feasible and an advisable one. That is how the matter stands today. I might add, however, that the prices so far obtained, if adhered to, would make the taking in of the land outlined to the committee prohibitive, and all the members of the Council are decidely agreed upon that.

The Council is willing to take any reasonable action to meet any objection, although the Council is quite satisfied that there will be nothing objectionable in the disposal plant, but they do believe that it would not be unwise to go to a reasonable distance to avoid, not only litigation, but any bad feeling. However, what will be done depends upon what will satisfy the residents of the township and the expense it would be to the city, for the Council cannot, of course, recommend a course of action that would be unreasonably expensive to the city. When the Council has come to a decision as to what should be done, the ratepayers of the city will, as a matter of course, be advised and given full information.

JOS. J. DUFFUS,
Mayor.

Proclamation to Deserters

P. C. 2814.--- Certified copy of a report of the Committee of the Privy Council, approved by His Excellendy the Governor-General, of the 24th November, 1916. --- 652-17-22.

The Committee of the Privy Council have had before them a report, dated the 9th November, 1916, from the Minister of Militia and Defence, representing that many soldiers of the Canadian Expeditionary Force are absent from their units without leave. It is probable that the larger number of them did not, when leaving, appreciate the seriousness of their offence, and that they are now desirous of coming back, but fearing severe punishment hesitate to do so.

Further, soldiers of the Overseas Force, now undergoing imprisonment for "Desertion" or "Absence Without Leave" are available for service with the Force, if pardoned and released from imprisonment.

The Minister, Therefore, recommends, that your Excellency, as an act of grace, on assuming the government of the Dominion, be pleased to

GRANT THE ROYAL CLEMENCY

to such persons, by issuing a proclamation to the effect that those soldiers of the Expeditionary, Force who are now absent without leave

Be Pardoned for Such Offence

provided they surrender themselves to the Office Commanding the unit to which they belonged, where that unit is still in Canada, or if it be not, to the District Officer Commanding any Military District in Canada.

Not later than the 15th Day of December, 1916

for the purpose of completing their engagements; and that those soldiers of the said Force who are now under sentence of imprisonment or detention for desertion or absence without leave be pardoned for such offences be released from imprisonment or detention, and be handed over to the Officer Commanding the unit to which they belong or to the Officer Commanding the Military District in which they are, for the purpose of being returned to some other units of the Expeditionary Force, in order to complete their engagements.

The Committee Concur in the foregoing recommendation and submit the same for approval.

(Signed) RODOLPHE BOUDREAU,
Clerk of the Privy Council.

PETERBOROUGH MARKETS

The local market was quiet all week. There were a few loads of hay sold, most of them at $11, but a few brought as high as $14.50. Very little straw was offered.

There is a good demand for oats from the liveries and express companies. As high as 65c was paid on the market for one or two loads.

Wheat has taken a drop and is now quoted at $1.65 for the local mills.

The livestock market is very strong, particularly good finished cattle for the Christmas market. The demand for light sheep and lambs in Toronto and Montreal is very great.

Hogs have taken another jump and are now quoted at $11 for local delivery.

Butter and eggs still command high prices on the market. According to prices in the big centres, the supply is increasing, which will tend to lower quotations in the near future.

There is a good demand for fowl of all kinds, but they must be well fattened. The chickens on the market last Saturday were the poorest lot seen in years.

HORSE MARKET

TORONTO, Dec. 6.—The Toronto horse trade continues to be quiet. The horsemen are not shipping horses for government inspections as freely as usual as they are angling for an increase in prices from the French Government buyers. There is a difference of about $50 in the prices paid by the British and the French buyers, and sellers are trying to have the latter price raised $5 to $10. In the meantime buying is almost at a standstill, but there are prospects of an adjustment. There is a difference in the buying for the reason that the French Government pays for its horses delivered in France, while the British have their own vessels and the risk of transportation is taken by the government and not by its agents.

The French buyers do not consider that there is an urgent need for more horses immediately.
